FOOT SOLDIERS STILL WIN WARS, SAYS GEN. DRUM

ArmyMechanization Is Evaluated.

Where Battles Rage

SHANGHAI — Japanese fleet nears Tsingtao, port of North China, and residents fear attack; French roiled when Japanese soldier stirs row in their Shanghai concession and may protest. Page 7.

MADRID — Six thousand Spanish rebel troops and noncombatants quit strongholds in Teruel and surrender to loyalists, ending rebel resistance which has continued since Dec. 21. Page 9.

Maj. Gen. H. A. Drum.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Despite enormous advances in mechanization and motorization of troops, in aviation and in communications, battles of the future will be won by the same men who have won all the great battles since gunpowder was invented—the infantry and artillery, fighting with their feet in the mud.

This was the forecast that Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the second army and of the sixth corps area, made here today before members of the Indiana National Guard association.

Fighting Units Improved.

Weapons and fighting units developed or vastly improved since the world war, such as aircraft, tanks, motorized infantry and mechanized cavalry and artillery, will play an important part in future battles, Gen Drum predicted. But that part will be in support of, and not in substitution for, artillery and infantry, which must continue to exert the vital pressure necessary to win battles.

The new units have increased mobility and shock power, he said, but they lack sustained power and, because they require such a large proportion of the men to operate their mechanical steeds, are weak defensively. Meanwhile, equally great improvements have been made in the weapons and transport of artillery and infantry, which augment their defensive power by increasing their fire power and mobility.

Assume Cavalry Rôle.

Without making the direct comparison, Gen. Drum assigned to motorized and mechanized units, in major military operations, much the same rôle as that formerly held by cavalry, which since the time of Hannibal has been unable to break well trained and unshaken infantry, but can disorganize the enemy by raids, and can massacre foot troops once they are broken and scattered by opposing infantry.

While denying these streamlined units the paramount place in the modern army, the speaker pictured vast changes in future battle methods which will come from their employment.

Trench warfare, with bloody stalemates such as the world war saw, will be avoided, he said. Instead of victories by quick thrusts of small, highly trained mechanized forces such as has been pictured by enthusiasts for mechanization, he foresaw vast armies contending over a long period, equipped at greater cost than ever before, and using huge quantities of munitions.

Predicts Faster Battles.

Battles will be fought at faster tempo than in the past, said Gen Drum, due to radio, perhaps television, and other improvements in communication and transportation. This high speed fighting will require more elastic staff organization, more elastic minds in commanders, greater tactical initiative in subordinate officers and, because of the complexity of modern equipment, a higher degree of training and intelligence in the rank and file.

The military profession, Gen. Drum

MOVIE AND AUTO INDUSTRIES LEAD IN '36 SALARIES

Alfred Sloan Heads List with $561,311.

Lists of 1936 salaries of motion picture stars and business and banking executives are printed on page 7 of part 2.

Claudette Colbert, the highest paid woman movie star—$350,833 in 1936.

The movies and the automobile industry led all business in the salaries paid to their top rank stars and executives in 1936, the ways and means committee of the house of representatives disclosed yesterday in Washington. The committee made public the salaries of all persons who received more than $15,000 in that year.

The committee followed its practice of the last two years in making public the information provided by the treasury department. Disclosure of the salary figures obtained by the treasury has brought widespread protests from persons who believe the information should be held confidential by the government.

Sloan Displaces Hearst.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., chairman of the General Motors corporation, displaced W. R. Hearst, publisher, as the highest paid corporation executive, the data showed. Sloan, then president of General Motors, received total compensation in 1936 of $561,311. Hearst's name was No. 1 on the 1935 salary list with compensation of $500,000. The publisher's name did not appear this year among the thousands who were listed.

Other automobile executives ranked high on the list. Close to Sloan was William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, who received salary and bonuses totaling $459,878. At the time Knudsen was executive vice president. He was advanced to the presidency in 1937.

Other High Business Salaries.

Ranking next to Sloan and Knudsen among the highest paid business men were: Donaldson Brown, General Motors vice president, $353,732; John Thomas Smith, General Motors counsel, $349,257; Thomas J. Watson, chairman, International Business Machine corporation, $342,008; S. P. Skouras, theater manager, $341,000; Vincent Ftzgerald, salesman for G. L. Ohrstrom & Co., $320,296; Lawrence P. Fisher, General Motors, $307,773; Charles F. Kettering, General Motors vice president, $304,400.

Henry Ford, one of the country's wealthiest men, was not listed. His son, Edsel, president of the Ford Motor company, received $137,564. P. E. Martin, a Ford vice president, was listed for $163,509. Another Ford executive, C. E. Sorensen, also received a larger salary than the president of the company, $158,599.

Omission Not Significant.

The fact that a number of prominent men were reported as receiving nominal salaries and others were omitted from the list was not regarded as significant. Many wealthy men, who are heads of corporations, draw relatively small or no salaries, depending on their return from their businesses, either in the form of dividends or increased worth of their holdings.

The movie colony was well represented in the highest salary brackets. Gary Cooper was listed at $370,214. Ronald Colman followed with $362,500. Claudette Colbert led the feminine stars with $350,833, just ahead of Mae West, who was paid $323,333.

Madeleine Carroll, the English film star, ranked fifth highest in the movie salaries with $287,913. Sixth place was occupied by Warner Baxter, who drew $284,384. He ranked higher in 1935.

Steel Pay Not So High.

The steel industry reported some big salaries but none that approached those of the automobile field. Eugene G. Grace, chairman of Bethlehem Steel, got the highest, $180,000, including bonuses. E. T. Weir, chair

3 ROBBERS LASHED ON BARE BACKS WHEN TIED TO WHIPPING POST

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 8. — (AP) — Three convicted robbers were stripped to the waist, tied to a post, and lashed with a cat-o'-nine tails today in a renewal of Delaware's centuries old method of punishing criminals.

Raymond Shewbrook, 21 years old, squirmed and hugged the ancient whipping post in the New Castle prison yard as the twenty lashes swished down on his bare back.

David Attaviani, 21 years old, who pleaded guilty with Shewbrook to stealing an automobile, showed no sign of pain as he received ten lashes. Arthur Spain, 45 years old, convicted of stealing watches and a safe from a department store, received five lashes with the same stoicism showed by Attaviani.

A gallery of 150 men, shivering from the cold and bundled in mufflers and heavy coats, crowded into the workhouse yard at Greenbank to witness the lashings.

ETHEL CORDAY SUES MAX ROSEN FOR $1,844 LOAN

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Ethel May Corday, movie actress, today sued Max Rosen, violinist, for $1,844, alleging he had failed to repay a number of loans which helped feed, shelter, and succor him in illness.

"I repaid the plaintif in full the amount of any loans she made me," declared the violinist. "She insisted on helping me financially to advance my artistic career. Her loans to me were acts of patronage. She insisted she wanted to help an artist."

ENGLISH CHURCH TO SHOW TALKIES OF BIBLE SCENES

CHICHESTER, Eng. Jan. 8.—(AP)—Talking movies, showing biblical scenes and adaptions of parables, but not of the figure of Christ, will invade ancient Chichester cathedral tomorrow in what is said to be the first such experiment in an Angelican cathedral. Chichester cathedral was founded near the close of the 11th century but fires in 1114 and 1187 made rebuilding necessary.

How Lucky! It Missed World by 400,000 Mi.

JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, Jan. 8.—The earth narrowly missed a collision with a planetoid last Oct. 30, it was revealed here today. The two bodies just scraped past each other during the night, in an astronomical sense, with a bare 400,000 miles to spare.

[Comparatively, the moon's mean distance from the earth is 238,857 miles. The sun's distance is 92,897,416 miles.]

This is the narrowest escape the earth has had within the period of astronomical observation.

On Oct. 28, a German astronomer, Dr. Karl Reinmuth of Heidelberg, noticed a long streak across a photographic plate. A similar streak was found on a plate exposed Oct. 27.

Missed by 5½ Hours.

When the orbit of the strange body was investigated it was found that between Oct. 25 and 30 it was shooting past the earth. At the speed it was traveling the asteroid could have reached the earth in five and a half hours from the nearest point in its path.

At present the asteroid is going under the name "Object Reinmuth 1937 U. B."

Dr. H. E. Wood, the union government's astronomer, said today that it was quite likely that the planetoid was a small solid body only a few miles in diameter. Asked what would have happened if it had struck the earth, Dr. Wood said:

"It might conceivably have altered the international situation somewhat."

Great Damage Possible.

Professor Jan Schilt of the department of astronomy at Columbia university in New York said last night that a collision between the earth and an asteroid would probably have the most serious effects if the celestial intruder fell into the sea.

"In that case the collision would probably result in violent tidal waves, and damage might be considerable," he said. There are probably thousands of such objects in space, he added.

The speed of the asteroid reported from Johannesburg was computed at more than 70,000 miles an hour.

HITCH-HIKING MARINE GETS A LIFT ABOARD WOODRING'S AIRPLANE

Kansas City, Kas., Jan. 8.—[U.P.]—The salute Sidney Goldstein, United States marine, gave Secretary of War Woodring at Fairfax airport today worked like a distress signal between lodge brothers.

Woodring was flying to Denver in his army plane and Private Goldstein, of New York City, was trying to reach San Pedro, where he must report aboard ship tomorrow night.

"It'll be serious if I don't get there," said Goldstein.

Woodring grinned, "Well, get in and I'll give you a lift as far as I go," he said.

A few hours later the plane landed in Denver and Goldstein began looking for another lift.

GEM THIEF SLAIN IN CHINA BY U. S. MARINE OFFICER

PEIPING, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Second Lieutenant De Wolf Schatzel, United States marine officer of Findlay, O., today shot and killed an armed assailant during an investigation of a million dollar jewel robbery.

The victim, whom authorities charged was one of the China coast's most notorious international criminals, was identified as Joseph Stanishewsky, believed a Pole of German citizenship.

The incident occurred outside the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Lamb, writers and explorers of Washington, D. C., where Stanishewsky and another Pole, named Puhalsky, had rented rooms.

Schatzel was acting as provost marshal investigating alleged complicity of an American marine, whose name was not disclosed, in the jewel robbery here Dec. 21. Puhalsky escaped.

Passport Records Show Housewife Is a Gadabout

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Statistics on passports issued in 1937 disclosed today that more passports for travel abroad went to housewives than to any other classification. The number was 25,807, compared with 19,540 for students—the next highest category. Of the total of 168,016 passports granted, 56,85 per cent, however, were issued to men.

HoldUpBookie Licenses Until Law Gets Test

Action to test the validity of the city ordinance to license pari-mutuel brokers was begun yesterday by Attorney General Otto Kerner who, at the request of Mayor Kelly, filed a quo warranto petition in the Circuit court. This action will enable the city to get a final ruling from the State Supreme court within a few months.

Quo warranto [Latin phrase meaning by what authority] proceedings may be filed only by the attorney general or state's attorney. In response to the petition the court issues a writ compelling the defendant [in this case the city] to show, literally, "by what warant" the disputed action was taken; that is, by what authority the city council passed the licensing ordinance.

Meanwhile, by agreement of Mayor Kelly, Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes and Attorney General Kerner, no applications for the brokerage licenses will be accepted pending the decision of the high court. The betting law had been scheduled to become effective tomorrow.

Kerner Files Petition Himself.

Attorney General Kerner filed his petition personally in Circuit Court Clerk John J. Conroy's office. It declares:

"The people of the state of Illinois, by Otto Kerner, who sues for the said people in this behalf, comes before the court on this day and for the said people and in the authority thereof, gives the court to understand and be informed that the city of Chicago, Ill., unlawfully has exercised and still does unlawfully exercise the following powers not conferred by law and without any warant, charter, grant right, privilege or authority of law whatsoever—to wit: ....

"On Dec. 22, A. D., 1937, the city of Chicago passed an ordinance, which reads as follows: . . ." The entire ordinance is then quoted. The petition is concluded as follows:

"Whereupon the attorney general prays the consideration of the court here in the premises and due process of law in this behalf to make the city of Chicago answer the said people by what warant or authority the said city claims to have, use, and exercise the liberties, privileges, powers, and franchises aforesaid."

City to Answer This Week.

Under the law the city has from 5 to 60 days in which to answer. The case will be assigned to Judge Harry M. Fisher. Mr. Hodes said the city's answer will be filed late this week, after which the court will set a day for a hearing. Whichever way Judge Fisher decides, an appeal will be taken by the losing side, according to the agreement.

Mayor Kelly, who approved the adoption of the ordinance as a revenue measure, told a subcommittee of the city council finance committee that the delay occasioned by the test proceedings will necessitate revising the estimated revenue for the city in 1938.

In drafting the budget the city set up an estimated revenue of $1,600,000 to be derived from the licensing of brokers "to accept money for transmittal to race tracks." Because of the delay the mayor yesterday suggested the figure be reduced to $1,000,000.

AUDIT UNCOVERS $1,000,000 FOR SALARY ROLLS

Board Responds to Mayor's Plea.

Joseph D. Keenan, labor leader who urged school pay restorations.

Another pay increase totaling $1,016,000 for the 18,000 employés of the educational division of the school system will be voted by the board of education on next Wednesday. Of the 18,000 employés, 14,000 are teachers. The pay boost will be retroactive to Jan. 1.

This announcement was made last night by James B. McCahey, president of the board, after auditors for the board, reexamining the school system's finances at the request of Mayor Kelly, reported an increase of $1,016,000 in the anticipated 1938 educational revenue.

Total Increase Above $6,000,000.

The $1,016,000 pay increase is in addition to a salary boost of more than $5,000,000 which was decided upon last month and provided for in the tentative school budget for 1938. This previous increase for the teachers and other school employés was achieved by raising salaries directly a total of more than $2,500,000 and by extending the school year two weeks. The half month extension itself means more than $2,500,000 in additional pay for the teachers and other employés.

The increase to be voted Wednesday and that approved in December, totaling considerably more than $5,000,000, will restore to the teachers one-half of all the pay reductions they suffered during depression times. The additional two weeks on the school year will give pupils nine and one-half months of classroom work, only two weeks short of the ten month year of the predepression period.

Salary Roll $42,714,500.

The 1938 salary roll will be $42,714,500, an increase of $6,336,023 over the $36,378,477 total for last year. The tentative budget provided for a $41,557,657 salary expenditure, $1,156,843 less than that now anticipated. The difference between the latter figure and the increase in anticipated revenue will be made up by salvage from other appropriations.

Comparative pay rolls for 1937 and 1938 are as follows:

	1937.	1938.
Regular teachers	$29,219,293	$34,250,000
Special teachers	602,571	864,500
Civil serv. employés	6,556,613	7,600,000

Mr. McCahey's announcement climaxed a busy day in the offices of the board of education.

Labor Asks Salary Boosts.

Chronologically the day's developments were:

Members of a committee representing the Chicago Federation of Labor in that organization's dealings with the school board called upon Mayor Kelly in the city hall yesterday morning, asking that a determined effort be made to include in the school budget provision for more salary increases. Headed by Joseph D. Keenan, secretary of the federation, this group included Patrick F. Sullivan, president of the Chicago Building Trades council; W. A. Lewis of the Allied Printing Trades council; Albert G. Fox, metal trades, and C. L. Vestal of the Chicago Teachers' union.

Mayor Writes to McCahey.

Within half an hour of their departure, the mayor dispatched a personal letter to Mr. McCahey, conveying the request to him.

"The committee appointed by the Chicago Federation of Labor on school matters called on me this morning expressing their gratitude for your efforts in recognizing not only the labor committee, but also other civic bodies which have talked to you concerning pay restoration," the letter read. "Knowing that you agree with me that the teaching personnel and other employés of the board of education should be encouraged and shown that their work is appreciated, I hope you will do whatever is possible concerning salary increases.

"I trust you will pardon my intrusion on school board affairs," the message concluded, "but I am writing this letter both as a citizen and as mayor of Chicago, with deep interest in school affairs."

Soon after he received this communication, Mr. McCahey consulted H. H. Brackett, auditor for the board of education. The latter went back to his office with members of his staf and set to work on the final figures for 1937.

Working steadily for several hours, employés in the auditor's office prepared a revised statement of board finances as of Dec. 31.

"A careful re-examination of estimates of resources that will be available—in the light of developments since the first preliminary figures were prepared in October—disclosed that several of the items should be increased materially," Brackett announced. "Final revision of the earlier statement shows a total increase in anticipated resources of $1,016,000. I base my figures on information obtained since the tentative budget was prepared. This money can be appropriated immediately."

Law Requires Early Estimate.

Illinois law, Mr. McCahey explained, requires that the first estimates of budget requirements for any year be submitted to the members of the board of education by Dec. 1 of the year before. In order to have the tentative requirements for 1938 prepared at the stipulated time, Brackett was forced to make many of his estimates as early as Oct. 1, 1937. It was these early figures that were considered again yesterday and revised.

Increases in various sources of anticipated revenue as set forth in the auditor's report were as follows:

Item of revenue—	Increase.
Vocational education	$ 200,000
State distributive fund	37,000
From state for delinquent children	19,000
Motor fuel tax	170,000
Rental for assembly halls	5,000
Tuition, nonresidents	10,000
Taxes for years prior to 1928	75,000
Total	$ 516,000
Surplus—	Increase.
Liabilities reduced as follows:
Interest on tax warants	$ 300,000
Unpaid liabilities	200,000
Total	$ 500,000
Total increase in resources	$1,016,000

Board Members Give Assent.

Assured by these figures that it was possible to grant further raises in pay to the school employés, Mr. McCahey notified other members of the board by telephone.

"They authorized me to say that they will gladly provide this additional restoration in the 1938 budget," he announced later.

For an elementary school teacher whose basic salary was $2,500 before any reductions were made, the action of the board members yesterday assured a raise of $56.25 annually or a total year's salary of $2,193.75. The depression low in this scale was $1,912.50. The boost announced last month provided for an annual increase of $250 which would have made the annual salary $2,137.50.

Thanks Mayor and Board.

Similarly a high school teacher with a basic salary of $3,800 will receive an additional $95 a year through the new increase. Economy in the depression years reduced his pay to $2,907 and the partial restoration at the end of last year raised it to $3,249. It now becomes $3,344.

"I am greatly pleased to hear the news," said Mr. Keenan last night. "When the committee called upon the mayor yesterday he promised to contact the board of education in our behalf. The result has been announced and on behalf of labor I wish to express gratitude to Mayor Kelly and the board of education for this prompt and favorable action."

SCHOOL POVERTY EXTENDS HOLIDAY IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The Minneapolis board of education, which extended the Christmas vacation to three weeks because of shortage of funds, will meet Monday to decide whether it can cut the teachers' pay only 5% instead of 7%.

Faced with a $500,000 deficit last month, the board of education settled upon the 7 per cent figure to keep expenses within income. Since that time the budget has been revised and income estimates set at a higher figure which would bring the deficit down to $400,000. A 5 per cent cut would equal that sum.

CINCINNATI SHY ON SCHOOL FUND; 18 DAY VACATION

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Cincinnati school children returned to their classrooms Monday, Jan. 3, after an eighteen day Christmas vacation, the longest on record here. The vacation was lengthened to curtail school costs, because of a shortage in funds.

The schools were closed for the summer last year late in May—almost a month ahead of the normal schedule—to cut down costs of salaries and maintenance.

STATE REVENUE IS 30 MILLIONS ABOVE YEAR AGO

1937 Sales Tax Accounts for 13 Millions Gain.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Revenue received by the state treasury in 1937 surpassed by more than 30 million dollars the amount of 1936 receipts, State Treasurer John C. Martin revealed today in his annual report. Sales tax receipts last year were more than 13 millions above 1936.

The state received $225,593,736.57 from all sources in 1937, as compared with $194,475,512.81 the previous year.

The chief revenue producer was the sales tax, which brought in $83,040,468.36, including protested items of $5,644,478.91. Although the sales tax was adopted by the present administration as a substitute for the general property tax, Treasurer Martin's report shows the latter tax brought in $1,484,670.93 during 1937. Finance department officials explained the amount was collected on delinquent levies of previous years.

Source of Revenue for Years.

"The property tax probably will continue dribbling in for twenty years," said one official. "Delinquent property taxes of long standing are cleared up only when real estate is transferred."

Other principal revenue producers included the motor fuel tax, $38,949,608.27; the motor vehicle tax, $21,283,188.44, and the beverage and liquor revenue tax, $10,788,387.35.

Bonded indebtedness was reduced $10,285,000, Martin said. Tax anticipation notes were reduced $360,000, leaving an unpaid balance of $130,000 on these notes, which Martin predicted will be wiped out in 1938.

December income exceeded by a small margin that of November, but the December receipts of $18,227,415.31 were exceeded by expenditures totaling $22,033,896.79. Treasurer Martin explained this disparity by saying the state had paid more than $4,000,000 in principal and interest on two emergency relief bond issues. These bond issue payments, he said, principally were responsible for a decrease from $66,343,550.91 to $62,537,069.43 in the treasury's gross balance.

Net Balance 38½ Millions.

The gross balance, according to Treasurer Martin, is subject to reductions of approximately $24,000,000 in obligated funds, leaving a net balance of $38,500,000, of which only about $21,000,000 can be used for general state expenditure, the remainder being in the nature of trust funds for specific purposes.

Major sources of December revenue were listed by Treasurer Martin as follows:

Direct property tax	$ 173,566
Inheritance tax	391,900
Beverage and liquor revenue tax	1,029,534
Insurance fees and taxes	49,630
Corporation fees and taxes	122,555
Interest on state funds	10,922
Retailers' occupation [sales] tax	6,901,512
Public utility tax	788,018
Motor fuel tax	3,229,867
Motor vehicle tax	2,494,179
Federal aid to roads	1,080,812
Federal aid, old age assistance	133,930
Illinois Central railroad	870,847
Miscellaneous fees and refunds	746,190
Trust funds	203,946

A feature of the administration of the treasury's office during the last year was the designation of approximately 350 Illinois banks as approved depositories for state funds after all national and state banks in Illinois were given an opportunity to submit bids in compliance with the state depository law. State funds kept in these depositories range around $60,000,000.

VELVET CHARITY BALL IS VELVET FOR A PROMOTER

Children's Charity Dance Nets Him $1,550.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The faces of capital society leaders, who sponsored the Velvet ball Thursday night for the school children's lunch fund, were red with mingled embarrasment and anger today at the discovery that the velvet will go to an astute promoter of charity functions.

It developed that one Jay Corbett, a personable and energetic New Yorker left town with some $1,550 velvet in his pockets, legally due him under a contract. To make matters worse bills still are coming in and fears are expressed there will be no profits to buy lunches for 5,000 undernourished capital children.

Comes with Recommendation.

Mr. Corbett came to town with a recommendation from the Velvet Guild Inc., of New York, headed by June Hamilton Rhodes, a business woman. The Guild, composed of velvet dealers, and interested in promotion, suggested the ball as a charity affair.

A contract calling for sale of tickets at $6 each was presented to the ball committee by Corbett. He agreed to give the committee $2 for each ticket sold and retain the balance out of which he promised to pay $1.50 for a supper to be supplied each guest by the Mayflower hotel and to meet other costs incident to the ball.

Refuses to Resign.

After the contract was signed it was discovered that tickets were being sold for as much as $7.50, but Corbett continued to retain all but the $2 committee share. Corbett blandly met protests by pointing to his contract. When complaints came in on his solicitation of advertising for the ball program the committee asked for his resignation. He refused and retained an attorney to protect his interests.

Corbett finally agreed to surrender his contract for $1,550. He was paid on the eve of the ball. Then as unpaid bills began to pour in the story of Corbett's part in the ball came out.

Programs Are Reprinted.

A bill for period gowns worn by matrons and debutantes at the ball totaled $860. Hotel expenses were $800. The printing bill was heavy, because a new set of elaborate programs was ordered when it was noted that Mrs. William B. Bankhead, wife of the speaker of the house, was listed several social notches below her rightful rank.

Committee members were hopeful tonight that proceeds for sales of tickets to persons who did not attend the ball might enable them to show some profit.

STOP CONGRESS COLD, THREAT IN ANTI-LYNCHFIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Southern senators filibustering against the Wagner-Van Nuys anti-lynching bill today threatened to block action on every thing else until the measure is withdrawn or laid aside.

The warning was delivered by Senator Ellison D. Smith [D., S. C.] in an impassioned outburst in which he denounced northern Democrats for "courting the negro vote."

The southerners believe that by blocking approval of the conference reports on the administration's farm dictatorship bill and the housing insurance measure, both of which are expected to be ready next week, they can force the Democratic leadership to lay aside the anti-lynching bill.

Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky so far has assumed a defiant attitude toward the southern filibuster and has been threatening night sessions to break it.

JAILED FOR ROBBERY HOAX.

Davenport, Ia., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Admitting that his story of being held up and robbed of $20 in the Davenport business district yesterday was a hoax, Emery Beverlin, 26 years old, a coal truck driver, was sent to jail for ten days when arraigned in police court today on a charge of making a false robbery report.

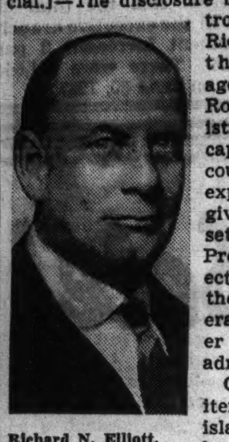
U. S. WATCHDOG PUTS CURB ON WILD SPENDING

Protest of Controler Up to Congress.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The disclosure by Acting Controler General Richard N. Elliott that numerous agencies of the Roosevelt administration are escaping a full accounting of their expenditures has given a further setback to the President's project to deprive the controler general of the power to annoy the administration.



Richard N. Elliott.

One of the items of the legislation proposed by the President to reorganize the administrative branch of the government is a provision abolishing the office of controler general who, as the watchdog of the treasury, possesses and frequently exercises the power to disallow a prospective expenditure by the executive branch which he finds to be contrary to law.

Report After Expenditure.

This power has long irked the executive branch and Mr. Roosevelt determined to do away with it. Under the terms of the administration bill the power to prevent an expenditure would be transferred to an official responsible not to congress, but to the executive. In place of the controler general there would be an independent post-auditor empowered to report to congress an illegal expenditure not before, but after the expenditure. From a watchdog without teeth the executive would have nothing to fear.

Mr. Elliott's appeal to congress for legislation to compel numerous alphabetical agencies created under the Roosevelt régime to make proper accounting of their expenditures is being exploited by opponents of the President by way of warning of what the Roosevelt administration will do generally if it succeeds in destroying the power of the controler general.

The office of the controler general was established seventeen years ago to provide an independent audit and control of expenditures. The controler general is responsible only to congress and today furnishes the only independent source for obtaining accurate information as to the vast and complicated expenditures of the federal government. Under this independent audit and control system the federal government has disbursed more than 80 billions of dollars.

Watchdog on Burocrats.

In the committee hearings the only complaint of consequence against the controler general was that this official at times delayed the quick spending of public money and compelled the department heads to show that the funds were to be disbursed in accordance with the laws enacted by congress. No proof, however, was given that any expenditure was prevented when authorized by congress and made legally.

"The controler general," said Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.], leader of the opposition, "has been the watchdog as the representatives of congress to see that no agency expended public funds except in accordance with the provisions of law, and this official has been virtually the only restraining influence on reckless public spending for the last few years. It is but natural that the controler, in the discharge of his duties, incurred the displeasure of those who desired no interference from an official responsible to congress in the spending of public funds.

"This proposal to give the spending branch of the government a free hand with upwards of eight billions of dollars a year, much of it without an independent check before the money is actually paid out, strikes viciously at the vital elements of good government, good business and the general welfare. It destroys the last safeguard of congress to compel expenditures to be made in accordance with the strict letter of the law. Stripped of the technicalities the result would be destruction of the independent audit of virtually all federal executive expenditures.

Senate Bill Opposed.

"Advocates of the senate bill contend that they have provided for a [so-called] independent post auditor; but it cannot be denied that the bill would destroy the independence of the entire procedure—from bookkeeping and accounting to audit for final settlement and release of accounts because:

"1. The bill provides that the so-called independent audit could not be made until the executive [contracting and spending] branch of the government actually paid claims and demands upon the government under unverified executive branch stipulations.

"2. Even after the money is paid out the audit could be made only of the information an executively devised accounting system would be designed to produce, because the senate bill transfers the authority to prescribe the accounting system from the independent general accounting office to the executive branch of the government. An audit can be no more independent than the sources of information which are accessible.

Transfer to Executive Officer.

"The bill would transfer all authority and tools for prevention of illegal, irregular or inaccurate executive contracting and expenditure from the present independent general accounting office of the congress to the director of the bureau of the budget, an executive officer, whose principal function is compiling requests for executive agency appropriations and who is responsible only to the chief executive.

"There would remain for the new auditor only the sterile function of reporting to congress, after the money has been spent and the accounts settled, whatever illegalities, irregularities or inaccuracies he may find. His findings are not binding upon the director of the budget at any point."

HULL DENOUNCES PROPOSAL FOR VOTE ON WAR

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—In a letter to Chairman Sam D. McReynolds [D., Tenn.] of the house foreign relations committee, Secretary of State Cordell Hull tonight assailed the Ludlow resolution, calling for a national referendum on a declaration of war, as a threat to peace for the American people.

The resolution indirectly comes up for a vote in the house Monday, because during the tense international situation occasioned by the bombing and sinking of the American gunboat Panay, enough signatures were obtained to a petition seeking to bring the resolution out of the foreign relations committee. However, in view of widespread opposition to the resolution, led by President Roosevelt, it is believed the house will not discharge the resolution from the committee so that it may be voted on directly.

Chairman McReynolds recently requested a written expression from Secretary Hull on the resolution. The secretary had declared himself against the proposal in an informal public statement.

Hollywood, Jan. 8.—[U. P.]—Mrs. Ann Beresford Whitehead, who is the mother of the blonde movie star Anita Louise, was charged today in a $150,000 damage suit with having stolen the love of her band leader bridegroom whom she married on Christmas eve.

The suit was filed by the musician's former wife, Mrs. Bernice Whitehead, who said her husband had been lured away by the glamorous promises heaped upon him by the movie star's mother. He is Verne Whitehead, who is known in the entertainment world by several other names.

The damage suit interrupted two weeks of domestic bliss for the newlyweds, and also came at a time when Mrs. Whitehead was planning a birthday party for her daughter, Miss Louise. The actress will be 21 tomorrow.

MERCURY FALLS TO ZERO; COLDEST DAY IN TWO YEARS

An official thermometer reading of zero at 8:15 a. m. yesterday made the day the coldest in Chicago since Feb. 19, 1936, when a minimum of 7 below was registered. The lowest last winter was 1 above zero, on Dec. 7, 1936, and Feb. 10, 1937. Six above on last Dec. 9 was the coldest of this winter until yesterday.

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd said that it is unlikely there will be zero readings today. In the afternoon temperatures are expected to rise and snow is forecast by nightfall. More snow and below normal cold were indicated for tomorrow.

2 OF EVERY 15 IN U. S. SEEKING FULL TIME WORK

Jobless and Partly Idle Put at 17½ Million.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Two out of every fifteen persons in the United States are looking for a full time job, President Roosevelt was told today by John D. Biggers, administrator of the nation's unemployment census. On the basis of these figures, an average of one person in every two families in the country is seeking full time work.

Biggers reported that a postcard census taken Nov. 16 showed that 3,209,211 persons—2,641,660 men and 567,551 women—were partly employed and asking for more work. Because a house to house canvass showed that this registration was only 57 per cent correct, he estimated that 5,630,195 persons are partially employed and in the market for full time jobs.

In a report last Saturday Biggers said 7,822,912 persons registered themselves as unemployed Nov. 16. The registration was found to be 72 per cent accurate in a house to house canvass, and on the basis of this it was estimated that 10,870,000 persons were totally jobless on Nov. 16.

Government experts have estimated that approximately one million more persons have been thrown out of work by the present business recession. This would swell the total full time job seekers to approximately 17½ millions on the basis of the maximum estimates of the unemployed and the partially unemployed who would take full time jobs.

Against a population estimate of 129,257,000 persons in the United States as of July 1, 1937, the full time job seekers thus would represent approximately two out of every fifteen persons.

Figures By States.

Partial unemployment figures by states follow:

Alabama	102,501	Nevada	1,378
Arizona	6,609	New Hampsh.	21,462
Arkansas	67,235	New Jersey	94,783
California	135,576	New Mexico	8,100
Colorado	25,874	New York	319,566
Connecticut	42,505	North Carolina	79,369
Delaware	4,317	North Dakota	12,546
Florida	50,517	Ohio	178,538
Georgia	88,408	Oklahoma	61,487
Idaho	12,698	Oregon	31,243
Illinois	162,606	Pennsylvania	300,809
Indiana	86,281	Rhode Island	28,225
Iowa	50,337	South Carolina	51,625
Kansas	38,894	South Dakota	15,005
Kentucky	63,528	Tennessee	78,311
Louisiana	60,797	Texas	146,160
Maine	29,048	Utah	13,485
Maryland	28,202	Vermont	7,798
Massach'ts	135,359	Virginia	53,108
Michigan	88,778	Washington	49,476
Minnesota	56,197	West Virginia	37,522
Mississippi	65,294	Wisconsin	62,632
Missouri	104,360	Wyoming	5,830
Montana	13,642	Dist. of Colum	12,164
Nebraska	29,526

In the report released today the census administration distinguished between persons regularly working part time and not seeking more work and those working part time but seeking full time jobs. The former class was not included in the report.

In releasing the report, Biggers said that the accuracy of the census was open to question.

"Questions regarding partial employment were included on the voluntary registration card, as provided by law, but with a full realization of the impracticability of accurately measuring such a variable quantity," he said.

"The enumerative test census conducted over 1,455 postal routes immediately after the voluntary registration to check its completeness and accuracy demonstrated that it is more difficult to measure partial unemployment than total unemployment."

Answers Being Tabulated.

In a letter to President Roosevelt Biggers said he is tabulating the fourteen questions asked on the registration cards which were mailed to every home in the country last November.

"When tabulation of the answers can be completed we will make available to you and to the nation a wealth of data which should be helpful in formulating plans for reëmployment," he said. "In fact, we place a much greater value upon such information than upon the enumeration of total and partial unemployment."

ROOSEVELT MESSAGE URGING NAVY INCREASE IS READY TOMORROW

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—A presidential message recommending certain authorizations and a 20 per cent increase in the navy's appropriation for 1939 was expected today by congressional leaders to be sent to Capitol hill Monday.

Those in congress closely in touch with President Roosevelt's aims for strengthening national defense declared that, while they did not expect the message to name any certain amount as a recommendation for a supplemental appropriation, the authorizations to be sought would entail an expenditure of between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000 during the next fiscal year and possibly would provide for as rapid an increase in naval strength for the next three years.

1,000 DEMOCRATS HEAR CUMMINGS AT $25 A HEAD

Remarks Parallel Radio Talk of President.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Approximately 1,000 loyal Democrats—almost exactly the number of $25 tickets dealt out to the fifty ward committeemen of Chicago—heard Attorney General Homer S. Cummings last night read a speech at the Jackson day dinner at the Stevens hotel which listeners said fitted in closely with President Roosevelt's radio talk which they had just heard over the radio.

One pointed declaration of the attorney general was found to be closely similar to a sentence in the President's address—a description of the source of the opposition to the policies of the present administration. It also followed the thought expressed recently by Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Assistant Attorney General Jackson.

Assails "Small" Group.

"It [the opposition] comes from a relatively small but very influential and powerful group," said Mr. Cummings.

Earlier in his half hour talk he analyzed the hostility to the Roosevelt program in much the same way.

He spoke of friendly and intelligent coöperation of agriculture, labor, and capital as a safe foundation for democracy and continued:

"Most of those in charge of great enterprises realize the significance of this problem and are patriotically concerned about it. There are minorities, however, within these groups that blindly resent any activity upon the part of the government and insist upon a free hand to deal with industry and labor as they see fit.

Assails Lack of Vision.

"They have not grasped the idea or the ideals of a modern democracy. They do not realize that a new day has dawned and that the yesterdays will not return."

Most of Mr. Cummings' talk concerned the protracted legal battles he has directed in defense of the Roosevelt program.

There was considerable comment among the Chicago Democrats on the fact that Gov. Horner was the only important Illinois official whose absence was not accounted for. All of the other constitutional state officers were present except Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes who was kept at Springfield by throat trouble.

Senator William H. Dieterich was present and Senator James Hamilton Lewis wired that he had been persuaded to attend the New York Jackson day dinner. National Committeeman P. A. Nash presided. Mayor Kelly sat at his left. At the speakers' table were federal and Illinois Supreme court judges, three district attorneys and local federal, city, and county officials.

ISSUES CALL FOR ELECTIONS TO FILL 2 SENATE SEATS

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 8.—[U. P.]-Gov. Henry Horner today issued calls for two special elections to name state senators in the 28th and 42d senatorial districts where there are vacancies caused by deaths

The nominating of party candidates will be held in conjunction with the April 12 general primary with the election set for Nov. 8.

The vacancies are those caused by the death of State Senator L. O. Williams [D.] Clinton, in the 28th district, from injuries suffered in an automobile collision, and of State Senator W. L. Finn [D.] Iuka, in the 42d district.

Both Williams, who was the governor's floor leader in the state senate, and Finn were elected to four year terms in 1936.

Representative Nicholas L. Hubbard [D.], Mount Pulaski, announced his candidacy for the Williams vacancy.

Hit Roosevelt Proposal to Cut Military Training Fund

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's budget proposal to reduce the appropriation for the citizens' military training camps from $2,275,000 to $1,000,000 is being criticized by congressmen who consider the CMTC is about the most important feature of national defense in their districts. Mr. Roosevelt's proposed reduction of funds automatically would reduce the number of young men who attend training from 35,000 to 14,250.

If you have a limited number of $$$ to spend on a piano, you'll find it smarter and more economical to buy a new type small piano rather than an old used grand. Like an old car, an old used grand requires constant care (expenditure of more $$) and the sound won't be nearly as pleasing as that of the newest and finest small piano—

ASHURST TO ASK LAW FOR JUDGES TO RULE COSTS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Senator Henry F. Ashurst [D., Ariz.] said today he would sponsor legislation to give federal courts complete control over their own expenditures under the supervision of the chief justice of the United States Supreme court. The judiciary committee chairman read to the senate extracts from Attorney General Cummings' annual report suggesting such legislation.

"I am such a champion of absolute independence of the judiciary," the senator explained off the floor, "that I congratulate the attorney general for this statesmanlike suggestion, which means that if a judge wants a clerk if he can have one."

ASSAIL FAILURE TO EXPAND ROLL OF CIVIL SERVICE

No Extension Last Year, Congress Advised.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—(AP)—The civil service commission advised congress today that the legislators' failure to place employés of newly created government agencies under civil service was becoming "a matter of grave public concern."

The commission said in its annual report there was no important extension of the civil service during the fiscal year of 1937. On the contrary, the report asserted, 146 measures introduced during the year exempted personnel of new agencies from civil service regulations. Twenty-one of the bills became law.

Rap Wholesale Exemption.

"Wholesale exemptions such as have been permitted in the last year must cease if the merit system is to prevail," the commission said.

It made these recommendations:

Place first, second and third class postmasters under civil service.

Authorize the President to draft all nonpolicy forming employés into the classified service.

Make retirement compulsory for government employés at the age of 70 and optional at 60 years, after 30 years' service, or at 62 after 15 years' service.

The commission said the total of civil employés in the executive branch of the government increased 2 per cent from 1936. There were 841,644 such employés on June 30, 1937.

MAYOR TO PUSH WORK ON TRANSIT UNIFYING PLAN

Mayor Kelly, who returned from Miami yesterday, said that the city would proceed at once with work on the plan for a unified local transportation system.

"The completion of budget making will make it possible for the council's local transportation committee to evolve a final physical plan and an appropriate ordinance," he said. "The federal court has ordered the surface lines and the elevated roads to report by Feb. 7 on possibilities or reorganizing in such manner that a franchise can be granted.

"Public and private capital is available for major improvements and there is no good reason why results should not be attained speedily. As soon as a satisfactory franchise tenant is reasonably assured, the city can go forward with subway construction. The digging should start before the end of this year."

TRYING TO HELP U. S. BUSINESS, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Asks for 'Co-operation' in Jackson Day Talk.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt pleaded with the nation tonight to understand that his administration believes it is helping and not hurting business in its drive against what it holds to be evil monopolistic practices.

Two thousand Democrats, gathered to celebrate the day of a party saint, Andrew Jackson, were bewildered by the new Roosevelt. They had come to cheer the old Roosevelt of the outthrust chin and the flashing eye, and before them arose a gentle party leader of soft and conciliatory tones.

The metamorphosis was all the more marked because before the same audience in previous years Mr. Roosevelt had defied his enemies and roared that he never would retreat in his fight for his policies.

Promises Cheerful Fight.

Tonight he promised a fight, but he called it a cheerful fight on his part against a mere handful of the total business men and bankers and industrialists who can be expected to "fight to the last ditch to retain such autocratic control over the industry and the finances of the country as they now possess."

He launched the declaration of his intention to fight by saying he recently had called attention to many activities—price rigging, unfair competition against the little man, and monopolistic practices—that should not be tolerated in a democracy.

"Call them evils, call them abuses, call them unfortunate facts," he said. "It makes no difference.

Invites Aid of Citizens.

"Give to me and give to your government the credit for a definite intention to eradicate them. Give to me and give to your government the credit for believing that in so doing we are helping and not hurting the overwhelming majority of business men and individualists in the United States. We hope and believe that these evils and abuses will in greater part be eliminated by coöperative action of that overwhelming majority."

In a conciliatory gesture to the great majority of business, he asserted that the White House door is open to "all our citizens who come offering to eradicate the evils that flow from undue concentration of economic power or unfair business practices—who offer to do all that is possible by coöperative endeavor and to aid in corrective and helpful legislation where necessary."

Speech Quietly Received.

In contrast to the wild enthusiasm of previous years, the speech tonight was received quietly by the Democrats who paid $100 a plate for the privilege of listening to their chief. It was relayed to approximately thirty dinners throughout the country where other Democrats paid from $25 to $50 a plate toward lifting the party debt, and was carried by radio to the homes of the country.

Many of the Democrats apparently felt disappointed because they had been waiting eagerly for pronouncements of party policy which would lead toward healing the Democratic split which was opened by the plan to pack the Supreme court, widened by the struggle over wage and hour legislation, and is being opened still farther by the anti-lynching debate.

Speech Almost Apologetic.

Business had turned its ear even more anxiously toward the speech to catch a note of leadership to help the country out of the present depression. In this, again, auditors felt that the speech had failed.

Although the speech was restrained and seemed almost apologetic in note, listeners felt that it did not guarantee that the soft words do not hide a big stick. While Mr. Roosevelt assailed a few of the wealthy, he did not renounce the utterances of two of his leading spokesmen, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, who have charged that the depression is being deliberately fostered by enemies of the administration.

Criticizes Holding Companies.

In criticizing holding companies, he said that control of 13 billion dollars invested in utility securities is vested in owners of less than 600 million dollars of securities, which, he said, meant that ownership of about 4 per cent of the securities controls the other 96 per cent.

"Here is a ninety-six inch dog being wagged by a four inch tail," he said with an emphasis which brought a gale of laughter.

Despite this wallop, he held out an olive branch to utilities by saying he is convinced the majority of local or regional utilities can come to an understanding with the government and the people whose territories they serve.

Jackson Makes Governor Bid.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The white ties and tails of administration bigwigs mixed with the celluloid collars and boiled shirts of Tammany tonight as the Democratic national committee collected $60,000 from 1,200 guests at $50 a plate Jackson day dinner.

The show turned into a coming out party for another Jackson—Robert H. Jackson, the assistant attorney general who has unleashed attacks on business in recent weeks, and who has been reported to be President Roosevelt's pick for governor of New York state in the election this year and a possible candidate for the presidency in 1940.

The Jackson debut was managed by Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley, who trotted out the administration's young hopeful at a luncheon party. At the dinner tonight the assistant attorney general was the principal speaker.

Barkis Is Willing.

At the luncheon party Jackson modestly admitted he would make the sacrifice of running for governor this year.

"If the Democratic party wants me to be its candidate, I will be," he said.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, whom the President called his "good right arm" until Lehman criticized the Supreme court packing program last year, was asked about Jackson's candidacy. "I have nothing to say," said the governor. "This is Jim Farley's party."

The only sour note blown in the symphony of praise for the Jacksons, Andrew and Robert, was from Representative John J. O'Connor, chairman of the rules committee in the house who has flayed Jackson for his attacks on business.

O'Connor remarked to reporters that "Jackson might be elected coroner." The congressman also appeared out of tune in an address to the luncheon guests later when he suggested that the government coöperate with business.

At the banquet Jackson inveighed against a selfish minority reckless enough to destroy both government and business. He recalled his presidential namesake's battle with Nicholas Biddle, head of the great financial monopoly of his day, the Bank of the United States.

Ickes Renews Attack.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Secretary of the Interior Ickes renewed his assault on concentrated wealth tonight, declaring it has power to bring on a panic "in order to force acceptance of its ungenerous and onerous terms."

"Will monopolistic wealth resort to such an extreme?" he asked in a speech at a Jackson day dinner here. "Not if the people themselves are vigilant; not if they know the issues that are involved; not if they are prepared to defend their economic liberties at whatever cost may be necessary."

Quit G. O. P., Wallace Urges.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, tonight beckoned to the main streets of the midwest to quit the Republican party for the New Deal. In a Jackson day dinner speech he invited small town business and professional men to follow his footsteps out of the G. O. P. into Democratic ranks. He changed his party affiliation in April, 1936.

"During the last three years the farm program and the relief program together have saved literally thousands of business men from destruction," he said.

Spurns Film Career

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Katharine Hepburn can have her fame as a film star. Her younger sister, Marian Hepburn, wants none of it. Marian, who is 19, said so today in the offices here of the United Federal Workers of America, where she has a temporary job. She is a junior at Bennington college in Vermont, and declares she has no intention of trying to follow Katharine's footsteps up the ladder to the heights in Hollywood. It's a matter of preference, according to Marian, who seeks a career in the education of workers.

LUCAS PRAISES FOREIGN POLICY OF ROOSEVELT

Dangers of War Reduced, Democrats Told.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—In a speech tonight to the Sangamon county Jackson day Democratic dinner, Representative Scott W. Lucas of Havana declared that America's historic policy of peace is being advanced in Washington.

Although he has criticized the Roosevelt administration for some of its actions during his terms in the house, Mr. Lucas had nothing but praise for the President's foreign policy. It has, he said, been characterized by statesmanlike achievements.

"The President," Representative Lucas said, "has advocated a sound national defense. Under his guidance congress passed a neutrality law which discards dollar diplomacy and abandoned our traditional policy of freedom of the seas.

Policies Advanced, He Says.

"Today a person sailing on a belligerent vessel in time of war does so at his own risk, and had such been the law of the land in 1917 when the Lusitania went to the bottom of the ocean I sincerely believe that our entry into the world war might have been avoided.

"Everything consistent with our historic policy of peace has been advanced under this administration. Even though Japan wilfully and ruthlessly sent the Panay to the bottom, killing and wounding American citizens, nevertheless we have managed to keep our powder dry."

Congressman Lucas painted a grim picture of the world today, beset with war, dictatorships, and autocracies, but concluded, pridefully, that America has enjoyed 150 years of peace and freedom.

U. S. Holds Freedom Hope.

"Mussolini with his Black Shirts," he said, "may sneeringly refer to our bellowing herds of democracy. Hitler may proclaim with scorn and derision that liberty is only a myth. Stalin may sharpen his executioner's ax with high hope that the time may come when he may cut in twain the goddess of liberty.

"But you and I know that prior to the time that ordered liberty found its rightful place in this nation, brute force enslaved the masses in bondage, chains, and misery. You and I know that the horrors of the past under despots and military dictatorships are again rampant in the world today.

"As an American, I believe that I express the sentiment of every true patriot when I say that our nation of liberty loving people have enjoyed 150 years of progress and happiness, the like of which has no parallel in all the annals of time."

Horner Lauds President.

Gov. Henry Horner, the other principal speaker at this largest of the downstate Jackson day dinners, likened Andrew Jackson to President Roosevelt, but with a reservation as to the method each used.

"Dynamic and rugged Andrew Jackson," he said, "used more violent language than the logical Franklin Roosevelt, but each in his own way accomplished his objective for the rank and file of our country."

The governor traced Jackson's career as soldier and politician and contended that he exemplified the American principle that all men are created equal.

Stand Together, Urges Governor.

"We must hold high the banner of democracy, which he so valiantly bore," Horner said. "We must plant it, as he did, upon each new frontier.

"We of the Democratic party will be true to our trust and worthy followers of Andrew Jackson only if we dare to remain steadfast as he did against opposition, only if we are impatient for progress and improvement, as he was, and only if we forget selfish personal advantage, as he did, in the service of the people."

Last Eight Residents Say Au Revoir to Hamilton Club

The last eight resident members of the Hamilton club, Republican stronghold in Chicago for nearly half a century, moved out of the building at 20 South Dearborn street yesterday. The club lost its lease on the building on Thursday after a rent forfeiture proceeding in the Federal District court. Members are planning to establish a new club and to negotiate for a sublease on the old building.

EXPOSURE CAUSES DEATH.

SHANGHAI, ONCE PARIS OF ORIENT, IS SADDENED CITY

Invasion by Japs Spreads Pall of Suffering.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 28.—[By Air Mail.]—Those who think of Shanghai as an Asiatic oasis of gayety, the Paris of the orient, should preserve those memories by not coming here.

Since war came smiles have given away to gloom. What were thickly populated areas four months ago now are piles of debris. Japanese bombing planes and shells respected a small island in the center of this great and widely scattered city, but demolished most of the rest of the habitation.

A short walk in any direction from the downtown business center places one on the edge of a sea of devastation where not a building is standing. The extent of the horrors inflicted tax the imagination.

Business Houses Boarded Up.

But even the business center has its marks. By day one notices the solidly boarded windows and fronts of the principal places of business. These are for protection against fragments from the next expected bombing. By night hundreds of homeless and destitute persons sleep—or try to—on the sidewalks. They have no shelter and no clothing fit for rainy midwinter nights.

The relief settlements are filled and those unfortunate applicants who cannot get in stand at the doors.

A university, last year one of the nation's principal institutions of learning, now is crowded with refugees under supervision of the Salvation Army. Every room is packed with homeless. Thirty men, women, and children were counted in a classroom twenty feet square. Tubs of rice soup are their food. The floor is their bed.

Twenty Die Every Hour.

One hundred thousand persons are in the twenty camps of the international settlement—and the record shows that twenty die every hour. From the faces of these people all hope has gone—though here and there one sees a spark of tenacity.

In the beautiful Catholic cathedral at Siccawei a score of refugees, mostly women in rags, chant their rites of faith. Down on Soochow creek barge after barge is loaded with caskets stacked four and five feet deep. They have not yet had time to bury their dead. In the street on the way to a barge two women are trying to carry a filled casket by means of a pole and rope.

On another street a Chinese Shylock is milking a poor, mousy mare and auctioning the milk to mothers with crying children on their arms.

At every turn, it seems a bayonet appears—American, French, English—and usually a Japanese soldier or two is close by in the conquered territory.

The American marines are the best appearing of the lot. Their shoes are shined, their uniforms pressed. The English look the worst, dressed in shorts and hovering around open stoves, trying to keep warm. They have no blouses and there are holes in their slipon sweaters.

The international and French settlements are well marked with flags, but some of the bombs cheated a bit around the edges. Points of interest are rated by the number of persons killed there by exploding bombs.

Streets Crowded By Day.

The streets are crowded with people from the devastated areas during the day, but the curfew cleans them up at night. Trafic is bad, with multitudes of rickshas, cars, buses, and street cars. Cruising taxis are prohibited and when a taxi is wanted it must be called.

The rickshas are a great pest. Few, if any, of the ricksha pullers speak English, and policemen supply little help. Ask one where a well known hotel is, and the answer will be "No savvy." Since the war started, it seems, people have lost interest even in talking.

No Chinese soldiers or cripples are seen on the streets. Inquiry reveals that "everything that can carry a musket is up the river." The Yangtze river is the present battle front. Yet from the multitudes on the street this is incorrect.

It is difficult to get in or out of Shanghai. Railroads, dirt roads, and air lines all are blocked. One or two boats a week go southward. The despair of Shanghai is noted in getting off a ship. Customs officials, their faces long, pay little attention to baggage and none to passports.

Prices Are Up.

Money exchange is 3.35 Chinese dollars for one American dollar. Money changers will give a bit more if bargained with. Expenses are on the average about like those in America, although everything is priced relatively higher since money is much cheaper.

A medium priced, good hotel room is $14 [Chinese] without meals. Beer is 40 cents a glass, chewing gum 30 cents a package. Car rates are cheap because of the drivers' low wages, but gasoline is $1.05 per gallon. Lunch, universally called tiffin, costs $1.50 in chain restaurants.

There is no holiday spirit or atmosphere in Shanghai this year.

Luck Walks His Beat

George Moeller, a watchman, with cap punctured by bullet in exchange of shots with thieves yesterday.

George Moeller, a watchman 25 years old and the father of two children, will have to buy a new cap. He was patroling his beat early yesterday when he heard the crash of glass in a store at 2800 North Halsted. He chased two youths who were responsible. Running down the alley, the two fired six shots at Moeller. He fired three shots back at them, then returned to retrieve his cap. A bullet had passed through it, ruining it. Moeller lives at 2117 Barry avenue.

Miss Buckingham Leaves $50,000 for Playground

City Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes was notified yesterday by Attorney John P. Wilson, a trustee of the estate of the late Miss Kate Sturges Buckingham, that the city has been willed $50,000 for the establishment of a public playground. Under the terms of the will the playground is to be known as the Clarence Buckingham playground and must be located near the Association house, 2150 West North avenue.

DIVORCE GIVEN WIFE OF FORMER U. OF C. PROFESSOR

Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday awarded Mrs. Estella Laura Moulton of 6227 Woodlawn avenue a divorce from Dr. Forest Ray Moulton, executive secretary of the American Institute for the Advancement of Science, and former professor of astronomy at the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Moulton testified that her husband deserted her on May 1, 1927, and that she has not seen him since. Miss Mary Moulton, a daughter, told the court Prof. Moulton had informed her he never intended to return to Mrs. Moulton. Attorneys for the scientist and Mrs. Moulton said that a property settlement is being arranged and will be completed, probably, within a week.

Ford Worker Is Attacked; Seize 44 in Raid on C. I. O.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Police tonight raided the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers of America strike headquarters near the Ford assembly plant here and Lieut. Emmitt Morrison said 44 men were taken into custody. The raid followed an attack on a man who gave his name as Charles Fiscko, 28 year old Ford worker. Fiscko was burned on the face and body.

JAPANESE FLEET OFF TSINGTAO; ATTACK FEARED

French May Protest New Shanghai Clash.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 9 [Sunday].—(AP)—Arrival of a Japanese fleet off Tsingtao, rich North China port, created fear among foreigners and Chinese today of an impending Japanese attack there. The nature of the fleet remained obscure. Some Tsingtao reports said the ships were mine sweepers and old destroyers, but others indicated the fleet consisted of twelve warships, including up to date cruisers and destroyers convoying transports. There were no reports of immediate Japanese preparations for a landing.

Foreign vigilantes at Tsingtao, which is in Shantung province, organized an emergency committee to protect property, it was learned. The city has been virtually ungoverned since Japanese invasion became likely. Chinese police have sold recovered loot to pay their long overdue salaries and have attempted to coerce property owners in Tsingtao to pay for "protection."

Expect Shanghai Protest.

E. H. Gordon, a British banker, was named chairman of the emergency committee and two Americans, W. S. Elliott and F. G. Keefe, were appointed secretary and treasurer.

Meanwhile French officials in Shanghai indicated they probably will protest to Japan against an assault by Japanese troops on police of the French concession yesterday. The incident which was the second clash in two days between Japanese soldiers and foreign police, brought Japanese guns into line for more than an hour on the border between Nantao, Chinese area now controled by the Japanese, and the French concession.

The French rushed two armored cars and reinforcements to the vicinity, but the menacing situation was dissolved quickly by an agreement between Pierre Auge, French consul, and Japanese officials. French authorities declared, nevertheless, they probably would make a formal protest.

Woman Is Beaten.

The French version of the Nantao episode indicated that a Chinese woman attempted to cross the Avenue of Two Republics, the dividing line between Nantao and the French concession, to obtain water, violating a Japanese rule closing Nantao's boundary to Chinese. A French policeman of Russian nationality who saw a Japanese sentry seize and beat the woman intervened and was struck in the face, the French said.

Other Japanese soldiers rushed to the scene and started to drag the policeman toward Nantao. When he struggled free about 100 Japanese troops leveled rifles and machine guns across the boundary which separated them from the armed French police, it was reported.

American Lodges Protest.

The previous friction between the Japanese and foreigners involved two British policemen of the international settlement. Cornell S. Franklin, American chairman of the Shanghai municipal council, lodged a strenuous protest with Suemasa Okamoto, Japanese consul-general, over this incident in which Japanese armed forces attacked the police.

About 250,000 Chinese residents of Nanking, quartered in a safety zone since before China's capital was captured by the Japanese Dec. 13, were permitted to return to their homes, it was reported in Shanghai.

Land hostilities in Shantung, now the major battle zone in the Chinese-Japanese war, appeared slowed almost to a standstill today by frigid weather. Chinese reports said there had been no major engagement either in that province or south of it on the Tientsin-Pukow railroad. Freezing temperatures, aggravated by strong winds, have gripped the whole North China area. Reports from the Yangtze river valley also indicated slackened military activity, suggesting the Japanese had deferred any plans for their drive deeper into the interior of China.

Chinese Women Attacked.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—An account of the raping of women and girls, killing of civilian noncombatants, and looting of American property by Japanese troops in Nanking slipped past the military censors in China and reached this capital today. Japanese soldiers continued their uncurbed orgy long after actual fighting ceased, said formal statements from the Nanking foreign colony which reached Washington officials. No American lives were lost and only native girls and women were violated, but assaults by the invading troops left white foreigners, American, British, French, and German, paralyzed with fear, it was said.

The confidential communication on unlawful acts by Japanese troops was followed swiftly by a formal press release from the state department. The official announcement, while carefully avoiding for diplomatic reasons any reference to the uncensored communication, cited that a Chinese houseboy in the employ of Douglas Jenkins, third secretary of the embassy, was killed and the Jenkins residence, located outside the embassy compound, was looted.

Male Chinese civilians who tried to protect their women folk were shot down in some cases, the report said.

The homes of many Americans were stripped of silver, jewelry, clothes, and even pieces of furniture, the uncensored dispatch said. Eight automobiles, invaluable now as a means of escaping from bombarded areas, were stolen, but two of the cars were returned.

PANDA PLAYMATE FOR SU-LIN STARTS LONG TRIP TO CHICAGO ZOO

HONGKONG, China, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. W. H. Harkness Jr., the explorer, arrived here today by airplane from Hankow with a 2 month old female panda caught on the Chinese frontier. She is proceeding to the United States with the specimen this week. It is the second to be obtained by Mrs. Harkness. The first, Su Lin, is in the Brookfield zoo in Chicago, and the new captive will be taken there, it is understood. The new panda, called Meimei, which means "baby sister," was captured in Szechwan province, Western China.

Japs Hold British Ship's Officers; In Armed Area

TOKIO, Jan. 3.—(AP)—Officers of the British freighter Marion Moller today were reported detained by Japanese for investigation of charges that the vessel had dropped anchor in a fortified zone. The Domei [Japanese] News agency, described the steamer as mysterious, said the captain, mates and engineer officers were being held at Yokohama.

COURTNEY TAKES HAND IN SALES TAX FIXING QUIZ

After a four hour conference with Samuel Nudelman, state director of finance, yesterday, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney promised full coöperation in the drive to prosecute discharged sales tax investigators accused of accepting bribes from merchants. Sixteen investigators already have been dismissed by Nudelman.

Mr. Courtney indicated, however, that evidence of alleged graft, uncovered by the investigators, so far has not been sufficient to institute criminal action at this time. By use of dictaphones and various listening devices installed in the local offices of the state finance department at 105 West Madison street, Nudelman has obtained records of conversations between investigators and merchants relating to sales tax fixing.

NEW PRO-JAP REGIME AT PEIPING TO CREATE CHINA RESERVE BANK

PEIPING, China, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The Peking [Peiping] provisional government, set up Dec. 14 by the Japanese, announced today its decision to form a "China joint reserve bank to stabilize and unify currency and remove the prevailing uncertainty regarding paper money." The government said the plan had the backing of a "friendly neighbor" [Japan].

The organizing committee is made up of the managers of virtually all Peiping and Tientsin government and private banks, including the Bank of China and the Bank of Communications.

Observers predicted that among the first steps the new reserve bank was likely to take would be to peg the local dollar firmly to the Japanese yen.

BRITAIN REVISES HER TERRITORIAL ARMY PROGRAM

Forces Are Made Part of Nation's Regulars.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Territorial army changes designed to obtain recognition of the full status of the territorials as part of the country's defense system have been announced in the house of commons by Leslie Hore-Belisha, secretary of war.

By these measures the territorial army becomes a duplicate, in organization, of the regular army. This means that the territorial army has become the national army on which future expansion will be based.

[The territorials are similar to the National Guard in the United States. They serve part time and can be called for duty outside England only by special action of parliament. The proposed changes will strengthen the territorials as the National Guard has been improved in recent years. The National Guard now is a self-sustaining unit, officered by its own men, with regular army officers attached merely as advisers. It can be called to duty by the President—or by governors of states in local emergencies—and forms the backbone of the American civilian forces.]

Follow General Shakeup.

The territorial changes follow a general shakeup in the British regular army, in which younger men were given high positions and opportunity for promotion from the ranks was increased.

The territorial army changes affect the appointments to higher commands and affect administrative detail. Previously the higher positions were filled by officers from the regular army, higher rank being denied to territorial officers. In future, Hore-Belisha indicated, men from the ranks will rise to command the territorials [as in case of the National Guard] and regular army men will be advisers.

Provision also is being made for vacancies at the Staf college, which trains officers for the general staf, and the Imperial Defense college, for officers of the territorial army. [Similarly, in the United States, National Guard officers now attend the command and staf school at Fort Leavenworth and similar schools of instruction, to open greater opportunity in the guard.]

Command to Civilians.

In addition, Hore-Belisha indicated he proposes to institute an inquiry for suggestions to improve administration and organization.

The war office decision provides for the virtual command of the territorial army by civilian scoldiers. The changes, now announced, follow the appointment last month of Gen. Sir Walter Kirke, director general of the territorial army, to a seat on the army council.

In explaining the changes, Hore-Belisha said: "These measures are for the most part designed by his majesty's government to recognize the full status of the territorial army as an integral part of our defense system and to emphasize the fact that today that army has a claim to the same sources and standards of instruction as the regular army.

No Limitation on Promotions.

"In future," Hore-Belisha continued, "there will be no limitation on the appointment of territorial army officers to command divisions, brigades, divisional artillery, or other formations which consist solely of territorial army troops."

"Although it is realized that the territorial army officer cannot frequently give the necessary time to hold such commands, he will be considered without discrimination, and his opportunities of receiving higher instruction will be increased.

"To this end, provision is being made for two vacancies at the Staf college and one vacancy at the Imperial Defense college for territorial army officers, who will receive the pay and allowances of their rank during periods of attendance at those colleges."

Returns to Bridge

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Mrs. Josephine Culbertson.

Reno, Nev., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Josephine Culbertson, in her first interview since arriving here, explained today that her seclusion since she came to Reno on Dec. 14 to divorce her bridge playing partner and husband, Ely, was due entirely to poor health. Mrs. Culbertson today played her first game of bridge since she arrived. She is due to file her suit and obtain her decree on Jan. 26. She reiterated that the divorce will not break up the Culbertson bridge partnership.

Motor Ship Is Aground Off Philippine Islands

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Globe Wireless reported its Manila station had picked up distress calls saying the motor ship Princesa was aground at Point Solawas, Palawan Island, one of the southern group of the Philippine Islands. The message was picked up from the steamer Panay, which was standing by. The weather was reported clear. Lloyd's lists a Princesa, of 272 net tonnage, operated by the Insular Navigation company.

WINTHROP HARBOR HOME LOOTED.

Burglars last night looted the home of Louis Shields at 10th street and Landon avenue, Winthrop Harbor while the family was away. They took $1,000 worth of clothing and household goods.

STILL NEED FOOT SOLDIERS TO WIN WAR, SAYS DRUM

General Admits Value of Mechanical Aids.

said, possesses three sciences and an art. The sciences are, first, that related to man, his weakness and strength, individually and in the group; second, that related to the mechanical tools of the profession, weapons, munitions and transportation; third, that related to the administration and supply of armies. The art consists of the utilization of these sciences to achieve victory.

Problem Is Adaptation.

Since the world war, he continued, human nature has not changed, nor have great changes taken place in administration and supply. The innovations have come in the mechanical field, and the army's problem is to adapt itself to these new tools.

Some of these improvements he sketched. World war aircraft flew 80 miles an hour and carried a few hundred pounds of explosives. Today's bombers cruise at 225 miles an hour with two tons of explosives, and have an operating radius of about 750 miles.

Already in sight are planes with 350 mile an hour speeds, four ton payloads and ranges of 5,000 miles. But, he said, weather is a handicap to aviation. Extensive ground facilities, shops and landing fields, are necessary, and production costs are a limiting factor on its use.

Move Far in Day.

Motor transportation has made it possible for infantry to ride several hundred miles a day, instead of marching fifteen to twenty miles, but it places on the army the additional burden of gasoline, oil, and repair facilities.

Anti-aircraft units have been strengthened greatly by searchlights, listening devices, and automatic directors controling guns that fire large shells at the rate of 20 a minute and machine guns at 500 shots a minute.

The flexibility of the field gun has been increased, and its range increased from 7,000 to 15,000 yards. Field guns and light howitzers can be towed on highways at 25 to 30 miles an hour, whereas 6 miles an hour was the limit in the world war.

Weapons Are Improved.

Infantry has a new shoulder automatic rifle, a lighter machine gun, anti-tank weapons, and a small howitzer, all weapons possessing increased range, volume of fire, and penetration.

As swift movements have made ground telegraph systems impractical radio has been developed as a more efficient substitute. Facsimile reproductions of maps can now be sent by radio. Aerial photographs may replace maps for many purposes.

"I can visualize an airplane flying at several thousand feet," said Gen. Drum, "and, by means of television, reproducing for the commander or artilleryman that part of the battlefield in which he is interested."

Military men, Gen. Drum said, are no exception to the frequent American slavery to catch phrases. With the coining of the words motorization and mechanization has come much confusion as to the exact meaning of the words, in some respects detrimental to military thought.

Motorization covers two changes: first, substitution of motor vehicles for those drawn by animals and their substitution in functions formerly performed by animals, as in reconnaisance, scoutng, communications, and the transport of heavy weapons; second, the creation of motorized units, in which the personnel and weapons are transported in motors which are part of the command to the battle area, where they dismount to fight.

Mechanization also is employed in two senses: the general use of the term to cover application of modern mechanical appliances; and second, in the mechanized unit, consisting of units whose main reliance is on armored vehicles capable of cross-country travel, from which the personnel engages in combat without dismounting.

Explains Difference.

"At present," said Gen. Drum, "the cargo vehicles of nearly all army units and most artillery guns are hauled by motors—this is motorization, but not motorized units. The infantry division recently tested at San Antonio was motorized, while the infantry tank regiment at Fort George G. Meade and the cavalry brigade with certain artillery and other branches attached, at Fort Knox, are mechanized units.

Mechanization, said Gen. Drum, is an offspring of the medieval armored knight. As gunpowder, first used at the battle of Crecy in the 14th century, frightened horses and unhorsed knights, leaving them weighed down with their armor to have their throats slit by foot soldiers, so tank traps, land mines, and other obstacles may make tank forces helpless, he predicted.

"While the trench warfare or stabilized situations with protected flanks of the world war will be avoided, modern fire power, handled by efficient leaders and personnel, with adequate distant air and ground reconnaissance, will not be conquered or overcome in any brief movement or by wide encircling movements," said Gen. Drum.

"Bear in mind that the mobility of movement indicated above applies equally well to the defense—especially to a mobile defense system. Irrespective of the approach direction of the attacker, a skilled defender should be able to force the fight into a battle area of great depth, equivalent to the range of his light guns [15,000 yards] with fires from the air and ground interlocked and strengthened by natural and artificial obstacles.

"The sustained effort required by an offensive to conquer a battle area in the future will demand great man power and enormous fire power. This can be replaced only in part by swift moving armored vehicles and increased volume of offensive fire.

"All fire machines are man operated, and although they produce greater intensity than in the past, they are useless without the man operator and these are required in increasing numbers. Then again, we must recognize the increased efficiency of defensive fires, both air and ground, and realize that they will compensate, to a large extent, for the armored protection afforded the offense."

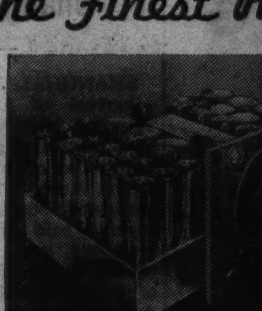
"The Finest Radio—



—I Have Ever Heard!"

—LAURITZ MELCHIOR

What every music lover knows is that Louritz Melchior is probably the greatest Wagnerian tenor of all time. What comparatively few know is that he is also a distinguished pioneer in radio, having collaborated with Guglielmo Marconi in experimental broadcasts of voice and music. Their original receiver, bearing the autographs of both Mr. Melchior and Mr. Marconi, is now in the British Museum.

When such a world-famous musical genius, with his rich background in radio, says the Scott is "the finest radio I have ever heard," little more can be said of its tonal or technical perfection.

WHERE TO SEE THIS AMAZING INSTRUMENT

Before definitely deciding on your new radio, let us show you the beautiful instrument Mr. Melchior bought for his personal entertainment at home. You can own one of these fine custom built receivers for very little more than you would pay for a production-type radio sold "over the counter."

SCOTT RECEIVERS ARE NOT SOLD THROUGH STORES. Our comfortable "living room" studios are open daily until 9 P. M. except Sunday. If your home has no convenient place for a radio console, we will be glad to prepare—without obligation—full details of a concealed built-in installation.

BALKANS EYED BY ITALY IN NEW EUROPEAN SETUP

Austrians, Hungarians to Be Sounded Out.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 8.—(AP)—A struggle for the balance of power in southeast Europe—a dangerous area in Europe's powder keg—took new shape today with Italy as a potent factor. Semi-official sources outlined an important three day conference which will start in Budapest Monday with the foreign ministers of three nations sitting in. They are: Count Galeazzo Ciano of Italy, Guido Schmidt of Austria and Koloman de Kanya of Hungary.

Their talks, it was said, will demonstrate the solidarity of these nations which are signatories of the Rome pact, and will help their mutual trade with a new commercial agreement. Larger issues, however, hinging greatly on Rumania's possible disruption of her allies' foreign policy by close friendship with Germany and Italy, were expected to take the ministers' attention.

Upsets Little Entente.

Rumania's understanding with Germany and Italy, a move initiated by the new anti-Semitic Rumanian premier, Octavian Goga, upsets the unified pro-French policy of the little entente — Rumania, Czechoslovakia, and Jugo-Slavia. This shift is of prime importance to the three foreign ministers who will confer next week.

They are interested in what its effect will be on their countries, particularly. It has been suggested recently that it may drive Hungary, which surrendered much territory to Rumania in 1919, toward an Austro-Hungarian alliance with Czechoslovakia based on friendship with France and Great Britain. This is the ideal of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg of Austria.

Such a move would create an entirely new situation, since Austria and Hungary never have forgotten, up to the present, that Czechoslovakia was carved largely from the old Austro-Hungarian empire by peace treaties.

Will Consider Germany.

Ciano and the other ministers were expected to discuss the recognition of German interests in the Danube basin, and the now friendly relations of Italy with her one time enemy, Jugo-Slavia. Semi-official quarters said the talks would be of "the Rome-Berlin axis as a base for peace which other nations are invited to join."

The "anti-communist pact which creates a new European system by pointing out a new orientation for all countries," will be up for discussion also, it was said. Italy, it was believed, wishes that her Rome pact satellites will join the Italo-German-Japanese anti-communist pact and also follow Italy out of the league of nations.

In the view of Austrian and Hungarian diplomats, however, that would be playing Italy's game "too hard" at the sacrifice of Franco-British friendship. Observers looked to the conference to reveal just how far Austria and Hungary would play follow the leader with Italy's foreign minister.

In Spanish Prison

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Bradish Johnson Jr. (right) American magazine correspondent killed last week by a Spanish shell, as he visited Harold Dahl, American aviator, in cell at Salamanca, Spain.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—[U. P.]—The blonde wife of Harold E. Dahl, American aviator whose life was spared through the personal intervention of Nationalist Generalissimo Francisco Franco, was upset today by reports that her husband was a prisoner for life.

"I hope that my husband will be released this month," she said, "but, frankly, I haven't much on which to base that hope."

Mrs. Dahl was unable to understand why her husband had not been released after Franco spared his life with the statement that "Spain does not need the life of this American." He urged Mrs. Dahl to visit her husband in Salamanca, nationalist general headquarters, but she said she had been prevented from doing so by American and French authorities.

6,000 SURRENDER ENDING REBELS' STAND IN TERUEL

Last of Garrison Leaves Convent Stronghold.

MADRID, Jan. 9.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—Final and complete subjugation of Teruel was announced by the Spanish government today following the surrender of more than 6,000 insurgent soldiers and civilians who had held out against loyalist attacks within that city of eastern Spain since Dec. 21.

In an extraordinary war communiqué, which conveyed the gratitude of the government to the army for its achievement, Indalecio Prieto, minister of national defense, announced the surrender of more than 2,000 soldiers and 2,000 civilians who had barricade themselves in the shell-shattered buildings of the Santa Clara convent. Exhausted and disheartened by the surrender of 2,000 of their comrades in the Hospital of Asuncion Friday, the last remaining defenders left the convent last night after small groups had quit the buildings at intervals throughout the day.

In a recapitulation of the prisoners taken, the government listed 40 army officers, 450 soldiers, 700 wounded persons, and 1,000 civilians taken from the hospital and approximately 4,000 persons taken from the ruins of the convent.

Exceed Earlier Totals.

These figures greatly exceeded previous estimates based upon incomplete information gathered from prisoners. Among the military prisoners were Lieut. Col. Rey d'Harcourt, Col. Barba, and Col. Gasca, and eight other high insurgent chiefs. One of the officers taken was said to be the son of Admiral Magaz, a minister of the old Rivera government. The bishop of Teruel was reported among the civilians who surrendered.

All the refugees and prisoners were taken to Valencia as soon as they emerged from the convent and the hospital. They were weak and emaciated from lack of food. Many of them were too weak to stand. Dozens of ambulances and trucks rolled down the snow packed highway from Teruel to Valencia with the insurgent soldiers and civilians.

Cold, hunger and thirst led to the rebels' decision to give up the long fight. Nineteen days ago the government took Teruel. Since then the garrison had hoped vainly that the counter attacking insurgent army would break through and rescue them. Their surrender was negotiated through the Teruel Red Cross chairman.

Rebels Claim Advances.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Jan. 8.—(AP)—An insurgent war communique today asserted Gen. Francisco Franco's troops hammering at Teruel had moved forward in three sectors. In the wake of a long artillery bombardment, a fresh advance was reported at Concud after a determined loyalist attack was repulsed.

The center line also moved forward and the insurgent right flank in the Villastar sector, southwest of Teruel, took new positions, it was said.

The dispatch made no mention of the reported surrender of Lieut. Col. Rey d'Harcourt's besieged rebel garrison inside Teruel. It reported, however, that the government had thrown three more brigades of international soldiers into action.

Government troops took the offensive on the heights above Teruel and reported the capture of a number of key positions.

NAZIS SEEK DIRECTOR FOR BERNSTEIN LINES; TO REPAY HIS U.S. DEBTS

HAMBURG, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The German government today sought a new managing director to operate the Arnold Bernstein Shipping Lines and pay off the convicted Jewish merchant's American creditors.

Bernstein yesterday was sentenced to 30 months in jail and fined $400,000 for foreign exchange law violations growing out of the estimated $5,000,000 mortgages held in the United States on the Red Star and Arnold Bernstein lines. The agreement between the reich and the creditors specifies repayment—at the rate of $200,000 a year—must come from the companies' earnings.

Marius Boeger, former director of the Hamburg-American line who acted as trustee pending outcome of the five week trial, has declined to continue because of old age.

GUN FIRED BY ACCIDENT KILLS N. WEST SIDE BOY

The formation last night of a new gun club by a group of small boys on the northwest side had a tragic sequel early today. One of the boys was fatally wounded. He had been elected vice president less than three hours previously.

The boy victim was Lawrence Falk, 16 years old, 2837 North Neva avenue. With a dozen other gun enthusiasts he had met last night at the home of Robert Le Febre, 15 years old, 1711 North Mason avenue. All indulged in target practice with their favorite rifles in the basement and at midnight started for their homes.

Falk and his brother Philip, 13 years old, went in the car of Kenneth Ebey, 16 years old, 7029 Wolfram street. In front of 1830 North Austin avenue Lawrence accidentally shot himself in the chest while taking his gun apart. He was hurried to the West Suburban hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Windsors Return to Paris Today; Will Seek Chateau

CANNES, France, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The duke and duchess of Windsor will leave tomorrow for Paris, where a spokesman said they would remain several weeks. Lieut. Dudley Forwood, the duke's equerry, said they would look for a chateau in the neighborhood of Paris. He said the Windsors planned no trip to the United States for several months.

CALL TO CHARACTER

By CALEB

THESE are strange days. In the field of civic affairs, appropriators of public money are permitted escape, unvisited by a consuming and avenging scourge of the people.

Despite the genuine and sincere desire of many people for jobs, others have refused work in favor of being supported by the government.

Internationally, first class powers are seen to attack and slaughter women and children of weaker powers, and the world visits no swift rebuke upon them. We have even modern pirates and war when there is no war!

How the next generation or so of children will arise to the difficult situations they face is a question.

Children are being less and less disciplined by modern education. The new theory is that they should be permitted to develop and grow naturally, as it pleases them. Their dilemma when the world of reality will one day descend upon them without catering to their personal inclinations is dire to think upon. It seems that human beings are no longer deemed to have intellect which may be disciplined for its own sake. Instead they must be taught like animals. Their surroundings must be conditioned so they will be led to learn without realizing learning is work.

I have no doubt the world has seen many similar periods. It is not a sign of decadence. It is a sign of progress, of fermenting change, of bursting old restrictions and of expanding through adjustment onto new levels of human activity.

When the pot of hard times boils, the dregs and sediment of man's character are churned through all the strong brew of humanity. Then good and staunch character is required to speed the settling.

We are grateful for the occasional man in politics who braves partisan wrath in the public interest.

We are grateful for business men who, disagreeing with national policy, yet co-operate in every endeavor to make times better. It is good that there are merchants and stores who place honesty above expediency.

These times cry out for character. Every individual of integrity helps anchor the nation whether his position be humble or great.

ATHENS FILLED WITH ROYALTY TO SEE PRINCE WED

Heir to Throne to Marry German Girl.

ATHENS, Jan. 8.—(AP)—European royalty gathered in ancient Athens today for the wedding of Prince Paul, heir-presumptive to the Greek throne, and Princess Frederika Louise of Brunswick, granddaughter of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm. Representatives of 60 reigning and noble houses of Europe were in the festive capital.

An impressive religious ceremony tomorrow unites the 35 year old brother of King George II. of Greece and the 20 year old German princess. A gala dinner and a special performance at the Theatre Royal were on tonight's program.

King George, members of the royal family and visiting princes took time out from the day's festivities to drive through snow to meet Crown Prince Mihai of Rumania, who arrived by special train after being forced to abandon a stormy sea trip.

Troops to Line Route.

Thousands of Greek troops will line the route of the bridal procession tomorrow morning to the cathedral. There, with picturesque pomp, the archbishop of Athens, assisted by twenty bishops in rich white and gold vestments, will conduct the rites of the Greek Orthodox church.

Evangelical [German Lutheran] church rites will be performed privately in the royal palace later in the day.

Related to English King.

The bride is to carry a spray of orange blossoms from the Doorn, Holland orangery of her grandfather, former Kaiser Wilhelm II. of Germany, and a sprig of myrtle brought by the duchess of Kent from Queen Victoria's famous tree in England.

The princess, a great-great-granddaughter of Queen Victoria and also a descendant of George II. of England, recently received permission from Britain's present King George VI. to marry.

RENEW PERMIT TO EXTEND OUTER DRIVE NORTH

Although financially impossible now, the plan to extend the outer drive to Evanston has not been abandoned, it was disclosed yesterday when engineers of the Chicago park district announced that the federal government has granted renewal of the permit to fill in portions of the lake from Foster avenue, the present terminus of the drive, to Devon avenue.

This land must be reclaimed before another link can be added to the north side's superhighway. After that, said George T. Donoghue, general superintendent of the park district, the next step will be the completion of the drive to the north city limits.

Ralph Burke, chief engineer for the district, estimates that the entire project will cost about $11,000,000.

NAZIS, ITALIANS TO SWAP LABOR FOR MUTUAL AID

Duce's Factories, Hitler's Farms to Benefit.

ROME, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Germany and Italy will exchange 30,000 farm and industrial workers in March as an experiment in strengthening both political and economic bonds of the Rome-Berlin axis.

The experiment in mass labor collaboration, announced today, will send Italians skilled in land reclamation and production of wheat, potatoes, and sugar beets to southern and western Germany to reinforce the reich campaign for greater harvests.

At the same time German artisans will come to Italy to place their technical training at the service of Italian industry.

Dr. Robert Ley, Nazi labor head, and Franco Angelini, president of the National Fascist Confederation of Farm Workers, arranged the transfer.

Get 40 Cents a Day.

Under the agreement Italian workers will receive food, lodging, and about 40 cents a day in wages, the amount paid German farm hands. They also will be guaranteed sick and disability insurance. The German government will pay their transportation.

Most of the Italians will work under long term contracts binding them to about eight months' labor—the normal duration of the German agricultural season. Some have contracts providing for their return to Germany in 1939 and 1940 for seasonal farm work.

Special trains will deliver the Italo-German work armies en masse at their destinations. In announcing the plan the Fascist farm confederation said it would eliminate "hardships and humiliations" often encountered by Italian workers abroad, many of whom ordinarily filter into Germany for seasonal agricultural work.

To Travel in Groups.

The Italians will travel in groups of from ten to twenty-five each, with a captain and interpreter. The leaders will be farm laborers. The interpreters will be recruited from border provinces where many peasants speak German.

FEAR TRIP TO VISIT WIFE AND BABY MAY MEAN JAIL OR DEATH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Paul List.

New York, Jan. 8.—Death in Germany may be the price that Paul List, 37 years old, will pay for responding to an overwhelming desire to see his American wife and baby daughter, Maria Ann, 2 years old — the Rochester, N. Y., pair from whom wars and wanderings had long exiled him.

A wounded ex-member of loyalist Spain's international brigade, and a German citizen, he was an unsuccessful stowaway on the Normandie, arriving here Dec. 8 after being refused a United States visa in Paris. He was freed at Ellis Island today on $1,000 bail. His pleas failed to prevent a federal order for his return to Germany.

Unless the Circuit Court of Appeals reverses the federal District court, it became known today, he will have to go back to Nazi Germany where, he claims, his anti-Nazi record will bring execution or life imprisonment. He went to France in 1936 and thence to Spain, where he fought for the loyalist government for several months.

2D COMMONER WIFE DIVORCES EX-KING'S SON

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 8.—[U. P.]—The Marianao instruction court today granted Marta Rocafort of Havana a "mutual consent" divorce from the count of Covadonga, former heir to the Spanish throne. The count waived his rights to appear in court and contest the action of his second commoner wife. He underwent an operation for leg abscesses last week and has been confined to a hospital.

Collector Robbed of His Pants Makes Chilly Trip

Henry E. Nelson, 50 years old, a collector living at 437 Roslyn place, had reason to know it was cold last night. Three holdup men in a car kidnaped him in the 2800 block on Washington boulevard. They drove him to Warren and Oakley boulevards, where they robbed him of $85, took his trousers, and put him out. He was only two blocks away from the Warren avenue station. It was a cold trip there, but was rewarded with a pair of slacks.

For years, buyers of lowest priced cars have been guided by the sound advice . . . "Look at all three." It was good advice, for they are all good cars, these three. They have given a big money's worth to millions.

* * *

But now, listen to what owners of these three have to say . . . a group of average owners who liked their cars and thought they had the biggest money's worth on the market . . . until we asked them to try out a new lowest priced car. They tested it side by side with a new 1938 model of the car they had been driving. The following statements are typical of what these owners said:

Owner of "Car A" (name on request): "I'm surprised at the difference . . . your new car wins easily. The motor never seems to strain a bit, at any speed. The steering is great . . . much less road shock."

Owner of "Car B" (name on request): "A lot roomier car than mine, and the back seat is more comfortable. The Hudson 112 is steadier, too . . . the motor smoother and quieter. A better car all around!"

Owner of "Car C" (name on request): "Those brakes make a hit with me. You really STOP in this Hudson . . . quicker and straighter. An easier car to handle, too. Safer and sturdier all the way, in my opinion."

* * *

What is this new lowest priced car which dared invite side-by-side comparisons by men and women who had bought and were satisfied with the "other three?" IT IS THE NEW HUDSON 112, soon to be announced.

* * *

First preview of the new Hudson 112 will be held here this week. Come and see a combination of size, room, smooth performance, sturdiness and safety on the one hand, and remarkably low cost of ownership and operation on the other . . . such as has never been offered in any other lowest priced car. A better deal for your dollar.

GANG, IN FEAR, SLEW INDIANA GIRL, SAY POLICE

Lovers' Lane Killing Laid to Mistaken Identity.

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—While Indiana state police were questioning Lawrence McCarty, a convicted murderer, who was freed from prison on parole and is held as a suspect in the mysterious slaying of Melba Moore, 16 years old, last Oct. 12, a new theory in the murder was evolved today.

This theory is that in a moment of fright members of a suspected automobile ring fired on the young girl, believing she was another woman leading officers to arrest them.

McCarty, who is 37 years old, was arrested yesterday in Mishawaka, Ind., when delivering bootleg alcohol. He was suspected in the lovers' lane slaying because Mrs. Cecil Hawkins of South Bend told police she believed she had been marked for death and that Miss Moore was killed by the gang when mistaken for her.

Discover Theft Ring.

Mrs. Hawkins explained that she had discovered an automobile theft ring headed by McCarty using her barn to strip accessories from stolen automobiles and to disguise the cars for resale. She also said McCarty and his accomplices had kept her a virtual prisoner in her home since she learned what they were doing.

Miss Moore, the slain schoolgirl, was about the same size and of the same general appearance as Mrs. Hawkins, who is 26 years old.

On the day of the murder, Mrs. Hawkins said, she had been permitted to leave her home for the first time in two weeks to visit friends in Eau Claire and Edwardsburg, Mich.

Demand Trip Itinerary.

Before consenting to let Mrs. Hawkins leave her home McCarty demanded that she give a detailed itinerary of her proposed trip, she said. She promised that she would drive north from South Bend to Niles, Mich., and continue northward to Eau Claire. Returning she was to take a circuitous gravel route to Edwardsburg and then follow a direct southwest highway back to South Bend.

Suspecting a plot against her life, Mrs. Hawkins followed the southwest route on her way home until four miles northeast of South Bend, she said. Then she drove west until she reached the north-south highway on which she had gone to Eau Claire in the morning and proceeded to her home in the northwest district of South Bend.

Slaying Near "U" Farm.

The scene of the slaying was in front of the entrance to Notre Dame farm, on a county road several miles from the route Mrs. Hawkins was instructed to follow.

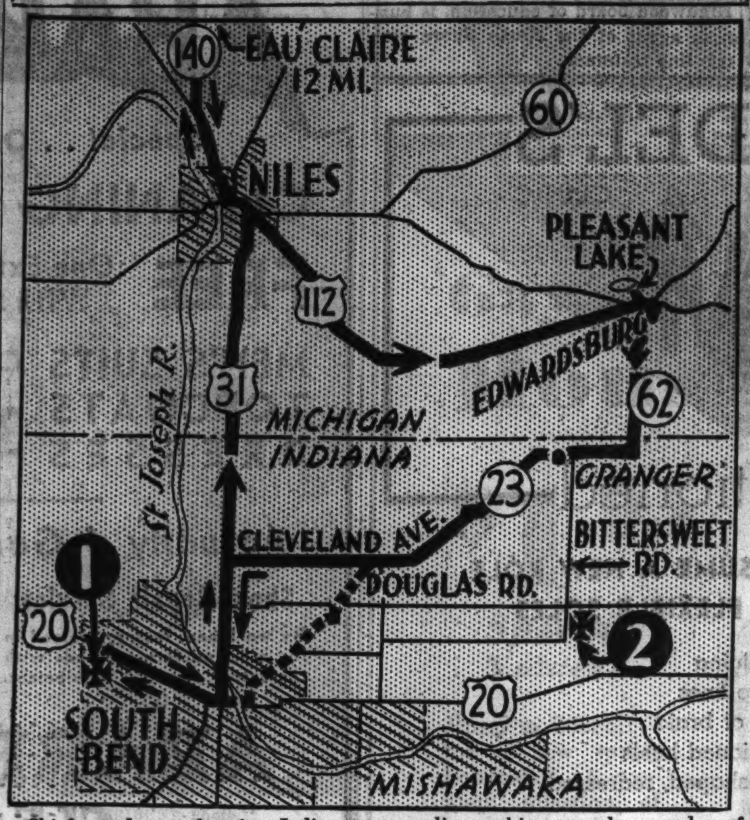
Sherif William J. Hosinski says he believes members of the automobile theft ring had made a rendezvous at Notre Dame farm gate, perhaps with other members of the gang.

The first theory advanced by authorities was that members of the gang were laying in wait to kill Mrs. Hawkins on her return from Edwardsburg.

Had the killers been lying in wait for her, they were miles from her route. Mrs. Hawkins was driving southwest. The automobile in which Miss Moore was riding with her sweetheart, Adolph Topper, 20, and Charles Walton, 17, both of Granger, was proceeding north and therefore would not have been mistaken for the Hawkins car. Because of these facts the police are convinced the killers, instead of lying in wait, became frightened while at the Notre Dame farm meeting place and opened fire when the two men got out of the car and came toward them, believing they were police put on their trail by Mrs. Hawkins.

Daniel Kline, 27 years old, a companion of McCarty, also is held.

Trail of Mystery in Girl's Slaying



Chief puzzles confronting Indiana state police seeking to solve murder of Melba Moore, 16, are illustrated by map. Mrs. Cecil Hawkins, believed to have been intended victim of killers, lives in South Bend (1), where she was kept prisoner by auto theft ring using her garage. She was allowed to leave home on day of crime to go to Eau Claire and Edwardsburg only after she gave route she would take. She followed road indicated by arrows. Dotted line was part of her itinerary, but she avoided it, suspecting plot against her. Miss Moore was killed, however, at (2), scene of gang rendezvous, when she appeared there with two companions. Police theorize that killers believed Miss Moore was Mrs. Hawkins, bringing police to trap them.

CIDDY FOR CITY, DEM FOR THEM, FIND CHAMPION

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Dr. Janet Aiken, the Columbia university professor who scolded President Roosevelt because he used "like" as a conjunction, today took a crack at Dr. Joseph K. Van Denberg, chairman of the New York City board of examiners, who recently made some complaints of his own about incorrect speech.

Dr. Janet Aiken.

Dr. Aiken does not support Dr. Van Denberg, who viewed with alarm such New York pronunciations as "ciddy" for "city" and "dem" for "them" and "jern" for "join."

"I for one," she said, "hear much pleasing and effective enunciation among native New Yorkers, and if they are evolving a new English I think it has a good chance of being an improvement over the old.

"Take our modern word 'had.' In the year 300 it had numerous different forms, a typical one being 'haddadeidum.' Imagine the waste of time and printer's ink if we still had to say 'haddadeidum' instead of 'had.'

"Perhaps English needs to become a new language. Many words and pronunciations which are condemned in one generation are accepted in the next. Teachers are becoming more reluctant to mark 'I ain't' as bad English when they find it given good standing in the new Oxford dictionary."

Murphy Opposes Steps to Put Him on High Court

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan today took notice of efforts to support him for the United States Supreme court vacancy by saying: "I am opposed to the slightest effort, directly or indirectly, on my behalf."

Husband Is Found Dead on Day of Wife's Funeral

Michael Malauski, 63 years old, was found shot to death yesterday in the garage at the rear of his home at 7239 Rhodes avenue. It was the day of his wife's funeral. A revolver lay beside him. Mrs. Malauski died last Tuesday. After her death Malauski suffered from shock.

Stab Wounds Inflicted by Holdup Victim Are Fatal

Theodore Ziarkowski, 23 years old, of 1745 West 18th street, died in the County hospital yesterday of stab wounds inflicted by John Wrubel, 40 years old, of 1802 West 18th street, on Nov. 25, when Wrubel resisted an attempt at robbery.

STIFFEN PAROLE POLICY; CHICAGO CRIME DECLINES

Fifth as Many Released to Cook Co. in 1937.

Only 252 convicts were returned to Cook county on parole in 1937, as compared with 1,294 in 1936, and Chicago police reported a general crime reduction for the year. On the other hand, casualties in 1936 in the never ending warfare with crime were as follows:

Police killed by criminal, 1 [shot by a paroled convict]; criminals killed by police, 22; criminals killed by civilians and watchmen, 9; civilians killed by criminals, 37.

Best Record Since 1913.

It was the first year since 1913 in which only one Chicago policeman was killed in line of duty. The policeman was Arthur Sullivan, 1953 South St. Louis avenue, shot Jan. 14, 1937, by Joseph Schuster, who had been identified in a robbery. Schuster was electrocuted on April 16. In 1936 two policemen and thirty-five criminals were killed.

Police Commissioner Allman and Chief of Detectives Sullivan said that undoubtedly the lives of many policemen were saved because only one-fifth as many parolees were turned loose in the Chicago area in 1937 as in 1936. They also praised T. P. Sullivan, superintendent of supervision of parolees, for coöperating with the police in sending parole violators captured in Illinois back to prison.

Lessened activity of the parole board, and a decrease in crime together with an increase in the number sentenced or returned to prison from Cook county is shown in the following table from the Chicago crime commission records:

	1936.	1937.
Paroled	1,294	252
Parole violators returned	221	257
Criminals sent to prison	780	891
Murders	195	188
Robberies	*5,534	*5,297
Burglaries	*12,789	*11,500

*Figures for Chicago only.

Reverses Parole Trend.

During 1935 and 1936 the parole board was freeing Cook county criminals at the rate of 13 for every 10 criminals sent to prison. But in 1937, as the preceding table shows, State's Attorney Thomas Courtney not only sent more men and women to prison than in 1936, but convicted 35 criminals for every 10 criminals paroled.

As supplied by the police bureau of records, the list of bandits killed by policemen in 1937 and the circumstances are as follows:

Steve Choleweczynski, 41 years old, address unknown, a parolee, shot and killed on Jan. 17 when he attempted to hold up Policeman Harold Haight of the Fillmore street station. The holdup man was out on parole at the time he was slain.

John Burke, 29, of 6231 South Peoria street, killed by Policemen Dennis Collins and Paul Houlihan of the Stockyards station on Jan. 22 just after he had committed a robbery.

James Brown, colored, 35, of 4241 Champlain avenue, shot on Feb. 14 when caught in a robbery.

Louis Ebert, 27, of 5245 South Tripp avenue, killed on May 23 by Policeman William Ward when Ebert approached a parked automobile in which Ward and Policeman Stanley Lecket were seated. Ebert had shot and killed Mary Irwin, wife of Robert Irwin, a policeman, in a robbery.

Roy Harmon, colored, 19, of 21 East 36th street, shot when he resisted arrest on March 31. A companion had implicated him in a murder and robbery.

Lonnie Phillips, colored, 28, of 4815 Champlain avenue, killed when caught holding up a taxi driver on June 27.

Leo Gutzwiller, 28, of 928 West 51st place, shot by Policeman William Ward on July 24 when he and a companion attempted to strong-arm the policeman.

Lou Vine, 26, of 328 South Leavitt street, slain when he fled after a robbery on Sept. 5.

John Leyden, 22, of 6323 South Richmond street, shot by Policeman Patrick McMahon on Dec. 20 after he had committed several robberies.

Burglars Slain by Police.

Burglars killed by police during the year and the circumstances follow:

John Hunt, 20, of 5749 Wentworth avenue, slain in a chain store at 8409 Stony Island avenue on Jan. 1. A police car passing by saw him light a match inside and shot him while he was trying to escape.

Robert Stringham, 15, of 558 West 42d street, shot on Jan. 13 when he and a companion were caught robbing the American Bridge company, 352 Root street.

Fred Bremmer, 42, of 2538 Lincoln avenue, killed on Aug. 8 when he attempted to escape after breaking into a flat at 831 Wrightwood avenue.

Emil Samek, 21, of 1738 Division street, found dead in an alley on Nov. 17. Later he was identified as a burglar shot by Policeman Dwight Webb.

Auto thieves killed by police during the year and the circumstances:

Samuel Jennings, 17, of 1424 Elk Grove avenue, shot on April 18 when he and three companions were caught riding in a stolen automobile.

Charles Williams, colored, 20, of 5048 Champlain avenue, killed when he attempted to escape in a stolen car on Oct. 5.

Suspects Slain in Year.

Suspected criminals shot and killed by police in 1937 while resisting arrest:

John Ciesopka, 17, of 4844 South Seeley avenue, killed on March 4 while trying to escape after being arrested at his home for questioning about a burglary.

Le Roy Williams, colored, 20, of 66 East 44th street, shot by Policeman Francis Regan on April 6 when he tried to escape after stealing a package from a truck.

Edward Young, colored, 28, of 3946 South Park way, killed by Policeman Edward Dennis on April 23 after escaping from a police car. Young had a criminal record as a robber.

John Ramsey, colored, 31, of 5740 Prairie avenue, killed on May 19 when he attempted to escape from police. He had a long police record and was named by two companions as their partner in robberies.

Edward Moorehead, 28, of 1806 West 22d place, shot on Oct. 28 when police trapped him in a house with two companions after escape from Joliet prison.

Walter Griffin, colored, 19, of 3632 South La Salle street, shot by Policeman Richard Donavan on Dec. 5 when he tried to escape arrest after being identified as a holdup man.

William Thomas, 29, of 922 East 62d street, an ex-convict, killed by Policeman Fred Crowley on Dec. 16 when he and a companion fired at Crowley and his partner, Patrick Griffin. Both policemen were wounded.

Killed by Watchmen.

Suspected criminals killed by citizens and private watchmen during the year:

Jesse Roberts, 22, of 1135 West Adams street, killed by John Swastek, a tavern owner at 1859 West Chicago avenue, whom he attempted to hold up on Jan. 21. Swastek was also slain.

Fred Siggers, colored, 3133 Indiana avenue, fatally shot by Rufus Roach, colored, special watchman, on Feb. 10 when caught attempting to break into a liquor store.

Ben Long, colored, 41, of 3152 Prairie avenue, killed on May 9 while running out of a yard at 331 East 39th place by Edward Y. Brown, also colored. Long had a record as a burglar.

Clarence Gilmore, colored, 32, of 4637 Calumet avenue, fatally stabbed by James Williams, also colored, on May 10. Williams had recognized Gilmore as a man who had robbed him.

James Price, colored, 4848 Federal street, fatally shot by E. Voegles, a railroad watchman, on May 10 while resisting arrest. Price shot at the watchman.

Daniel Thompson, colored, 18, of 3005 South State street, shot by Sam McDaniels, 3139 Federal street, on June 5 while robbing McDaniels' home.

George Carson, 45, killed by Lige Debowski on July 18 when Carson and a companion attempted to hold up a liquor store at 1009 Leland avenue.

Edmund Blut, 40, of 1936 West 22d street, Carson's companion, died a few days later. Debowski was wounded and still is in the County hospital.

Joseph Whitney, colored, 37, killed by Willie Kyle, also colored, 3606 South Wabash avenue, on Nov. 7. Kyle said Whitney attempted to strong-arm him.

Chief Emmett Evans of the bureau of identification reported the activities of his department for 1937 as follows:

Fugitives apprehended through "stop orders," 332; local prisoners handled, 41,032; local prisoners, identified, 18,891, or 46 per cent; photographs made, 31,695; injured and dead persons finger printed, 243; dead persons identified, 115; burglaries investigated for finger prints, 1,987; latent finger prints found, 218; cases where identification and conviction followed from finger prints found in places robbed, 12.

Revise Today's Program for Kansas City Orchestra

The program of the Kansas City Philharmonic orchestra, which plays an Orchestra hall concert this afternoon under the direction of Karl Krueger, has undergone revisions since the music section of today's TRIBUNE was printed. The Beethoven Eighth Symphony will replace the Brahms first. The dance from Strauss' "Salome" has been added to the list.

PASSPORT PLOT IS LINKED WITH MOSCOW COUPLE

Hints Step to Smuggle Pair Out of Russia.

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—A new and amazing theory to account for the Robinson-Rubens fake passport intrigue was advanced today by the American state department.

Coincident with the announcement that Mrs. Donald L. Robinson had been identified definitly as Mrs. Ruth Marie Boerger Rubens, the state department decided that Mrs. Rubens and her husband may have been attempting to smuggle another couple out of Russia.

The new theory tended to explain why Mrs. Rubens, who already had obtained a passport through legitimate means, should have acquired another, the picture on which was different from her own.

Explanation Offered.

The explanation of the state department was:

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Arnold Rubens, deeply interested in the internal complications of soviet Russia, were in communication with a couple in Moscow who were in danger of being arrested as international spies.

They sent their pictures to the Rubenses, and Mrs. Rubens, whose American citizenship was unquestioned, obtained a passport through the regular channels. Her husband was not so sure of his status. He arranged to have his passport issued through convenient underground channels, and at the same time, armed with phony birth certificates, obtained passports for "Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Robinson."

Tripped Up in Moscow.

Then, according to the state department theory, the Rubenses sailed for Europe and eventually arrived in Moscow. Some place in the negotiations to deliver the two fake passports to the stranded couple, the Russian authorities became suspicious.

They searched the Rubens' quarters and found the two forged passports. Rubens, unable to prove his American citizenship, was thrown into Lubianka prison. His wife was detained for questioning, but when she proved conclusively that she was an American, she was released, the state department believes.

Younghusband's Stolen Car Used in Seven Robberies

The stolen automobile of J. Leslie Younghusband, frequently married cosmetics manufacturer, was used in a series of seven recent robberies, it was learned yesterday with the arrest of John Jones, 28 years old, colored. Jones was seized in the car in front of 3185 Cottage Grove avenue by Stanton avenue police. He confessed stealing the car on Dec. 24 from in front of Younghusband's residence, 223 East Walton place, and using it in robberies. The automobile was returned to Younghusband.

DIES AFTER DRINKING PARTY.

Mrs. Mary Paulino, 30 years old, of 1913 West Taylor street, was found dead last night in the rear of 1109 South Damen avenue. Police arrested Charles Chriss, 65 years old, colored, who said he placed her there after she died during a drinking party in his flat at 1917 West Taylor street.

BOMBER BURNS; 2 MEN HURT IN HUNT FOR FLYERS

San Pedro, Cal., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Injury of two men and the loss of a bombing plane by fire added to the search toll today as the navy's great sea and air armada continued the quest for the twin-motored bomber that disappeared during maneuvers over the Pacific ocean late Wednesday.

Scott P. Hawkins.

Hope for the safety of the giant seaplane and its complement of seven diminished by the hour, but the 35 fighting ships and 283 planes continued unabated their activities over 60,000 square miles.

Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, commander in chief of the fleet, sent a radio message to the Associated Press telling of a landing crash aboard the airplane carrier Saratoga yesterday in which Pilot Lieut. J. M. Elliott suffered second degree burns and M. A. Belgum, a seaman, was cut and bruised.

Previously Cadet Scott P. Hawkins, Jefferson City, Mo., fell from a searching plane and plunged into the sea.

"We bought the first house we looked at"

The home at 5216 N. New England Ave. which Mr. and Mrs. Kile found through a Tribune want ad.

MRS. EUGENE M. KILE, 5216 N. NEW ENGLAND AVE., TELLS HOW TRIBUNE WANT ADS LED HER DIRECTLY TO WHAT SHE WANTED.

* * *

"When our little boy reached his first birthday, we decided that we had to have a house so that he could have a bedroom of his own and a yard to play in.

"My husband, who is a designer of construction machinery, is in touch with business conditions. He thought that from an investment standpoint now is a good time to buy a house.

Looked in The Tribune

"As the Tribune is the only newspaper we read, I suppose it was only natural that we started our house hunting in the Tribune want ads.

"We read several ads until we came to one that sounded promising. It described a new Dutch Colonial house at 5216 N. New England Ave., not far from where we were living.

Inspected the House

"We drove over to see it and met Mr. Nudelman, construction manager for the J-B Construction Co., 134 N. La Salle St., the firm which had advertised the house. He showed us around and quoted a price of $5,895.

"We were very impressed with the house. It was brand new and in a good location. It had 5 rooms, bath and a large back yard. We considered the price to be reasonable. Although it seemed rather foolish to buy the first house we looked at, we were afraid that if we hesitated it might be gone. So we told Mr. Nudelman, then and there, that we would take it.

"We are entirely satisfied with our purchase. We like it now even more than when we first looked at it."

Are you looking for a house, bungalow or two-flat? Or a piece of real estate for an investment? No matter what type of property you want, Tribune want ads can help you find it with a minimum of time and trouble.

Tribune want ads have helped thousands of families find the homes in which they now live. Tribune want ads can help you find what you want. Turn to the want ads now. The home you have been looking for may be described in today's Tribune want ad section.

Today, as for more than 20 years, the Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper.

William Jaffe, Pres., J-B Construction Co.

"For a year straight we advertised all of our homes for sale in the classified sections of all Chicago newspapers. Through a careful check we found that the best results were obtained from our ads in the Chicago Tribune.

"For that reason we are now using the Chicago Tribune exclusively. We are obtaining a satisfactory volume of sales of houses already built and orders for homes to be built, through your paper."

MEETS AMERICAN EPIC CHAPTER ON A STREET CORNER

Title: Frank Conte, U. S. Citizen and Newsboy.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

His letterhead, modest and correct as to type, reads thus:

FRANK CONTE
NEWSBOY
RACINE AND VAN BUREN STREETS
CHICAGO

He is 43 years old and for 33 years he has been selling TRIBUNES on that corner. He owns his home—a two story apartment building at 1343 West Flournoy street, four blocks distant from his corner—and he makes that home the cheerful abode of seven young people. Three of them—Mickey, Joey, and Junior—are his own children, and four—Marie, Jimmie, Lena, and Blanche—are the children of his brother, Michael, who died in the influenza epidemic of 1918 and whose widow Frank married.

The only anxiety the boys cause him arises from their eagerness to quit school and get to work. He says that boys who quit school early will regret it some day. He never had any schooling beyond the sixth grade in the old Dante school at Des Plaines and Gilpin streets. He had to start selling papers when he was 10 years old.

Up at 5 o'Clock.

Frank is up at 5 o'clock in the morning and ready to go to his stand at the northeast corner of Racine and Van Buren streets. He stays there until 1:30 in the afternoon. Then a rest at home and a visit with his mother, who is 70 years old and spry.

Back to the stand he goes at 4 o'clock to handle the evening paper trade until after 6.

Thousands of people living in the 27th ward know Frank and it can safely be said that everybody in the 51st precinct of that ward knows him.

All that friendliness is not because he is in ward politics, for one of his rules of good citizenship is, "Don't let anybody tell you how to vote."

"Tell me some more of the things, Frank," said I, "that make a man a good American citizen."

Watch the Pennies.

In short, solid sentences he replied:

"Take care of the pennies and the dollars will take care of themselves. And, boy or man, you mustn't let any bad habits get hold of you. They eat up more than anybody can save."

Thinking this to be prime stuff I asked for more of his rules for good citizenship, and he said:

"Always vote.

"Always buy American made goods.

"Think only of the U. S. of America and keep out of Europe's fights."

"Did you build up your independence, Frank—pay for the home and all that—by making profits from investments?"

He gave me a sort of tired look and said:

"I didn't invest in nothing. I don't believe in it. You got to have a lot of money for that. But I believe in life insurance. That's my investment."

Advice to Boys.

"You have hoed a long, hard row, Frank, and what you say means something. So I want to ask you what is your best advice to a boy. You have made a fine success. What shall I tell them you say?"

"I say, don't be ashamed to start at the bottom of the ladder. My first advice is to start selling papers, but stay in school until at least 18 or more, and then, if a boy can make it, go to the university. Education is a boy's best investment."

Frank's father, Venizo Conte, was born in the Calabrian region of Italy. He emigrated to America when he was 35 years old and he had to work hard—at first as a laborer and then as proprietor of a push cart from which he sold ice cream. As the years wore on he and his wife and his sons, Michael and Frank, saved, and saved, and saved until they were able to buy the house on Flournoy street.

Chapter of an Epic.

Now what do you make of Frank's story and the story of his father, Venizo, and his mother, Gatena, and his happy family of seven children and stepchildren?

As I read their story they all make an authentic and beautiful little chapter in that tremendous document which Truslow Adams calls "the epic of America"—they are so thrifty, so self-respecting, so cheerful, so ready to meet the day's work and its obligations.

Frank is growing gray around the temples now, but the spirit of a "U. S. of America"—as he calls it—that does not grow old or disheartened is his priceless possession.

BEND ATOMS IN ARMOUR TECH'S MIGHTY PRESS

Device Opens Fields for Research.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

A new tool for scientific research which gives pressures up to 1,500,000 pounds per square inch has been developed at the new research foundation of the Armour Institute of Technology, it was learned yesterday. This pressure far exceeds any previously attained.

The device makes available a wide field of investigation into pressure phenomena, varying from studies of the structure of the earth 200 miles below the surface, to the behavior of untapped energy in the interior of the atom. It has been found, among other things, that atoms bend under pressure and that ordinary glass can be bent to a spherical curvature having a radius of four inches.

Medal for Director.

Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, who is director of the foundation, will be presented with a congressional medal for scientific accomplishment in polar exploration at a dinner in Chicago on Jan. 19. Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd will attend the dinner for Dr. Poulter, senior scientist and second in command of his second antarctic expedition.

The scientific program of that expedition, Dr. Poulter said yesterday, comprised 22 different studies. The reports are still being worked over and will be published in 10 volumes of 300 pages each.

The most important of these results were studies of the earth's atmosphere, which is so clear in that region that the flame of a candle may be seen with the naked eye nine miles away, and with binoculars from 6 to 35 meteors a minute are visible. Even more meteors fall in Chicago, but they cannot be seen.

Works for Industries.

The research foundation, which began operation a year ago, does work in both pure and applied science. The foundation has a staf of 36 and accepts problems from industrial concerns, such as oil, coal, and steel companies, and the packers. Work is going on in television, metallurgy, air conditioning, water supplies, stresses and strains on steel, bridges and rails, soil mechanics, building vibration and in automotives.

"There is no better solution to the unemployment situation in a country than an extensive research program," said Dr. Poulter. "If we observe the present trend in the number of patents granted and scientific attainment on every hand, it is evident that man's exploration in the realm of science is on the threshold of even greater developments.

"Our civilization has set as its goal the perfect machine. We must have steel that will withstand higher temperatures and loads, engines of greater speeds and greater output and likewise lubricants that will protect rubbing surfaces even under the most unusual combination of conditions."

STEAL BEVERAGE TRUCK.

A truck loaded with twenty-five cases of beverages belonging to the Universal Wine and Liquor company, 4440 West Madison street, and valued at $787, was stolen yesterday from in front of a liquor store at 2880 Elston avenue while the driver, Garry Pikrone, made a delivery.

2 AUTO VICTIMS LEFT IN STREET; RIOT THREATENS

Crowd Menaces Police; Woman Killed by Taxi.

A near riot among some 400 angry men and women threatened for a time early today because police permitted an injured man and his dead wife, automobile victims, to lie for more than thirty minutes in the bitter cold at Sheridan road and Morse avenue while awaiting the arrival of an ambulance.

The victims were Fred O. Geyler, 56 years old, 1406 Olive avenue, an accountant, and his wife, Helen, 54 years old. She was killed outright. He is in the Rogers-Post hospital and may die. They were run down by a Radio taxicab driven by Allen Giblin, 510 Kedzie avenue, Evanston.

Crowd Threatens Police.

A crowd collected and soon afterward two Rogers Park police squads arrived. The policemen announced they would have to wait for a police ambulance. Many bystanders insisted that the victims be taken in a squad or private car to the nearest hospital. Police said this was not allowed. Some one furnished blankets and a pillow for the Geylers. As minutes passed without arrival of an ambulance the crowd, growing larger, shouted its demands and threatened the police. The police finally broke their rule and took Geyler to the hospital. Mrs. Geyler had been pronounced dead and her body was taken to an undertaking establishment.

Police at the Rogers Park station admitted a near riot had occurred. They said they had no ambulance after midnight and had to depend on the Summerdale station, three miles away, and the Damen avenue station, nearly five miles away, for early morning ambulances. Squads are prohibited from using squad cars as ambulances, they said.

3 Way Collision; One Dead.

One man was killed yesterday and another so seriously injured he may die in a three way collision between a truck, an automobile, and a Yellow cab. The dead man was Emil Karanek, 33 years old, of 1739 West 43d street, one of the occupants of the car.

The injured victim, also an occupant of the auto, is George Williams, 27, of 3523 South Paulina street, a molder.

The truck driver, Robert Kahn, 33, of 1718 North Shore avenue, said he stopped on South State street at Cermak road for the light. As he started again the auto sped through the signal eastbound on Cermak road, Kahn said. The truck hit the car, which swerved into the parked taxicab, the driver of which, Julius Abelson of 3135 Wentworth avenue, was in a nearby restaurant.

Child of 7 Killed by Truck.

Marcell Dalis, 7 years old, was fatally injured by a truck last night near his home at 4012½ Harrison street. He died in the Garfield Park hospital. Ardie Eipa of Milwaukee was the driver of the truck.

Albert Tarnow, 67 years old, 1000 West Crescent avenue, Park Ridge, an employé of the Park Ridge water department, who was injured by an automobile in Park Ridge on Dec. 27, died last night in St. Francis hospital, Evanston.

Advertising Man in Crash.

W. H. Aaron Jr., said to be advertising manager for the Stewart-Warner company, saved his life early today by leaping from an automobile just before it was struck by a Chicago and North Western railway freight train on State Route 176, one-half mile west of Lake Bluff. He is 32 years old, and resides at 535 Scranton avenue, Lake Bluff.

As host to a party in his home, he went out to get additional sandwiches, and was using an automobile owned by a guest, Harmon H. Woodworth, 1616 Colfax street, Evanston, also an advertising man. Aaron crashed into the gate post to avoid the train, and then leaped out as his car came to a stop on the tracks. The train wrecked the car, but he was clear. In hitting the post, two ribs were broken and he was possibly internally injured. He was given medical aid by Dr. Clifford P. McCullough in Lake Forest, and then taken home.

Train Hits Auto; Driver Unhurt.

Buster Nuzzo, 20 years old, 611 144th street, Dolton, saved his life by leaping this morning when his automobile stalled in the path of a Baltimore and Ohio railroad freight train at the Lincoln street crossing in Dolton. The car was demolished.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 34 persons had been killed in Cook county by automobiles since the first of the year. Of these, 24 were killed within the city, where 310 were injured in the same period.

In Separation Tangle

[Acme Photo.]

MRS. CLAIRE BRANDEIS.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—All the marital differences of E. John Brandeis, millionaire Omaha, Neb., and Hollywood sportsman, and his attractive French wife, Mrs. Claire Brandeis, will probably be aired in Los Angeles courts instead of being partially settled in Omaha, under a ruling on file in the court of Superior Judge Robert W. Kenny.

Charging cruelty and desertion, Brandeis sued Mrs. Brandeis, his third wife, in Omaha last July 30, mailing the petition from here. The wife countered with a separate maintenance demand of $5,250 monthly in an action here last Dec. 22, accusing Brandeis of physical cruelty and association with other women.

Now Judge Kenny has officially recommended a consolidation of all the actions before continuing hearings on the case.

Policeman Who Supplied Guns to Brady Loses Job

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Policeman Elmer Joyce, who admitted peddling a variety of firearms and ammunition to Brady gangsters a year ago, was fired from the force today by City Manager C. O. Sherrill. Joyce contended he did not know the identity of the gangsters.

CITY-WIDE AUTO LICENSE DRIVE TO OPEN TOMORROW

A city-wide drive against motorists who have failed to get their 1938 city vehicle tax licenses will start tomorrow, James P. Allman, police commissioner, announced yesterday. Last week the license drive was confined to the loop, but a general order will be sent to all police districts today, he said.

"We've given all motorists fair warning. Now we mean business," the commissioner said.

Yesterday City Clerk Peter J. Brady issued 14,160 licenses or a total of 229,622 to date.

Woman Held in Iowa as Illegal Hauler of Liquor

Manchester, Ia., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—A woman giving her name as Veronica Black, 35 years old, of Waterloo, was arrested here today and charged with illegal transportation of alcoholic liquor. In her 1937 coupe, registered in her name, were 144 half pint bottles of alcohol.

HORNER REPRIEVES WOMAN AND HER AID IN BROTHER'S SLAYING

Chester, Ill., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Marie Porter, mother of four children, and Angelo Ralph Giancola, under sentences of death in the electric chair, received their second stays of execution today.

Gov. Henry Horner granted them reprieves until Friday, Jan. 21. Their executions had been set for early Monday morning at the southern Illinois prison for the wedding day slaying of William Kappen, Mrs. Porter's brother.

Mrs. Porter, although depressed at times, often has expressed confidence she will not be executed. Giancola, who testified he was the triggerman in the St. Clair county shooting, has remained morose and silent. His brother, John, is preparing to appeal to the Supreme court the 99 year sentence he received for the Kappen slaying.

A BILL TO HALT PROGRESS.

The Borah-O'Mahoney bill whose purpose is to place under federal license every business corporation in the country which buys or sells across state lines has Mr. Roosevelt's approval. On the authority of "high administration officials" it is said that the President's only objection to the measure is his feeling that it doesn't go far enough.

As it stands, the measure would authorize an enlarged federal trade commission to determine among other things who may go into business and where and for what purpose; what profits he may make; what reserves he may accumulate for the expansion of his business; what minimum wages he shall pay his employés and how they may organize themselves into unions. The power to revoke licenses is, of course, included, and operating a business without a license is to be severely punished. The power to fix prices is there by implication.

The bill, in short, would place all economic activity, whether of management, of labor, or of investor, directly under the control of the burocracy. The similarity between this scheme and the economic organization in Fascist states is striking.

The bill will have an instant appeal to those who think of the economic life of the country as something static. Existing businesses, especially those which are older and well established financially, can probably adapt themselves to the licensing system and live under it for a considerable period. They will get along for a time, though in the end they will atrophy under burocratic control just as the railroads have done. Some ageing and moribund corporations which today find themselves under pressure from energetic competitors may even welcome the Borah-O'Mahoney proposal as giving them a new lease on life.

But the economic system was not static which in less than two centuries has converted a wilderness into the richest country in the world, with the world's highest living standards. If we wish to continue in the path of economic progress we dare not restrict and hamper the initiative which alone makes progress possible.

The day of inventions and discoveries is not ended; it has just dawned. You do not have to be very old to remember when there were no telephones, no electric lights, no radio, no movies, no automobiles, no X-rays, no steam turbines, no airplanes. It is difficult for unimaginative people to believe that equally revolutionary changes will come in an endless stream, provided as few obstacles as possible are placed in the way.

If this bill had been law a generation ago Henry Ford might never have been granted a license to manufacture automobiles. At the time there was much doubt about the social desirability of the automobile. It smelled bad, frightened horses, and tore up the pavements. Moreover, those who were most hopeful about its future were only proving how disastrous would be its effect upon farming. Even if, in the face of these impressive objections, Mr. Ford had been licensed to build cars he would have been forbidden under this bill to use profits to the extent that he did in expanding his plant. In consequence there might be no plant.

There is every reason to expect that inventors and industrial innovators will continue to appear and enrich mankind if only they are left free to work out their novel ideas as best they can. The burocracy cannot create such men, but it can hamper them and destroy their usefulness. Whatever may be the intentions of the framers of the bill, that is what it will do. No benefits which the most hopeful advocates of the licensing scheme may expect to flow from it can compensate for the losses which must be expected to result from its enactment.

THE NEW IRELAND.

The Irish nation has now dropped its first title, the Irish Free State, and become Eire in the Gaelic, Ireland in the language most of its people use. The change is an improvement, both from the standpoint of beauty and from that of convenience and identity. The elimination of the word free may be accepted as the recognition of a condition plain enough to require no assertion in the national title at this stage. It may have a less happy implication in the minds of many Irish and friends of Ireland who are disquieted by conditions in the young republic noted in the dispatch of David Darrah a few days ago. For while Ireland is well on its way to independence as a nation, its people are not headed toward freedom if President de Valera's régime marks its direction.

On the contrary, there are now in the De Valera rule the essential elements of tyranny, the first of which is the denial of free utterance. Censorship of the press and of publication already has gone far and is likely to go farther. It is ominous that the provision in the new constitution as to liberty of expression, while granting it to the radio, press, and movies, qualifies the right by the proviso that it shall not be exercised to undermine public order or morality or "the authority of the state."

It is a very naive mind that will accept this qualification at its face value. No doubt public order and morality and the authority of the state are prime concerns of civilized society, but a free people will find other and better means of defending them than by the suppression of free utterance. In spite of the ostensible guaranty of liberty of the press Mr. Darrah reports an active process of censorship or suppression going on in Eire. There is no better way of suppressing all liberty than the suppression of a free press. Every tyrannical régime resorts to it, every unjust judge, every corrupt or incompetent official will if he can. These are truisms with every free people and it is a pity that the young republic is ignoring them on the threshold of its course.

The Irish nationality is choosing its own order. Its organic law has been adopted by a free vote of the people. Its present government is in office by the will of a majority registered in a free election. It is the right of the Irish people to choose their own form of rule and their own rulers. If they wish to establish an authoritarian state they are now free to do so, but the free peoples who have wished them well will weep at their choice. Human liberty and the political and social welfare it fosters cannot thrive or even survive in an atmosphere of intolerance or under the autocratic rule of a government, however well meaning, which is not restrained by strict limitations upon its powers.

INVASION OF SOUTH AMERICA.

Dean Carl Ackerman of the Columbia school of journalism, returning from a survey of conditions in South America, gives some interesting news propaganda from Germany, Italy, and Russia in that continent. Carried on directly by the governments of the first two and indirectly by the last, it takes the form of daily cable news, articles, and pictures, and of short wave radio service from Rome, Berlin, and Moscow. The official Italian and German news agencies offer regular daily service, including photographs and features, free of expense. Newspapers with very moderate means can hardly resist such subsidized aid and many of them are in sympathy with the Fascist coloring of this free service.

These organized activities from reactionary and despotic governments—for the soviet is in reality as reactionary as the Fascist governments, though it has different formulas—cannot but have an effect upon the nations which we have always assumed belonged to the democratic family. We have known that some of the South and Central American republics were republics only in name and were actually under the rule of military dictators or class oligarchies, with popular education stagnant. In such countries, we suppose, Fascist propaganda is carrying coals to Newcastle, so far as the ideology of the ruling classes is concerned, but its general effect cannot be good for the atmosphere of our relations with them and by discouraging the development of democratic ideas where they still survive from the America of the revolutionary period and may still inspire individual leadership against reaction, it must be taken into serious account.

While the Fascist propaganda is at work to entrench dictatorship and the communist propaganda is at work to break down the restraints maintained by ordered society with the intent to set up a communist tyranny on its ruins, there is little, in Mr. Ackerman's view, to offset it in such news as comes from the United States. He says that news of the industrial warfare in this country last year has had a profound influence wherever printed. "It is doubtful whether any other news subject telegraphed from the United States has been so injurious to democracy. Combined with the distribution of crime news, this flow of evidence of the difficulties of a great and powerful democracy has had the effect of slowly undermining confidence in the efficacy of democratic institutions."

BRITISH ARMY REFORMS.

The effort of the British secretary of state for war, Mr. Hore-Belisha, to invigorate the army high command seems to be making progress. The army council has been largely reconstituted by the introduction of soldiers of the younger generation. While the military critic of the London Times, Capt. Liddell Hart, notes that "even with the new infusion the average age of the council will still be slightly higher than it was before the war," a substantial advance has been made from the low level always reached after a war toward correcting the routine of peace promotion and the vested interests of seniority. The new chief of the general imperial staf, Viscount Gort, is only 51 and was jumped over a long list of seniority superiors, taking the place of an incumbent of 63. The new adjutant general is 54, succeeding an officer of 64. The appointee to the revived office of deputy chief of the imperial general staf was only a colonel and is now 52. Other officers in their fifties have been given the Aldershot, eastern, southern, and Palestine commands.

Mr. Brewer's dispatch of Jan. 4 reports that the secretary for war has further changes in high command up his sleeve and that hopes of younger officers of more speedy promotion have been raised markedly by the action already taken. The fact that there has been delay in filling several of the highest places is not surprising, for there is no doubt that the beneficiaries of the old régime are powerful within and without the army, and Mr. Hore-Belisha has his hands full to put his plans through. Seldom, if ever, have the aristocratic and burocratic vested interests been defeated in peace times.

The age element is, of course, not the only or even the first consideration. An older man may be highly competent and a younger man inadequate. But age is a serious handicap even to ability and experience under the drastic conditions of war. The full vigor of youth is not available in the higher command, where the possession of knowledge and experience is essential. But as much of it as possible must be assured if the ordeal of command is to be endured. At the beginning of every war there is a radical disposal of older men, which is in some degree demoralizing, though necessary so long as we permit the cluttering up of high command in peace times with men who have outlived the vigor of mind and body required for the fulfillment of wartime responsibilities.

The problem with which Mr. Hore-Belisha is struggling is by no means peculiar to the British army but that of all standing armies, not excepting our own. Our present chief of staf is 62; the chief of infantry 62, the chief of artillery 60, the chief of cavalry 61. The chief of aviation, a new branch of the service, is the only one in his fifties, aged 54.

The average age of our major generals at this moment is 61.75 but this average is lowered by the inclusion of Gen. Drum, who is 58, and two others who are 60. Six are 63, two are 62, and one 61. An officer does not normally reach his colonelcy until he is 50 or past, the average of our colonels being about 57; and the law provides that general officers must be appointed from the list of colonels.

In short, our peace time procedure brings into the higher command men approaching the age of retirement, 64, who, according to normal experience, are no longer in condition to sustain the tremendous exactions imposed by actual warfare. It is significant that the great commanders have been with few exceptions much younger than the officers who hold superior commands in times of peace.

The problem is very difficult, but a better solution than we have yet contrived should be constantly sought. Under pressure of the imminent danger of war the British government has tackled it, but our own seemingly easier situation ought not to tempt us to postpone efforts to solve it.

BE ALERT TO DISEASE BUT UNAFRAID.

I AM impressed constantly with the bravery of those who are ill. Somehow or other, nature seems to rally to their support and bring to the fore a store of moral iron. Courage and fortitude are marvelous aids to recovery.

But there is a kind of bravado which is foolhardy. Some big "he" man may exclaim—as he thumps his chest vigorously, "Look at me! I am never ill; sleep like a top; eat like a horse. No bug will ever bite ME." Just the same some tiny, insignificant streptococcus [you can put five million of them on the head of a pin and still have plenty of room for playgrounds] will come along and lo! Mr. Colossal Physique will crash. The reason he does so is because he is either unwilling or unable to recognize the signs of beginning illness.

A few weeks ago an acquaintance of this Hercules type—possessed of enough reserve apparently to supply an entire village—came down with pneumonia. He had failed to heed the warning chill. That he escaped with his life is little short of miraculous. To him the entire episode came as a rude shock and he will get back his poise only after many months. Even then, I doubt if he will ever regain his aforetime attitude of omnipotence.

Then there are others who go to the opposite extreme. Like rabbits, they run from the faintest rustle. They take to their beds on the slightest provocation and then insult their stomachs and digestive tracts with all sorts of concoctions. Now and then children are made overly conscious of their bodies by too much fussiness on the part of parents. Many a youngster who has a perfectly normal physique may be told that he has a weak chest just because he has an occasional cold. The first thing we know the idea becomes fixed and he will go about even in mild weather bundled up heavily enough to face blasts straight from the arctic.

England is suffering from a form of socialmindedness which has resulted in health insurance. People there are taking more medicine than ever before because it goes along with the plan. One concern found that during the last four years forty of their workmen lost 6,194 days because of trivial causes. On the average, every employé was absent 38 days in each year—taking advantage of health insurance. This was so disastrous to production, so upsetting to the orderly operation of the industry, that something had to be done.

One of the firm got the group of workers together and explained that the plant physician was interested in their welfare and that his recommendations always could be depended on. Fortunately, the doctor was a conscientious individual—one whom they knew they could trust. Subsequently the annual absence per man dropped to 2.6 days. In addition, more systematic and careful physical examinations have brought about better health conditions all around.

While this is a simple example, it is one that can be emulated elsewhere. Apparently British manufacturers are obliged to combat the mollycoddling effects of compensation for illness, which puts a premium upon minor and, for the most part, meaningless symptoms.

We can make ourselves utterly miserable through misinterpreting and worrying about insignificant complaints or dwelling in apprehension lest they herald the approach of doom. In reading health information some may need to be cautioned lest they apply everything to themselves. Why not cultivate understanding which brooks neither foolish hardihood nor scared "bunny" tendencies?

MAY OBTAIN THAT ACID.

W. L. O. D. writes:

1. I have no hydrochloric acid in my stomach. Is this serious?

2. Since there are diets to restrict acid, why can't there be diets to produce it?

3. I am very nervous. Could lack of acid be responsible—or bad teeth? I tire very easily but I do not lose weight.

REPLY.

1. No. One may take this acid with meals.

2. Diet will not help to any great extent. Giving the missing substance by mouth is so simple.

3. Possibly the failure of the stomach to secrete the normal amount may be due to some disease state. Many who suffer from a certain type of anemia, or who are nervous and jittery, improve markedly when the acid is added to the diet.

HELPING ENLARGED HEART.

W. M. writes: What would cause a 6 year old child to have an enlarged heart? Will he overcome such a thing as he gets older?

REPLY.

Such a condition occurs only occasionally because of some congenital deformity of the organ. Acute rheumatic inflammation of the heart or an acute infectious disease may be responsible. Other causes are pericardial adhesion and chronic valvular disease. Regular habits, restricted exercise, frequent rest periods, and attention to the underlying cause are indicated. The condition may persist throughout life with excellent health. The fact that the heart is large is not serious in itself.

ESTATE PROPERTY.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Mr. A died without a will, leaving a widow, a son, and daughter. His property consisted of a farm and live stock to operate it. This has been held without division by his widow and two children.

1. I do not know whether this is "joint" ownership or "common" ownership. The son has managed the operation of the farm and the proceeds have been divided equally among the three.

Now Mrs. A died, leaving her one-third interest to be divided between the son and daughter—the son to have his share outright, but the daughter's share is made a trust to be administered by a bank which is also made administrator of Mrs. A's estate. At the daughter's death the trust terminates and the fund is distributed to her children.

2. What voice can the administrator have in the managerial policy of the farm?

3. Will it be possible to sell the farm if the son and daughter both wish to do so? L. G.

1. The heirs would take "in common."

2. We assume that you mean Mrs. A's personal representative. An administrator as such does not necessarily have anything to do with the real estate. The personal representative named in a will is called an executor. His powers depend on the wording of the will. It is not clear whether you are asking as to powers of the bank as executor or trustee. There are still so many uncertainties in your letter that we advise you to employ an attorney.

3. It seems probable that the wording is such that the grandchildren have interests that their parents could not convey.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ESTATE FUNDS.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My sister-in-law, a resident of Iowa, died last July leaving me a farm in North Dakota. She named her sister executrix of her will and immediately after probating same this sister made a trip to the farm and [1] collected the proceeds of last year's crops; 1937 taxes, I understand, are due in December this year and I would appreciate your advising me [2] who is supposed to pay same. M. M.

1. If the will gives the land to you, as distinguished from giving it to the executor to give it to you, then the executor would have no control of crops that have not been harvested at the date of the death.

2. It has been held that, in absence of contrary wording, the will should be construed as meaning that the devisee takes the land exonerated from such liens. [See 78 Ill., 147.] This would mean that the taxes should be paid by the estate.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

EXECUTOR'S FEE.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I would appreciate it very much if you would please advise me if there is a standard rate that an attorney might base his charge for handling an estate through the Probate court.

2. Also, if you would tell me whether this rate is based on the value of the estate, or just what basis is used for a charge of this kind? M. W.

1. The Illinois statute fixes the executor's fee at not over 6 per cent of the personal property. In our opinion the attorney's fee ought to come out of this figure.

2. It is based on the personal property.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JOINT TENANCY PROPERTY.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband and I have our home in joint tenancy.

1. Is it best for her sake that a will is made? Our daughter spells her last name slightly different than we do.

2. Will this cause her any difficulty when it comes to legal matters? A. N.

1. Joint tenancy property will go to the surviving tenant regardless of a will.

2. No, it should be easy for her to show by affidavit and otherwise that she is the person intended.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile.—The "revolt of the colonels" in Ecuador, which deposed Engineer Frederic Paez and placed Col. Alberto Henriquez in power as provisional president, has added another to the group of South American states governed by military dictatorship. The other three are Bolivia, Paraguay, and Peru.

Those considered in the completely democratic group are only two—Colombia and Chile. Those with varying degrees of civic dictatorship but with practically every form of democracy are: Uruguay, Argentina, and Brazil. The tenth and last state is Venezuela, which has a government of transition, gradually feeling its way toward democracy after half a century of dictatorship.

Ecuador's troubles are also the aftermath of half a century of dictatorship, though of a different kind. It was not personal, but political. The liberal-radical party monopolized the government by clever exploitation of the democratic parliamentary system. Its long monopoly was broken eight years ago by a military revolt.

The army officers, with a civil chief, prepared new elections, which were won by a social-conservative, José Velasco Ibarra, whose short experience and long tongue soon brought him into conflict with congress and the army. He was deposed.

Once again the army placed its faith in a civilian, Engineer Paez, who was given dictatorial powers. Many Ecuadoreans and foreigners consider that Paez did well. He worked for social justice, material progress, and reconciliation with Rome. The liberal-radical régime fell out with the Holy See in 1895. The dispute was not patched up until one month ago, when a papal nuncio was appointed to Quito in accordance with a concordat negotiated by Paez.

Paez's social policy was moderate. He recognized that any precipitate changes would be to the disadvantage of everybody, especially the workers. He outlined his ideas in a memorable speech to industrial and rural capitalists:

"Gentlemen, as president, I do not ask anything revolutionary of you. I just ask you to treat your workers as you do your horses, your bullocks, and your pigs. I shall then be perfectly satisfied."

The powers that be, although temporarily in eclipse, swallowed this insult, but it was too much for them when the engineer-president began to unionize the workers, even women, in preparation for elections. The old political parties were furious.

This move resulted in Paez's downfall. The politicians are believed to have induced the army to act once again. Paez was dropped and the army rules openly again. There will be no immediate elections, it has been announced by the chief of the military directory, Henriquez.

As is customary in these cases, the banking accounts of former officials are under investigation and there will be considerable "reorganization." A tribunal of public justice will try cases of theft of public funds. The central bank president is in jail. The constituent assembly has been dissolved. Paez had resigned when this body annulled the social security law.

"The army will now rule over the destinies of the nation until the time is ripe to call for general elections," Henriquez announced.

PROPOSAL FOR REDUCING RELIEF COSTS.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—The action of the city council finance committee, who will in the next few days be required to vote upon the $5,504,000 appropriation requested for relief, brings again to public attention the vast sums of money being extracted annually from the taxpayers of our commonwealth for relief purposes.

As a property owner and taxpayer, and as one qualified by an intimate knowledge of the inner workings of the relief machinery in Chicago, I feel that I am entitled to make what I believe is a constructive criticism of the present system of relief administration, and to suggest a remedy for the ills which beset it.

What is wrong with the present administration of relief? Just this: If you had a job to be done would you hire a man to do that job whose best interests would be served by completing the job, or one who would profit most by prolonging the job as long as possible?

Control of the relief administration in Chicago has been placed in the hands of a group of professional social workers directly connected with the school of social work of the University of Chicago. Any one doubting this statement is invited to investigate the history and background of those comprising the personnel of the Chicago relief administration. With these people relief is a business. They call it "profession." They are no more interested in ending or reducing the scope of public relief than a lawyer would be in fostering legislation to end lawsuits, or a tailor in the promotion of nudism.

Until the administration of relief is taken out of the hands of this group we will not only have no reduction in relief costs, but, on the contrary, will actually be paying people to make relief a permanent big scale business.

I know that a large reduction in relief costs can be effected without depriving the so-called "relief clients" of so much as a single crust of bread that they are now receiving. How? By the simple process of removing from the administrative pay roll the hundreds of unnecessary petty executives and department heads that now clutter the relief offices. Of course, I do not expect the so-called relief experts, these same "executives" or their sponsors, Mrs. Paige and Mrs. Levin, to agree with this statement. It is, however, a simple matter to prove that the Chicago Relief administration is grossly overstaffed with minor executives and understaffed with actual case workers. The public is entitled to know the facts.

Let us have an itemized statement of the salary account, showing the title and salary of each person on the administrative pay roll. A simple analysis of such a statement would show conclusively that the executive staf is at least twice as large as is necessary to efficiently direct the work of giving relief.

Newspaper articles quote Leo Lyons as admitting that his organization was not staying within the legal limit of 8 per cent of the total for administration expenses. If that is true, then those responsible for approving expenses that are illegal are guilty of misfeasance of office and should be held accountable for this excess. How much expenses have exceeded the legal 8 per cent limit, Mr. Lyons does not say. Perhaps the public is entitled to know that also. Eight per cent of $30,000,000 is $2,400,000 per year.

I believe that many private corporations would be glad to undertake the administration of Chicago relief for much less than $2,400,000 per year for administrative expenses.

There are no doubt many capable business men who would be glad to undertake the job on the basis of a percentage of every dollar that costs are reduced. A minimum standard of relief could be established to guarantee that the savings would be effected through reduction in operating costs and not at the expense of those receiving relief.

If the taxpayers of Chicago [I do not consider relief clients taxpayers] do not like the present situation, the remedy is simple. Our elected public officials are directly responsible for placing control of relief where it is. It is up to them to take the control out of the hands of this group, and if they do not do so—well there is an election coming next fall. It will be an opportunity for those of us who do not like the way these things are being handled to show our disapproval.

TAXPAYER.

HE, THEY, AND THE PANAY.

Canton, O., Jan. 1.—I recently witnessed motion pictures of the bombing of the Panay by the Japanese. I am in doubt as to whether these pictures should be shown to the American people. As I sat there I was greatly aroused over the way the Americans were suffering and at the thought of the nerve it took for the Japs to bomb a ship they apparently knew belonged to a friendly power. As I looked around at the audience I could see by the expressions on their faces that they were aroused also. Another bad point the pictures brought out was the kind way the Chinese treated the injured Americans. This made the people feel they should side with the Chinese. Many wars have been started by some such propaganda as this and I believe that too much of it is not good for the American public. PAUL MCCONNELL.

THE GOLDEN ROD IS YELLOW.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—I am wondering if one of your readers can correct the following bit of poetry and tell me who its author is:

The golden rod is yellow,
The corn is turning brown;
The trees in the apple orchard
With fruit are bending down.

There has been quite a discussion, with a considerable bit of argument pro and con, as to its author in the circle in which I travel, and any help that can be given in the way of answering my query will be sincerely appreciated.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—I can tell your correspondent, "Grandma," why today's children have such poor handwriting. Good writing disappeared when ruled paper was ruled out of schools. Bring back ruled paper and teach children to keep on the line and take pride in their writing and you will see improvement in a short time, I am sure.

VALENTINE SEALS CARRY PLEA FOR HEART VICTIMS

Funds Are Sought to Aid Child Patients.

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

Betty Sovar, the thin little girl who lives in the rear flat at 1343 Cullerton street when she is not in a hospital, got a pencil box for Christmas. That was all. But the pencil box made her happy because for seven years Betty has had heart disease and has spent most of her time huddled beside the coal stove in the kitchen, trying to rest. Playing with a pencil, she has learned, is about the only thing she can do without making her heart pound and her head ache.

Frank Schwartz, who lives at 2147 Roosevelt road, got an adventure book. The book was fine with Frank because three years ago when he was entering high school and dreaming most of adventure he, too, was told he was a heart patient. Since then he has seemed to grow taller and thinner and weaker, and he's had time to read adventure books.

Joe's Gift Is Lost.

Then there is Joe Cicconi, 11 years old, who lives at 1110 South Whipple street. Joe got a fine toy for Christmas, but he can't remember what it was. He was having a heart attack that day and when it got easier for him to breathe he couldn't find his gift.

Perhaps you will receive a sheet of little red hearts in the mail. Several hundred thousand have been sent out by the Chicago Heart association in opening its 1938 campaign against heart disease. If you like the St. Valentine seals and decide to buy them, Betty and Frank and Joe may get two gifts apiece next Christmas.

A larger fund is being asked of heart contributors this year, Mrs. Ruth Pearce McEldowney, executive director, said yesterday. A new service, planned to bring joy to the cardiac patients who are deprived of school, play, and companionship, has been added to the association's program.

Will Teach Simple Crafts.

An occupational therapist will make a weekly call on each child who is well enough to receive visitors. She will distribute materials for handicraft that will not be too heavy for weak hands, not too complicated for aching heads. She will spend at least an hour with each child weekly, teaching boys to mold clay, to paint, and to carve wood, and the girls to crochet or hem doll house curtains.

Hildegarde Gildhorn, for instance, is 8 years old. She is thinking of weaving squares for a sweater for her grandmother, with whom she lives at 1101 Wolfram street. It will take her a long time, she knows, but Hildegarde is in no hurry. She is a heart patient.

Seek Help for Them

2 HURT IN CRASH OF AIRPLANE AT CHICAGO AIRPORT

Two persons were slightly injured last night and three others were jarred when a six passenger plane starting out for Miami, Fla., crashed in the takeoff at the Chicago airport. The injured were Walter McEntyre, the pilot, and a passenger.

The plane, a single motored Lockheed-Vega, dived as it skimmed along the north runway and then ran 100 yards along the rough. McEntyre was thrown out, thereby probably missing serious injuries, for the motor of the plane was crushed into the cockpit.

The plane was chartered by Wesley Sears, according to Pierce O'Carroll, head of the Monarch Flying service, which owns the plane. Sears, described as a son of Richard W. Sears, a founder of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and his secretary, a Mr. McHugh, were said to have been aboard. One of them was slightly hurt. Sears lives in Grayslake.

REPORT PRINCESS SHOT IN MOSCOW FOR ESPIONAGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 8.—The execution of Princess Nina Demidov, who is alleged to have been responsible for the sensational theft last November of secret plans of the soviet air forces, was reported today from Moscow.

Disappearance of correspondence between Jan Alksnis, chief of the air forces of the Red army, and aviation chiefs in the far east and white Russia, led to the demotion and arrest of Gen. Alksnis and Col. Jordan, head of the operative section of the aviation staf, and numerous employés.

GEIGER ORDERS U. S. TO RETURN CHRYSLER PAPERS

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Federal Judge F. A. Geiger today ordered the government to return documents of the Chrysler corporation and its financing affiliate, the Commercial Credit company, which were used in a recent grand jury investigation of three automobile companies' business practice.

Robert H. Jackson, assistant United States attorney general, objected to the Chrysler petition for return. His protest, read by Assistant United States Attorney E. J. Koelzer, asserted that the grand jury had voted indictments last Nov. 22 alleging restraint of trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

Before it could return the indictments, the grand jury was dismissed Dec. 17 by Judge Geiger, who ruled that conferences between representatives of the companies under investigation and department of justice officials relative to a consent decree, at a time when the grand jury was in session, were "highly improper."

It was reported that the Ford Motor company and the General Motors corporation, the other companies investigated, would ask return of their documents as a result of today's order.

JUSTICE SPEEDS UP AS VAN DEVANTER SITS AS JUDGE

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The first lower court trial ever conducted by a retired justice of the United States Supreme court ended tonight before Justice Van Devanter in the federal building with the conviction of Earl Frederick Palmer for passing a stolen and altered government bond and the acquittal of Gabriel Marosi, his former chef.

Justice Van Devanter established a precedent for simplifying jury deliberations that surprised attorneys and prosecutors. He sent the jury to deliberate only on the vital count of the three count indictment. To avoid confusion, he told them, he would not make a charge on the others until they reached a verdict on the first.

Lawyers in the courtroom never had heard of such procedure, but they conjectured it must be right. Anyway, the jury was back in the courtroom with a verdict after one hour and twenty-nine minutes of deliberation.

With the judgment of guilt pronounced on Palmer, Justice Van Devanter quickly disposed of the other two counts, which were mere repetitious passages of the indictment.

BULK OF KELLOGG $750,000 ESTATE LEFT TO WIDOW

Religious and Educational Institutions Share.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 8.—[U. P.]—Frank Billings Kellogg, former United States secretary of state and world court justice, left an estate estimated at $750,000, the bulk to his widow and the rest to education, religious institutions, relatives, and friends, his will disclosed today.

The will gives his widow between $350,000 and $400,000, it was estimated. Shortly before his death on Dec. 21, 1937, Kellogg gave $500,000 to Carleton college at Northfield, Minn., for the Kellogg peace foundation.

Other bequests include: Protestant Episcopal Cathedral foundation of the District of Columbia, $100,000; University of Minnesota for needy and worthy students, $25,000; Jean K. Austin, his sister, and her daughter, Jean K. Stanton, $175,000 in trust; Guy Chase, his law partner and friend, $50,000; Fred B. Desch, his office manager, $5,000, and Desch's sister, Mrs. Clara L. Hinners, $500; a niece, Barbara Kellogg Bradshaw, Madison, N. J., $500; Ross C. Berg, his chauffeur, $1,000; his gardener, Willis Plantz, $1,000.

FUNERAL RITES TOMORROW FOR H. M. DUNLAP, 84

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Final rites for Henry M. Dunlap, 84 years old, former state senator who died at an early hour this morning, will be held Monday afternoon from the First Methodist church of Champaign with the pastor, the Rev. Dr. H. Clifford Northcott, officiating. Burial will be in Mount Hope cemetery.

Mr. Dunlap had gone to Centralia to attend sessions of the Illinois Horticulture society. He became slightly ill there Friday and returned to his home here Friday night, suffering another heart attack shortly after midnight. He died an hour later. He had been in poor health for a year. Death was due to coronary thrombosis.

Mr. Dunlap was a leader in the upper house of the Illinois legislature for thirty-six years and a veteran of Republican state politics. He was one of the state's largest land owners and a noted fruit grower. The "Senator Dunlap" strawberry was named in his honor.

County Taxes Totaling $1,944,835 Paid in Week

County Treasurer Horace C. Lindheimer announced yesterday that taxes collected by his office in the first week of the new year reached a total of $1,944,835. The sum included payments on all general real estate levies from 1928 through 1936 and on personal property bills from 1931 through 1936. Collections of 1936 realty taxes were $1,016,680, making the total thus far paid on this classification $116,109,915, or 76.5 per cent of the total extensions against real estate.

OBITUARIES

James C. Ryan.

James C. Ryan, 41 years old, 6441 Stewart avenue, died Friday in St. Bernard's hospital of pneumonia. He was a brother of County Commissioner Daniel Ryan and had been associated with him in the insurance business for the last fifteen years. During the world war he served overseas as a sergeant of the quartermaster corps. LOOP STILL HOLDS RECORD AS CITY'S DIRTIEST SPOT

Far Northwest Side Is Found Cleanest.

The cleanest average atmospheric conditions in Chicago last year were found in the neighborhood of 7550 Pratt boulevard; the dirtiest were in the loop. This is shown by figures for the 27 dustfall recording stations maintained throughout the city by the department of smoke inspection and abatement which last week issued its annual report.

The monthly average for 1937 in tons of dust per square mile at the Pratt boulevard station was at the rate of 45.1, against 43.3 tons shown by a station at 1620 West 99th street in 1936, the cleanest district that year.

State and Adams Fall Heavy.

The State and Adams street station showed that 190.9 tons of dust per square mile per month fell in that locality during 1937. In 1936 there were 179.4 tons of dust each month. However, a station on the roof of the city hall had an average fall of dust for January and February of 373 tons. The station was discontinued after February.

September was the cleanest month, with 60.4 tons per square mile for the entire city in 1937, against 46.1 in 1936. December was the dirtiest month in 1936, with 118.2 tons, and February was 1937's worst month, with 144.6 tons.

More Fuel Burned.

Despite the fact that about 20 per cent more fuel was burned in Chicago last year than in 1936, according to Frank A. Chambers, head of the smoke inspection department, the monthly average increased only from 81.1 tons in 1936 to 85.5 tons in 1937. A chart showing the average dustfall per square mile per month for each

Average dustfall per square mile per month for each of the 27 stations follows:

New Lift Bridge Dedicated on Far South Side

Aerial photo of elevator type bridge over the Calumet river in Torrence avenue at 124th street during ceremonies yesterday. The bridge replaces an old pontoon structure.

Cost $1,330,000

Deering, South Chicago, Hegewisch and other neighboring communities turned out yesterday for the dedication of the new $1,330,000 lift bridge over the Calumet river in Torrence avenue at 124th street. The 276 foot span, the only highway bridge of its kind in the city, replaces an old pontoon structure.

A number of those present, including Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], rode the span far above street level to make the dedicatory speeches.

The bridge is raised by motive power from two 550 horse power gasoline engines driving four 150 horse power electric motors. Of the cost, $472,500 was received from the federal government, $790,000 from the city's share of the state gasoline tax, and $67,000 from the city's surplus bond fund.

FINGER PRINTING RELIEF CLIENTS WAITS ON LYONS

Leo M. Lyons, Chicago Relief administrator, had taken no action late last night on the proposal that inmates of CRA shelters be finger printed by the police. Earlier in the day Mayor Kelly promised coöperation in the project. Police Commissioner Allman has offered to supply a fingerprint expert if Mr. Lyon's desires it.

The proposal was made by S. N. Geal, superintendent of the CRA shelters, who said that the appearance of a fingerprint expert in the shelters would result in the immediate departure of half of the 2,100 men getting relief there.

Geal suggested the rule against giving shelter to drunks be enforced more strictly and that relief for transient hoboes be stopped.

Count Who Lost 2 Wives in Auto Crashes Is Killed

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Count Guy de la Rochethulon, 41 years old, was killed in an auto accident today when his car overturned. He had been married twice and both his wives were killed in auto accidents.

D. F. KELLY AIMS TO CONTINUE LIFE OF CIVIC SERVICE

He'll Be Busy as Usual on Leaving Store.

No business man who has been busy should give up entirely when he retires. This is the theory of D. F. Kelly, veteran State street merchant, and in fulfilment of it, he plans, on his retirement on April 26 as president of The Fair, to occupy himself with serving Chicago.

Mr. Kelly, who announced his retirement Friday, will be making no new step when he goes into civic service. He long has been an active civic leader.

"I wouldn't want to become one of those joiners, looking for jobs," he explained quickly yesterday, "but when the occasion arises that I can be of service to the city where I was born and where I have lived all my life, I am here to serve it."

Concerned Over Hospital Work.

His most important activity, he predicted, would be as a member of the advisory committee to the county board headed by Charles H. Schweppe, concerned chiefly with the management of the Cook County hospital. "That in itself," Mr. Kelly added, "is going to be a big job."

Then, too, he is chairman of the first mortgage bondholders' committee of the elevated lines in current transit negotiations, and serves also as a member of the elevated lines' reorganization committee.

Since 1918 he has served as president of the Catholic Charities of Chicago, an office he will continue to hold, and is vice president and member of the executive committee of the Community Fund.

Wants to Keep Going.

"So you see," he concluded, "I'm kept busy right now, and I'll continue to be. No business man who has been busy should give up entirely."

On top of all this, he plans to keep in close touch with The Fair, serving as a director.

FALL FROM LADDER FATAL.

SILVER SKATES ENTRIES CLOSE AT MIDNIGHT!

21st Derbies Open on Saturday.

Gen. John V. Clinnin.

This is the last day on which you can enter THE TRIBUNE'S twenty-first annual Silver Skates derbies which will be held next Saturday and Sunday at Garfield park. Letters must be postmarked before midnight to be included in the lists now being compiled of those eligible to compete in the eight races for boys and girls.

If it should become necessary, and this appears unlikely because of the present thickness of the ice at Garfield park, to postpone the meet, these eligibility lists will determine the field in each derby. Entries will not be accepted after midnight. The entry blank is printed for the last time this morning. If team captains or managers still wish to enter members of their organizations, this can be done by sending in the names classified according to ages. But these letters must be mailed today.

Forty Major Prizes Await Winners.

There are forty major prizes including twenty-four pairs of skates. Five awards will be made in each of the eight derbies and each champion will receive Silver Skates. Each contestant will receive a bronze button, and each winner of a preliminary race will be rewarded with a gold medal. More than 250 of these medals are available. No other skating event in the country ever has offered such an array of prizes.

There are two team trophies. One will be awarded to the organization which has the largest number of contestants in the preliminaries. The other award, the Walter E. Eckersall Memorial trophy, is emblematic of the team championship. It goes to the organization scoring the most points in the eight derbies. First place in each derby counts 50 points. Other places are scored as follows: Second, forty points; third, thirty points; fourth, twenty points, and fifth, ten points.

C. Y. O. Wins Trophy Twice.

The Eckersall trophy was placed in competition in 1931 with the provision that the club winning it three times should gain it permanently. The Catholic Youth organization now has won this trophy twice. Either the C. Y. O. or the Northwest Skating club is expected to score the greatest number of points next Sunday. Pete Miller, C. Y. O. coach, who has entered 109 skaters in the eight derbies, forty-six of whom will compete in the Men's Senior two mile race, is sure the C. Y. O. will gain possession of this trophy.

"Tony Neberz and Bernic Cannata are standouts in the senior race," Miller wrote when he submitted the C. Y. O. entry list. "Genevieve Swierkos and Alice [Sid] Steffen, last year's intermediate champion, and Ann Vitaska will be strong contenders in the Girls' Senior derby. Lowell Miller and Marshall Klemundt are leading the point scoring in the Illinois Skating association in that order. They will compete in the Boys' Intermediate Silver Skates derby.

Rates Miss Lawler Highly.

"Bunny Lawler certainly should win the Girls' Intermediate derby, for she is the national and North American outdoor Junior champion. She won the Junior Silver Skates championship in 1936 when she was only 13 years of age. Veronica Leonard is her chief competitor among those registered from Chicago.

"In the Boys' Junior derby Jack Vanderpool, who is leading point scorer in the age class in the Illinois association, has an excellent chance to win a pair of Silver Skates. Shirley Klarus and Eleanor Freisinger are outstanding in the Girls' Junior derby. Leading C. Y. O. contenders in the other races are Tom O'Malley in the Boys' Juvenile class and Robert G. Christenson in the Boys' Midget derby."

Associated with Races Since 1917.

The officials who will conduct the derbies next Saturday and Sunday include several men who have been associated with the races since their inception in 1917. The list has been augmented from year to year with the result that the preliminaries and finals are conducted fairly and with an efficiency which has no equal in any meet held. The number of contestants would swamp any group of officials except these men who have learned how to handle large numbers.

Gen. John V. Clinnin, former chairman of the Illinois athletic commission, again will referee the meet. Earl W. Solem, president of the Illinois Skating association, has been named chief of the judges, replacing Judge Walter P. Steffen, who died

Ouimet Will Lead Walker Cup Golfers

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The United States Golf association today named a 1938 Walker cup golf team of nine players and two alternates, to be captained by Francis Ouimet, and adopted a one year modification of the stymie rule.

The team which will meet the British at St. Andrews, Scotland, June 3-4 occasioned little surprise. In addition to Ouimet, Boston veteran who has been a member of each squad since the matches were begun in 1922, the men invited are:

Johnny Goodman of Omaha, Neb., national amateur champion; Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., runner-up to Goodman at Portland, Ore., last August; Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, 1936 title holder and 1937 semifinalist; Marvin [Bud] Ward of Olympia, Wash.; Reynolds Smith of Dallas, Tex.; Fred Haas Jr. of New Orleans, intercollegiate champion; Charles Kocsis of Detroit, and Charles R. Yates of Atlanta, Ga.

Alter Stymie Rule.

Named as alternates in case any of the above men decline the invitation or cannot compete were T. Suffern Tailer of New York and Don Moe of Portland, Ore.

The U. S. G. A. executive committee, which reported the team selections to the annual meeting, also drafted the substitute stymie rule, which is to be in effect for one year as a trial only.

The present rule states that, when the balls are lying on the green within six inches of each other, the one nearer the hole may be lifted. The modification adds that the ball lying nearer the hole also may be lifted if it is within six inches of the cup, regardless of the position of the other ball.

Retiring President John G. Jackson explained that the executive committee felt the modification would "eliminate a good many causes of complaint," and that "there is no solution of the stymie problem that would be satisfactory to everybody."

Prefer Good Trial.

While pointing to the fact that the original stymie rule was drafted before the days of the lively ball and fast greens, the executive committee also expressed the opinion that "it would not be desirable to eliminate a feature which has been part of the game for over a hundred years without giving a thorough trial to modifications which may remove the principal objections to the stymie and at the same time preserve it in match play."

Other steps which had been suggested a year ago, some of them tried out in 1937 by sectional associations, were [1] abolish the stymie, [2] retain it without change, [3] permit the player farther away from the hole to concede his opponent's putt [tried in 1920 and abandoned], [4] confine the present rule to self-laid stymies, [5] expand the original six inch limitation to twelve inches.

The Walker Cup selections contained only one minor surprise, that of Tailer for alternate. Beaten by Medalist Roger Kelly of Los Angeles in the first round at Portland, he nevertheless has a good match play record and went to the fifth round at Garden City in 1936.

Ouimet to Pick Lineup.

Of the nine tentative regulars, four, in addition to Ouimet, who was nonplaying captain, were on the team two years ago. They are Goodman, Fischer, Smith, and Yates.

Billows, Haas, Kocsis, and Ward are outstanding members of the younger crop. Kocsis, intercollegiate champion in 1936, lost to Billows in the round of sixteen at Portland; Ward, a terrific hitter, took Goodman to the thirty-sixth in the semi-finals after beating Haas in a twenty-one hole fourth round match; and Billows, who lost to Goodman in the 1936 quarter-finals at Garden City, battled him to the last green in the Portland final, Goodman winning, 2 up.

Whether Ouimet, who won the amateur title in 1931 after having won the 1913 open and 1914 amateur, plays at St. Andrews will be entirely up to him. He will select the American lineup for the eight singles and four Scotch foursomes.

The following officers for 1938 were elected unanimously: A. M. Reid of Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y., president; Harold W. Pierce of Boston and R. Arthur Wood of Chicago, vice presidents; Jess W. Sweetser, Bronxville, N. Y., treasurer; Charles W. Littlefield of Montclair, N. J., general counsel, and Frank M. Hardt of Haverford, Pa., secretary.

Offer New Medal.

The St. Andrews Golf club of Hastings, founded by Reid's father, John Reid, offered a gold medal, to be known as the John Reid medal and to be awarded to the low qualifier in the amateur championship.

The U. S. G. A. took under consideration an invitation from the Baltimore Country club to play the Walker Cup matches there in 1940.

The executive committee report, pointing to continued low scoring, indicated that future action would be taken to "end any increase in the distance qualities of the ball, rather than see courses and par outmoded."

Amateurs were warned against accepting prizes that are anything more than symbolic and competing in tournaments promoting commercial enterprises. A footnote permitting replacement of a broken club was added to the fourteen club rule, which went into effect on Jan. 1.

YOUNG SLIPS PAST MAROONS FOR 16 POINTS

Iowa Quintet Beats Indiana, 48-39.

Jewell Young, holder of the Big Ten scoring record, paced Purdue to a 50 to 34 victory over Chicago at the Midway fieldhouse last night in the opening conference match for both teams. A capacity crowd of 4,480, the largest in recent years at the Midway, watched Young Flip score sixteen points to start his campaign for a new record.

Purdue's accuracy proved too much for the Maroons. Chicago, however, heartened its followers by earning nearly as many scoring opportunities as the Boilermakers. The Maroons could not hit as consistently as Young and his teammates, Johnny Sines [who made eleven points], Tom Dickinson [who made eight], and Pat Malaska [who accounted for seven].

Make Fast Start.

The game opened at a furious pace, Purdue leading 13 to 9 at the end of eight minutes, the Boilermakers having missed only two shots. Dickinson sank three goals in the opening minutes, while the Maroon scoring was divided among four men. Purdue ran its lead up to 19 to 9 on a pair of short shots by Young and one by Sines. The half ended 26 to 15 for Purdue.

Slowing up the pace, Chicago held Purdue without a point for the first five and a half minutes of the second half. With the score 26 to 18 the Boilermakers forced on the steam and scored twelve points while Chicago was making two. Every Purdue man scored during this rally. Thereafter the game was fairly even, Purdue substituting freely.

Lounsbury Leads Maroons.

Dick Lounsbury, sophomore forward, was Chicago's offensive star, with five baskets and three free throws. Paul Amundsen, center, who attained eligibility this week, tipped in two goals during the few minutes he played.

IOWA, 48; INDIANA, 39

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Benny Stephens led Iowa to a surprise 48 to 39 victory over Indiana in the Hawkeyes' opening game of the Big Ten season tonight.

Stephens, playing his first full game since he injured his instep against Butler Dec. 18, broke the Iowa scoring record by scoring 23 points on 10 field goals and three free throws.

A crowd of 6,000 saw Stephens start scoring with a pair of free throws and two field goals, giving Iowa a lead which it never relinquished. By the half, with Stephens already accounting for 11 points, Iowa led, 26 to 16.

Marvin Huffman led the Indiana attack with 13 points as William Johnson, star forward, was held to two free throws by Nile Kinnick and Kenneth Suesens, Iowa guards.

Stephens climaxed his performance with seven points in the last three minutes of the game.

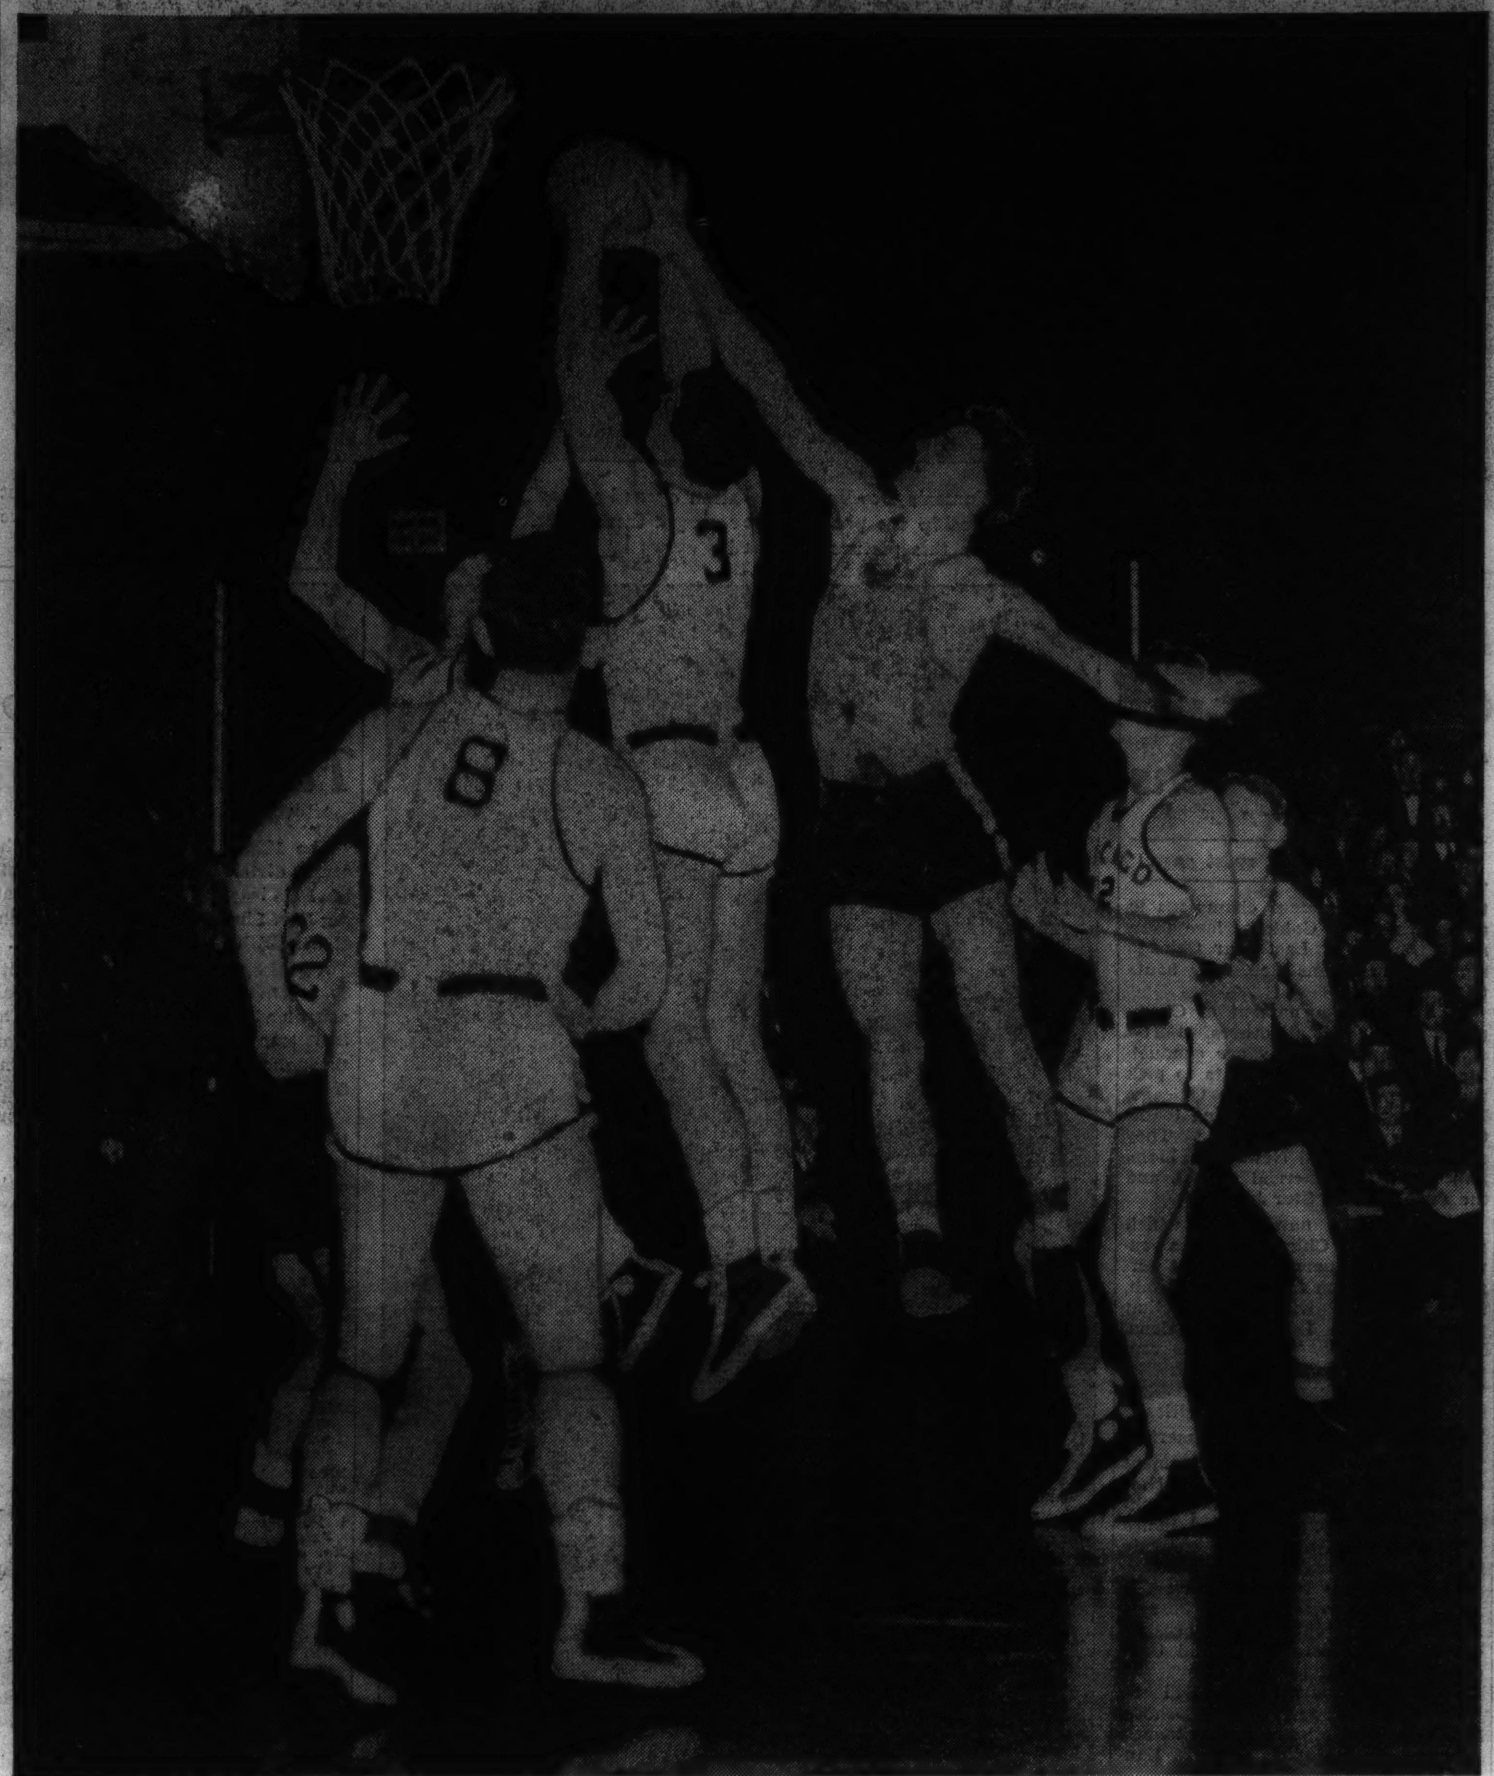
KEEPING UP THAT BOILERMAKER PACE



Purdue players force the Maroons to make a desperate defense of their basket during a brisk moment of last night's game at the Midway fieldhouse. In opening their Big Ten campaign the Boilermakers kept up the terrific pace they had been showing in early season games, beating the Maroons, 50 to 34. Dickinson is the Purdue player leaping for the ball. Maroons—Mullins (8), Petersen (3), Meyer (12). [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Golden Gloves Entries Open; 26 States to Send Fighters

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The first call for Golden Gloves boxers is sounded this morning. All amateurs who wish to compete in the eleventh annual tournament sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., now may register for the Chicago sectionals.

Novice boxers and the experienced boxers, who must compete in the open division of the four Chicago tournaments, may enter by filling out the blank which is printed today. Within a few days after your entry has been received you will be advised of the date and place for your physical examination. Boxers must pass these examinations, which will be conducted by a staff of twelve physicians, before they will be assigned to the sectional meets.

Entries Close Jan. 30.

Entries for the Chicago tournaments will close Jan. 30.

No boxer may compete without the written consent of his parent or guardian if he is under 21 years of age. Consent blanks will be mailed and these must be presented at the physical examinations. Boys must be 16 years of age to enter.

While entries will be accepted for three weeks, those boxers who apply first will be permitted to choose the sectional tournament in which they wish to compete. Later contestants will be assigned arbitrarily to balance the sectional entry lists.

16 Nights of Boxing in Chicago.

There will be four Chicago tournaments, which will require sixteen nights of boxing. Several of the sectional tournaments overlap, however, and on one night three of the four tournaments will be in operation.

From Chicago's four sections will come thirty-two open division boxers, four in each of the eight weight classes, who will compete in the Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium on Feb. 28, March 1 and 2. They will oppose the championship teams from forty-six centers located in sixteen states and the championship team of the Catholic Youth organization tournament which was held last December.

Meet European Team in May.

The finals of this tournament will be held at the Chicago Stadium on March 11 and from the Tournament of Champions the Chicago intercity team will be named which will engage New York's Golden Gloves boys in the eleventh annual tournament in Madison Square Garden March 21.

The Chicago champions will meet

Irish Defeat Pennsylvania Quintet, 45-25

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's basketball team defeated the University of Pennsylvania quintet, 45 to 25, before 8,500 tonight.

It was the worst defeat ever suffered by a Penn quintet in the Palestra and was largely the fault of Notre Dame's left forward, Edward M. Sadowski. Sadowski made seven field goals and two free throws for 16 points.

The decisiveness of the triumph is the story of four minutes—of two two minute spurts in the first half which enabled Notre Dame to lead, 27 to 13, at the half. There was a notable let-down in Notre Dame's attack in the second half.

Penn was helpless after the first ten minutes.

KIZER LEAVES HOSPITAL; SHOWS STEADY GAIN

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Word was received at Purdue university today that Noble E. Kizer, athletic director and head football coach, who has been on leave of absence since last summer because of illness, has left the hospital at Tucson, Ariz., where he and his family are spending the winter. He is gaining strength and his condition appears to be improving steadily, it is said. He had gone to the hospital for an examination and a rest.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The fifth time Northwestern led Ohio State in the second half of their Western conference basketball game last night at Patten gymnasium the Wildcats made the score stand. Thus, on Ad Vance's free throw, with one minute to play, Northwestern won its second Big Ten game, 35 to 34.

Four thousand saw the battle of thrills in which the score was tied five times. Northwestern led seven times and Ohio State five times.

Except for Northwestern's 6 to 1 advantage at the end of six minutes no more than four points ever separated the rivals. And what had started as a cautious old fashioned duel from set floor formations, finished in the second half with a furious, wild passing, dribbling game, the like of which Patten gymnasium seldom has seen.

Nagode, Trenkle Are Stars.

Scoring honors went to Jake Nagode, Northwestern center, with six field goals and one free throw in two attempts, but Nagode, who might have had several more two pointers from under the backboard except for his hurried aim, was only the last man on many Wildcat sorties. It was Capt. Fred Trenkle, Northwestern ball hawk, who harried Ohio State, intercepted passes, and finished the battle sprawled on the floor holding the ball as the game ended.

Trenkle's aggressiveness was pattern for Ad Vance, Jim Currie, and Bernard Davis, Northwestern guards. While Ohio State had more shots than Northwestern, more were attempted from out on the court.

The Buckeyes rushed Northwestern in the back court when the Wildcats had the ball. But this system, occasionally successful, opened up a path to the goal which Northwestern followed in their five point rally that won.

Victory March Begins.

Four minutes remained to play and Ohio State led, 34 to 30, when Northwestern began its victory march. Currie's long shot from outside the foul circle stirred the Northwestern fans to continuous cheering. Then Davis raced under the backboard, shot with two hands back over his head and the score was tied.

Ohio State took the ball, worked slowly for an opening, shot and missed. Then the Wildcats rushed down court. Vance aimed from 15 feet out and as he shot John Schick fouled him from behind. Vance dropped the first penalty throw through the net, but missed the second.

In the final minutes, with the fans standing on the bleacher seats, the Buckeyes took two long shots and missed, then Bill Sattler also missed from two steps to the side of the goal. Even so, Ohio State might have tied. In the last minute Davis fouled Chapman as he dribbled past, but the Ohio State forward, who had replaced Schick when this star had committed four personals, missed the penalty shot.

Northwestern made seven free throws in 15 attempts. Ohio State got four free throws in 10 attempts. Northwestern took 59 shots and scored 14 field goals. Ohio State scored 15 field goals in 78 shots. Lineups:

MICHIGAN BEATS ILLINOIS

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Michigan opened its Big Ten basketball season with a 45 to 37 victory over Illinois before 10,000 tonight. Midway during the second half the Illini drew up on even terms with the Wolverines at 27-27, but Michigan, led by Capt. John Townsend, again took a 10 point lead, then coasted. Michigan led at half time, 23 to 16.

Townsend not only led the Michigan scoring with 15 points but played one of the greatest defensive games of his career. He dominated both the offensive and defensive of the Wolverines. Louie Boudreau, sharpshooting Illinois forward, was

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.
Montreal Canadiens, 6; Boston, 2.
Toronto, 3; New York Rangers, 2.

Tommy Gorman, maker of champions, brings the Montreal Maroons to the Stadium tonight to battle the Blackhawks. It will be Gorman's first game in Chicago this season in the rôle of manager, a position he turned over to King Clancy at the season's start, a change which worked out disastrously for the Maroons who, with practically the same setup won the Stanley cup three seasons ago.

Gorman found it necessary to take over the managership because Clancy apparently could not infuse into the Montreal club the fiery spirit which made him one of the greatest hocky players of all time.

Gorman, who now holds the dual rôle of manager and president of the club, won his first game last Thursday. The victory over the Maple Leafs on Montreal ice by a 6 to 3 score was scored in the roughest game of the season. A free for all fight which resulted in a pummelling for Referee Johnny Mitchell, who tried to quell the disturbance, and a match penalty is evidence that Gorman has brought back to the Maroons the spirit of combativeness for which the burly Montreal club was famous.

New Faces in Lineup.

Manager Bill Stewart of the Hawks, assisted by Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner, and Vice President Bill Tobin kept the long distance phones busy after the 4 to 1 loss to the Rangers Thursday with the result that the personnel of the Hawks' squad will be altered tonight.

Harold Jackson, who starred on defense as a member of the St. Michael hocky club of Toronto two years ago and who was with the Blackhawks in 1936-'37 until sent to the St. Louis Flyers of the American association for seasoning, was recalled Friday. Part of the deal included the return of Pete Palangio to the Flyers.

Virgil Johnson, 175 pound defense player of the St. Paul Saints of the American association, was purchased outright Friday night. The purchase price was not announced. Johnson also will play tonight.

Send Brydson to New Haven.

Yesterday the Hawks continued revamping their lineup by selling Forward Glenn Brydson to the New Haven club of the International-American league. Brydson was obtained two years ago from the New York Rangers in the deal which sent Howie Morenz to New York. The sale price was not announced.

Manager Stewart plans to move Earl Seibert and Art Wiebe to forward line posts. Seibert will play right wing and Art Wiebe left. Cully Dahlstrom will be at center in the line. Carl Voss will be a utility forward.

LEAFS, 3; RANGERS, 2

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 8.—(AP)—A lucky goal by Jim Fowler in the final minutes of the game gave the Toronto Maple Leafs a 3 to 2 victory over the New York Rangers in a National Hocky league game before 13,500 tonight.

Fowler rolled a long, slow shot at the Ranger cage at 17:38 of the third period and as Goalie Dave Kerr moved nonchalantly to play the puck, it bounced past his leg and into a corner. The goal enabled the Leafs to increase their Canadian section lead to three points over the New York Americans and Montreal Canadiens.

WOMEN SEEK CITY TITLE IN ANNUAL MEET

Entry List for Golden Gloves TourneyOpens

the European amateur champions in an international Golden Glove tournament in May. Last year Chicago and the Europeans tied, four bouts to four.

This year's Tournament of Champions will exceed all others. Forty-six newspapers already are conducting preliminary tournaments to pick their champions to invade Chicago. Three newspapers are sending teams to Chicago for the first time. They are the Toledo, O., News-Bee; Memphis, Tenn., Commercial Appeal, and the Pueblo, Colo., Star Journal.

Each of the newspapers which sends a team to Chicago also is a center for newspapers in adjacent territory. The team from Ogden, Utah, is composed of winners from that state and from Butte and Helena, Mont. Nashville, Tenn., is the center for Chattanooga and Knoxville, Tenn.; Birmingham, Ala., and Jackson, Miss., as well as smaller cities.

New Mexico Boys Fight at Amarillo.

The Fort Worth, Tex., tournament draws from that state and from New Mexico. The New Mexico boys fight first at Amarillo. North and South Dakota tournament winners compete at Sioux City, Ia., and at Minneapolis. Kansas City has arranged seven sectional tournaments. St. Joseph, Mo., and Springfield, Mo., are included in the list which send their champions to St. Louis.

Subsidiary tournaments will be held in Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama, New Mexico, Georgia, Kansas, and North Carolina. Thus twenty-six states, from Minnesota and Montana to Texas and from Ohio to Utah, will be represented in the Tournament of Champions. More than 230 newspapers are affiliated with the tournament.

The list of newspapers sending teams to Chicago follows:

Many Hold Novice Tournaments.

Many of these newspapers have adopted the policy of THE TRIBUNE and hold Novice tournaments. These boys do not compete in the Tournament of Champions.

Thirty-two Novice boxers from Chicago's four sections will qualify for the semi-finals which will be held in conjunction with the Tournament of Champions at the Stadium Feb. 28. The Novice finals will be held on March 2.

Chicago also will send 32 Open division champions into the Tournament of Champions. These 64 boxers will receive qualifying medals. All Chicago contestants will be rewarded with bronze buttons.

Niblick Five from Medinah Leads in Women's Pin Meet

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

The twenty-first annual tournament of the Chicago Women's Bowling association opened yesterday at the 131 South Wabash Recreation with a squad of eight teams from the Medinah Country club competing.

The Niblicks of Medinah took the lead in the five woman event with 2,665, aided by a handicap of 759. The Niblicks and their scores, with handicapts in brackets, were: Edith Glader [168], 553; Ethel Mueller [129], 537; Jane Warner [138], 596; Lee Hulls [162], 449, and Lillian Freevoi [162], 530.

The first night's singles leader was Marge Walters of the Continental Can Company league, who totaled 626 with a handicap of 120. In the doubles Clara Rysner [81] and Marie Safko [144] accumulated 1,127 for first place. They represent the Congress Junior league.

The tournament, which will be contested Saturdays and Sundays, will end on Jan. 23.

Randolph League.

When a bowling team totals 3,100 week after week it sooner or later gets its just reward. The Birk Brothers quintet received theirs in the form of first place in the Randolph league, which they now top with 29 victories and 13 defeats.

In rising to the first rung of the strong loop league the Birk Brothers collected 3,112 on games of 1,076, 956, and 1,080, which was too fast a pace for their opponents, the Sunkist Pies. At the same time the Mineralites, who had been in first place for a long stretch, were losing three games to the Hofherr Meats, and their record now is 28 won and 14 lost.

On North Side Alleys.

Julius Sowa led the Keeley Beers to a pair of victories over the Virginia club with a 711 series in the Gold Coast Major league. Ted Allen's 697 likewise helped the Gold Crown Beers win two out of three from the Triangle Shirts. Other high individuals: Paul Marian, 684; Joe Rogers, 679; Joe Heinreich, 666; Marcel Barles, 652; Ed Turner, 640; Joe Sinke, 638; Ray Blanck, 636; John Macaluso, 636; George Notz, 634; Vincent Fowler, 633; Paul Green, 632; George Calder, 632.

Windy City League.

The J. M. Kralovecs retained their one game lead in the Windy City Major league by winning two out of three from the Whitecaps while the second place Budweisers were taking a pair from G. & W. Mill Farm. The leaders' standing now shows 34 victories and 17 defeats. Frana of the Vogel Brothers led the individuals with 669.

Classic League.

The Classic league will bowl at Goldammer's Garden Recreation, 4074 Milwaukee avenue, tonight, with the following matches scheduled:

Prager Beer vs. Oak Leaf Motors.
Charles H. Weber vs. Pabst Blue Ribbon.
Monarch Beer vs. Power House Candy.
Triangle Shirts vs. Baby Ruths.

About the Women.

Mae Ebert set the pace for the Bruck Major league by totaling 572. Next were Agnes Pitelka, 553; Carrie Enders, 539; Marge Roethel, 527; Ethel Kelly, 517; Gerda Johnson, 507; Sophie Schoenstadt, 506, and Kitty Gebler, 504. . . . Josephine Consier's 556 topped the West Ridge Social league. Mary Schummer had 551; Bess Mann, 519; Julia Mallander, 517; Rose Boyle, 513; Elsie Hall, 512; Vera Jensen, 511; Mary Wendt, 501, and Lucille Rebholz, 501.

Here and There.

Entries close on Feb. 1, but reservations must be taken up by Jan. 15 to insure a place on the schedule for the 38th annual tournament of the American Bowling congress. The meet will start March 3 in the Coliseum and continue until April 18. . . . The 24th annual Brothers doubles tournament will be held today at the 29 West Randolph alleys. . . . Reservations indicate that a record crowd will attend the eighth annual reunion of the Quarter Century Bowling association next Sunday in the Gold Coast Recreation.

122d Artillery Wins, 8-7½, to TakePoloLead

The 122d Field Artillery took the senior division lead in the Metropolitan Polo league tournament by defeating Fort Sheridan, 8 to 7½, last night at the 124th Field Artillery armory.

A goal by Lieut. Cliff Harrison with 30 seconds to play overcame a half point lead held by Fort Sheridan. The two teams battled on even terms throughout with the lead changing frequently.

The Artillery team played without the services of Lieut. Art Zimmerman, but Lieut. Arnold Pio proved a capable replacement. Fort Sheridan presented Capt. A. P. Moore at the No. 2 position, the first time he has competed as a western player. Capt. Moore is formerly of the 112th Field Artillery threesome of Trenton, N. J.

Scoring honors were shared at four goals by Lieut. Harrison and Maj. C. B. Hutchinson. Lineups:

122D F. A. [8].		FT. SHERIDAN [7½].
Lieut. A. Pio	No. 1	Maj. C. Hutchinson

The Chicago Black Horse Troop polo team crushed the Senecas, 13 to 1½, in the opening game to go into a tie for the lead with Fort Sheridan in the Metropolitan Polo league, junior division.

Although the Senecas started with a one point handicap, they traveled in reverse for nearly three chukkers by committing three fouls. Then in the middle of the third period Lieut. Col. Claude K. Rinehart and A. J. Sisler scored in succession for the Senecas' only goals.

The Black Horse troop scored almost at will combining long shots with an effective passing attack.

JOEL HUNT MAY GET GEORGIA COACHING JOB

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Georgia's new head football coach will be Joel Hunt, for five years an assistant at Louisiana State university in charge of the back field, it was indicated today. Confirmation of the appointment will not come, however, until the Georgia athletic board meets at Athens next Monday afternoon.

The athletic board is expected to name Elmer A. Lampe, for four years athletic director and head coach at Carroll college in Waukesha, Wis., as basketball coach, end coach of football and a member of the department of physical education staf. The opinion seems to be that some time later on, after the new coaching setup has begun functioning, Lampe will be elevated to the post of athletic director.

Wisconsin State Teachers Beat Williams J. C., 52-24

Paced by Krovaska and Kescenovitz, who scored twenty-one points between them, Wisconsin State Teachers college of Milwaukee defeated Williams Junior college last night, 52 to 24. Blewett of Williams was the high scorer of the game with thirteen points.

held to three field goals by the close guarding of Ed Thomas and Bill Barclay. Dick Dehner, center, carried the scoring for the Illini, with 13 points.

With the exception of a few minutes in the second half, when Illinois drew up from a 25 to 16 deficit to tie the Wolverines at 27 all, Michigan had an advantage throughout. Before Illinois could score again the Wolverines had boosted their total to 39 points.

Michigan led throughout the first half after Beebe and Townsend had scored from the field at the start. The Wolverines were ahead at one time, 19 to 8.

WISCONSIN WINS, 35-28

Madison, Wis., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Taking an early lead and holding it all the way, Wisconsin handed Minnesota, defending Western conference co-champions, a 35 to 28 defeat tonight before more than 10,000.

The Badgers led at the half, 15 to 7. Tonight's game was the first in the conference for the Gophers this season, but the second for the Badgers, who previously lost to Northwestern.

Nash started the scoring for Minnesota with a short basket, but Charley Jones, Wisconsin center, evened it up immediately and followed with a pair of free throws. Maki's basket tied the score at 4 each, but after that the Badgers, with Jones, Hod Powell, and George Rooney scoring, pulled away to a lead they never relinquished.

The officials called a total of twenty-five fouls on the two teams, but that gives only a faint idea of how rough a game it was.

MARQUETTE WINS, 39-32

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—A second half rally enabled the Marquette university basketball team to defeat Butler university, 39 to 32, before a capacity crowd here tonight.

Marquette went out to an early 9 to 3 lead, but Gosgrove and Fawcett drew Butler up to an 11 to 11 tie. The lead changed hands twice after that in the first half, but the Indianapolis five, through late baskets by Perry and Fawcett, led at the intermission, 17 to 14.

Deneen and Erwin Graf immediately pushed the Hilltoppers to a 21 to 17 lead as the second half opened. Butler later tied the score at 23 to 23, but Graf's hook shot then put Marquette ahead to stay. Score:

Thomson's 131 Leads in Open at Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Jimmy Thomson gained a commanding lead at the halfway mark of the $5,000 Los Angeles open golf tournament today and set a 36-hole record for his fellow shotmakers to aim at in coming tourneys. He went around the Harding course in 66, six strokes under par, to make his score 131 for 36 holes.

With his opening round 65, he had been six strokes under par 71 for the Wilson course, and today's total left him six strokes ahead of his nearest rivals, Johnny Revolta, Evanston, and Willie Goggin, San Francisco, with whom he started out on even terms this morning.

One Shot Under Record.

The 36 hole score of 131 was one shot under the record—said to be the best on the books up to now—set by Horton Smith in tournament play in 1930, and Sam Snead in the Miami open two weeks ago. Both shot 66s in succeeding rounds.

Trailing Thomson, Goggin, and Revolta were five candidates for prize money, at 138—Lloyd Mangrum, Dayton, O.; Harry Bassler, Long Beach; Ben Coltrin, an ex-amateur champion, and Lawson Little, both of San Francisco, and Bruce McCormick, Los Angeles' national public links champion.

Admit 151s Today.

The 151s found themselves admitted into tomorrow's third round of 18 holes, and the field tomorrow night will be cut down to 50 and ties. Contestants scoring 152 and worse will not play tomorrow. Lineups:

Maroons Schedule Football Games Against Virginia

A home and home football series in 1939 and 1940 between the University of Chicago and the University of Virginia has been scheduled, Nelson Metcalf, director of athletics, announced yesterday. It will be the beginning of football relationships between the two institutions.

The Maroon team will travel to Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 4, 1939, for the first game against the Virginia Cavaliers, and on Nov. 16 of the following year the southern eleven will invade the Midway for the second engagement.

Partial schedules for the University of Chicago football team in 1939 and 1940 reveal three Big Ten games already listed for each season. In 1940 the Purdue eleven will return to the Maroon calendar in an early season game. The partial schedules for the two years are:

1939.
Oct. 14, Harvard at Chicago; Oct. 21, Michigan at Chicago; Nov. 4, Virginia at Charlottesville; Nov. 11, Ohio State at Chicago; Nov. 25, Illinois at Urbana.

1940.
Oct. 19, Purdue at Chicago; Nov. 2, Michigan at Chicago; Nov. 9, Ohio State at Columbus; Nov. 16, Virginia at Chicago.

CORNELL SPRINT STAR SETS WORLD INDOOR RECORD

Freshman Lowers 100 Meter Mark to :10.7.

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—A new world indoor record for the 100 meters and a new American mark for the 3,000 meter run were set tonight at the twelfth annual Knights of Columbus games, held before 4,000 in the 13th Regiment armory in Brooklyn.

Bob Rodenkirchen of the New York Athletic club, a freshman at Cornell university, established the new world record when he sped the 100 meter distance in :10.7, one-tenth of a second better than the previous mark, shared by Bob McAllister, Carl Wildermuth, and Eddie O'Sullivan. Rodenkirchen finished a yard ahead of Marty Glickman, Syracuse university football and track star.

Wins Sprint Series.

Rodenkirchen's 100 meter performance gave him the victory in the Great American sprint series, consisting of 60, 80, and 100 meter events. He totaled 5 points on victories in the 80 and 100 meter events and finished third to Glickman in the 60 meters. Glickman, the defending champion, also scored 5 points on one first and two seconds, but the trophy went to Rodenkirchen on the strength of his two firsts.

The American mark in the 3,000 meters was set by Archie San Romani, the Emporia [Kas.] star, who now is a music student at New York university. San Romani, competing under the colors of the New York Curb Exchange Athletic association, ran the distance in 8:27.4 to defeat a field which included Don Lash, former Indiana star, and Joe McCluskey of the New York Athletic club. The old record of 8:31.2 was set by Joie Ray fifteen years ago.

San Romani, running the distance for the first time and making his first appearance on an unbanked track, plunged into the tape to beat Lash by inches after a thrilling fifteen lap race.

Cunningham Falls.

Gene Venzke, the former Penn star now with the New York Athletic club, captured the 800 meter invitation run, negotiating the distance in 1:55 for a meet record. The victory was somewhat hollow, however, since Glenn Cunningham, winner of the event for three years in a row, fell. Edward Brown, N. Y. A. C., was second; and Edgard Howard Borck, Manhattan, was third. Venzke took the lead approaching the third lap and remained there closely followed by Borck and Cunningham.

Around the final turn Venzke and Borck were almost abreast. Suddenly, Cunningham, thinking he had a chance to get through on the inside, stepped on the rail and fell. Turning a summersault, he regained his feet unhurt, but out of the race. Venzke ran away from the field, while Brown passed Borck to gain the runner-up position.

James Herbert of New York university scored an easy victory in the Columbus 500 meter invitation run, triumphing for the second straight year. Caught in 1:05.6, Herbert set a new meet record, bettering his own 1:06.6 of a year ago. Herbert won by at least two yards from Wesley Wallace of Fordham. Edgar Stripling of N. Y. U. was third.

The handicap 100 yard dash, a filler-in on the program, went to Jared Fangboner of N. Y. U., who started from the 5 yard mark. Ralph St. Pierre of Fordham was second from 1 yard and John Lynch of Manhattan third from 2½ yards. The time was :10.4.

Lash Beaten Again.

Lash, returning to the track two hours after his 3,000 meter effort, allotted liberal handicaps to twenty-four athletes in the first section of the 1,000 yard handicap run and finished sixteenth. First place went to Andy Neidnig, Manhattan college freshman, who started from the 45 yard mark.

Among the more impressive performances of the night was the brilliant 2:02.5 victory of Myron Bresnick of N. Y. U., in the novice 880 yard run. Andy Bucaria, of the 245th Regiment A. A., was second.

Cornelius Johnson, Olympic high jump champion, started from scratch and won his specialty with a leap of 6 feet 8 inches. Arthur Byrnes, Manhattan, cleared 6 feet 5 inches to win second place.

Loyola Swimmers Lose to Milwaukee Teachers, 42-24

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Capturing six firsts in eight events, the Milwaukee State Teachers' college swimming team defeated Loyola university of Chicago tonight, 42 to 24.

WOMEN TO HAVE CHARGE OF OWN OLYMPIC TEAMS

Brundage Names A. A. U. Man to Committee.

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Proceeding on the theory that far eastern turmoil will subside in time to hold the 1940 Olympic games in Tokio, the executive committee of the American Olympic association today set in motion the machinery for United States participation, at an estimated cost of $400,000.

It will not be necessary to raise any more than $350,000. There is a balance of $64,878.92 in the American Olympic funds, a circumstance that prompted action today to prorate $5,000 among a half dozen sports groups which paid their own way to Germany in 1936. The rest will be used in 1940.

Women to Be Managers.

Besides laying the groundwork for national fund raising, under the combined leadership of the Amateur Athletic union and National Collegiate A. A.—now on a parity in all Olympic affairs—today's meeting ratified the membership of 25 out of 27 subcommittees in the various Olympic sports, and debated policies for the incoming American Olympic committee to pursue.

It was recommended unanimously to the A. O. C. that future management of all women's Olympic teams be put in feminine hands. This is aimed especially at the control of the women's track and field and swimming groups. It was prompted by difficulties experienced in 1932 and 1936, when men acted as managers of the women's teams.

Wilson Replaces Metcalf.

Omission of T. Nelson Metcalf, athletic director at the University of Chicago, from the track committee caused some eyebrow lifting. Metcalf was on the 1936 committee. No explanation was forthcoming in connection with the selection of K. L. [Tug] Wilson of Northwestern as Metcalf's successor.

Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the A. O. C. and the guiding hand in overhauling Olympic machinery, announced his personal appointments, equivalent to the thirteenth man, to complete the principal committees.

The important track appointment went to A. C. Gilbert, New Haven manufacturer, ex-Olympic pole vault champion and A. A. U. stalwart. Another Yale man, Robert J. H. Kiphuth, Yale aquatic coach, was Brundage's choice for the swimming committee.

Brundage Names Members.

Other Brundage selections: Fencing and equestrian sports, Gustavus T. Kirby, New York; figure skating, Harry Radix, Chicago; basketball, Dr. John Brown, Y. M. C. A., New York; wrestling, Charles Hunter, Chicago; gymnastics, Roy Moore, New York; field hocky, Alexis Thompson, Chicago; speed skating, W. P. Hodus, Cleveland; canoeing, Owen Van Camp, Chicago, and skiing, Roger Langley, Barre, Mass.

Several of these men were included in previous nominations by either the A. A. U. or N. C. A. A., or both. This necessitated replacements. Other changes were made in the committee rosters. They include the following:

Women's track and field, James Roche, New Haven, Conn., for Betty Robinson, Chicago; men's swimming, Edward Kennedy, Columbia university, for Kiphuth as N. C. A. A. representative, and addition of Prof. Thomas J. Cureton Jr. of Springfield [Mass.] college as an auxiliary member; gymnastics, Jerry Hardie, New York, and C. Albert Beling, Newark, N. J., as A. A. U. and N. C. A. A. representatives, respectively, replacing Roy Moore; canoeing, George J. Ryan, Newark, N. J., for Owen Van Camp; skiing, William McCarter of Dartmouth, Carl Kilgore of the University of Washington, and Paul Sweet of New Hampshire, added as auxiliary members, representing N. C. A. A.

ST. LOUIS WINS TWICE TO LEAD IN TABLE TENNIS

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Winning two matches tonight, St. Louis went into the lead in the seventh annual national intercity table tennis tournament here. The St. Louis team now has scored four victories, with New York's team, which added one triumph tonight, second with three.

Standings of the other teams after the first day's competition show: Indianapolis, two victories, one loss; Chicago, two victories, one defeat; Hamilton, one victory, three losses; Kansas City, three defeats and no victories; Detroit, four losses against no victories.

RECORDS FALL IN UPPER PENINSULA SKATING MEET

Escanaba, Mich., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Records were broken today in the opening of the upper peninsula open amateur speed skating meet, with Oconomowoc, Wis., and Escanaba skaters taking top honors.

Fourteen records were shattered, Escanaba and Oconomowoc skaters cracking seven each.

Walter Jaeger of Oconomowoc, won two firsts and a fourth in his three events. Other double victories were by Doris Tetzlaff of Oconomowoc, and Marion Hebert and Laura Johnson, both of Escanaba.

IOWA DEFEATS NORTHWESTERN WRESTLERS, 22 TO 8

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa wrestling team opened its Big Ten season by defeating Northwestern, 22 to 8, at the fieldhouse today. After losing the first two matches, the Hawkeyes won the remaining six, with falls in the 155 pound and heavyweight classes.

Clarence Kemp, sophomore 155 pounder from Waterloo, threw Lew Sarett of Northwestern in 50 seconds. Iowa's other fall was achieved by Wilbur Nead, tackle on the football team, who threw Joe Vavrus in 5 minutes and 21 seconds. Arne Taylor scored Northwestern's only fall, tossing Ed Lybbert of Iowa in 8 minutes and 47 seconds. The summaries:

118 POUND—Gluckman [N.] defeated Millen [I.].

126 POUND—Taylor [N.] threw Lybbert [I.]. Time, 8:47.

135 POUND—Kingsbury [I] defeated Decaprio [N.].

175 POUNDS—Nicholas [M.] won decision over Traicoff [I.].

HEAVYWEIGHT—Haak [I.] threw Hird [M.], 7 minutes.

So anxious were young skaters in the playground meet to reach the finish line first that nearly every race yesterday brought spills. This one occurred in the junior 220 yard event.

Famous Diamond Protests

Merkle Fails to Touch Second; Game Is Called Tie and Costs Giants Pennant

[This is the seventh of a series of articles covering big league games, the outcomes of which, because of difference of opinion over fine technical points, were protested to the league presidents.]

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Fred Merkle, merely an inexperienced kid at the time, failed to touch second base in a battle between the Cubs and Giants on the Polo Grounds on Sept. 23, 1908. Innocently or carelessly the rookie first baseman of the New York club precipitated a situation so involved that the National league's world series entrant was in doubt until after the season officially had closed. Merkle's lapse, as it turned out, cost his team the pennant and left it for the Cubs.

Protests started to pour into league president Harry Pulliam's office a few hours after the disputed game had ended. Chicago claimed a forfeiture because Umpires Hank O'Day and Bob Emslie had called the game a tie instead of clearing the field and continuing. Two days later this complaint was withdrawn and a forfeiture asked because the tie game hadn't been played off Sept. 24 as provided by the rules. The New York club appealed from the tie decision of the umpires. Two weeks elapsed before the now historic controversy was disposed of by the league directors who upheld President Pulliam's decision that the umpires had acted correctly in ruling the game a 1 to 1 tie.

Merkle Goes from First—to the Clubhouse.

The play that brought Merkle unenviable fame was this: In the last half of the ninth inning with the score 1 to 1, McCormick on third, Merkle on first and two out, Bridwell singled. McCormick scored what was thought to be the winning run. The Cub hating crowd surged on the field. But some of the Cubs, as well as Umpires O'Day and Emslie had observed Merkle.

When the Bridwell hit was produced, Merkle instead of going to second from first base cut straight down the field to the club house. All that happened within the next few minutes never will be known. Claims were made that a fan on the field, knowing something was wrong, recovered the ball in play and threw it into the stand. But the Cubs got a ball from some place and John Evers tagged second. Merkle who by this time was off the field was ruled out on a force play, thus technically ending the inning before the winning run had counted.

That night Umpire in Chief O'Day filed his report, stating, among other things, "The people ran out on the field. I did not ask to have the field cleared as it was too dark to continue play." The next day President Pulliam ruled that the game would stand as a 1 to 1 tie. But both clubs continued to fight for the victory, so on Oct. 2 Pulliam handed down a lengthy decision in which he continued to maintain that the game had ended in a tie and that the Chicago club had no claim for a forfeit because the game was not played off as part of a double-header Sept. 24.

Race Ends in a Tie; Clubs Appeal Decision.

The weight of the decision did not become apparent until the season almost was closed. Suddenly the possibility appeared that the race would end in a tie. It did. Meanwhile the two clubs involved had appealed Pulliam's decision to the league directors.

In his decision, which set forth the conditions existing at the time of Bridwell's ninth inning single, President Pulliam said:

"What is necessary here to score this run? Bridwell must reach first in safety as must Merkle reach second, he being forced to advance on Bridwell's hit. Under the rules the umpire is the sole judge of play, and on this play both ruled that Merkle was out for failure to touch second. This left the game a tie.

"The New York club, in support of its claim for the game, contends that neither umpire saw the play in question and that no decision was rendered on the field to the effect that the run did not score. No claim is made that Merkle touched second base. Numerous affidavits are submitted in support of the contention of the New York club. Among the affidavits are those of Bridwell who made the hit, and McCormick, who scored the run, but none from Merkle.

Pulliam Has No Alternative than to Stick to Law.

"Much as I deplore the unfortunate ending of a brilliantly played game, as well as the subsequent controversy, I have no alternative than to be guided by the law.

"The playing rules say that the decision of the umpire on a question of fact is final. This whole controversy hinges on a simple question: Was Merkle forced at second base? Umpire O'Day says he was. O'Day is no novice and there is no reason to doubt his accuracy in his decision."

On Oct. 5 the National league directors assembled at Cincinnati. After a day of argument they were unable to reach a decision. They resumed the session the next day and finally announced that the 1 to 1 tie was official, the game to be played off at New York if the two teams were in a deadlock at the end of the championship season.

On Oct. 7, the closing day of the pennant race, the Giants beat Boston for the third straight time, thus tying the Cubs. On Oct. 8 the Cubs appeared in New York for the battle that was to decide which team would get into the world series. That afternoon, with Jack Pfiester pitching part of the first inning and Mordecai Brown going the remainder of the way, the Cubs whipped Christy Mathewson and Hooks Wiltes, 4 to 2. Then the Cubs jumped to Detroit and on Oct. 10 started to duplicate their world series victory of 1907.

Two Changes Made in Prep Football Rules

High school football players in the 21 states using the National Federation of Interscholastic Athletic associations' rule book will have to memorize only two changes in the code next fall.

After two days of discussion of a dozen proposals for changes in the rules, the association's committee closed its annual meeting at the Palmer house yesterday, by authorizing:

[1] That the penalty for a foul committed during a kick shall be loss of distance only, instead of loss of the ball at the point of the foul.

[2] That the penalty for an illegal shift shall be five yards instead of fifteen.

The committee decided both penalties were too severe and that modification would make for more strict enforcement of the rules.

Encourage Field Goals.

A resilience limitation also was inserted in the rule covering specification of the ball. With the growing use of the moulded type of ball, it was decided to govern the "bounce" by regulating the pressure. To meet the requirement, the ball must rebound a specified percentage of a designated height when dropped. The proposal was adopted to encourage more field goal attempts by injecting more life into the ball.

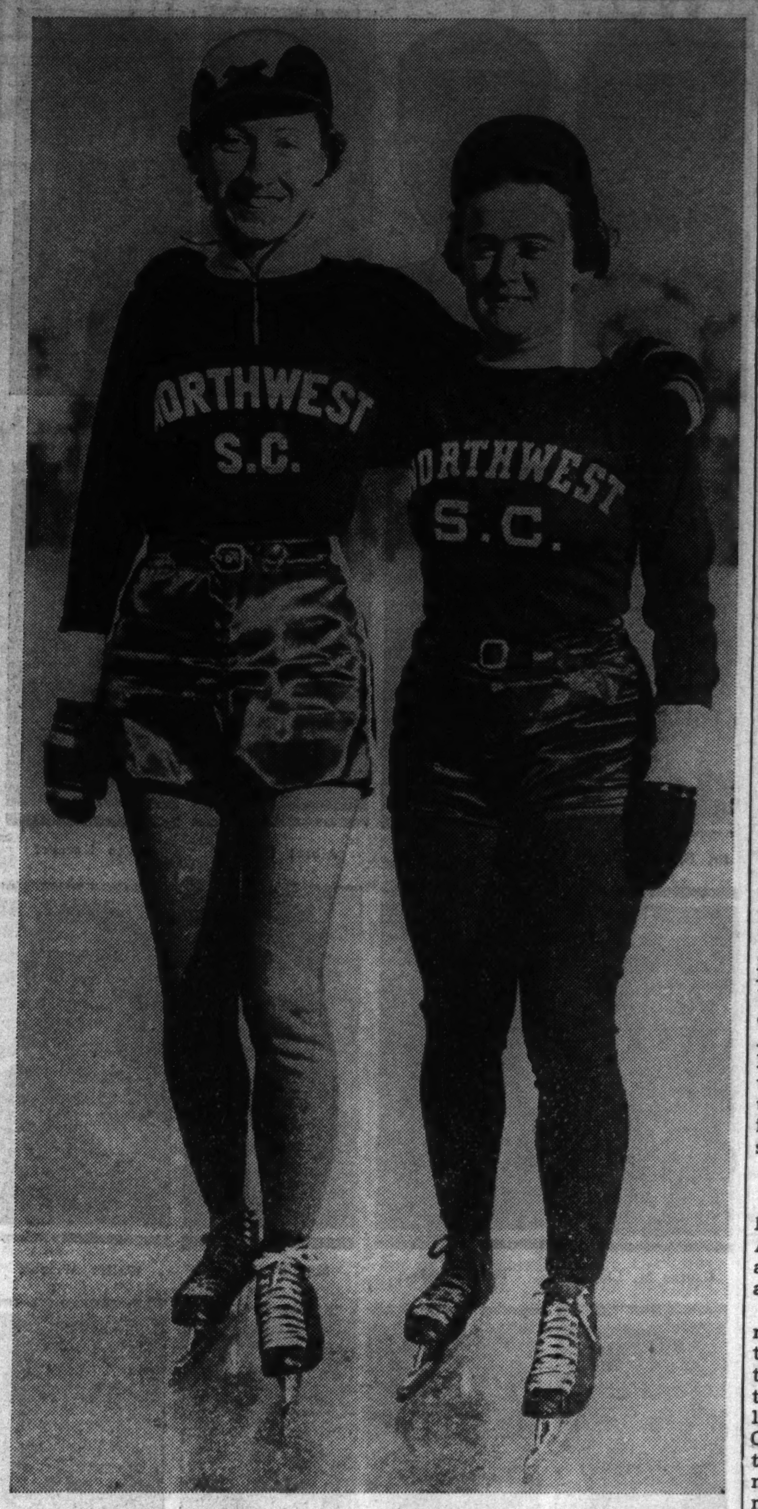
Two recommendations offered to open up the forward passing end of the game were defeated by close margins. The proposal to permit any number of forward passes during a down, provided they were made from behind the line, lost by 9 to 12. The other, to allow an eligible player of the team in possession of the ball to complete a pass previously touched by an eligible teammate, failed by one vote, 10 to 11.

Table Two Proposals.

Suggestions that the goal posts be moved up to the goal line and that a field goal be allowed when the ball passes between the uprights, but beneaths the cross-bar, were tabled when the resilience clause was inserted in the ball specifications rule. Another proposal, also offered to encourage field goal attempts—to increase the distance between the goal posts from 18 feet, 6 inches, to 24 feet, and to lower the cross-bar from ten feet to nine—received support but was tabled because of the expense of erecting new goal posts.

WRITERS NAME CARL HUBBELL LEADING HURLER

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Selection of Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants as the outstanding pitcher in baseball was announced today by the Philadelphia Sporting Writers' association. Hubbell will receive the award at the association's 34th annual dinner Jan. 25 when Joe Di Maggio of the New York Yankees and Connie Mack, Philadelphia Athletics manager, also will be honored. Hubbell's selection was unanimous.



Skating is scheduled today at Elgin, where the Tri-State meet will be held. Elaine Bogda (left), who won Silver Skates in The Tribune Derbies girls' senior division last year, is an entrant, as is Shirley Jameson (right). The girls are rivals today, but Miss Bogda, now ineligible for Silver Skates, will cheer for Miss Jameson in the Tribune meet next Saturday and Sunday. Miss Jameson won Silver Skates in the junior class in 1935 and now seeks the senior title.

Bunny Lawler of the C. Y. O. is an entrant in both Silver Skates intermediate class and Tri-State events. She will defend an unbeaten record today at Elgin.

GIANTS TO PLAY 31 GAMES; 18 WITH INDIANS

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Thirty-one games are on the spring training schedule announced today by the Giants, including eighteen with their favorite sparring partners, the Cleveland Indians.

The young pitchers and catchers are to report at Hot Springs, Ark., in mid-February for preliminary conditioning, with the main squad pitching camp at Baton Rouge, La., the first of March. Following is the training schedule:

St. Louis Cardinals Get Fielder from Sacramento

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 8.—[U. P.]—Purchase of Elvin [Buster] Adams, 21 year old outfielder, from its Sacramento farm club was announced by the St. Louis Cardinals management today. The purchase price was not revealed. Elvin led the Pacific Coast league in doubles in 1937. His home is in Los Angeles.

Pirates Give Cash Aplenty for New Faces

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 8.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, searching for new faces, announced today they had spent $75,000 in cash and $25,000 in player values during the off-season to acquire the year's highest priced rookie and five other prize prospects.

This was a greater outlay for new players than was made by any other major league club, said President Bill Benswanger, whose star outfielder, Paul Waner, accused him of wanting cheaper faces instead of new ones. Johnny Rizzo, hard hitting Columbus, O., outfielder is the highest priced recruit entering the majors in 1938, according to the tag placed on him by Benswanger.

Rizzo Is Expensive.

In order to lift the slugger from the St. Louis Cardinals' farm system, Pittsburgh paid $25,000 in cash and gave up Catcher Tommy Padden from the Pirates' own staf and Outfielder Bud Hafey and First Baseman Bernard Cobb, who were wearing Pirate strings in the minors.

Benswanger, who has carried on a policy instituted by the late Barney Dreyfuss of keeping secret the salaries paid the Pirates and generally the amount of money involved in other transactions, also disclosed today the cost of some other Pirate newcomers.

He said it cost the Pittsburgh club $12,000 to get Catcher Ray Berres from Louisville; $11,000 to obtain Pitcher Truett Sewell from Buffalo; $11,000 for Pitcher Marvin Duke from Montreal, $7,500 for Pitcher Bob Klinger from Sacrammento. The Pirates have also invested in Pitcher Oadis Swigart of Davenport, and others.

Handley, Bauers Make Good.

These deals had no effect on the Pirates' efforts to obtain Van Mungo, Frank Demaree, Bill Jurges, or other topflight performers in the National league, the Pirate boss asserted. But he said:

"If some of the Rookies come through as we hope, we'll see those new faces' anyway."

Lee Handley, young second baseman acquired for $20,000 last winter, and Pitcher Russ Bauers, earned regular jobs in 1937.

WHEATON RUNS OVER AURORA QUINTET, 43-17

OLYMPIC SKATE STARS TO RACE TODAY AT ELGIN

Tri-State Meet Draws Entry List of 500.

Speed skaters of world national and Olympic fame will compete this afternoon in the Tri-State events at Lord's park, Elgin.

Three Olympic skaters—Bob Petersen and Delbert Lamb of Milwaukee and Eddie Schroeder of Chicago, who competed for America in the 1936 races in Germany—will be rivals for the men's title. Skaters from Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri will compete for titles. A field of 500 is expected.

Six Events for Titles.

Although there are events for all classes, only six races are for Tri-State honors. Class A men will compete in four events, the 440 yard dash, the half mile, the mile, and two miles. Class A women will race 440 yards and one mile, for the championship and a diamond watch award.

At least three girls from each state stand out as likely winners. Among the Illinois entrants Mrs. Eleanor Theil-Dyer has a slight edge over Elaine Bogda and Shirley Jameson. Marie Kaczmierczak of Milwaukee is Wisconsin state champion. Her closest rival, Marjorie Peters of West Allis, tied Marie for points last week. Marjorie met defeat by falling near the finish line in the skate-off for the title. Isabelle Becker of Beaver Dam is another contestant of championship caliber.

Petersen Wisconsin Champion.

Missouri's three stars are Elsie Laskowitz, the southwest title holder; Alice Carnoske, and Janet Thompson, all from St. Louis. Iowa's girls will arrive today and will be post entries.

Bob Petersen of Milwaukee is the new Wisconsin state champion, but the records he set in winning the title last Sunday are slow compared to the times made by Chicago skaters last week. Bernie Canatta of the C. Y. O. team tied the record of 37.3 for the 440, while Petersen's time for a new state record was 37.7. Petersen's mile in the Wisconsin event was slower than Vic Ronchetti's time for the same distance. Petersen covered the distance in 2:48.5. Ronchetti made it in 2:47.

Times established today will be recorded as western states' records.

Among the Wisconsin senior men entered are Gerald Guttormsen of Kenosha, Walter Jaeger of Watertown, Eugene Lamb and Bob Goodman of Milwaukee, and Joseph Yanz of Beaver Dam. Iowa's best skaters are Larry and Bob Dennis and George Shimmick of Cedar Rapids.

Hurd Is Missouri Threat.

Missouri's major threat is a transplanted champion—Alex Hurd, now of St. Louis. Hurd, 27 years old, was Canada's greatest ice star before he left London, Ont., two years ago.

Norge Club to Import Snow for Ski Meet

Assured of the best field of skiers ever matched in competition on the slide near Fox River Grove, Ill., for the international tournament next Sunday afternoon directors of the Norge Ski club now are checking weather reports to the north of Chicago to determine how far they will have to go for their annual shipment of snow. Seven car loads of flakes, borrowed from the colder climes of Wisconsin or Michigan, will be delivered at the Norge jumping course next Friday so that the club will be able to guarantee against postponement of its tournament.

The Ruud brothers, Sigmund and Birger, now en route to New York aboard the liner Bremen, are expected to dock on Tuesday. Fred Bruun, president of the Norge club is hoping to have them in Chicago Wednesday and, if snow is available, they will train on the Fox River Grove slide.

With all members of the last United States Olympic ski jumping team entered in addition to Alf Engen, holder of the American distance record of 257 feet, strong competition will be furnished the Ruuds, Norway's outstanding skiers.

Seven-a-Side Soccer Meet Is Carded Today

BY OFFSIDE.

The largest seven a side indoor soccer tournament ever held in Chicago will be offered today at the 131st Regiment armory, 16th street and Michigan avenue. The tournament is sponsored by the International league and will be played in two classes. Eighteen teams will compose the class B section, while class A will include fourteen.

The first of the matches in class B will start at 10 a. m. Four referees—Frederick Klotz, Elijah Korer, Harry Monaghan, and Jack Johnston—will be in charge. Pairings and starting times follow:

Rangers vs. Northland, 10 a. m.; Oak Park vs. Kickers, 10:15 a. m.; Wanderers vs. Kolpings, 10:30 a. m.; Fichte vs. Linneas, 10:45 a. m.; Italian Sport Club vs. Kickers B, 11 a. m.; Hansa vs. Wanderers B, 11:15 a. m.; Schwaben vs. Swedes, 11:30 a. m.; Magyars vs. Gary, 11:45 a. m.; Wisla vs. Vikings, 12 noon.

Class A—Workers vs. Linneas, 2 p. m.; Kickers A vs. Italians, 2:15 p. m.; Rockford, bye; Wanderers A vs. Olympia, 2:45 p. m.; Hansa vs. Schwabens, 3 p. m.; Swedish-Americans vs. German-Americans, 3:15 p. m.; Vikings, bye.

The Chicago favorites for the national open cup, Sparta and the Maccabees, have only one more week for practice. Next Sunday Sparta goes to St. Louis to meet last year's western winners, the St. Louis Shamrocks, and the Maccabees clash with the American Nickeloids in Chicago in the opening cup games.

Today the Maccabees meet Calumet Park at Kuppenheimer stadium, 18th street and Keeler avenue, at 2:30 p. m. Sparta meets the Deutscher Sport Club of Racine, Wis., and will present in its lineup Jimmy McDermaid of New York. McDermaid, before coming to America, is reported to have refused terms from the Woolwich Arsenal club of London. This match will be played at Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, starting at 2:30 p. m.

ARTILLERY FOUR WINS 2D GAME IN CUBA, 6 TO 1

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Jan. 8.—The 124th Field Artillery Polo club team of Chicago won the second game of an international series today, defeating the Cuban army team, 6 to 1.

The victory was the second for the visitors and clinched the President Frederico Laredo Bru trophy. Two periods were played today to finish the game which had been suspended yesterday because of rain with the Chicagoans leading, 3 to 1. The artillery men got three goals in the first period today, but were held scoreless in the last period.

Lieut. Stevens Hammond scored twice and Lieut. William Fergus once. The latter had a total of four for the game.

The last contest of the series will be played Monday.

I. I. C. Postpones Meeting to Arrange Schedules

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 8.—(AP)—A meeting for the Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic conference's executive committee to arrange spring sports schedules and set up an eligibility code, scheduled for today, has been postponed to Monday, Jan. 24.

Notre Dame Holds Annual Football Dinner Tomorrow

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—More than 1,000 Notre Dame fans will meet in the dining halls Monday night to honor Notre Dame's 1937 football team at the 18th annual civic testimonial football dinner sponsored by the Notre Dame club of the St. Joseph valley. Thomas L. Hickey is general chairman of the banquet committee.

John T. [Terry] McGovern, councilor for the Carnegie Foundation, who helped draft the famous Bulletin 28 a decade ago, will be the principal speaker. He was toastmaster at the dinner three years ago at which Will Rogers was the key speaker.

Warren Brown, Chicago Herald-Examiner sports editor, who will serve as toastmaster, and Arch Ward, sports editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, are the sports writers on the program.

Coaches who will speak, besides Notre Dame's Elmer Layden, include Jimmy Conzelman of Washington University, Mal Elward of Purdue, Gus Dorais of Detroit, Bo McMillin of Indiana, and Gar Davidson, retiring coach at Army.

The Rev. Robert J. White, dean of law at Catholic university, and former national chaplain of the American Legion, is expected to furnish one of the most interesting talks of the evening. He played football for Boston college, served in the world war as a naval officer, practiced law successfully until 1927, and then became a priest. He is vice president of the FIDAC, veterans' association.

The Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., president, and the Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, C. S. C., vice president, will represent the University of Notre Dame along with Coach Layden, who will introduce members of the team to the guests. Father O'Donnell is chairman of the faculty board in control of athletics.

Mayor George W. Freyermuth of South Bend and President Louis Chapleau of the St. Joseph Valley Notre Dame club are other speakers.

DYE'S PRO FIVE MEETS CIESARS THIS AFTERNOON

Tippy Dye, former all-conference player from Ohio State university and formerly a member of the Chicago Tribune All-Star football team, will bring the Cincinnati Camellos basketball team to Chicago this afternoon to play the Ciesar All-Americans at the Whiting Community center, 119th street and Indianapolis boulevard. The game will start at 3 o'clock.

Lawson, Unattached Volleyball Teams Tie

The volleyball team which formerly represented the Duncan Y. M. C. A., but now is playing unattached, and the Lawson "Y" team divided honors in the Illinois state open volleyball institute at the Evanston "Y" yesterday. The unattached team defeated Waukesha, Wis., 15 to 9 and 15 to 7. Then Lawson beat the Badgers, 15 to 7 and 19 to 17. The winners then split even, the unattached team winning the first game, 15 to 10, and losing the second, 12 to 15.

RODAK BATTLES JACKIE WILSON IN TEN ROUNDS

Meet Tomorrow for Third Time at Marigold.

Leo Rodak, Chicago featherweight contender, who is undefeated since placing himself under the management of Nate Lewis last March 30, and Jackie Wilson, Pittsburgh colored title claimant, who has not lost a fight since July 26, clash in this week's featured bout of ten rounds. The meeting, which will be their third, is scheduled at Marigold Gardens tomorrow.

Other events on the week's card include the sixth annual amateur boxing tournament, opening at the Illinois Athletic club Wednesday. It will be continued Thursday and concluded Jan. 19.

Levinsky Has Three Mat Bouts.

King Levinsky, the ex-heavyweight fighter, will appear in three wrestling bouts, against Tuffy Cleet at Detroit tomorrow, Whitey Govro at Cleveland Wednesday, and Pat Murphy at Marigold Friday.

Wilson will be making his first Chicago start since his six round knockout of Johnny Mitchell at Marigold Jan. 8, 1934. In fourteen subsequent engagements he won eight, two by knockouts; boxed four draws, and lost two. Two of the draw battles were with Rodak, the first in ten rounds and the other in fifteen.

Rodak Defeats Milling.

In his last appearance Rodak conquered Varias Milling in ten rounds at Marigold Nov. 22. After signing a three year management contract with Nate Lewis, Leo defeated Lenny Cohen, Johnny Cellura, Everett [Young] Simington, Lloyd Pine, and Milling, and fought the aforementioned draws with Wilson.

Evans was first in the warmup event with 98 per cent. The doubles winner was L. M. Clancy, who broke 38 out of 50 targets. Sixty-five competed.

SCHMELING MAY BOX TWO FOES BEFORE LOUIS

HAMBURG, Germany, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Max Schmeling said today he'll decide after his Jan. 30 bout with Ben Foord whether to have another match before meeting Joe Louis for the heavyweight championship next summer.

Both Schmeling and Foord were here today, opening training quarters for their 12 round go in the Hamburger Hanseaten hall.

Only three weeks after his knockout victory over Harry Thomas in New York's Madison Square Garden—which was regarded as his first warm-up for a Louis fight—Schmeling is taking his training preparations for Foord seriously. His trainer Max Machon is watching the daily workouts. Max, although always in good physical condition, plans three weeks of stiff training.

Open Basketball Season at 124th Armory Today

Basketball competition will be opened this afternoon at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 5200 Cottage Grove avenue, with three games. The 124th Field Artillery team, Central A. A. U. champion, will meet the Miller Nationals of the Windy City league. The Turner Girls and Queen Annes will open the program at 2 o'clock, followed by Calumet K. of C. vs. Queen of Angels, C. Y. O., city church champion.

Time, 1:39. Two dollar mutuels paid: Mill Pond, $5.60 straight, $4.10 place, $2.60 show; Saxlen, $5.90 place, $4.20 show; Hornet, $3.50 show. Winner ch. c., 4, by Royal Minstrel-Lazy Daisy. Owner, P. Bieber. Trainer, same. Start good.

MILL PAND was rushed into lead early, set fast pace to stretch, then drew away. SAXLEN moved up gamely and was next best. HORNET well up for six furlongs, then tired. FLEET STEP ran a good race.

FOURTH RACE—Purse $800. Three year olds. Six furlongs. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

Time, 1:12 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Aces Wild, $16.50 straight, $6.10 place, $4.10 show; Galapas, $3.90 place, $3.00 show; Posterity, $4.30 show. Winner ch. f., 3, by Dranace-Wildwood. Owner, C. Trentanelli. Trainer, C. Hunt. Start good.

ACES WILD showing remarkable improvement over recent race, broke alertly, quickly opened a wide lead and never was let down, winning in a romp. GALAPAS moved up determinedly around turn but never threatened the winner. POSTERITY held on gamely after showing good early speed. HI CLIFF finished with a rush. GENEVRA M. performed listlessly, never being prominent. JOE SCHENCK can do better.

FIFTH RACE—Purse $1,500. Three year olds. Six furlongs. Net value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50.

Time, 1:11 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Double B., $14.20 straight, $5.80 place, $3.50 show; Fair Lead, $3.70 place, $2.80 show; Paradisical, $2.80 show. Winner br. g., 6, by Son o' Battle-Little Birka. Owner, Weil and Lowenstein. Trainer, M. Griner. Start good.

DOUBLE B., displaying a world of speed, raced FAIR LEAD into defeat in the first five furlongs and then drew away, winning nicely in hand. FAIR LEAD, away very fast, was hustled along all the way and held on gamely. PARADISICAL lacked early speed, closed fast in last furlong. ORIENTALIST broke slow, moved up fast, but weakened suddenly. BOW AND ARROW will win soon but over a longer route.

LIGHT, going in much improved form, was hustled into a long lead going into paddock turn and, rated along, just lasted to win. PALAMEDE, also showing improvement, finished with a good burst of speed and would have won in another stride. CASCAPEDIA closed with a rush in the middle of the track. SUNANAIR was hard ridden all the way. BOOTMAKER stopped badly. INDOMITABLE had no mishap.

VON CRAMM WINS OVER BUDGE IN MELBOURNE MEET

MELBOURNE, Jan. 8.—[U. P.]—Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany defeated Don Budge of California today to give Germany victory over the United States and Australia in the triangular tennis tourney.

Budge, conqueror of Von Cramm in last year's Davis cup, all-England and United States tournament play, was beaten in a three set match, 6-4, 8-10, 12-10.

In other matches Adrian Quist of Australia defeated Gene Mako of California, 6-3, 7-5, and Quist and Jack Bromwich of Australia defeated Von Cramm and Henner Henkel of Germany, 6-2, 6-1.

Second place, which went to the United States, was decided upon games won. The Americans and Australians each won two matches and five sets, but the United States led in games won, 69 to 59.

HUNTERS OPEN WAR FOR EARLY DUCK SHOOTING

Illinois Sportsmen Want Oct. 15 Date.

BY BOB BECKER.

Although it's many a month before sportsmen in America will go duck hunting again the hot stove league of waterfowl shooters is keeping the sport in mind. In many states hunters are organizing to exert pressure on the authorities in the hope that some changes will be made in the regulations for 1938.

Minnesota was one of the first states to be heard from on ducks. Since then Illinois and other states have been the scenes of discussions and arguments concerning what should be done before regulations are drawn up for 1938.

Survey Expects Heavy Shelling.

After hearing from scores of individual shooters, officers of sportsmen's groups, and others, on the subject of conservation of waterfowl and possible changes in the hunting laws, it appears that the biological survey will be bombarded heavily during the coming months. But that is nothing new for the survey authorities. They must be used to heavy shelling from many organizations. On one side are the well organized groups who demand a closed season—absolutely no shooting of any waterfowl. One can be sure they make themselves heard in Washington. Duck hunters naturally are aligned against this movement. They want hunting and more of it. Every state does a little sniping to get more favorable seasons. Sc the merry-go-round continues day after day.

In the central states we find that some sportsmen in Iowa want the season changed to get shooting fairly early in October. Wisconsin is bitter about the time of the duck season as it prevailed last season.

As one hunter said: "It's been so long since we got a bag of ducks that we wouldn't know what to do with them if we did kill them."

Want Opening Oct. 15.

Illinois hunters in the northern part of the state want an Oct. 15 to 20 opening as Nov. 1 is too late for them. The upper Illinois river hunters seem to have the same idea. There is a demand for a change in regulations that will permit a fellow to keep a two days' limit. Many Illinois hunters believe that a modified form of feeding should be permitted—a system which would keep all shooting a reasonable distance away from places where feed is placed, yet make it possible for the ducks to find sufficient food in the big acreage of the Illinois river valley.

All this complaining about the duck situation points to one thing that is quite evident—duck hunters are not satisfied and believe that the time is ripe for lifting some of the restrictions on the sport.

40 Lap Race Heads Midget Auto Program

Midget auto racing at its best is anticipated tonight at the 124th Field Artillery armory, Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue, where drivers from seven states will contest eight events. The races will start at 8:30 p. m.

A 40 lap race will be the main event on the card, which includes also four class A elimination races, a 15 lap reverse order handicap, an Australian pursuit race, and a 20 lap consolation face for drivers who fail to qualify for the main event.

Interest tonight will focus on the efforts of Cletus [Cowboy] O'Rourke, a Chicago driver, who won his first feature race of the season last week. O'Rourke is driving one of the fastest cars to appear on the armory oval.

The greatest threats to O'Rourke's prestige are Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis, Shorty Sorenson and Duke Nalon of Chicago, Marshall Lewis of Los Angeles, Art Hartsfeld of Toledo, Tony Willman of Milwaukee, and such veteran Chicago stars as Emil Andres, Myron Fohr, Fred Tegtmeier, Ted Duncan, and Ray Richards.

Tonight's racing will prepare the drivers for the third 100 lap race of the season which will be held next Sunday night.

SURE, THERE'LL BE A DERBY—BUT NO BRADLEY HORSE

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 8.—(AP)—For the first time in more than 20 years the white and green silks of Col. Edward R. Bradley will be missing from the Kentucky Derby field next May 7.

Horses from the colonel's Idle Hour farm in Kentucky have won four renewals of the Kentucky turf classic, but this year the Bradley stables are without a 3 year old of Derby calibre. At the Idle Hour farm inquirers are referred to Col. Bradley who is at Palm Beach, Fla.

Bradley's intimates view the situation as a near calamity for him since he is reputed to consider the winning of a fifth Derby the fulfillment of his greatest desire.

Trainer Herbert John [Derby Dick] Thompson, who died on the opening day of the fall meeting at the Bowie track, saddled the four thoroughbreds that carried Bradley's colors under the Derby wire in first place and two that trailed their own stablemates to finish second. They were Behave Yourself and Black Servant, first and second in 1921; Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage, which finished in the same order in 1926, and Burgoo King and Brokers Tip, winners in 1932 and 1933.

FIND PROFIT TAX CUTS OFF JOBS, HALTS BUILDING

Illinois Companies Tell Handicaps.

The tax on undistributed profits deprived many Illinois workers of jobs and caused abandonment or postponement of millions of dollars' worth of building construction in 1937, it was disclosed yesterday in a study of 3,000 manufacturing enterprises of all types in the state.

The survey, made by the Illinois Manufacturers' association, showed that 58 business firms alone deferred building and factory rehabilitation projects totaling $39,558,000, which is $8,716,739 more than was spent on building construction in Chicago during the first nine months of 1937.

Much Work Postponed.

"Eighty-three per cent of the replies in the survey indicated that the federal surtax on undistributed profits was definitly detrimental to their program of plant rehabilitation," the association's report said. "In practically every instance the answers indicated that plant repairs, expansion and rehabilitation had been retarded or delayed indefinitly."

A large amount of unemployment was caused by the tax, the report said, because employers reduced their working forces during the business recession instead of keeping them at work and paying their wages out of reserves such as had been available before the tax went into effect.

Results of Tax Analyzed.

Some of the results of the tax, as reported to the association by individual companies and business men, and the percentage of replies supporting each claim, were:

1. It curtailed plant rehabilitation or expansion. This effect was reported by 83 per cent of the business men and companies replying.

2. It caused layoffs of employés or prevented carrying out of expansion programs involving potential jobs. Virtually 100 per cent of the replies indicated this result.

3. It hindered debt retirement. This effect of the tax was reported by 38 per cent of the answers made in the survey.

4. It caused an increase in indebtedness to banks or stockholders. This was a result in 42 per cent of the cases studied. Six companies alone said the tax caused increased indebtedness of $1,229,000.

Dividend Action Hampered.

5. It created difficulties in estimating the taxable net income before the close of the year to be used as a basis for action on dividends. Eighty-three per cent of those replying held the tax to be unfair in this respect, especially because, in order to get credit for dividends paid, the companies must put the dividends in the hands of stockholders before the end of the year, the report said. Various difficulties in making estimates and adjustments were cited.

6. It worked as a detriment to the restoration of depleted working capital. This result was reported in 69 per cent of the replies.

7. It causes difficulties in financing increased inventories and accounts receivable. Forty-five per cent reported the tax had this effect, although they did not specify the nature of the difficulties.

Outlays Are Increased.

8. It created some tendency toward larger outlays in salaries, wages and expenditures such as advertising, the theory being that the government would share in defraying these outlays through decreased taxes. This effect was indicated in 41 per cent of the replies.

Many of the answers showed that the tax on undistributed profits was an especially severe hardship on new and struggling companies.

Answering the question concerning the effect of the tax on employment, a railroad supply manufacturer said:

"Our attitude on labor costs has necessarily been changed on account of the tax law. We have decided our policy must be reduction in personnel as soon as a business lull is apparent. We had to reduce our force 25 per cent sixty days ago."

Builder Forced to Cut Staf.

A building material producer who had deferred a $30,000 building program wrote: "With our curtailment of operation, we are obliged to reduce our working force. At one of our plants which requires 40 men there are now only six on the job."

A machinery manufacturer abandoned a $100,000 building project and reduced the number of employés 50 per cent "due to decreased business brought about by the tax."

A starch manufacturer abandoned a $500,000 construction program and estimated that the tax "cut into the stability of employment fully 50 per cent."

Keystone Steel to Recall 250 Workmen Tomorrow

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 8. — (AP) — R. E. Sommer, president of the Keystone Steel & Wire Co., announced today 250 men would be reëmployed Monday on a three day week basis. Addition of the 250 will raise the company's pay roll to 750 employés, he said. "Reports indicate dealer stocks are not very large," Sommer said. "Any increase in consumption will be reflected quickly in new orders."

Meat Prices Show Link of City, Country

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The manner in which a loss in the purchasing power of city residents is translated into reduced prices for farm commodities is illustrated by the parallel declines which occurred during the late months of 1937 in industrial employment and meat prices.

The interdependence economically of the city dweller and the farmer is not always apparent in the charts and figures on business activity and farm income. Frequently there is a lag between a depression in industrial activity—which means reduced employment in metropolitan areas—and its economic effect on the farmers. Because of this lag the relationship is sometimes difficult to trace. Meat is an exception. No farm commodity's price is more sensitive to fluctuations in consumer purchasing power.

Meat Movement Fast.

Meat moves from the farm to consumers' tables in a shorter time than most farm commodities that the city dweller buys. When city residents cannot afford to buy meat because of high prices or loss of income their aggregate influence is an immediate brake on the market.

Consumer resistance was a paramount influence in the decline in meat prices that began last September. There were other less immediate factors that played a part in the decline. The harvest of bumper feed crops and the prospect for larger meat supplies were basic price factors. The pressure that the consumers exerted was decisive. Their resistance was felt by meat dealers throughout the country and, in turn, by the packers under necessity to adjust prices daily to keep supplies moving and prevent a market glut.

Runs with Industrial Slump.

The drop in meat prices paralleled the slump in industrial production which reduced employment and consumer incomes. The average price paid producers for 100 pounds of live hog in the Chicago market fell from $11.85 in August to $7.85 in December. In the same period the price of 100 pounds of live steer fell from $14.00 to $8.95. The decline was one of the sharpest on record for the period.

In the corresponding period industrial production as measured by the federal reserve board's index fell from 117 [1923-'25 average as 100] and 90 per cent in November and 85 [estimated] in December. The slump was described by Chairman Eccles of the reserve board as the steepest that has occurred since the board started compilation of the data.

What the slump in industrial production means in terms of employment and purchasing power is indicated by the estimate of the national industrial conference board that the number of unemployed increased 1,500,000 between October and the end of the year.

BUSINESS INDEX FALLS TO LOWEST LEVEL IN 2 YEARS

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The current recession in business completed its 15th consecutive decline this week, with industrial activity dropping to the lowest level in more than two years.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index fell to 74.1 per cent of the 1929-'30 average from 74.9 a week ago and compared with 102.0 last year.

The slump continued to lose impetus, however, as three components of the index turned up during the week. These were outweighed by declines in cotton manufacturing and freight carloadings to new lows for the last two years.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted indices based on the latest available statistics and with 1929-'30 as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest. week.	Previous. week.	Year ago.

EDISON OFFERING OF $30,000,000 IS DUE THIS WEEK

A $30,000,000 public offering of Consolidated Edison company of New York 3½ per cent bonds is expected to be the highlight of corporation financing this week. The bonds, which will be due in 1958, will be offered by a group headed by Morgan, Stanley & Co. The date has not been announced.

Two states and thirty-five municipalities have scheduled new offerings this week totaling about $12,439,000. This type of financing exceeded $15,500,000 last week. Most of the new municipal offerings will be less than $1,000,000. The city of Houston, Tex., has invited bids on $2,822,000 worth of bonds. Utica, N. Y., is offering a $1,000,000 issue of tax anticipation warants.

A $3,197,000 issue of bonds of the Salt river project agricultural improvement and power district in Arizona will be reoffered Tuesday. They were offered originally last Monday.

Mandel to Pay 75 Cent Special on Common

Edwin F. Mandel.

Edwin F. Mandel, president of Mandel Brothers, Inc., yesterday announced that directors of the company had declared a special dividend of 75 cents on the common stock, payable Jan. 26 to stockholders of record Jan. 20.

"In view of the strong financial condition of the company," the statement continued, "the board of directors felt that a substantial portion of the profits should be distributed to the stockholders before the end of the fiscal year, Jan. 31, 1938.

Profits Not Computed.

"This action was taken before the final profits for the full year's operation were known, so as to conform with the purpose of the tax on undistributed profits. Unless unforeseen circumstances arise in the month of January sales will exceed those of 1936 and earnings will justify this dividend."

Federated Department Stores, Inc., announced the declaration of a 25 cent dividend on the common stock. In 1937 four dividends of 50 cents each were paid.

Directors of Hat Corporation of America declared dividends of 20 cents each on the class A and class B stocks. Payments of the same amount were made Oct. 25, 1937.

Day's Dividend Declarations.

Dividends declared yesterday, with rate, period, and payment and record dates, follow:

Cit Nat T&S Bk, 65s s. a....	Feb. 1	Jan. 20
Feder Dept Stores, 25c.....	Jan. 29	Jan. 19
Hat Corp of Am, A, 20c.....	Jan. 31	Jan. 20
Do B, 20c.................	Jan. 31	Jan. 20
Hollinger Cons Gold, 5c m..	Jan. 28	Jan. 14
Super Mold, 20c............	Feb. 15	Jan. 25
Raphael Weill, $8 annual....	Jan. 15	Jan. 10
Do, $3 extra...............	Jan. 15	Jan. 10
Mandel Bros, 75c special.....	Jan 26	Jan 20

In the table, the letter "m" refers to regular monthly dividends, "q" to quarterly payments, and "s.a." to regular semi-annual disbursements.

HEADS OF UNITED CORP. TALK OVER REGISTRATION

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—United corporation—$581,000,000 Morgan sponsored utility investment company—has been holding informal discussions with representatives of the Securities and Exchange commission regarding the question of registration under the federal holding company act, it was learned today.

This led some Wall street circles to look for early registration by United, but one United director, who declined to be quoted formally, said emphatically that no decision had been reached. Randall J. Leboeuf Jr., attorney for United, referred inquiries to George H. Howard, president, and Howard could not be reached.

Ever since passage of the public utility holding company act of 1935 Wall street has been keenly interested in what steps would be taken by United, because of its peculiar position. Formed by Morgan-Drexel and Bonbright interests in 1929, it has steadfastly maintained it was strictly an investment company, holding no majority interest in a power company and having no management, supervisory or other contractual relationships with the companies in which it was interested.

GENERAL MOTORS DECEMBER SALES DROP SHARPLY

But Total Last Year Sets Record.

Although world sales of General Motors cars and trucks to dealers set a new yearly peak in 1937, sales in December to United States dealers declined 45 per cent, and sales to consumers dropped 48 per cent, compared with December, 1936, the monthly sales report of the General Motors corporation showed yesterday.

In December, sales to dealers in this country were 108,232 units, compared with 153,184 in November and 197,065 in December, 1936. Total December sales to dealers throughout the world were 160,444 units in December, against 195,136 in November, and 239,114 in December, 1936.

Domestic Sales Fall Sharply.

A comparison of figures indicates that sales to dealers in the United States decreased by 29 per cent from November to December, but that sales to dealers outside the United States increased 22 per cent.

Sales to consumers in this country in December were 89,682 units, compared with 117,387 in November and 173,472 in December, 1936.

The new high for world sales reached in 1937 was 2,116,897 units, which compares with a 1936 total of 2,037,690. Sales to consumers in this country in 1937 were 1,594,215, against 1,720,213 in 1936. United States dealers in 1937 bought a total of 1,680,024 units, about the same as the 1936 volume of 1,682,594.

Studebaker Sales Smaller.

A sharp decline in the Studebaker corporation's sales of automobiles and trucks in December compared with the same month in 1936 was reported yesterday by Paul G. Hoffman, president. Sales last month were 4,757 units, compared with 7,577 in the corresponding 1936 month. Sales for the year 1937 were 91,509 cars and trucks, or 487 less than 1936 sales of 91,968 units.

CHICAGO STEEL PRODUCTION TO RISE THIS WEEK

Steel ingot production this week will rise in the Chicago district, but operations are expected to decline in several other districts. Output in the Chicago district is tentatively scheduled at 24.4 per cent of capacity, up 3.3 points from last week. One mill which was closed since Christmas resumed operations last Thursday. Other mills will increase production slightly.

The Pittsburgh rate is expected to show a decline of about 5 points from last weeks average rate, with operations scheduled to start tomorrow at 22 per cent of capacity, according to a report by Dow, Jones & Co.

The Shenango valley district will begin operations tomorrow with slightly lower schedules. Last week's schedules were stepped up in most districts to take care of accumulated "rush" orders received during the holidays.

United Light Income Shows Gain for Year

The United Light and Power company yesterday reported consolidated net income for the 12 months ended Nov. 30, 1937, of $5,013,380, equal after dividend requirements on the $6 preferred stock to 40 cents a share on the 3,478,118 combined shares of class A and B common stock outstanding. This compares with adjusted net income in the preceding 12 months of $4,754,012, or 33 cents a share on 2,472,962 combined shares of A and B stock.

Of two United Light and Power subsidiaries reporting yesterday, one had higher and the other had lower earnings for the year ended Nov. 30. American Light and Traction reported consolidated net income of $5,697,766, or $1.77 a share on 2,767,419 common shares, compared with $5,499,732, or $1.70 a share, in the year ended Nov. 30, 1936.

Continental Gas Earns Less.

The other subsidiary, Continental Gas and Electric, reported net income of $4,598,115 in the year ended Nov. 30, 1937. This was equal to $15.28 a share on 214,489 common shares and compared with net income of $4,642,451, or $15.49 a share, in the preceding year.

The American Telephone and Telegraph company reported net operating income for November of $1,122,279 against $2,643,133 in November, 1936. November gross revenues were $8,722,710, compared with $8,961,823 in 1936. For the first 11 months of 1937, gross revenues were $98,223,525 and net operating income was $17,265,938. This compares with gross of $97,080,005 and net operating income of $21,251,645 in the first 11 months of 1936.

Dodge Manufacturing Earnings.

Dodge Manufacturing corporation, maker of power machinery and bearings, yesterday reported net income for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1937, of $322,697, or $4.03 a share on 79,974 shares outstanding, compared with profit of $199,329, or $2.73 a share on 73,044 shares, in the preceding fiscal year. Current assets as of Oct. 31, 1937, were $1,308,293, including cash of $160,759, against current liabilities of $329,277.

For the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1937, the Canadian Industrial Alcohol company, Ltd., had net profit of $545,120, or 49 cents a common share, the annual report showed yesterday. This compares with profit of $358,368, or 32 cents a common share, in the preceding fiscal year.

CHRYSLER SETS PACE FOR BROAD RISE IN STOCKS

Motor, Steel, Copper Issues Take Lead.

New York, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Chrysler turned on the power today, pulling the stock market out of its recent tendency to move sideways. All sections of the list moved upward in moderately active trading. Closing prices were around their best levels of the day and up fractions to more than 3 points. Transfers totaled 779,010 shares.

Motors, steels, and coppers led in the upswing. Chrysler contributed the best individual performance, being up 4 points at its best level of the day and closing at 55½, up 3⅞ points. Even the carriers moved forward, although traders could find nothing specific in the railroad situation to cheer about.

Observers credited better business news with the more cheerful sentiment existing in Wall street.

Plant Reopening Is Influence.

The demand for Chrysler grew out of advices from Detroit that the corporation will resume assemblies of its four lines of automobiles on Tuesday with 55,000 factory employés on the pay roll, the same number as before assemblies were suspended Dec. 23. Another constructive factor was the probability that Ford will add 25,000 workers a week later.

This news, which was held to portend a pickup in business, acted as a stimulant to shares of companies allied with the automobile industry. General Motors also was aided, being bid up nearly 2 points.

The wide scope of the advance was shown by the fact that of 708 issues traded in during the two hour session, 556 advanced and only 51 declined. There was no change in 101 stocks.

Steel Shares Prominent.

Steel shares were prominent in the advance. United States Steel started on a block of 1,500 shares at an overnight gain of a full point. This premier issue worked steadily forward to close at its top of the session, 59⅝, where it was 2⅝ above the previous close. Bethlehem, Youngstown, National, Republic, and Crucible also spurted.

Wall street looks for another increase in the operating rate of the steel industry next week, although reports from the Pittsburgh district indicated that a decline of 5 per cent will take place there.

Atchison and New York Central were the leaders in the carrier section, each moving up more than a point. The recently depressed Baltimore and Ohio shares pushed ahead for a large fractional profit.

Public Utilities Higher.

Public utilities worked higher, but it was the opinion of market students that their strength was being communicated from other sections. In the communications sector, American Telephone was a feature, making a gain of $2.25.

Anaconda and Kennecott led the copper shares into higher ground, reflecting the prevalent belief that prices for the red metal may have reached the bottom.

Miscellaneous strong spots were du Pont, American Can, Continental Can, and Texas corporation. Electrical equipments were buoyant, Westinghouse standing out with a gain of more than 3 points. General Electric was up 1½ points.

Mail orders moved forward strongly, presumably in response to Gen. Robert E. Wood's testimony before the senate committee on unemployment. Sears-Roebuck advanced 2½ points and Montgomery Ward gained 1½.

Home Loan Foreclosures by U. S. Decline in 1937

Washington, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The federal home loan bank board reported today non-farm real estate foreclosures the first eleven months of 1937 were 17 per cent less than in the same 1936 period. There were 141,717 foreclosures last year, the board reported, compared with 170,822 the year before. Large cities were chiefly responsible for the decline, the board said.

Wheat Climbs to Best Prices Since October

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the May delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$ .97⅞	$ .96⅜	$1.34
Corn	.62⅝	.62⅞	1.10¼
Oats	.32¾	.32¼	.53¼
Rye	.77½	.76¼	1.13⅜
Soy beans...	.99	.99	1.60¾

Wheat prices were on the upgrade yesterday with an advance into new high ground since in October. Closing trades were at the top with net gains of 1⅛ to 1⅝ cents.

Reports of highly beneficial rains in Argentina, where the new corn crop has suffered from drouthy conditions for the last three months, took the bull edge off that market and prices averaged lower, although most of the early decline was recovered in sympathy with the upturn in wheat. May corn closed ¼ cent lower, but the deferred futures were ⅛ to ⅜ cent a bushel higher. Oats and rye were firmer with wheat.

Canadian Wheat in Demand.

Reports of an unusually large demand for new crop Canadian wheat and an upturn of more than 3 cents a bushel in the Winnipeg market had considerable influence on sentiment, and many operators who sold early were active on the buying side when prices started upward. July wheat in the Canadian market sold at 1.22½, a new high for the season.

About 1,000,000 bushels of new crop Canadian wheat were reported to have been sold for export yesterday. Part of the grain was for December, 1938, shipment. This was said to be the first time on record that sales have been made a year in advance. Seeding of the Canadian wheat crop will not start for three months. Export sales of American hard winter wheat were estimated at 250,000 bushels.

Expect Lower Visible Supply.

A liberal reduction in the domestic visible supply of wheat is expected to be shown in Monday's statement. Kansas City stocks decreased 1,100,000 bushels in the last five days, reflecting large shipments from that market to gulf ports for export and to domestic mills. Chicago handlers sold 150,000 bushels yesterday, the largest day's business since last October.

Reports of beneficial rains in parts of the Argentine corn belt failed to check the European demand for American grain and sales of 500,000 bushels were reported. Primary markets received nearly 10,000,000 bushels of cash corn last week, of which nearly one-third represented arrivals at St. Louis. This grain, it is said, is moving southward to gulf ports for export.

Engage Vessels for Exports.

During the last week ocean freight room was chartered for shipment of more than 11,000,000 bushels of grain to Europe, largely corn, but some of the boats will not load for some time to come.

Rumors that an embargo is contemplated on shipments of corn to gulf ports for export were declared yesterday to be without foundation. According to reports to James E. Bennett & Co. there is no congestion at gulf ports. Boats are waiting at New Orleans, it was said, to load 1,500,000 bushels of grain, and more than 100 cars are being unloaded into elevators daily.

A department of agriculture estimate on farm reserves of grain as of Jan. 1 will be made public tomorrow at 2 p. m., Chicago time.

Most Chicago Bank Stocks Are Higher in Last Week

Chicago bank stocks were generally higher last week. First National closed 8 points higher at 213 bid, 217 asked. Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust stock ranged between 98 and 105, closing at 101½ bid, 103½ asked, for a net gain of 1 point. Chicago Title and Trust was 1 point better at 135 bid, 138 asked. Northern Trust registered a gain of 40 points during the week. Harris Trust and Savings and City National each advanced 5 points, and Terminal National was up 2. Lake Shore Trust and Savings and Merchandise National were unchanged.

MEXICAN SAYS U. S. AGREES TO SUPPORT PESO

Also Buys 35 Million Ounces of Silver.

Eduardo Suarez.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 8.—[U. P.]—Agreement with the United States whereby that country's stabilization fund will be used to maintain the value of the Mexican peso "whenever necessary" was announced today by Eduardo Suarez, financial minister. [The peso was quoted in New York City today at 27.80 cents.]

"Mexico expects to increase its trade with the United States as a result of the stabilization," Suarez said.

The announcement was made at the minister's first press conference since his return Thursday from the United States, where he conferred with government officials and financial leaders. He denied that the conversations resulted in "horse trading or deals with strings attached."

Confirms Silver Deal.

The finance minister confirmed that the United States treasury had purchased at 45 cents an ounce 35,000,000 ounces of silver which Mexico had on hand when the London "antidumping" agreement expired at midnight, Dec. 31. Suarez said the United States would continue to purchase newly mined Mexican silver at the rate of 5,000,000 ounces a month, the price to be fixed daily by the federal reserve board.

[The price for newly mined domestic silver in the United States was fixed at 64.64 cents an ounce by President Roosevelt a week ago. Previously it was 77.57 cents. The industrial silver price is 44¾ cents.]

The purchases, he said, will greatly increase the gold reserve of the Bank of Mexico, which has dropped sharply in recent months because of the government's expenditures in connection with the agrarian and public works programs. Also responsible for the decrease was the demand for foreign currencies by persons fearful of the peso's devaluation.

The silver purchase agreement will run for one year, Suarez said, with the terms exactly the same as those for last year and the year before.

Negotiates to Sell Oil.

The minister revealed that the government is negotiating at present for the sale of "royalty oil" derived from deliveries of the Royal Dutch Shell company for exploitation concessions recently awarded its subsidiary, the Mexican Eagle Oil company, in the Pozarica field, near Tampico.

"This will give the government a big cash return to permit it to maintain a balanced budget," he said.

Suarez said the treasury is preparing to pay the first instalment on compensation for irrigation works, cotton gins, machinery, etc., seized from British, American, Spanish, and Mexican capitalists when the land in the Laguna region was seized for distribution among the farmers.

During his stay in Houston, Tex., Suarez said he arranged for big American cotton concerns to remain in business in Mexico, both to extend credit to Mexican independent producers and Agrarian communities and to help peg the internal price of cotton at 14 cents a pound.

United States Officials Silent.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Treasury officials declined to comment tonight on press reports of Finance Minister Suarez's revelations concerning recent negotiations here.

Both the treasury and the state department declined to discuss any details of silver purchases or of trade concessions Mexico may be able to grant in return for American coöperation.

EATERS OF BEEF TO GET 'BREAK' IN MEAT PRICES

Expect Best Cuts to Sell Lowest in Year.

There was good news in last week's live stock and meat markets for those who prefer beef to other meats. Beef eaters, as a result of the sharp declines, should buy best cuts at the lowest prices in more than a year within a few days when the declines reach the butcher shops, live stock men say.

Best grades of beef and cattle were most affected by the downturn at the stockyards. Lower priced cuts in wholesale channels closed about the same as a week ago. Top cuts, such as loins and ribs, finished $1.00 to $2.00 per hundred pounds lower, selling at $39.00 and $30.00, respectively. Best rounds closed at $15.00, chucks at $13.00, and plates at $11.50.

Steer Prices Decline.

Live costs of beef steers sank to the lowest level since August, 1936. The average price at $8.35 was below any corresponding week in four years, and compared with $9.30 the preceding week and $10.65 a year ago. This price was only 45 cents above the hog average, the smallest margin since last May.

The following table indicates how much more rapidly cattle costs have declined for packers than hog prices [average prices in dollars per 100 pounds]:

	Steers.	Hogs.	Margin.
Last week	$ 8.35	$7.90	$0.45
Previous week	9.30	7.85	1.45
December, 1937	8.95	7.85	1.10
November, 1937	10.65	8.65	2.00
October, 1937	12.80	10.10	2.70
September, 1937	13.90	11.30	2.60
August, 1937	14.00	11.85	2.15
July, 1937	13.95	11.65	2.30

Most Cattle Sell Lower.

Packers confined their most urgent orders to the lower priced steers in an attempt to get live costs down in line with hogs. The result was a strong to 25 cents higher close for cheaper grades of steers, as well as cows and hefers, but the majority of good to choice grades finished weak to 25 cents lower. Calves closed 25 to 50 cents higher. The top load of steers sold at $11.75, compared with $13.85 in the preceding week. The decline was due partly to plainer quality.

Other live stock and meats closed higher for the week. Fresh pork loins were steady to 50 cents higher, and gains of 50 cents to $1.00 were registered in lamb meat, which is expected to lessen the competition of these meats in the beef trade in this week.

Lambs Finish Week Higher.

Final lamb sales were steady to 15 cents higher than a week ago. Yearlings rose 25 to 40 cents, and old mutton sheep advanced 50 to 75 cents. The week's hog average at $7.90 was up 5 cents, with final quotations 5 to 10 cents above the close of the preceding week.

Light hogs yesterday were strong to 5 cents higher, and others were steady to 10 cents lower.

SPEEDY COACHES CUT RAIL'S COST, LIFT TRAFIC 22%

A 25 per cent decrease in operating costs and a 22 per cent increase in passenger travel resulted from introduction of streamlined rail service between Danville and Cypress, Ill., C. T. O'Neal, president of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railway company, announced yesterday.

The company's report for the first six months of operation of the twin Egyptian Zippers on the 248 mile run between Danville and Cypress showed that from May 31, 1937, to Nov. 30, 22,000 revenue passengers were carried, compared with 18,000 in the previous six months of steam train service.

"Since the introduction of the streamlined units last May," O'Neil said, "we have speeded up the run by cutting one hour from the schedules. The starting and stopping is faster, an important factor on local runs."

The streamliners, which are gas operated, air conditioned, and of lightweight steel construction, can carry sixty-one passengers and contain baggage compartments. Each one replaced a train consisting of a locomotive, tender, baggage car, and coach.

Grain Quotations.

Every time a grain price changes at the Chicago Board of Trade, the new quotation is recorded on tickers in brokers' offices in more than six hundred American and Canadian cities. It requires, on the average, only nine seconds from the time a price change occurs until it is recorded on the ticker.

To trace the route of a change, let us assume that a commission house receives an order to buy 10,000 bushels of wheat. The order is immediately given to the commission house telephone operator stationed on the exchange floor. He relays it by messenger to the firm's trader in the pit.

If the purchase is made at a price differing from the preceding pit trade, a pit reporter writes the new price on a slip of paper and hands it to a second reporter who stamps the date and time on it. Notice of the change is then sent by teletype to a control room, where another operator sends the new price over the ticker system to all offices subscribing to the service.

PRESS FIGHT ON SOFT COAL PRICE ON TWO FRONTS

Consumers' Counsel Acts to Protect Public.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 8.—[Special.]—The fight against the minimum soft coal prices, fixed by the national bituminous coal commission, was advanced on two fronts today.

John Carson, consumers' counsel for the commission who has split with the commission over the secrecy with which the commission surrounded its methods of determining of soft coal prices, moved to protect consumer interests in two actions.

Before the interstate commerce commission, the consumers' counsel introduced a brief attacking the high profits the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Virginian and the Norfolk and Western railroads are enjoying under present rates. The counsel joined with the state corporation counsel of Virginia and ninety-eight industrial consumers seeking a reduction in a $2.65 a ton freight rate from the Pocahontas fields of eastern Virginia, which are said to yield the roads a net profit of 93 cents a ton.

Insists It "Shocks Conscience."

The consumers' brief asserted it "shocks the conscience" to maintain high rates for prosperous lines. Other needy roads, it was said, get so small a profit from coal hauling as to do them little good.

In a second action Carson called upon the coal commission to suspend its minimum coal prices unless it grants a public hearing within three weeks at which it will submit evidence to substantiate schedules, which, he charged, now fail to meet the requirements of the statute.

Large tonnages of trucking and lake cargo coal, he says were not included by the commission on Nov. 30 in establishing minimum prices for the areas east of the Mississippi purportedly calculated to bring a reutrn equal to the weighted average costs of production as required by congress. He charges further that subsequent changes in the schedules also disrupt this prescribed relationship.

Fix Wholesaler's Discounts.

Failure of the commission to fix wholesaler's discounts, he also points out, has permitted producers to grant any discount they desire and hence further to make impossible any determination as to whether the prices meet the law.

Carson cites twenty-one instances in which, since June 28, last, he made representations to the commission urging adoption of procedure to meet the objections now raised or seeking information, formally and informally, on which the law requires the commission's prompt compliance. In fourteen of these instances, the petition says, no action was ever taken by the commission. In three instances the commission refused information and in four only partially complied. The petition further alleges two violations by the commission of oral stipulations as to procedure.

State Unemployment Tax Will Become Due Jan. 29

The taxpayers' calendar published by THE TRIBUNE Saturday morning showed Jan. 31 as the day for payment of the Illinois unemployment compensation tax for 1937 under form UC-2. This was correct, but the calendar did not make it clear that the tax should be paid on or before Jan. 29 if the 90 per cent credit against the payment due the federal government Jan. 31 is to be obtained.

House Furnishing Exhibit to Open Today at Stevens

The National House Furnishing Exhibit, expected to attract about 4,000 buyers, opens today at the Stevens hotel, Warren Edwards, secretary of the National House Furnishing Manufacturers association, which conducts the exhibit, announced yesterday. Displays of 500 manufacturers will fill 400 rooms, Edwards said. The exhibit will close Saturday.

BANKERS FIND PART OF PUBLIC IS A BIT SOUR

Survey Shows 43 Per Cent Hold Prejudice.

In a survey of a "Middletown of Banking," 43 per cent of the people interviewed were prejudiced against banking, and 57 per cent had no prejudice, according to results announced yesterday by the American Bankers' association, New York, which made the study.

The city chosen for the survey, which included twenty questions and was undertaken to demonstrate to banks some methods of testing public opinion in their communities, was not disclosed, but was described as one of "about 50,000 and adjacent to other sizable municipalities of similar character." It was also said to have "an active mercantile life, with some industrial enterprises."

Basis for Prejudice.

The questions were put to 507 persons of "all classes." Of the 43 per cent who were prejudiced against banking, 17 per cent based their feeling on local banking history, 8 per cent were prejudiced against banking in general, 8 per cent had social prejudice against it, and 10 per cent had a combined prejudice.

In answer to the question, "Which professional or business group do you think is helping the community most to get back on its feet?" 48 per cent answered "builders," 29 per cent said "retail merchants," and 14 per cent replied "bankers."

Blame Politicians Most.

Another question was: Which of these groups do you blame most for the economic difficulties we have just come through? [The survey was conducted in the third quarter of 1937, and the "difficulties" referred to were those which began in 1929.] Thirty-six per cent of those interviewed blamed the politicians, 32 per cent blamed the bankers, and 7 per cent accused the builders.

Forty-four per cent of the 507 questioned thought that manufacturers were the group on which the "recovery in the country as a whole most depends," 26 per cent answered that it was the baking group, and 15 per cent thought the politicians.

Draw Conclusions from Survey.

In commenting on the results of the study, the association said:

"The broad threefold conclusion to be drawn from the data gathered in this particular community is, on the one hand, that a large segment of public opinion, 32 per cent, holds that bankers were responsible for the depression and 26 per cent that they have the most important rôle to play in recovery, while, on the other hand, a relatively small segment of public opinion believes that they are now playing a foremost part in aiding local recovery—namely, only 14 per cent."

"Should the government have more, less, or the present control of money and credit?" was a question which brought a fair distribution of replies. Thirty-eight per cent favored the present control, 29 per cent wanted less control, 26 per cent wanted more control, and 7 per cent were noncommittal.

CANADIAN LOADINGS FALL.

Freight loading by Canadian railroads during the week ended Jan. 1 totaled 36,433 cars, against 39,188 in the preceding week and 36,152 a year ago, the dominion bureau of statistics reported yesterday.

Taking Chances.

When stock prices are low, there always are many persons looking for securities which will double or treble in value. Investors' Guide advises its readers to stick to securities of investment grade rather than to try for appreciation. It was pointed out in this column last Sunday the even high grade securities offer opportunities for appreciation when market levels are low.

Those who wish to take a chance, and who can afford to do so, should approach the question of appreciation by consideration both of individual companies and industries as a whole.

An obvious opportunity for better than average, sometimes phenomenal appreciation in value is presented by securities of new companies—either in new or established industries. The stakes are high, the risk a big one, however, in either case.

* * *

In tackling a new industry you not only should be sure that the industry has promise, but must be lucky enough to choose one of the companies that will make good rather than one that will later on drop out of the race because the pace is too swift.

If you plan to put money into a new company in an established industry, you must consider the competition it will meet. Perhaps it never will get anywhere.

One way to seek appreciation is to find an established small company that is going places, one that may build itself up to a place of leadership. These "sleepers" are hard to find.

* * *

Industries of a so-called feast or famine nature frequently present unusual opportunities for increases—or decreases—in market values. Securities of such companies fluctuate widely. Steel and copper companies belong in this group.

Steel companies require a moderate production volume to break even. Above that point, profits increase sharply. An excellent example of fluctuation is furnished by U. S. Steel common stock—from $261 a share in 1929 to $21 a share in 1932 to $126 last March and back under $50 a few weeks ago.

Copper companies illustrate the importance of prices. None can make money when copper is selling for 5 or 6 cents a pound. With 15 cent copper they literally coin money. Stock prices fluctuate accordingly.

USE OF CHECKS INDICATES RISE IN TRADE TOTAL

But Volume Runs Below That of Year Ago.

Business as measured by bank check transactions in the Chicago reserve district increased in the week ended Wednesday compared with the preceding week, but still was not as active as in the corresponding period a year ago.

Debits for Nation Rise.

Debits to individual deposit accounts [checks cashed] in the 41 principal cities in the district amounted to $1,392,111,000, an increase of 19.7 per cent over $1,163,326,000 in the preceding week, but 3.6 per cent less than the total for the corresponding week a year ago, when the debits were $1,443,633,000.

Debits for the entire country for the week ended Wednesday totaled $10,018,519, compared with $8,523,029 in the preceding week, and $10,478,888 in the week ended Jan. 6, 1937.

Chicago bank clearings in the week ended yesterday were $22,000,000 larger than in the corresponding 1936 week. Clearings reported by the member banks of the Chicago Clearing House association totaled $377,000,000, compared to $355,000,000 a year ago.

Chicago Bank Clearings.

The daily record of Chicago bank clearings for the week follow:

Monday	$100,000,000	$15,200,000

Total for Week..	$377,000,000	$43,700,000
Week last year....	$355,000,000	$34,100,000

New York bank clearings for the week ended yesterday were $3,945,307,895, compared with $3,074,348,446 in the preceding week.

BONDS ADVANCE, LOWER PRICED RAILS LEADERS

New York, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Advances were made all along the line in the bond market today. Best performances were turned in by some of the low priced rails and other issues recently under pressure.

United States governments were little changed in small trading. Advances ranged up to 3-32 of a point and losses were as much.

Several issues of Lehigh Valley Coal made wide savings. One loan bounded 9 points and two others advanced 2 to 3 points. It was announced yesterday holders had agreed to an extension of some notes that matured on Jan. 1.

An issue of a Baltimore and Ohio subsidiary line dropped 8 points on a single sale, but most B. & O. direct liens were higher.

Japanese bonds made further progress, but other foreign dollar bonds did little.

CHICAGO STOCKS MOVE UPWARD FOR SEVENTH DAY

Prices moved upward yesterday on the Chicago stock exchange, with sales of 20,000 shares, the same number traded on the preceding Saturday. Eight of the 10 volume leaders advanced, and the other two were unchanged.

THE TRIBUNE average of 20 stocks showed an advance for the seventh consecutive day. It stood at 10.48 at the close, up 0.25 from Friday's close. Of the 79 issues traded, 54 advanced, nine declined and 16 were unchanged.

Volume of trading for the week was 152,000 shares, compared with 273,000 shares in the preceding week and 411,000 shares in the corresponding 1937 week. During the week, 165 issues were traded, of which 125 advanced, 22 declined and 18 were unchanged.

COTTON

Cotton markets opened slightly easier yesterday as the result of hedging pressure which offset strength in Liverpool, but commission house buying influenced by the upturn in securities caused a rally. Closing trades on the Chicago Board of Trade were unchanged to .06 cent higher. Other markets were unchanged to .05 cent a pound higher.

A total of 4,428,000 bales of cotton was reported pledged as collateral for government loans as of Jan. 6. Exports of American cotton from Aug. 1 to Jan. 7 aggregated 3,564,000 bales, compared with 3,115,000 bales during the same period in 1936-'37.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to .05 cent higher with New Orleans, 8.75 cents; New York, 8.60 cents; Houston, 8.50 cents, and Galveston at 8.45 cents a pound. Prices follow:

BUSINESS HIGH SCHOOL WILL BE OPENED JAN. 31

Registration Starts at Jones Unit.

Registrations for Chicago's new public commercial high school at 615 Plymouth court began last week as workmen rushed to complete their tasks so that classes can start when the new semester opens on Jan. 31, it was announced by Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools.

Five hundred boys and girls, chosen for the excellence of their work in the first two years of high school, will report for instruction when the new school opens. They will be in charge of a faculty of 20 teachers who have had special training in commercial subjects.

A principal, teachers, and a coördinator are yet to be chosen, Dr. Johnson said. Benjamin J. Knauss, director of commercial studies for the board of education, will be acting principal until a permanent appointment is made. Miss Marion Noelle, former teacher in the Hirsch High school, has been named assistant principal of the new downtown school.

Retains Name of Jones.

The new school, like the old elementary school that it replaces, will continue to bear the name of William Jones, president of Chicago's first board of education.

The Jones school is unique, officials say, because it is the first publicly conducted preparatory institution to offer its students all the skill and knowledge they require to hold down positions in offices or stores.

For this reason, Chicago's business leaders will watch the progress of the Jones school with more than ordinary interest. The undertaking also is being followed closely by educators from other cities, who see the possibility that they may profit from the experience that Chicago is about to gain.

Four main subjects will be covered by the Jones school curriculum, Dr. Johnson announced. These are stenography, bookkeeping, clerical practice, and selling and merchandising.

Business Machinery Classes.

In addition to these there will be instruction in the operation and care of business machinery, such as billing machines, addressing devices, calculators, and the like. To make this instruction as broad as possible, the school board has purchased representative units from the larger manufacturers of business equipment.

An important part of the Jones school setup will be the placement bureau, which will help graduates to find employment when they finish the commercial course.

The coördinator will function in connection with this division. He will be the contact between the school and the business world. He will keep in touch with the newest developments in business practices and equipment, so that the school may shape its policies to meet all major changes.

No College Qualifications.

Every graduate of Jones High school will receive a four year high school diploma, which, however, will not qualify him for college entrance, Dr. Johnson said. The school is intended to attract only boys and girls who do not plan to go on to college, but, rather, to enter the business field upon completion of their high school studies.

Thus the Jones school is one of the first exponents of Dr. Johnson's recently announced plan to provide vocational specialization for the great mass of high school pupils who do not intend to go on to college.

Successful completion of ninth and tenth grade work is a requirement for entrance in the Jones High school, Dr. Johnson said. Because of the high demand for the new courses, the school will accept only those who have excelled in the preparatory grades, it has been decided.

The entering pupil will choose his or her courses with the aid of a well trained vocational counselor. He will be free to select his own specialty, but he will be required to take, among other studies, instruction in English, United States history, and physical and health education.

Built in 1872.

The present location was chosen chiefly for its central location, Dr. Johnson said. Although the four story, 16 room building was erected in 1872, to house the Jones elementary school, it is in a good state of preservation, and $25,000 has been spent to remodel and recondition it completely, the superintendent pointed out.

Growth of the downtown business section forced abandonment of the building as an elementary training center about 20 years ago. In 1918 it was converted into a commercial continuation school for the benefit of young office workers who wished to improve their skill and knowledge.

In 1932 these part time workers were transferred to the Washburne trade school at Sedgwick and Division streets. The Jones school building had been vacant since then.

Registrations for the Jones school are being received by the bureau of commercial studies of the school board in room 426 at 228 North La Salle street. Application forms have been distributed in the various high schools.

U. of C. Editor Finds Campus Religion Gains

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Dean Gilkey.
[Walinger Photo.]

Religion is going ahead on the University of Chicago campus according to Student John Morris, in the current issue of Pulse, official student magazine of the Midway which he edits.

Although adorned with campus wise cracks as the editor outlined the struggles of religion on the city's southerly campus, the article concluded—giving sound reasons—that revival is a word to be used with safety when associated with prevailing views of campus religion.

Revival also is associated with what Mr. Morris described as the phenomenal growth of the Chapel union under the leadership of Dean Charles W. Gilkey and Robert Giffen, assistant to the dean. Mr. Giffen explained that the Chapel union was different from anything on the American campus.

"The Chapel union cannot be compared with the board of religion on Northwestern university's Evanston campus," said Mr. Giffen, "because control of policy and program resides in ten local churches located near the Midway. These churches, however, do not have to give financial support to the union. That comes thus far from the general boards of the Methodist, Presbyterian, and Baptist denominations."

The Churches Coöperating.

The coöperating churches near the university, named by Mr. Giffen, are the University Church of the Disciples, First Unitarian, Hyde Park Baptist, Woodlawn Baptist, First Baptist, United Church of Hyde Park, First Presbyterian, Hyde Park Methodist, Woodlawn Park Methodist, and St. James Methodist. He added that negotiations are going forward for the First Society of Friends [Quakers] and the Mormon church toward coöperation in the setup.

Mr. Giffen recently surveyed registration cards for religious affiliations of all students on the campus. Although he found that 46.6 per cent of all registrants named no specific religious faith, he explained that many ignored the question entirely. Members of the Jewish faith outnumber others with a percentage within a small fraction of ten. Methodism is second with 8.3 per cent. Presbyterian and Catholic students are about equal at about 7 and one-half per cent. These denominations are followed in order by Episcopalians, Congregationalists, Lutherans, and Disciples.

In Mr. Morris' Pulse article, the religious history of the Rockefeller Memorial chapel was outlined since its dedication.

"The chapel was finished in 1929," the article stated. "It was to be a concrete representation of Mr. Rockefeller's desire that religion should dominate the quadrangles. Perhaps Mr. Rockefeller was thinking of religion that is concerned with souls, but it was clear immediately that the religion housed by the chapel was to be concerned with society.

Tells Chapel Policy.

"Charles Whitney Gilkey was installed as dean of the new edifice and nominal charge of the chapel program was given to a faculty student board of social service and religion. The program was to be nondenominational. That meant that it would be broad and vague. The speakers were to give addresses, not sermons, and they were to be men of broad social views, not necessarily theologians.

"The chapel program has been little more than a lecture course in current affairs, provided in a beautiful architectural and musical setting. Sunday after Sunday the scheme of things has been lined up for chapel audiences as Fascism and communism vs democracy. The most flagrantly political speech of all chapel history was last year's address by Mme. Secretary Perkins. In practically all chapel services the word religion has been carelessly bandied about, with the prevalent connotation of the sum of human activity viewed at a distance."

Describes Union Founding.

Mr. Morris then described the founding last year of the Chapel union. Dean Gilkey, he said, found that students were bothered by a sense of loneliness, by the impersonality of a vast institution and by the simple fear that they did not fit in.

"A meeting was called of the chapel council [on social service and religion] and a few other students. The result," Mr. Morris' article explained, "was the founding of the Chapel union, an organization intended to open to every student the opportunity to participate in the religious and social service life of the university."

HIGHLAND CIVIC PLANNING GROUP TO INSTALL STAF

Officers will be instaled tomorrow evening by the Highland Improvement association in Timothy school hall, 83d and Paulina streets. The association formerly has been known as the Beverly Gardens Improvement club.

The installing officer will be William O'Malley, master in chancery. Members to be inducted in office are C. P. Maes, president; J. P. Jutzl, vice president; J. J. Donnelly, recording secretary; Mrs. Agnes Stephens, financial secretary; Anton Hassur, treasurer, and P. J. Sontos, sergeant-at-arms.

The Sport of Kings --- and Queens

The sport of kings will ever be a favorite whether it snows or shines and young high school enthusiasts canter bareheaded through all the seasons. Members of the Calumet High School Equestrienne club ride weekly at the University Riding club. Two students who know how to handle the reins are, left to right: Miss Lorraine Curtin, 8019 Carpenter street, and Miss Rhoda Jasmund, 8229 Paulina street. [Tribune Photo.]

New Brownie Pack.

A newly organized Brownie pack will hold its first meeting at 3:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Seventh Presbyterian church, 86th place and Sangamon street. Members are girls from 7 to 10 years old. They will be under the direction of Mrs. Mahoney assisted by Mrs. Raymond L. Fern, 858 West 87th street.

Mercy Mothers to Meet.

The Mercy Mothers' auxiliary will meet at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in Mercy High school, 8100 Prairie avenue.

AUBURN PARK CLUB TO FETE FOUNDER OF LIONS INTERNATIONAL

Melvin Jones.

The Auburn Park Lions' club will be host to the founder of the International Lions' club, Melvin Jones, secretary-general, Wednesday noon at Greene's restaurant, 79th and Halsted streets, on the occasion of his birthday anniversary. Mr. Jones will speak on "Lionism and Its Influence on Community Development."

Mr. Jones began the International Lions' club in 1917 in Chicago with twenty loop business men. He will tell how the club has grown in the last twenty years to a total of 85,000 members from the United States, Alaska, Cuba, Canada, Mexico, Porto Rico, South America, and China.

Participating in the celebration will be Frank P. Hildon, president of the Marquette Lions' club; Dr. Ivan Haag, president of the Beverly Lions' club, and Dr. J. R. Logue, president of the Chatham Lions' club. John G. Rietz, 7936 Indiana avenue, governor, will be a special guest.

New members to be inducted at the meeting are John Fagan, 3234 West 69th street; Harold Strouce, 700 West 79th street; Harry F. Yates, 9321 Loomis boulevard, and Wesley D. Lapell, 854 West 87th street.

CHINESE LEGATE TO GIVE CALVARY DINNER ADDRESS

Gung-Hsing Wang, vice consul in charge of the Chicago Chinese embassy, will be guest speaker at the annual banquet of the Calvary Community brotherhood tomorrow evening in the Calvary Methodist church, 78th and Morgan streets.

Mr. Wang has represented the Chinese republic in Chicago since 1930. He has lectured throughout the state on the current situation in the east and will speak on the same topic tomorrow evening.

QUEEN TO REIGN OVER OGDEN PARK ICE FETE TODAY

Best Costumed to Win Special Prizes.

Selection of an Ice Queen and a Mardi Gras with numerous costume prizes will be features of the ice carnival to be held in Ogden park starting at 2 o'clock today. The carnival is sponsored jointly by the Kiwanis club of Englewood and the park district.

The queen contest, in which judging will be on the basis of appearance, personality, costume, and skating ability, is one of five events that are open to skaters from all parts of the city. There will also be eight closed events.

The other four open events are: A two mile race for men, an 880 yard race for women, a race for pairs of men and women skating together, and a figure skating competition for men and women.

Restricted to Area.

Four of the eight closed events are for girls and four are for boys. Participation in these events is restricted to residents of Section Two of the park district, which is bounded on the north by the Chicago river, on the west by the city limits, on the south by 75th street, and on the east by the lake.

There will be a 110 yard dash for boys 11 years old and younger, and a similar race for girls in the same age group. There will be a 440 yard dash for boys of 14 and under, and a 220 yard dash for girls of that age classification.

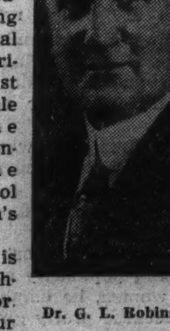
For boys of 18 and under there will be an 880 yard race, which will be followed by a 220 yard dash for girls of the same age. The senior boys' mile race will be matched by an 880 yard dash for senior girls.

Leaders in Carnival.

William M. Collins, director of Section Two, and Robert Bantz, director of Ogden park, will be in active charge of the carnival. The Kiwanis club officials coöperating are Dr. Arthur Volkman, president; L. C. Smith, vice president; Frank Burke, treasurer; Clarence Babb, secretary, and Edgar Bradford, chairman of the boys' and girls' committee.

Plans have been made for postponement of the carnival until next Wednesday evening if weather does not permit the events today.

NORMAL PARK CHURCH TO HAVE BIBLE TALKS BY CLERIC-TRAVELER



Dr. G. L. Robinson.

A series of 10 Wednesday evening lectures on the Bible, to be given by Dr. George L. Robinson of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of Chicago, will begin Wednesday evening in the Normal Park Presbyterian church, 71st street and Yale avenue. The course is sponsored by the church school and the women's association.

Dr. Robinson is a traveler, author, and professor. He has spent four years in Palestine and 10 years in Egypt, Germany, Great Britain, and Canada. For two summers he was interchange preacher of the Presbyterian church of Great Britain, and has written and published five religious books. He is known as the discoverer of the "Great High Place," or sanctuary of the Edomites at Petra.

Dr. and Mrs. Robinson will be special guests at the monthly church dinner Wednesday evening in the church. The Rev. Clifford L. Le Duc, pastor, will be toastmaster. Stanley H. Baker is superintendent of the church school.

CRESCENDO CLUB TO GIVE PUBLIC CONCERT SUNDAY

The Crescendo Musical club will hold a public concert next Sunday afternoon in the Bethany Union church, 103d and Wood streets. The participating artists will be members of the club. Miss Pearl Appel and Miss Ruth Alexander, duo pianists, will play several selections and Miss Margaret Heywood Wood, lyric soprano and teacher of voice, will be soloist. Mark S. Hallett, conductor of the Euterpean chorus, the Morgan Park Woman's club chorus, and the Munster Choral society, will play organ numbers.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

Miss Margaret J. Brown.

ONE OF the six students in the sophomore class at Mount Holyoke college, South Hadley, Mass., who received honors for achieving an average of 90 per cent or higher during the year 1936-1937 was Miss Margaret J. Brown of Morgan Park. Miss Brown also won a competitive scholarship in piano. After spending the Christmas holidays here in Chicago, she will return to college today.

Members of the Park Manor Crusaders club, composed of boys and girls in the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades of the Park Manor school, did their annual duty when they journeyed to Cook County hospital during the Christmas season with presents for 200 men patients. They bought the gifts with proceeds from dues and the sale of Christmas cards. Margaret Kuglin is president of the group.

RESTING up after almost 51 years of service in the railroad business, Charles C. Garvey, 7234 Jeffery avenue, 68 years old, is taking it easy in the Santa Fe hospital in Topeka, Kas. Mr. Garvey recently retired after several years as city ticket agent for the Santa Fe railroad, with which he spent his entire career. Mr. Garvey, who went to school with former Vice President Charles Curtis and Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, became the friend of many of the country's notables during the many years he sold travel tickets.

The law firm of Dilley, Bjork and Blair last week announced the association of William R. Gunner, 1845 West 108th place, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gunner, with the firm. Mr. Gunner is a graduate of Morgan Park high school, the University of Illinois and Chicago Kent College of Law.

FOR the first time in the history of Hirsch high school there will be two valedictorians of a graduating class. The honors for the February class have gone to May Rydberg, 7131 Drexel avenue, and Reeva Novy, 7545 Essex avenue, both of whom have an average of 95.75. May, who came from Sweden in 1930 and was graduated from Revere grammar school in 1934, intends to work during the day and attend night school after she leaves Hirsch. Reeva, a graduate of Bryn Mawr grammar school, will enter the University of Chicago in February and expects later to become a social worker.

Benny Aron, talented 13-year-old who lives at 3236 West 66th place, was awarded a silver cup by popular vote of the audience at the final 1937 amateur contest at Sherman park fieldhouse. Benny writes his own radio skits entitled "Crime Doesn't Pay," produces his own sound effects, and impersonates ten characters in his performances.

MR. AND MRS. J. CHARLES BARBER, 3624 Lake Park avenue, made it a double holiday on New Year's day by celebrating their 59th wedding anniversary. Mr. Barber helped construct the buildings of the World's Fair of 1893 and still possesses the hammer which he used on the dome of the old Fine Arts building, now the Rosenwald museum. They have one son, Edgar, a technical engineer in the motion picture business in Hollywood.

TWINS OF EIGHT SCHOOLS TO HAVE SKATING PARTY

Eight Twin clubs of southwest side high schools will hold a roller skating rally Tuesday evening in the Planet roller rink, 8039 Halsted street. The rally will be held for the purpose of introducing southwest side twins to each other.

The Twin clubs originated at Calumet High school which numbers the most sets of twins. Schools to be represented are Calumet, Harper, Fenger, Lindblom, Tilden, Morgan Park, Kelly, and Hirsch.

The committee of twins arranging the program include Genevieve and Gertrude Kunka of Calumet, Eric and Evelyn Plahn of Harper, and Charles and Robert Bult of Fenger. Joseph E. Dickman, sponsor of the Calumet Gemini club, will supervise the event.

BISHOP WALDORF TO TALK TONIGHT AT THOBURN M. E.

"What Next?" will be the topic of a talk by Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, resident bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church of Rock River conference, this evening in the Thoburn Methodist Episcopal church, 64th and Paulina streets.

Archer Ballantine, baritone, will be soloist and special music will be furnished by the Thoburn choir of 75 voices and the Thoburn orchestra of 30 pieces. The orchestra is under the direction of Henry Elsnic.

At 11 o'clock this morning the Rev. John H. DeLacy, pastor, will hold a memorial service for members of the congregation who died within the last month. Mrs. R. A. Norris will be soloist.

DOUBLE TRACKS CALLED DEATH TRAP TO DRIVER

Signals Serve One of Two Lines.

Adequate warning for motorists at the 130th street crossing of the Michigan Central railroad, where two deaths have occurred since last summer, was demanded last week by representatives of civic, business, and improvement groups of the south side comprising the South Area council of the Chicago Motor club. Necessity of protective signals has been increased since the opening of the Stony Island avenue extension to 130th street a few blocks east of the railway crossing and the resultant use of 130th street as a lateral artery from the southwest to the loop, it was pointed out by Charles P. Thompson of Flossmoor, who follows the route twice daily.

The danger to motorists at the crossroads is increasing because the tracks of the Chicago, South Shore and South Bend railroad parallel the Michigan Central tracks only a few feet to the east and warning flashers and bell protect drivers only against approaching trains on the South Shore Line.

Follows Council Action.

The action by the motor council follows closely on an order from the city council, requested by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], directing the corporation counsel to petition the Illinois commerce commission for protection. Ald. Lindell is now awaiting notification of the date on which the commission will hold a hearing.

While the South Shore tracks are protected with automatic red wigwag signals and an electric bell, the Michigan Central crossing has only a black and white wooden crossing sign to warn motorists.

The South Shore tracks curve eastward just south of the crossing, thus making the visibility of trains more difficult. As a result of the banking of the South Shore tracks for the curve, there is a dip between the two sets of tracks. Fogs and mists often add to the danger.

In the county highway system's program the multiple crossing is scheduled for a grade separation construction under the projects outlined for 1940.

Tells of Heavy Trafic.

Among the south side business men and motorists who have protested against the situation is Mr. Thompson, president of the Calumet Coal company, who uses the new route twice daily going to and from his place of business.

"I am appalled at the situation," he said. "There are no signal lights, no gates, and no watchman. A heavily traveled highway such as 130th street has now become carries thousands of motorists daily across that railroad with absolutely no protection beyond their own vigilance and luck."

Mr. Thompson explained that at night a westbound motorist passing over the South Shore tracks immediately after a train has passed and the lights of that crossing have stopped flashing may find himself on the unprotected Michigan Central tracks before realizing his perilous position. Conversely, he pointed out, an eastbound driver may observe the South Shore lights and, with them as his stopping objective, drive on to the unprotected Michigan Central tracks, slowing down as he does so.

Says Lights Are Dim.

Walter R. Drennan, president of the South Shore Investment company and the Flossmoor Country club, expressed himself as follows:

"I drive over that crossing often going to and from Flossmoor and I find it very dangerous because of the absolutely unguarded Michigan Central tracks. To add to the danger of its being a multiple crossing is the fact that the lights guarding the South Shore tracks are often too dim to be easily visible during the day. They should have stronger lights for a crossing on such a heavily traveled route."

J. L. Hess, head of the real estate company which bears his name, said that he used the route an average of three times a week.

Says Driver Is Fooled.

"The Michigan Central crossing at present is just an ordinary, unprotected one which should be equipped with lights. When the South Shore lights are on they fool a driver as far as protection for the Michigan Central is concerned. There also is a dip in the pavement between the two crossings. This distracts the motorist when he should be able to concentrate completely on the visibility of approaching trains."

Safety Committee Head Will Address Kiwanians

George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Town of Lake Kiwanis club Tuesday noon in the University of Chicago Settlement, 4630 McDowell avenue. He will be introduced by Frank Covert, president of the club.

St. Nicholas Young People to Dance for Building Fund

The St. Nicholas Young People's club will hold a church building fund dance Saturday evening in the school hall, 3745 West 62d street.

SUBURBAN AREA COUNCIL MAPS ACCIDENT DATA

Seeks to Extend Trafic Danger Records.

Centralization of trafic accident reporting for the Chicago area, the major accomplishment of the Suburban Safety council last year, is to be extended this year to include every municipality in the area with a police department.

This announcement was made last week by Charles F. Scheel of La Grange, chairman-elect of the safety group, who will take office at the first 1938 meeting tomorrow at 185 North Wabash avenue.

All but six of the 23 cities and villages represented in the council membership have adopted the "standard accident location file," as the heart of the centralized system is called, Mr. Scheel reported. Five other member towns are now installing the file, and it is expected that the system will be adopted by the 40 or more smaller communities which maintain full-time police protection, the chairman-elect said.

Find Danger Spots.

George F. Brown of Glencoe, the retiring chairman, pointed out that the new plan of correlating the vehicular accident experience of outlying cities and villages has resulted in the elimination of several potential death traps.

That these spots were unusually hazardous was known previously, but it required the sort of study made possible by the new records to find the causes and correct them, Mr. Brown said.

Essential features of the new record plan were explained last week by W. H. Klapproth, a trafic engineer for the state highway department and secretary of the suburban council, who has charge of the centralized system.

Police in each of the member towns are provided with standard forms to fill out for all trafic accidents. Each week they submit these reports to the central file in Mr. Klapproth's office. Here the accidents reported are set down on spot maps.

Pins Show Dangers.

When two or more pins dot the same highway location it means that some peculiar circumstance or set of circumstances is causing motorists to come to grief. Here the exhaustive record system proves its value.

"Accident causes are not always easy to find, even with complete records," Mr. Klapproth said. "Often it is necessary to study a scene before the underlying reason for repeated mishaps becomes apparent.

"Perhaps a tree or clump of shrubbery is blocking motorists' view of cross trafic. Possibly the topography of the location is such that the headlights of oncoming cars dazzle drivers' eyes and affect their judgment of distance and direction.

"It may be in one case that accidents are occurring because warning signs are absent," he said, "while in another the difficulty is that drivers are not observing existing signs, thus indicating the necessity of special enforcement attention.

Remedies Are Suggested.

"Whatever the cause, it can be found by use of the new records. Then our procedure is to call the attention of local authorities to the condition and suggest remedies. If the accident scene is not in a municipal jurisdiction, the condition is referred to county or state highway officials."

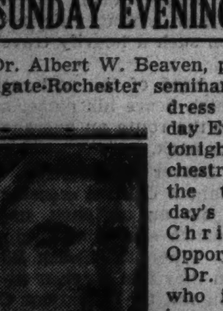
Several of the cities and towns were using the standard accident forms when the council opened its drive for their general adoption, Mr. Klapproth said. The council helped install the system in 14 of the towns.

Baptist Youths to Hear Discussion of Intolerance

The Chicago Round Table of Jews and Christians will sponsor a discussion of prejudice and intolerance and the ways to combat these ills at the meeting of the Young People's society of the First Baptist church, 935 East 50th street, at 6:30 o'clock this evening. The leaders will be Dr. James M. Yard, secretary of the Chicago Round Table; Dr. B. C. Ehrenreich, former rabbi of Montgomery, Ala., and Mrs. W. S. Hefferan of the Chicago board of education.

DR. ALBERT BEAVEN TO SPEAK TONIGHT AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Dr. Albert W. Beaven, president of Colgate-Rochester seminary, will address the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall on the topic "Today's Need and Christianity's Opportunity."



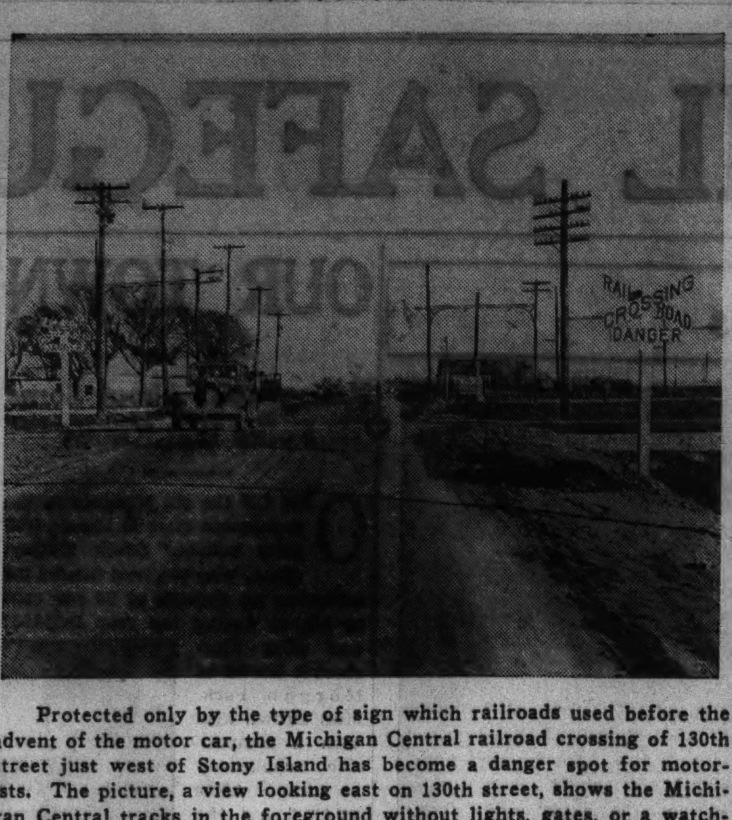
Dr. A. W. Beaven.

Dr. Beaven, who is completing a trip around the world, will base the factual portions of his talk on the observations he made in the war areas of Europe and the orient. For 20 years he was pastor of the Lake Avenue church, Rochester, N. Y., where he became known both as an educator and a preacher. For many years Dr. Beaven was head of the federal council of churches and is still a leader in that organization.

The Greig male chorus of 50 voices, winners of the male chorus section in the Chicagoland Music Festival last August, will give a program at the 7 o'clock service. In some of the numbers the audience will join. This male chorus is in its 17th season and is composed of choir singers from sixteen Lutheran churches on the northwest side.

130th Street Death Crossing

(Story on page 1.)



Protected only by the type of sign which railroads used before the advent of the motor car, the Michigan Central railroad crossing of 130th street just west of Stony Island has become a danger spot for motorists. The picture, a view looking east on 130th street, shows the Michigan Central tracks in the foreground without lights, gates, or a watchman. In the background are the South Shore line tracks, protected by blinker lights. South Side officials and business men have started a campaign to have the Illinois commerce commission order the installation of safety equipment. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

WPA SCANS 123 YEARS' NEWS FOR POPULAR TRENDS

Staf Records Rise and Fall in Prejudices.

Sidelights on the American scene that are too often unchronicled by the historians—the prides and prejudices of the populace as recorded in the press—are the special objectives of a staf of research workers who are poring over the musty files of the public library.

These workers are enrolled in a project of the Works Progress administration recently conceived and sponsored by the city government.

The researchers are scanning each day's news from 1813 to 1936 as it is recorded in the library's newspaper volumes, recording the trend of popular taste in news and public prejudice as portrayed in both editorial material and advertisments.

When their task is complete, their findings will be matched against the results of a similar research among the foreign language newspapers of the city. This will help in determining the extent to which racial groups have exerted their influence on American affairs, and vice versa, according to H. K. Seltzer, Chicago WPA director.

Facts for Historians.

Facts unearthed by the research are to be made available to historians later through the Chicago public library and through the libraries of Northwestern university and the University of Chicago.

Workers in the present survey operate by copying advertisments that refer to nationality, race or creed, and by classifying news and measuring the space given to each subject to show how the editors sized up contemporary public interest.

The advertisments are historically significant, Mr. Seltzer said, because they map unconsciously the trend of prejudice as evidenced by the exclusion of certain religions, colors, and nationalities. A comparison with the foreign language research is expected to show whether some of these prejudices were started by adopted citizens of the nation.

Already the project has shown that there has been a steady rise since 1871 in public interest in sports, labor matters, and women's affairs, Mr. Seltzer reported.

Baseball and Prejudices.

Baseball, America's outstanding contribution to the world of sports, has held the undisputed lead here for the last 66 years, at least, the research indicates. Another fact that becomes more apparent as the investigation progresses is that popular prejudice moves in waves and cycles.

Much curious information is being uncovered in the search for new sources for Illinois historians. For instance, one of the 800 periodicals of the foreign language survey advances the surprising statement that it was Alexander the Great who discovered America. That periodical was published in Greek.

This claim is not substantiated by the Welsh press, which holds steadfastly in one historical sketch that a Welshman landed on these shores long before Leif Eriksen and his hard-bitten travelers got here.

UNITED CHURCH TO INSTALL NEW BOARD MEMBERS

Twenty-one new members of official boards of the United Church of Hyde Park, 53d street and Blackstone avenue, will be installed at the regular services this morning. Four new trustees will be Frank C. Everitt, Noble W. Lee, Dr. Dudley B. Reed and Fred L. Thomas. Dr. Reed will be 1938 chairman.

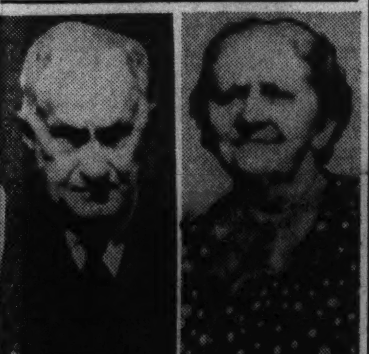
New elders will be Dr. J. M. Artman, Loren H. Carter, Lyman T. Crossman, Ward W. Gray, C. H. Marquis, J. Woods McCausland, Dr. J. T. McNeill, Warren G. Moore, Miss Frances Swain and Mrs. Leon E. Tompkins.

W. L. Fleming, B. A. Moore, Chester Rumpf, Dr. Edna Russell, Milne C. Storms, Dr. William C. Van Benschoten, and Miss Edith Viele will be installed as members of the board of benevolences.

Regina Winter Memorial Club to Meet Tuesday

The Regina Winter Memorial club will meet at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the Southmoor hotel, 67th street and Stony Island avenue. Mrs. Dora Neuman, 830 East 53d street, president, will have charge of a card party following the business meeting.

Golden Wedding



Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hasley, 510 West Garfield boulevard, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last Sunday with open house. They have three sons and three daughters, five grandchildren, and one great-grandchild. Since their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Hasley have resided on the southwest side.

NOVICE ARCHERS COMPETE TODAY IN PARK TOURNEY

Indoor Meet to Be Held at Columbus Range.

Novice archers from all parts of Chicago are expected to compete in the indoor tournament to be held in Columbus park, Harrison and Central avenues, starting at 2 p. m. today, according to F. E. Kardes, director of crafts for the Chicago park district.

The shoot will be the first of a series planned by park officials to give beginners the chance to learn tournament technique without having to compete against seasoned experts. Participation is limited to craft group archers anywhere in the city who have never won an award in an archery contest.

So rapidly is archery's popularity growing that the park district's facilities are constantly being taxed to the limit in spite of several enlargements, Mr. Kardes said.

20 Indoor Ranges.

There are twenty indoor ranges in park fieldhouses, and plans for several others are afoot. Record enrollments are being reported in the shooting classes and in the craft groups that are being taught how to make and maintain bows, arrows, targets, and other necessary equipment.

Columbus park was chosen as the scene of today's tournament because it has an excellent indoor range and is centrally located, Mr. Kardes explained.

The ancient sport is finding increasing popularity among both men and women, he emphasized.

"Because pretty girls drawing bowstrings make attractive news pictures, some regard archery as purely a woman's sport," Mr. Kardes said. "But archery's fascination and the pleasure and exercise it affords know no sex lines.

Develop Grace and Poise.

"Archery is a natural social activity for people of all ages and both sexes; in fact, it is considered one of the best methods of developing grace and poise."

George Anderson, a craft instructor for the Chicago park district, will be in charge of today's contest. His assistants are Paul Tornheim, Robinson, Howard Hufford, Herbert Buell, Herbert Bart, and David Glascoff.

BUSINESS GROUP IN WOODLAWN TO MARK 30TH YEAR

As the opening event in a program which will continue several weeks in celebration of the 30th anniversary of the Woodlawn Business Men's association, the organization's luncheon meeting Tuesday at the Hayes hotel, 64th street and University avenue, will be transformed into a birthday party.

After formal installation of new officers a committee of women members headed by Mrs. Minnie L. Ray will present a birthday cake to President John Hayes.

P.-T.A.'S TO STUDY JUNIOR'S READING IN TWO COURSES

Six Weekly Classes to Open Thursday.

Father, who remembers sneaking off to the woodshed with a copy of "Red Gulch Murders" under his arm, and mother, who looks back on those rainy days when "Patsy at Boarding School" was the perfect playmate, once more will leaf the pages of their old favorites. They will be members of study groups on the guidance of children's and adolescents' reading to be sponsored this season by the Central West council of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The first meeting of both groups will be at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. The course on the guidance of children's reading will be given in the Chicago Lawn library, 62d place and Kedzie avenue, under the leadership of Miss Josephine Valley, librarian, and Mrs. G. C. Neuer, library service chairman of the Central West council. Mrs. Yolanda Yates, librarian, and Mrs. L. H. Shipley, parent-teacher chairman, will have charge of the adolescent reading class at the Sherman Park library, 53d street and Racine avenue. The classes will meet every Thursday morning for six weeks.

LEGION STARTS WORK TO OBTAIN '39 CONVENTION

Third District Places 7 in Steering Group.

Seven directors of the newly formed American Legion '39 corporation, formed to lead the movement for the national convention here in 1939, recently were elected by the third district council of the American Legion at a meeting at which Yankee post was host. The district has 7,000 members and a director was chosen for each thousand.

Directors elected were Edward Quinn, vice commander of the third district; Ald. Arthur Liandell of Roseland post, Frank Morrison of Square post, Fred Boissy of Fort Dearborn post, George Middleton of Hyde Park post, and Carter Stillwater of Giles post.

The next national convention of the Legion will be held in Los Angeles, but, according to Bud Singman, third district public relations officer, the 1939 national convention is almost certain to be held in Chicago. To plan for a 1939 Chicago convention a committee of thirty-seven directors is now being formed.

The children's orchestra, made up of children of members of Chicago Union Labor post and auxiliary, furnished music for the recent initiation ceremonies of the auxiliary of Union Labor post. Mrs. Viola Schleicher, director of the first district, assisted with the program. Mrs. Eleanor Owings, first president of the newly organized unit, presented for initiation a class of twenty-seven charter members.

Army and Navy Club post will take a leading part in the 14th annual army and navy ball to be held in the Gold room of the Congress hotel on Jan. 22. Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum and Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis will be special guests, and Brig. Gen. James A. Ryan, newly elected president of the Army and Navy club and commander of Army and Navy Club post, will be host. Lieut. Col. Harry A. Cotter is chairman of the committee on arrangements. Music will be furnished by the Cope Harvey orchestras. Lieut. Arthur Kretlow, communications officer on the U. S. S. Wilmette, will be floor manager.

Cook county council, Veterans of Foreign Wars recently presented a book and a box of candy to each veteran at Hines hospital and the Veterans' hospital at Dwight. The candy was donated by Frank Urban, and was boxed and labeled by E. P. Freeman and his committee with the assistance of Mrs. Martha Thieme and auxiliary members, under the supervision of George D. Radcliffe, past Cook county council commander.

Through the efforts of Past Commander Radcliffe 2,300 copies of the history and rhymes of "The Lost Battalion" were purchased by the council for distribution not only to the hospitals at Hines and Dwight but to veteran facilities, army, navy, and marine corps hospitals, and state and county hospitals where veterans are invalided.

Dinner and entertainment have been arranged for the annual reunion of the 415 Telegraph Signal Battalion association to be held Saturday night at the Great Northern hotel. J. J. Maher, 3723 South Rockwell street, is in charge of reservations.

Officers to be installed Friday night in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel by Ida McKinley auxiliary of Spanish War Veterans include Mrs. Anna Compoundu, president; Mrs. Ida Church, senior vice president; Mrs. Emma Miller, junior vice president; Mrs. Mary Miller, chaplain; Mrs. Josephine Lyman, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Matilda Schmidt, historian; Mrs. Vera Price, conductor; Mrs. Hulda Bettin, assistant conductor; Mrs. Lillian Hastings, guard, and Mrs. Effie Flood, assistant guard.

Others are Mrs. Evelyn Gill, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Emma Gardener, recording secretary; Mrs. Mayme Johnston, treasurer; Mrs. Agnes Olson, reporter; Mrs. Agnes Sinke, musician; Mrs. Emma Brown, Mrs. Caroline Koester, Mrs. Della Nevens, and Mrs. Hannah Bradley, color bearers; Mrs. Jannette Keller, sentinel, and Mrs. Viola Jeffery, hostess.

CARROLL FORUM WILL HEAR JANE ANDERSON ON SPANISH CIVIL WAR

Jane Anderson, war correspondent and international political writer, will be the guest speaker this afternoon at the Charles Carroll forum to be held in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house. This is the fourth of a series of lectures and forums presented by the organization, of which the Rev. James A. Magner is director and general chairman.

Jane Anderson.

Miss Anderson, who is the wife of the Marquis de Cienfuegos, is an American who has gone through the civil war in Spain. She has served as special correspondent for the London Times and has written extensively for American and Spanish publications.

Her topic this afternoon, "The Spanish Situation," will present affairs in Spain with a knowledge of conditions gained by personal experience at the battle front.

RAIL UNDERPASS PROJECT AT 103D STREET DELAYED

Why the 103d street viaduct near the north end of Lake Calumet will no be completed this week as scheduled was explained last week by Ald. William A. Rowan [10th]. This viaduct will carry 103d street trafic underneath the tracks of the Chicago and Western Indiana, the Nickel Plate, and the Belt railroads.

Both the early advent of cold weather and construction of a sewer in 103d street running from Stony Island avenue eastward to the viaduct approach have delayed work on the viaduct, the alderman said.

As a consequence, the Public Works administration, which furnished funds for the construction, was asked by the city council to extend the completion date to next Aug. 13, Mr. Rowan said.

DISTRICT CLUBS TO SPONSOR ARTS FETE TOMORROW

Site Is Masonic Temple in Englewood.

The related fine arts—homemaking, painting, literature, and music—will have a family reunion tomorrow in the Englewood Masonic temple, 6730 Wentworth avenue. The occasion will be the mid-winter fine arts festival of the 3d district, Illinois Federation of Women's clubs.

The combined program will be given in the form of a symposium with lectures and music. Mrs. Robert S. Houts, president of the Englewood Woman's club and hostess to the district, will call the meeting to order at 10:30 o'clock. After a welcoming address she will turn the meeting over to Mrs. Thomas Gifford, first vice president of the district, who will preside in the absence of Mrs. Arthur H. Swett, district president.

The afternoon program will be titled "An Evening at Home" and will be sponsored by the American home, art, literature, and music departments. The stage will be arranged in the form of a modern living room with special furnishings and illustrations to depict home arts. The setting will be under the supervision of Mrs. Harold F. Wood, American home chairman.

Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president of the Conference of Club Presidents and program chairman, will talk on "The American Home" and Mrs. Robert Harrop, art chairman, will have as her guest speaker Mrs. Herbert E. Hammond, who will discuss "The Evolution of Art in the American Home." Miss Florence Virginia Wilson, dramatic artist, will be introduced by the literature chairman, Mrs. E. R. Walter, and will present a sketch from "Tovarich."

The music will be furnished by Mrs. Paul Grundman, music chairman, who will have as her guests Virginia Langdon, Evelyn Bigler, and Hester Hunt, vocalists; Alma G. Wrede, pianist, and the Beverly String trio.

The morning session will be conducted by Mrs. John Kent, garden chairman, who will talk on "Flower Arrangements," and Mrs. George Ward, conservation chairman, who will introduce V. K. Brown, chief of the recreation division of the park district, in a lecture on "Leisure and Life." Luncheon will be served at noon by the luncheon committee of the Englewood Woman's club. Reservations may be made through Mrs. Elmer Toohey, district dean.

Mrs. Warren B. Robinson, American citizenship chairman of the 3d district, will broadcast over radio station WHIP at 11 o'clock Thursday morning. Mrs. Robinson will be interviewed on the subject "The Great Seal of the United States" by Mrs. Ethel Thompson, 2d district American citizenship chairman.

Beverly Hills Woman's Club.

"Women and Their Future in a Changing World" will be the topic of a talk by Dr. Robert K. Burns, graduate of the University of Washington, at a morning session of the club Wednesday in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. The guest artist of the afternoon session will be Synda White in a costume recital on "India."

Mrs. G. F. Emery, 10017 Winchester avenue, will be hostess at a music appreciation tea tomorrow afternoon in her home. The first of a series of four round table discussions on "Personality Development" to be conducted by Dr. Mandel Sherman, psychiatrist of the University of Chicago, will be held at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning in Ridge park fieldhouse. "Developing Health Emotions" will be the topic for discussion. The classes will be sponsored by the education department of which Mrs. N. F. Forsyth is chairman.

Englewood Woman's Club.

Mrs. Roland C. Foster, 7140 Princeton avenue, will be hostess to members of the garden group of the art department Thursday afternoon in her home. She will be assisted by Mrs. Lester Lanyon and Mrs. Oscar Little. "Interesting Gardens of the South" will be the topic for discussion led by Mrs. August Tidholm. Mrs. Winifred Whitcomb will talk on "My House Garden."

The drama class will meet for tea Friday afternoon in the home of its chairman, Mrs. Harry S. Ditchburne, 317 West Marquette road. The program will consist of drama news by Mrs. Alexander G. Mitchell, poetry with character sketches by Mrs. Arthur Rice, and the reading of a one act play, "Combing Jacket," by members of the class.

Hamilton Park Woman's Club.

The morning program of the club Tuesday in Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard, will feature Lester D. Mather, lecturer, who will talk on "Music Masters of Our Day," and "Modern Music: How to Understand It." Mrs. M. M. Ranstead and Mrs. Stella Thoman will be in charge of the morning session. After luncheon Mrs. Luella Canterbury, psychologist, will analyze "The Human Me."

The garden circle of the club will meet at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. V. Herman, 9038 Marshfield avenue, to discuss "Browsing Through the New Catalogs."

Gage Park Woman's Club.

Tuesday will be guest day in Gage park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue. "Art and Education" will be discussed by Elmer Vogel, artist, and Mrs. William Wigger, education chairman of the 3d district. In the afternoon Mrs. J. R. Madera, soprano, will sing. An art exhibit will be sponsored by Mrs. E. C. Clausen, art chairman, and Mrs. James Zaruba, education chairman.

Marquette Manor Woman's Club.

Board members will convene Friday morning in Marquette park fieldhouse, Marquette road and Kedzie avenue. Mrs. Frank Ekins and Mrs. Peter Rudolph will be hostesses. Mrs. Edward Kalley, ways and means chairman, will be in charge of a card party Wednesday afternoon in the fieldhouse.

Morgan Park Woman's Club.

An all day meeting will be held tomorrow in the Morgan Park Methodist Episcopal church, 110th place and Longwood drive, and Mrs. F. A. Biederman, ways and means chairman, will be in charge of a bake sale to raise funds for the club charities.

At 10 o'clock in the morning Miss Annette Shaw will talk on "Personality Pointers" for the American home department of which Mrs. W. L. Pringle is chairman, and at 11 o'clock the American citizenship committee, headed by Mrs. R. E. Nagler, will have as its guest speaker, Joseph Cooke, publisher. Mr. Cooke's topic will be "Keeping Our Heritage." "Social Service" will be the topic of a speech by Miss Helen Beckley, director of the social service department of Cook county hospital, at 11:45 o clock. She will be introduced by Mrs. James T. Jones, public health chairman.

Luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock after which the Indian welfare committee will present Josephine Altman Case, vocalist, who will sing Indian work, hunting, and war songs. In addition she will display Indian work in jewelry, rugs, and baskets.

Sherman Park Woman's Club.

Mrs. Harold F. Woods, 3d district American home chairman, will be guest speaker for the afternoon program of the club Wednesday in Sherman park fieldhouse, 53d street and Racine avenue. She will be introduced by Mrs. James Ryan, American home chairman. Mrs. William Collins, president, will preside and Mrs. David Evans, Mrs. James Casey, Mrs. George Rolewicz, and Mrs. Irene Vogel will be hostesses.

Martha Washington Aids.

The Martha Washington auxiliary will meet tomorrow evening in the home of Mrs. Orville Sherman, 7948 Evans avenue. Miss Patricia Lennon will assist Mrs. Sherman. Discussion will center in the membership campaign.

Direct Club's Fine Arts Festival

It's a woman's prerogative to be a paradox, so members of the Third congressional district, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will spend "an evening at home" tomorrow afternoon at the club. Under that title the midwinter fine arts festival of the district will be held in the Englewood Masonic temple, 6730 Wentworth avenue, where the Englewood Woman's club will be hostess. In charge of the program will be (left to right) Mrs. Harold F. Wood, American home chairman; Mrs. E. R. Walter, literature chairman, and Mrs. Robert Harrop, art chairman.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS WOMEN TO HAVE WINTER ROUNDUP

Health, Radio and Laws to Be Discussed.

It will be a bigger and better year for women's clubs in the suburbs if initial meetings being held this week are an indication. The Chicago Heights Woman's club, alone, will undertake an extensive program with an executive board meeting, an all day conference, and two study classes in international relations and literature.

Board members will assemble at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning in the home of Mrs. C. P. Berolzheimer, 394 Lincoln way, Chicago Heights, president.

Wednesday the all day conference will be held at the Council house, 1325 Otto boulevard, Chicago Heights. Dr. Clara G. Gottschalk will speak on "The Health Program of the Illinois State Federation of Women's Clubs" at 10:45 o'clock in the morning. Dr. Gottschalk is state chairman of public health and child hygiene for the federation. She will be introduced by Mrs. S. J. Friel, 3d district chairman of public health and child hygiene.

Mrs. W. A. Peters, club radio chairman, will present Mrs. Roy A. Winser, state chairman of radio, at 11:30 o'clock in the morning and at noon Miss Mabel Water, local chairman of legislation, will introduce State Rep. Bernice T. Van der Vries, who will speak on "Impending Legislation." A buffet luncheon will be served under the direction of Mrs. Adolph Scheid.

Afternoon Session.

In the afternoon Mrs. Donald Fawcett, club chairman of motion pictures, will have as her guest speaker, Mrs. J. P. Postweiler of Blue Island, 3d district motion picture chairman. "Trends in Modern Fiction" will be the topic of Sterling North, literary critic, at 2:15 o'clock. Mr. North will be presented by Mrs. J. E. Thomas, program chairman.

Special guests will be 3d district officers and chairmen and members of the Crete Woman's club and the Homewood Woman's club. Hostesses will be Mrs. G. E. Nelson, Mrs. Harry Brindle, Mrs. W. R. Spencer, Mrs. C. E. Showalter, Mrs. A. J. Damon, and Mrs. Lee Graham. Mrs. C. P. Berolzheimer, president, will preside at both morning and afternoon sessions.

The first of a series of classes on international relations will meet at 10 o'clock Friday morning in the Chicago Heights library under the direction of Mrs. Homer Spencer, 3d district chairman of international relations. "Selected Past and Current Literature" will be discussed at 2:30 o'clock by Miss Geraldyn True Fawcett at the second of a series of classes on literature in the home of Mrs. Leslie S. Morrill, 1544 Edgewood avenue, Chicago Heights.

Blue Island Woman's Club.

"Poetry, Old and New" will be the topic of Mrs. Franklin Klein at a meeting of the club Tuesday morning in the Elks' clubhouse. She will be introduced by Mrs. W. L. Kaiser, literature chairman. The music department with Mrs. L. I. McCord as chairman will be in charge of a program at 1 o'clock featuring Mrs. B. L. Bradford in a lecture on "The History of the French Composers" and music by a women's quartet. Folk dancing will be presented by children of the community.

Prof. Clark G. Kuebler, who has passed several summers in Germany, will speak in the afternoon on "Recent Impressions of the Political Situations in Europe." Mrs. Norman Beasley, program chairman, will be in charge and Mrs. A. M. Steever will be chairman of hostesses.

NEW FLOSSMOOR TAX PLAN TO BE DEBATED JAN. 17

Business Licensing Law to Be Proposed.

William Metzler.

The village board of Flossmoor will meet Jan. 17 to discuss a new taxation plan which, it is believed, will keep the budget "out of the red" in 1938.

The proposed source of income will be a license law for business houses in the village. Edward McGowen, chairman of the finance committee, says that the additional revenue will be necessary before any major improvements can be undertaken during the coming year. The water system project which was begun last year will be completed, however, next summer at a final cost of $234,000.

Sewage Plant Operating.

William Metzler, president, has announced that the modern $40,000 sewage disposal plant and the storm sewer system, constructed with the aid of Works Progress administration funds at an expenditure of $130,000, are now in operation. Several laterals and catch basins amounting to $30,000 will be installed by summer.

A supplementary system will be the erection of fire hydrants and the laying of a larger water main at a cost of $34,000. In spring $4,000 will be spent in covering the streets with limestone and asphalt oil. A proposed recreation plan for Flossmoor will not be considered until the 1939 budget unless all back taxes are paid.

Other Board Members.

Members of the village board, in addition to Mr. Metzler and Mr. McGowen, are Lawrence Meyers, chairman of the police committee; Charles Kane, chairman of public utilities; George Woodrich, chairman of the fire committee; Walter Baselt, chairman of the streets and alley committee, and Hedley Drew, chairman of the insurance committee.

MUSIC TO RADIO DRAMA IS LIKE A PICTURE'S FRAME

It Sets the Stage, Lights Production.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Watching a dress rehersal of the Court of Missing Heirs from the control room the other day, your observer was once again reminded of the contributions of music to radio drama.

Music is the cream in the coffee, the string for the pearls, the frame for the dramatic picture. Without it a piece lacks flavor and fillip. It's like a pudding without sauce, a cake without frosting, a package without a bow.

We have often wondered how the music for a major dramatic show is planned. Usually it is so unobtrusive, and envelops so well the finished product that one speculates as to how this is accomplished. Well, why not ask?

So a few days later we dropped in on Peter Cavallo Jr., the young man who splices in the musical transitions and adds the melodic trimmings for the Al Shebel-Jim Waters "Court" broadcasts. Luckily we found him going over the script for tonight's broadcast which had just been handed him by Fritz Blocki, production director of the show.

"What use is music to a dramatic show?" we asked.

Supplies What Is Missing.

"There are many reasons," Mr. Cavallo declared, "but the main one is that music supplies something that is missing—it helps to make up for the fact that you can only hear and not see what is going on. In jumping from the visible stage of the theater and the movie to the invisible of the radio channels, drama loses several important aids."

First of these, Mr. Cavallo pointed out, are the players' physical selves. His facial expressions, his gestures, mannerisms, posture, visual personality helps to put over a characterization. In radio he has only voice. A judicious use of what Mr. Cavallo calls 'type' music helps to offset this lack of visibility. Type music helps to add a quality of concreteness; to conjure a definite being which the voice, alone and unaided does with great difficulty.

Type music may also be used to establish the period, the time and temper of a play. Music, in the tempo and flavor of the period being depicted is effective descriptively.

Provides Stage Setting.

Another service performed by music is that of providing the stage setting. In radio the setting, unlike on the stage or in pictures, must be largely imagined. It can be done with dialog or the announcer can do it. But that takes time and is usually far less effective than a few well chosen bars of music.

Music also has a mechanical function, Mr. Cavallo continued. It effects transitions between scenes, accomplished on the stage by dropping the curtain or blacking out. In movies the fadeout and the dissolve serve the purpose.

Music helps to establish mood. In a transition between one scene and another, music may put the listener in a receptive attitude for what is to come, Or at the end of a scene it may add understanding and appreciation.

"It gives a scene a lift," Mr. Cavallo elaborated.

Explains Musical Treatment.

Turning to tonight's script, Mr. Cavallo explained, the musical treatment for the episode involving the case of Rose Steinberg, a sort of Texas Guinan-Mae Westish figure, well known in the annals of Milwaukee. Rose Steinberg, because of an injustice fancied or real by her relatives early in life, declined to reveal her origins before she died and left a sizable estate which still awaits rightful claimants.

First episode depicts her as a girl who runs away from home because of parental objection to a romance.

"In the first scene," Mr. Cavallo explains, "The girl and her male accompanist, whom she has married, are just ending a number in a Coney Island bierstube. We play the number 'The Bowery,' typical of the time and place. About 20 seconds, played only on the piano, suffices to establish the setting and identify it for listeners.

"Later the girl's father enters and remonstrates with her over her romance. She refuses to accede to his demands. What we need here is to intensify the conflict between the two and so, as they have words, we play the turbulent middle part of Ganne's 'Extase.' The music ends the scene and fades out.

"Scene two is laid in a Chicago beer tunnel. We use piano and drums, a typical beer tunnel combination of the day, 1909. We play 'Rings on My Fingers,' a number then two years old, to place the period. Music was slow getting around in those days!

"After this identifying theme we fade out on dialog between the woman and her agent, at the close of which she says something typical of her character. [Listen in and you'll find out what it is.] We close the scene with about 20 seconds of 'Frankie and Johnny,' because that theme best seems to personify her character."

A Roadhouse Scene.

Next scene shows her with her husband operating a roadhouse near Milwaukee in 1923. Because roadhouses of the prohibition era weren't large, only drums, trumpet, trombone and piano are used for 40 seconds of "Carolina in the Morning."

"It's something watching and hearing our concert ensemble—three of them are symphony men," Cavallo said, "going wacky!"

In another scene the woman and lawyer are discussing the suicide of the husband under circumstances which evoke an audience reaction of sorrow for the victim.

As transitional music here the orchestra plays 20 seconds of Grieg's "Hearts Wounds" with heavy emphasis on the strings—violins, cellos and bass viols. This carries the story over to a final scene between the woman and her lawyer in a character revealing episode. Thus as the sketch concludes a few bars of "Frankie and Johnny," in the tempo she might have tossed it off, finish off the story.

In another episode tonight the musical numbers call for portions of Ravel's "Bolero," "Poet and Peasant Overture," Liszt's "Liebestraum," Wagner's "Dream," Rubinstein's "Romance," and finally "Träumerei." Listen in and see whether the story is not one that fits the picture evoked by the association of these numbers.

Tenor in Iron Mine

Attilio Baggiore, W-G-N's operatic tenor, who is heard at 9:45 p. m. each Monday with Henry Weber and the W-G-N Concert orchestra over W-G-N and the Mutual network, visited the Cleveland Cliff iron mine which has been dug beneath the city of Ishpeming, Mich., on a visit to his home territory in northern Michigan recently. Attilio, outfitted in a regular miner's garb, traveled through several of the mine's tunnels, and paused to have his picture taken at the 1,200 foot level with William Conibear, superintendent of safety, and two miners.

MISS M'DONALD RETURNS TODAY TO OPEN HOUSE

Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt on Magic Key.

Jeanette MacDonald, lyric soprano of the radio and screen, will resume her regular appearances on the Open House program from 6:00 to 6:30 p. m. today over WBBM. For several weeks past, the star has been "on location" for the screening of "The Girl of the Golden West." She will again be supported by Wilbur Evans, baritone, and Josef Pasternack's orchestra and chorus.

On this return program Miss MacDonald will feature Friml's song, "When a Maid Comes Knocking," from her recent picture production, "The Firefly." Other selections, ranging from operatic to popular ballads, will be offered by the star. They include "Regiment Sombre at Meuse," by Planquett; Victor Herbert's "Adorable," "The Waltz Song" from Gounod's opera, "Romeo and Juliet," and "Love's Old Sweet Song," by J. L. Molloy.

Marjorie d'Vore, 17 year old saxophonist of Senn High School band, will be the featured guest soloist with Frank Simon's band over WENR-NBC at 2:30 p. m. today.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, speaking from Washington, D. C., will be heard on the Magic Key program in an interview with Linton Wells at 1 p. m. over WENR. Others on the show will be Carl Hartmann, tenor; Joan Edwards, vocalist, and Dr. Frank Black conducting the Magic Key orchestra. Mrs. Roosevelt will discuss her book, just published, entitled "This Troubled World."

Another Quiz Program Is Aired on W-G-N-Mutual

Based on the news of the day, a novel program known as "News Testers" is being conducted from 8 to 8:30 p. m., Sundays, over W-G-N and Mutual. Five contestants are selected from the audience and each is asked a question to which there are a number of alternate answers, only one of which is correct. After five rounds the competitor with the highest score is awarded a prize of $5.

Spellers

[Seymour Photo.]

Bernice Thoma warming up for the Spelling Bee in which Chez Paree chorines will be pitted against a team of "tired business men" at 4:30 today over WBBM. Harold Isbell, the spelling master, has just asked her to spell "terpsichorean."

RADIO STARS TO BATTLE CRITICS IN WITS' CONTEST

The Mutual Broadcasting System's newest audience participation program, "True or False," conducted by Dr. Harry Hagen every Monday from 9 to 9:30 p. m., C. S. T., is planning a unique contest, tentatively scheduled to be heard on Monday, Jan. 31, over W-G-N.

It will wage a battle of wits between six prominent radio editors and a half dozen feminine radio stars.

The radio stars' faction plans to have Benay Venuta as captain. She expects to draft Helene Daniels, Elinor Sherry, Irene Noblette, Myra Kingsley, and Pauline Alpert as members of her group. Definite date and teams will be announced in a future release.

BEVERLEY LANE, YOUNG CHICAGO SOPRANO, ON AIR

Beverley Lane, Chicago's phenomenal 18 year old soprano, will be heard for the first time on a radio program as guest soloist on the Sunday Evening Hour, from 8 to 9 p. m. tonight over WBBM-CBS. The occasion also marks the return of Fritz Reiner to direct the series for eight broadcasts.

Miss Lane will sing the brilliant aria, "Una Voce Poco Fa," from Rossini's "Barber of Seville." Later she is to be heard with the orchestra in the difficult "Doll Song" from Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman"; "In the Luxembourg Gardens," by Manning, and "Musetta's Waltz," from Puccini's "La Boheme."

MINISTRY OF JOY TO BE SUBJECT OF MIDDAY HOUR

"Religion's Ministry of Joy" is the general theme of the W-G-N Midday Service, at 12:35 p. m. this week. The guest speakers are:

Monday—The Rev. Edwin Moll, Luther Memorial University church, Madison, Wis.
Tuesday—William V. Cracknell, department of religion, St. Viator's college, Bourbonnais.
Wednesday—Charles H. Lyttle, head, department of history, Meadville seminary.
Thursday—Rabbi Mayer Lipman, Beth-El temple.
Friday—Harris Franklin Rall, Garrett Biblical institute.
Saturday—Dr. John L. Dickson, director, W-G-N Midday Service.

BECKER RETURNS TO W-G-N, NBC IN DOG PROGRAM

John Charles Gilbert to Be Guest Star.

Bob Becker, Tribune Outdoors Editor, explorer, sportsman, author, and authority on dogs, comes back to W-G-N today in series of broadcasts at 2:45 p. m. [A rebroadcast is made over an NBC chain]. In his opening program, Bob will discuss some dog problems in winter, and offer sound advice on the blanket fad. A highlight of the program will be the dramatic re-enactment of a recent headline news story in which a dog pays a debt of gratitude. He will be assisted by Dave Dole, well-known sound effects expert and animal imitator, and a veteran cast of radio actors.

John Charles Gilbert, nationally famous for his portrayals of the character of Franz Schubert in the operetta "Blossom Time," will be the guest star on the W-G-N and Mutual network matinée variety show "On a Sunday Afternoon" at 2 p. m. today. Mr. Gilbert has been featured in every revival of the famous Sigmund Romberg musical.

The tenor will be heard as Schubert in the Sunday afternoon show but in an entirely different setting than in "Blossom Time." The great Viennese composer and his friends used to gather for singing sessions at frequent intervals which were called "Schubertiadens." This afternoon a special sketch, written for Mr. Gilbert will have him cast as Franz with prominent radio actors supporting him in the re-enactment of one of these "Schubertiadens." The sketch is written and will be directed by Edward Simmons. Mr. Gilbert will sing the Schubert compositions he has sung so many times.

Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra will furnish the music for the sketch and along with the Glee club, Bob Hannon, Edna O'Dell and Three Men and a Maid will supply the variety for the remainder of the show. At 9:30 p. m. Tuesday the Northerners will present a musical version of Longfellow's work, "Tales of a Wayside Inn," with Howard Hoffman in the role of narrator. Members of the octet will be heard in the solo spots.

Other visible shows:

9:45 p. m. Monday, The Pageant of Melody, with Berniece Taylor, soprano, Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and the W-G-N concert orchestra and chorus under the direction of Henry Weber.

9:30 p. m. Wednesday—Melodies from the Sky with Arthur Wright and Edna O'Dell, soloists, and the W-G-N Dance orchestra and Glee Club featuring "A Night in Hawaii," directed by Harold Stokes.

9:30 p. m. Thursday—The Concert Revue, directed by Henry Weber, with the W-G-N Concert orchestra and chorus and Kathryn Witwer, soprano, William Miller, tenor, and Mark Love, basso.

9:30 p. m. Friday—Curtain Time, an original radio drama, directed by Blair Walliser and starring well known radio actors.

GRACE MOORE IN "ENTER MADAME" IN RADIO THEATER

In her first radio dramatic performance of the season, Grace Moore will portray the rôle of a temperamental opera singer in Radio Theater's "Enter Madame," to be heard over WBBM from 8 to 9 p. m. tomorrow.

Miss Moore's radio appearance will precede by only five days her return to the Metropolitan Opera company where, on the following Friday she will perform the part of "Mimi" in Puccini's "La Boheme," the opera in which she made her debut at the "Met" just ten years ago. Among her selections to be sung as part of the radio play will be the aria, "Vissi d'Arte," from Puccini's "Tosca"; "I'll Take Romance," from Miss Moore's recent picture of the same name, and a traditional Neapolitan folk song.

Supporting Miss Moore in the radio drama will be the screen actor, Melvyn Douglas, who was her leading man in her current film.

R.O.T.C. CADETS OF 13 UNITS WIN MERIT MEDALS

Tribune and Other Groups Present Awards.

More than one hundred outstanding cadets in thirteen Chicago high school R. O. T. C. units received awards and praise for their achievements of the semester in a series of assemblies last week.

Representatives of THE TRIBUNE, the R. O. T. C. headquarters, various posts of the American Legion, the Reserve Officers' association, and other groups visited the schools and presented the medals of their organizations. The series will be resumed this week and cadets of twelve other Chicagoland units will be rewarded.

Awarding THE TRIBUNE medals to the cadets who ranked highest in all phases of the training at most of the assemblies, Phiiip Maxwell told the audiences of cadets, students, parents, and friends:

"THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE believes wholeheartedly in the instruction, in the discipline, in the teachings of the Reserve Officers' Training corps. It believes that this training builds a better nation.

Tells Peacetime Rôle.

"Every young man taking this work proves his true Americanism and that he wishes to perfect himself in a training that will serve him as a useful citizen. America needs soldiers not for war but for peacetime services. All the battles of life are not fought at the front. Many of them are political, social, and economic. We all can join this army. Our ammunition is intelligent thought."

Col. William F. Morrison, Majs. John Ringe, Joseph I. Lambert and William B. Weston, and Capt. Richard Darrell represented theh R O. T. C. headquarters at the various programs.

Winners on south side are:

Du Sable—Cadet Second Lieutenant Phillips Pitts, Cadet Sergeants Edward Johnson and Joshua Jackson, and Cadets Lionel Jordan, Adolph Baster, and Jammie Morris, Tribune; Cadet Captain Hardy B. Ruffin, officers' efficiency; Cadet Sergeant Cecil Purnell, noncommissioned officers; Cadet Major James Hopson, band efficiency; Cadets John McLean and Raymond McEwen, neatest cadet; Cadet Second Lieutenant Alfred Cannon, marksmanship, and Cadet Major Benjamin Hamilton, recruiting.

Schedule for This Week.

The schedule of presentations for this week is as follows:

Monday—Kelly High school, 12:24 o'clock. Tuesday—Waukegan Township High school, 2 o'clock. Wednesday—Hirsch High school, 9:30 o'clock; Lindblom High school, 11 o'clock. Thursday—Harper High school, 11 o'clock; Marshall High school, 12:15 o'clock.

Friday—Calumet High school, 9 o'clock; Tilden Tecnical High school, 10:27 o'clock; Englewood High school, 11:30 o'clock; Hyde Park High school, 12:22 o'clock; Crane Technical High school, 1:30 o'clock; Bowen High school, 1:50 o'clock.

Presentations at the four remaining city schools, Fenger, Morgan Park, Schurz, and St. Mel's, and at Evanston, Gary, and Joliet will take place later.

Teachers' Union President Is Church Speaker Tonight

John Fewkes, president of the Chicago Teachers' union, will be guest speaker this evening at the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and Marshfield avenue. Mr. Fewkes is a pioneer in the union movement for teachers in Chicago. He will be introduced by the Rev. Clinton C. Cox, pastor of the church. Special guests at the service will be local parent-teacher associations and community residents.

Englewood "Y" to Offer 6 Adult Education Classes

Six eight-week educational courses for adults will be offered by the Englewood Y. M. C. A., 6545 Union avenue, beginning tomorrow evening, according to an announcement made by Arthur E. Sharp, chairman of the adult education committee. Subjects to be covered in the courses are public speaking, salesmanship, social psychology, modern trends in marriage, first aid, and contract bridge.

New Colors for R. O. T. C. Brigade

When the 8,000 cadets of the Chicago public high schools' R. O. T. C. brigade step out in parade hereafter they will receive added distinction by the large national and Chicago flags borne by the color guard. These were given to the brigade recently by Board of Education post of the American Legion. Displaying the new flags, which will be presented formally in June, are A. C. Bayna (left), commander of the post, and Arthur C. Schweitzer, chairman of the R. O. T. C. committee of the Cook county council, American Legion. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

PLATOONS WILL DRILL THIS YEAR IN R. O. T. C. MEET

Squad System Dropped for March Contest.

A select platoon of 27 cadets, instead of a squad as formerly, from each of the 27 Chicago public high school R. O. T. C. units will meet in a drill competition this year, it was announced last week by Major John Ringe, adjutant at the R. O. T. C. headquarters. The contest will take place in March in the 131st Infantry armory at Michigan avenue and 16th street.

Under consideration at the present is a change in the manner of judging this annual competition. Instead of inviting army officers not connected with the R. O. T. C. to pick the winners, it is proposed that the 27 military instructors themselves serve as judges, scoring each of the platoons as it performs except their own.

Proficiency Brings Change.

The shift from a squad to a platoon meet was effected this year largely because the better squads were so close that it was difficult to pick the first, second, and third. The larger formation of a platoon permits more complicated movements, and it will be easier to distinguish slight flaws in the drill with the greater number of cadets.

Other advantages of the platoon drill are that it allows more cadets to participate and it places more emphasis on the responsibility of officers.

The platoon will be composed of 21 privates, three corporals, two sergeants, and a lieutenant, and will drill with rifles. The officer in charge will carry a saber.

Champion to Get Trophy.

The champion platoon will receive a trophy and each of the members a medal. Competition ribbon bars will be awarded to the cadets composing the platoons which place second, third, fourth, and fifth.

Tilden Technical High school has won the drill meet for the last three consecutive years, and Sullivan High school has finished second for the last two years.

Japanese-American to Talk on War at Englewood "Y"

Dr. Isman Tashiro will speak on "The Case of Japan" in relation to the far eastern crisis at 8 o'clock Friday night before the Englewood Y. M. C. A. forum at the Y. M. C. A., 6545 South Union avenue. Dr. Tashiro is an American Japanese who has visited the orient frequently for the last few years to study social and economic conditions.

LOYOLA PROFESSOR TO ADDRESS AQUINAS HIGH MOTHERS' CLUB

Dr. Paul Kiniery. [Root Photo.]

Dr. Paul Kiniery, assistant dean of the Loyola university graduate school and professor of history, will address members of the Aquinas High School Mothers' club at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the school auditorium, 2100 East 72d street. Dr. Kiniery's topic will be "Present Day America—Promises and Threats." Past presidents of the club who will be special guests are Mrs. Henry Morgan, 6807 Chappel avenue; Mrs. John E. Maguire, 7030 Chappel avenue, and Mrs. Curtis Rowbotham, 7704 Cregier avenue. Mrs. Frank Lally, 7039 Wabash avenue, is chairman of the monthly meeting and president of the club.

Officers of the installing chapter are Robert C. Bartee, primus; Hugh Hamilton, pro-primus; Carl Mies, quaestor; Bruce G. Stitt, tribune, and Robert G. Pilkington, mentor.

—Englewood—

Frank G. Bruner, principal of Englewood High school, recently presented commissions to twelve R. O. T. C. cadets during an upper class assembly in the school auditorium. The cadets are Cadet Major Howard Soliday, Cadet Captains Rollo Boyd and Sam Battaglia, Cadet First Lieutenants Richard Schultz, Gordon Campbell, and Elmer Clay, and Cadet Second Lieutenants Robert Castle, Abe Moseberry, King Smith, Richard Williams, John Williams, and James Armstrong.

—DuSable—

Recruiting in the Du Sable High school R. O. T. C. for the new semester started last week with Cadet Major Benjamin Hamilton in charge, Sergt. F. A. Wildforster, military instructor, announced last week. Total enrollment is expected to exceed 400.

In addition to the cadets who won appearance bars, the following were given honorable mention for their neatness during the semester:

Ocie Corbin	Donald Ruffin
James Daniels	Edward Franklin
Wayman Merrill	Frank Wright
Charles Flowers	Larry Shaw
Julius Frazier	Melvin Robinson
Fred Thomas	Charles Williams

Ruffin and Wright are cadet corporals and the rest are cadets.

Fenger High Singing Trio

There is music in the air this week at Fenger High school. Rehersals are held each day for the fifth annual production of Orchestra Varieties, which is sponsored by the band, orchestra, Plectrum club, and talented students of the school. The show will be staged Friday evening in the auditorium, 112th and Wallace streets. "The Songbirds" (left to right), Miss Dorothy Estabrook, Miss Jean Rimmer, and Miss Eleanor Peterson, will take part in the program. [Banks Studio.]

ENGLEWOOD HIGH SENIORS CHOOSE JUNE OFFICERS

Tom Farris Wins in Race for Presidency.

With all the color of a big-time campaign, several officers for Englewood High school's June, 1938, senior class recently were elected, with Tom Farris defeating James Armstrong in the race for the presidency.

Other positions will be occupied by Miss Mary Ann Parker, secretary, and Miss Sylvia Prusia, program chairman. Members of the faculty supervising the election were Mrs. Florence St. Clair, Miss Elizabeth M. Adams, and Albert E. Jeffery.

Miss Jane Wilkinson of the January graduating class will deliver the class valedictory at the commencement exercises on Jan. 27. In addition to having the highest scholastic average in her class, Miss Wilkinson wrote for the school annual and was a member of the Englebooster association and the Girls' Athletic association.

Virginia Peiper Salutatorian.

It was announced also by Charles P. Burnham, adviser of the senior class, that Miss Virginia Peiper, second highest in scholarship, will be salutatorian. Miss Peiper participated in the same organizations as Miss Wilkinson. The two class speakers at the commencement exercises will be Miss Edith Horde and Alex Spear.

A recent extra-curricular activity at Englewood High school is the senior symposium of which Miss Doris Evans is president and Miss Ruth E. Baker is sponsor. Other officers are Joseph Moskowitz, vice president; Miss Timetta Carlisle, secretary, and Leslie Smith, sergeant-at-arms.

The purpose of the Senior symposium is to create an interest and understanding for world affairs, to give an outlet for student opinion and to practice the principles of parliamentary law. Opinions on subjects of current interest are debated in forum style by the club members and students are detailed to listen to radio speeches for weekly reports.

47 To Honor Society.

Forty-seven graduates of June, 1937, were initiated recently in the Englewood High school chapter of the National Honor society. They are Willoughby Abner, Sam Battaglia, Rollo Boyd, Miss Sigrid Christenson, Miss Katheryn Clark, William Courtier, Pauline Dupree, Eva Emery, Tom Farris, Norman Graff, Carl Guldager, Miss Mildred Gullicson, Miss Margaret Hafer, Laurence Hanks, Miss Mary Jakubowski, Miss Jenny Johansen, Miss Thelmaree Johnson, Valmer Jordan, Miss Lorraine Klebba, Miss Virginia Knorr, and Simon Kops.

Others are Marvin Lesht, Jerome Levitt, Miss Pearl Mahnke, Miss Florence Manso, Miss Eileen McCool, Harry Nelson, Miss Margaret Nord, Miss Gisella Orthy, Martin Parinkin, Miss Sara Prince, Miss Sylvia Prusia, Richard Raschick, Miss Leone Smith, Miss Mary Jane Sproul, Miss Agatha Strupek, Miss Helen Tatham, Miss Rose Taylor, Miss Mary Trotta, Miss Marjorie Wastier, Miss Bessie Williams, Miss Hermine Wukovitz, Miss Elizabeth Yancey, Miss Edith Horde, Miss Timetta Carlisle, Miss Estelle Rhodes, and Miss Emily Jane Blue.

TEN SOUTH SIDE TEACHERS ADMIT THEY'RE MARRIED

Ten south and southwest side schoolma'ams have just given official notice to the Chicago board of education that they had taken husbands during 1937, it was announced by Henry S. Crane, secretary of the board of examiners.

All but two of the ten are assigned to south side schools. The two others, who are connected with schools on the southwest side, are: Esther Wills Anderson of Mark Sheridan elementary and Mabel France Kastendiek of Hale elementary.

Two of the newlyweds are teachers at Bowen High. These are Genevra Reid Constanzer and Mary Griffin Schmitt. Two others—Eileen O'Rourke O'Donnell and Eleanor McGee Dwyer—are assigned to Willard elementary. Douglas elementary is another south side school that gave two recent brides—Lucy Davis Redd and Lillian Geil Letrich.

The other recently wed south siders are Josephine Quinlan McDonnell of Hyde Park High and Catherine Cunningham Berman of Fiske elementary.

KENWOOD TRADE LEADERS TO FETE INCOMING STAF

Will Install New Officers Tomorrow Night.

The Kenwood Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual banquet and installation of officers at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Hyde Park hotel, Lake Park avenue and Hyde Park boulevard. Judge John P. McGoorty, under whom the incoming president, Frank Rainey, studied law, will be the installing officer. The Rt. Rev. William M. Foley will give the invocation.

Among those who have accepted invitations are Mayor Kelly; Joseph P. Geary, chairman of the Chicago Civil Service commission; R. J. Neal, president of the Drexel State bank; Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Green, the two oldest residents of Kenwood, and representatives of the Hyde Park Lions club, Hyde Park Kiwanis club, Hyde Park and Oakland-Kenwood posts of the American Legion, Fifty-fifth Street Business Men's association, Oakland Business Men's association, and the Madison Park Property Ownerns association.

Sol Scheffer Is Chairman.

Sol Scheffer is chairman of the banquet committee, which includes Dr. F. L. Condren, John A. Sullivan, and Lee F. Smith. The ticket committee is composed of Dr. R. L. Kreiner, Dr. Mandel Cohen, Ralph Dunlap, and J. M. Braverman.

Besides Mr. Rainey, the incoming officers are Morris A. Schuman, vice president, Walter J. Uhr, secretary, and Dr. Kreiner, treasurer. On the new board of directors are Dr. Condren, chairman; Frank Ballinger, Fay S. Berry, Oscar Boenicke, Mr. Braverman, Spencer Castle, D. Cohen, Mr. Dunlap, J. W. Robinson, Harry Salvat, William H. Sherwood, Mr. Smith, John A. Sullivan, John F. Sullivan, Dr. R. J. Welsh, and Fred J. Wright.

Among the 1937 accomplishments under the outgoing administration, which was headed by Dr. Condren, were added police protection through a 10 per cent increase in man power at the Hyde Park station; coöperation with the ward superintendent, which resulted in improved conditions of streets and alleys; elimination of the three-way intersection of 47th street and Lake Park and Dorchester avenues, and start of construction of the subway under the Illinois Central tracks to connect with the outer drive.

Seek Better Transportation.

The 1938 program, as outlined by Mr. Rainey, the new president, calls for improvement of all four modes of transportation facilities now serving the area; development of a plan for better working arrangements between business men; promotion of a continuous "Buy in Kenwood" campaign; coöperation with property owners for the purpose of establishing more and better playgrounds for children; improvement of property values; widening of 47th street, and complete reconstruction of Cottage Grove avenue.

Ice Carnival to Be Held at Marquette Park Jan. 30

The first annual ice carnival will be held Jan. 30 at Marquette park lagoon, Marquette road and Kedzie avenue. The program will feature selection of an ice queen, races for entrants of all ages, novelty events, and comedy and acrobatic stunts. Music will be furnished for the skaters to waltz. Entries may be made with Al Kumskis, director. In case of warm weather the carnival will be postponed to the following Sunday.

I MAY HAVE A BIT OF TROUBLE FINDIN' THAT OTHER DIME OF YOUR CHANGE, LADY.
TAKE YOUR TIME, DRIVER. THE NIGHT IS YOUNG.
TAXI
HAHAHA, PLUSHIE. YOU ARE A CARD!
HUMPH! DRIVER, JUST MAIL ME MY DIME
YES I HAVE QUITE A REPUTATION THAT WAY, BESSIE.
AND I'LL NEVER FORGET HOW GRAND YOU LOOKED IN YOUR CAVALRY UNIFORM THAT NIGHT. THE GIRLS SIMPLY MOBBED YOU.
OH DEAR, DEAR. WHAT IS THIS POWER I HAVE OVER WOMEN?
OW! I DON'T KNOW, BUT FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE, USE IT!
WHY, EMMA- MY DEAR-
WHO IS THAT HUSSY? WHO IS SHE?
DON'T TELL ME- DON'T TELL ME WHO THAT FAT THING IS! I WOULDN'T BELIEVE YOU IF YOU DID ZOK!
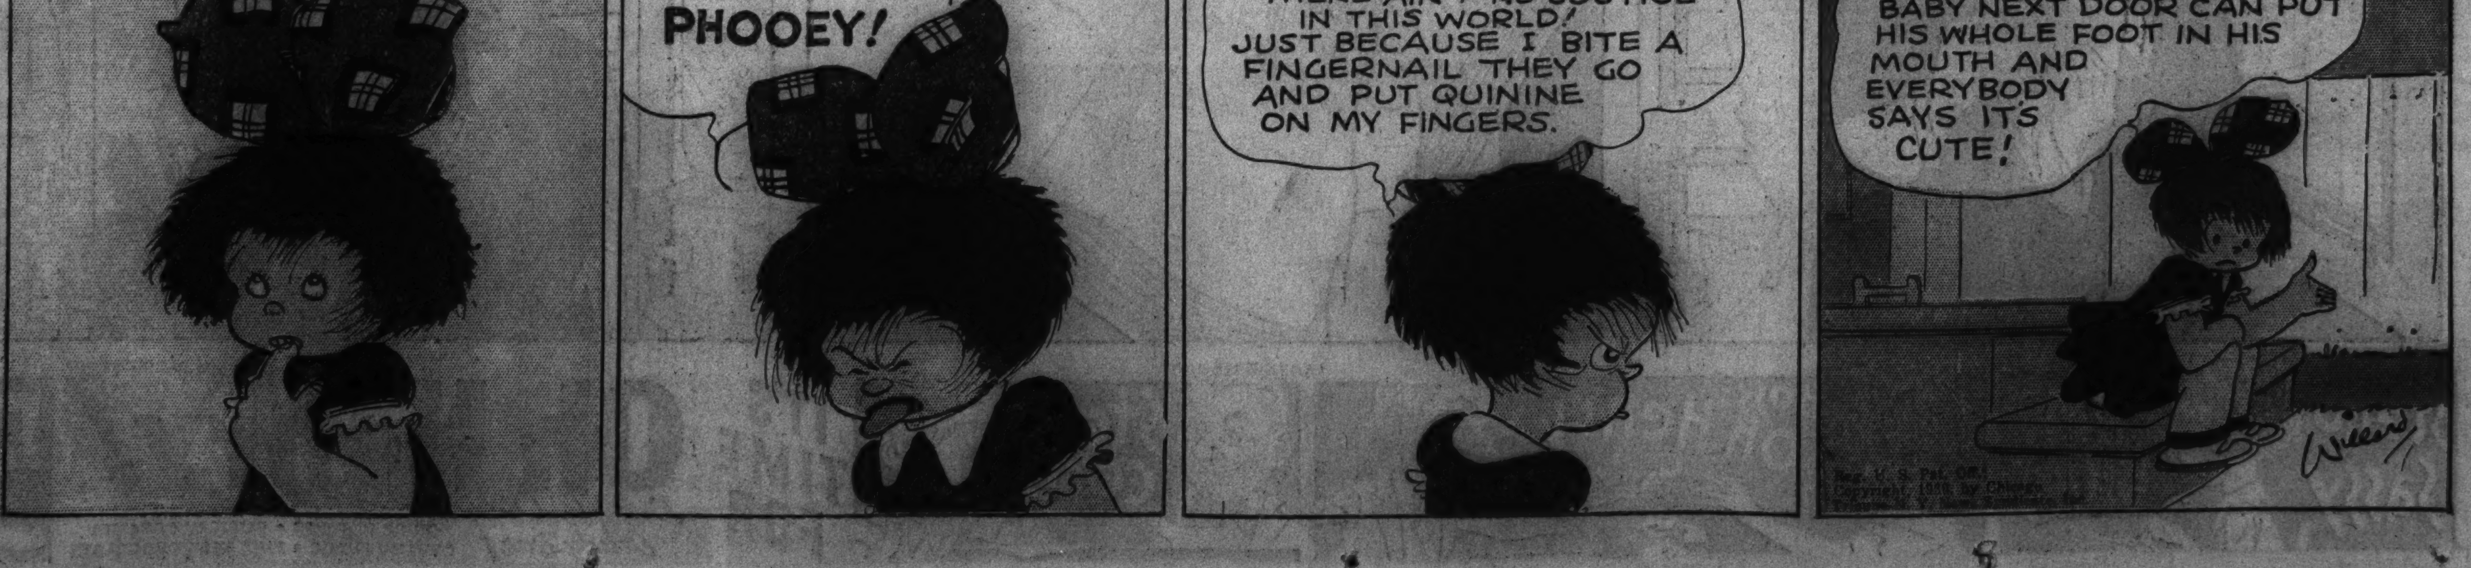
WHO'S A FAT THING?
STOP IT! PLEASE! LISTEN-
THIS IS MY COUSIN, BESSIE BLOTZ BUSTLE, AND HER HUSBAND, SIR ELMER BUSTLE, WHO ARE—
AND WHAT DO YOU THINK YOU ARE, SISTER?
ME? OH, I AM TERRIBLY SORRY.
HECK! NOW THEY'RE ALL HUGGIN' AND KISSIN' AND MAKIN' UP.
WOT'S TH' IDEA WAKIN' ME UP?— COME ON TO BED AND MIND YOUR OWN BUSINESS, BABY.
JAN 9.
OH, ALL RIGHT- PERSONALLY, I ENJOYED IT MORE WHEN THEY WAS PUTTIN' ON THAT BATTLE ROYAL- OH, BOY! WOT A FIGHT!
FIGHT?
GOOD GOSH, WOMAN! WHY DIDN'T YOU WAKE ME UP BEFORE? YOU KNOW GOOD AND WELL I CAN'T NEVER SLEEP THROUGH A FIGHT!

KITTY HIGGINS



PHOOEY!
THERE AIN'T NO JUSTICE IN THIS WORLD! JUST BECAUSE I BITE A FINGERNAIL THEY GO AND PUT QUININE ON MY FINGERS.
AND THAT LITTLE BITTY BABY NEXT DOOR CAN PUT HIS WHOLE FOOT IN HIS MOUTH AND EVERYBODY SAYS IT'S CUTE!

YES, GENTLEMEN - THAT'S THE PIECE OF FLESH-COLORED CHEESE CLOTH REDRUM KEPT PASTED OVER HIS FACE TO MAKE HIMSELF KNOWN AS THE "BLANK".
LOOK! WITH A LITTLE SPIRIT GUM IT IS EASILY KEPT IN PLACE - AND THE POROUS TEXTURE OF THE CLOTH MAKES IT VERY EASY TO SEE THROUGH.
WELL, REDRUM, YOU HAVE THE BLOOD OF FOUR MURDERED MEN ON YOUR HANDS - AND WE'RE GOING TO SEE THAT YOU PAY THE PRICE THIS TIME.
SO WHAT? DO YOU THINK I MIND THAT? I'VE BEEN AN OUTCAST FROM THE WORLD EVER SINCE I MADE THAT PENITENTIARY BREAK ALMOST TEN YEARS AGO
A SHOTGUN BLAST FROM A PRISON GUARD TORE AWAY MOST OF MY FACE.
I TREATED THE WOUNDS MYSELF AND FOR TWELVE DAYS HOVERED ON THE BRINK OF DEATH. WHEN AT LAST I WAS WELL, SOCIETY WOULDN'T HAVE ME — BECAUSE OF MY LOOKS - NEITHER WOULD MY OLD GANG.
YOUR FACIAL CHANGE MADE IT VERY LIKELY THAT YOU WOULD NOT BE RECOGNIZED AND SENT BACK.
YES, BUT I WAS AN OUTCAST. I HAD TO BEG FOR CRUSTS.
THEN, ABOUT SIX MONTHS AGO, I MADE A DECISION! IF I WASN'T GOOD ENOUGH FOR THE OLD GANG - THEN THEY WEREN'T GOOD ENOUGH TO LIVE! I'D KILL THEM!
ONE BY ONE I STARTED PICKING THEM OFF! AND WHY NOT! EVEN MY LAST NAME - REDRUM - WITH THE LETTERS REVERSED - SPELLS M-U-R-D-E-R!
TRACY! I'VE GOT SOME NEWS.
STEP IN HERE, PAT.
IN RECOVERING FRAGMENTS OF "STUD" BRONZEN'S BOAT THAT WAS BLOWN UP, AMONG OTHER THINGS, THE BOYS BROUGHT UP A TIN BOX CONTAINING THIS BOOK.

Little Orphan Annie
ANOTHER WEEK---- SHELTER, WARMTH, FOOD AND ESPECIALLY LOVING CARE HAVE WROUGHT A WONDROUS CHANGE IN ROSE CHANCE--- BUT AT WHAT A COST TO THE MEAGRE RESOURCES OF POOR ABIGAIL ALDEN--- IN ONE WEEK THE PITIFULLY SMALL PENSION THAT WOULD HAVE SUPPORTED HER FOR A WHOLE MONTH IS NEARLY GONE---
A FEW MORE DAYS - PERHAPS A WEEK - THEN WHAT? THE POOR FARM, I SUPPOSE - ALONE I COULD HAVE CARRIED ON, POSSIBLY FOR YEARS--- ANNIE - ROSE CHANCE AND HER BABY, DANNY - PERHAPS I'VE BEEN A FOOL - MY NEIGHBORS THINK SO -
BUT AT LEAST I'VE BEEN A HAPPY OLD FOOL - THEY'VE HAD A FRESH START - THEY'LL SOON GO THEIR WAY, YOUNG AND STRONG AND CONFIDENT - LIFE AND HOPE AND THE BRIGHT WORLD BEFORE THEM -
AS FOR ME, WHAT DIFFERENCE? AH, ALL THE DIFFERENCE IN THE WORLD - INSTEAD OF DRAGGING OUT A MEAN AND THREADBARE EXISTENCE HERE, I'VE WOUND UP MY LIFE RATHER WELL - THE GRAND GESTURE - PIFFLE - I'M GETTING THEATRICAL -
MY LIFE WOUND UP? OH, I'LL GO ON, OF COURSE, AT THE POOR FARM - BUT THAT WILL BE EXISTENCE, NOT LIFE - ---- OH---- SOME ONE HAS MADE DOUGHNUTS--- OUR LAST FLOUR - - LARD----- THEY COULDN'T REALIZE---
OH, MRS. ALDEN - JUST TRY THESE DOUGHNUTS - THEY'RE TH' BEST I EVER TASTED -
HM-M--- THEY ARE GOOD ROSE -
NONSENSE - I'VE MADE MUCH BETTER ONES - BUT WHEN I SAW THAT KITCHEN I JUST HAD TO MAKE SOMETHING -
GEE - JUST LOOK - WHAT'S GOIN' ON OVER THERE ACROSS TH' STREET? ALL THOSE TRUCKS -
IT'S TERRIBLE - THE TRUCK COMPANIES HAVE BOUGHT THAT LOT - NOW THEY STOP THERE DAY AND NIGHT - HAMMERING AND ROARING ENGINES, AND ALL THOSE ROUGH MEN -
MR. GUDGE IS RIGHT, FOR ONCE - HE SAYS THEY'RE RUINING THIS PART OF TOWN - HE'S TRIED TO FORCE THEM TO MOVE - BUT THEY ONLY LAUGH AT HIM - OH, I DO WISH SOMETHING COULD BE DONE -
TRUCK DRIVERS AREN'T SUCH BAD GUYS -
HALF AN HOUR LATER, UN-NOTICED, ANNIE HAS STROLLED ACROSS THE STREET -
WELL - THAT'S THAT - MAYBE SHE'LL RUN FIFTY MILES 'FORE SHE TEARS OUT THAT BUSHING AGAIN -
BOY! WHAT I COULD DO TO A SQUARE MEAL -
HEY! WHAT YUH GOT THERE, KID?
ME? DOUGHNUTS - HAVE ONE?
SA-A-AY - THIS HERE IS A DOUGHNUT, WHAT I MEAN -
BOY, OH BOY! I WAS STARVIN' -
YEAH! THIS KID MUST BE FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE - SHE'S SAVED MY LIFE, TOO -
GOT ANY MORE WHERE THESE CAME FROM, KID?
C'MON, KID - IT'S ONLY A BUCK - TAKE IT!
NOTHIN' DOIN', MISTER -
LISTEN - I DON'T KNOW WHO THROWED THEM DOUGHNUTS TOGETHER, BUT THEY BEAT ANY I EVER ET - THOSE TRUCK DRIVERS - THEY--- THEY SAID THAT ABOUT MY DOUGHNUTS? WHY, ANNIE--- I--- I WONDER --- IF -- IF ---
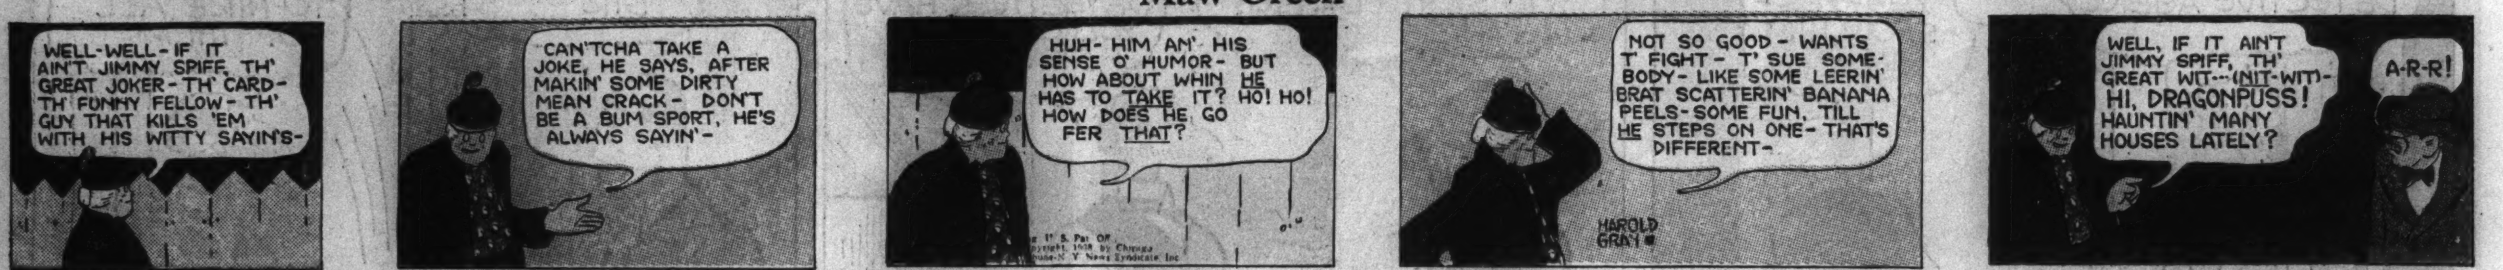
"IF" NOTHIN' - WE HAVEN'T GOT TIME FOR "IFS" - MY TEN BUCKS SAYS SHOOT TH' WORKS--- TO WIN!
HAROLD GRAY

Maw Green



WELL - WELL - IF IT AIN'T JIMMY SPIFF, TH' GREAT JOKER - TH' CARD - TH' FUNNY FELLOW - TH' GUY THAT KILLS 'EM WITH HIS WITTY SAYIN'S -
CAN'TCHA TAKE A JOKE, HE SAYS, AFTER MAKIN' SOME DIRTY MEAN CRACK - DON'T BE A BUM SPORT, HE'S ALWAYS SAYIN' -
HUH - HIM AN' HIS SENSE O' HUMOR - BUT HOW ABOUT WHIN HE HAS TO TAKE IT? HO! HO! HOW DOES HE GO FER THAT?

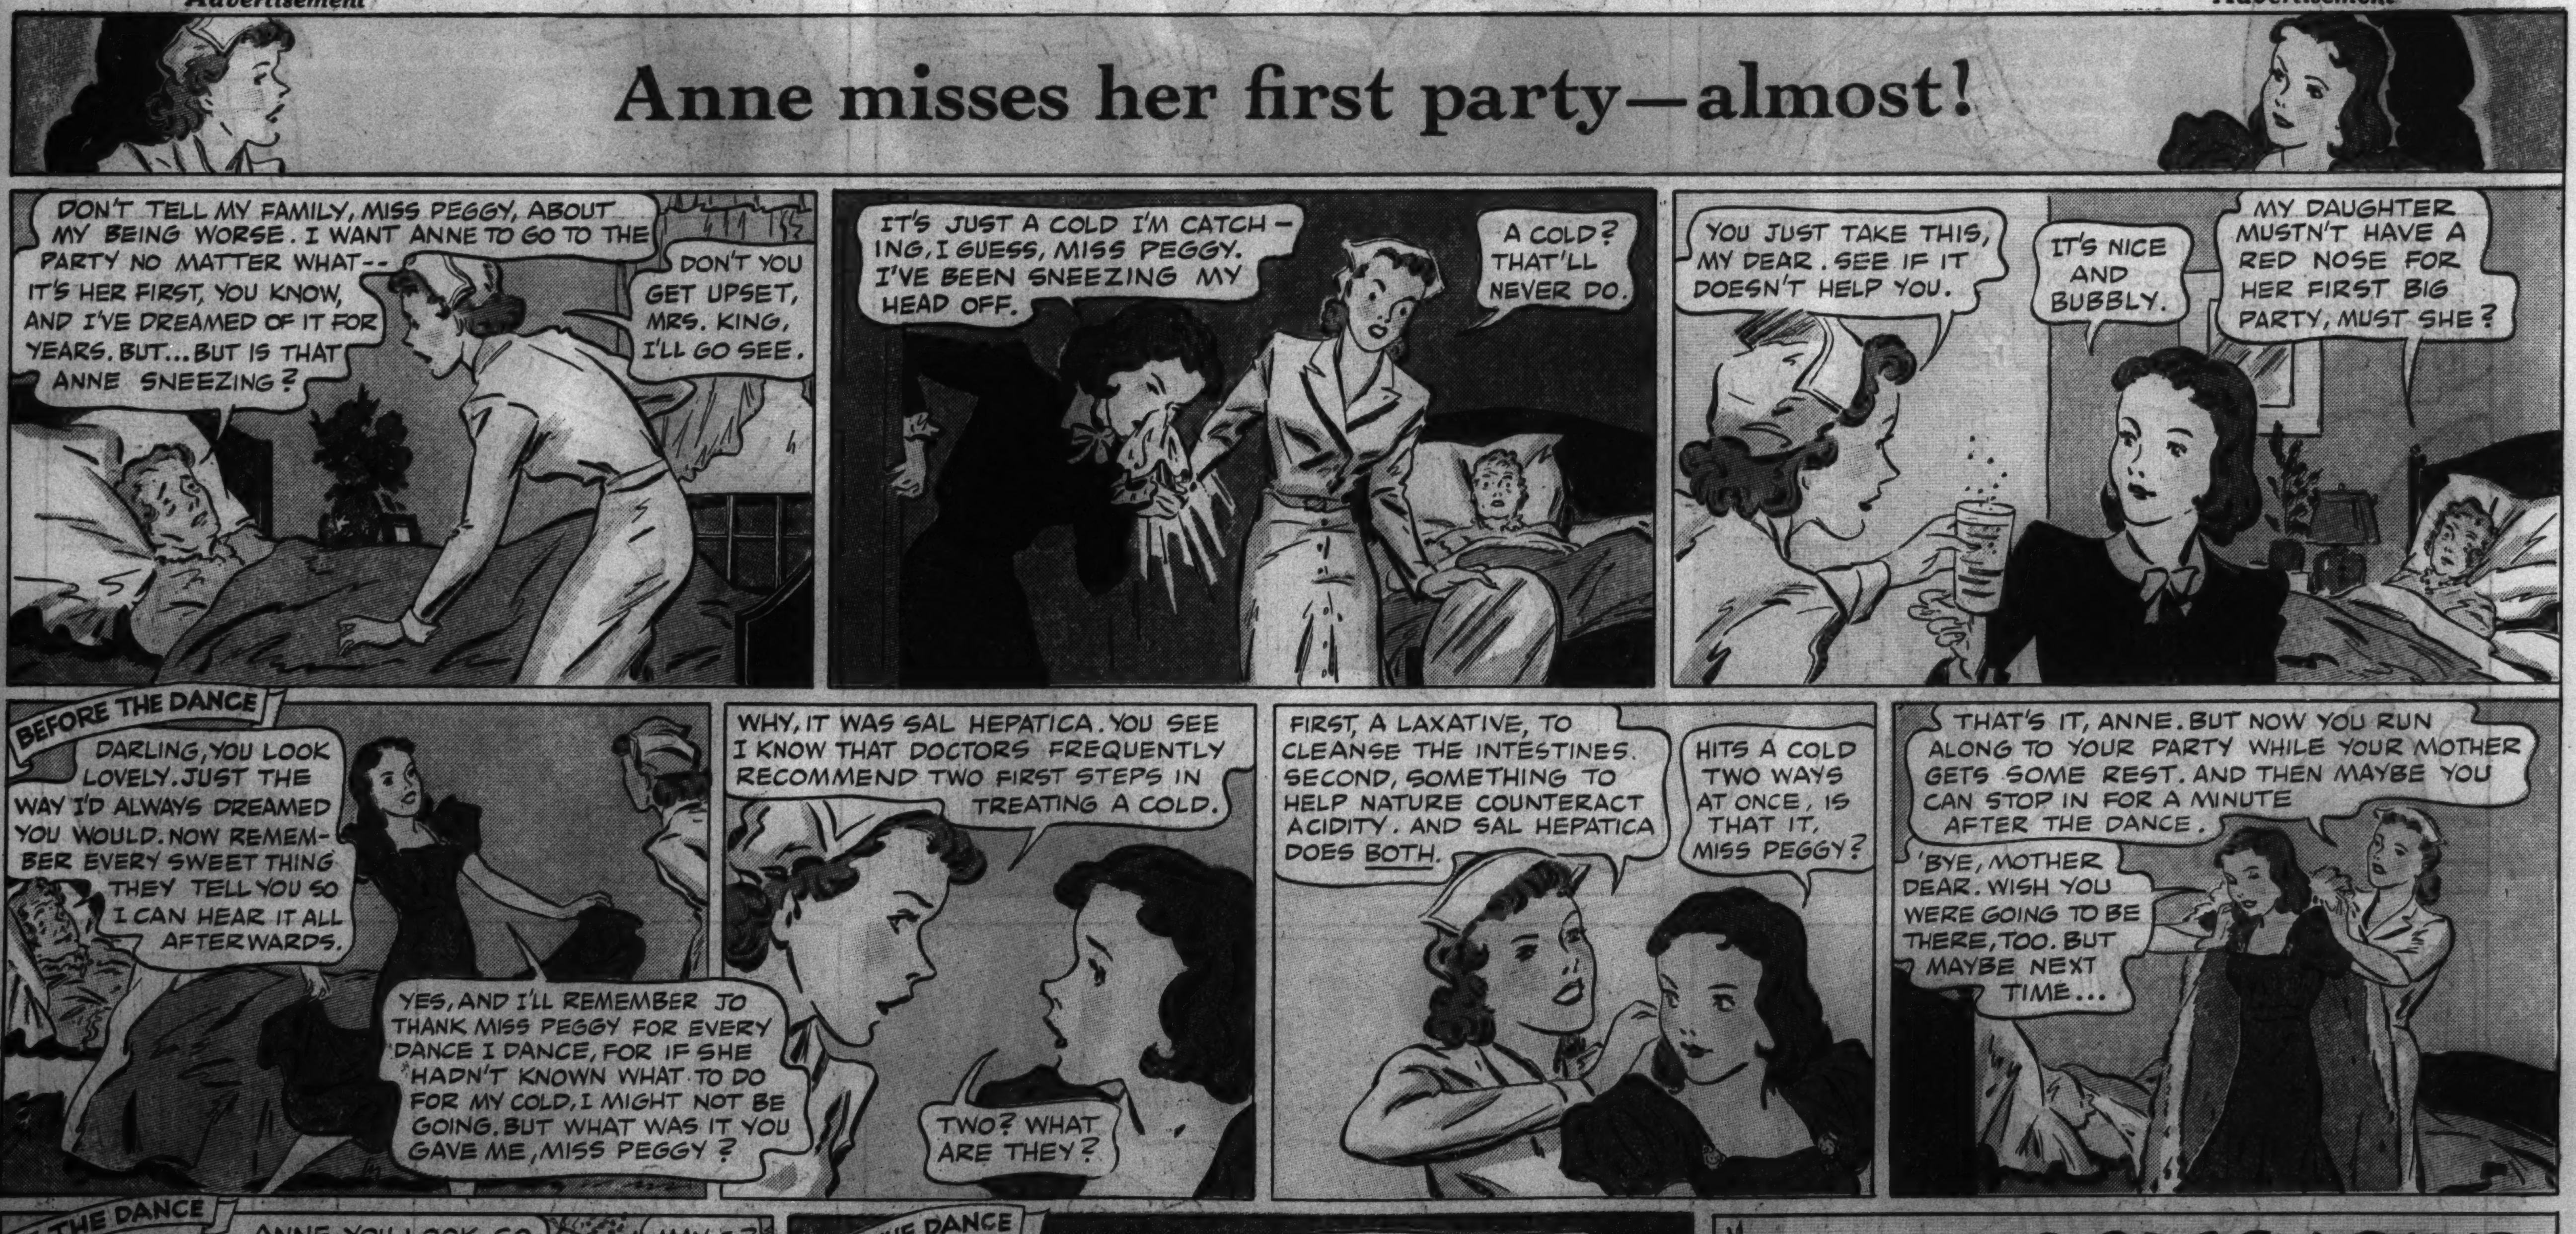
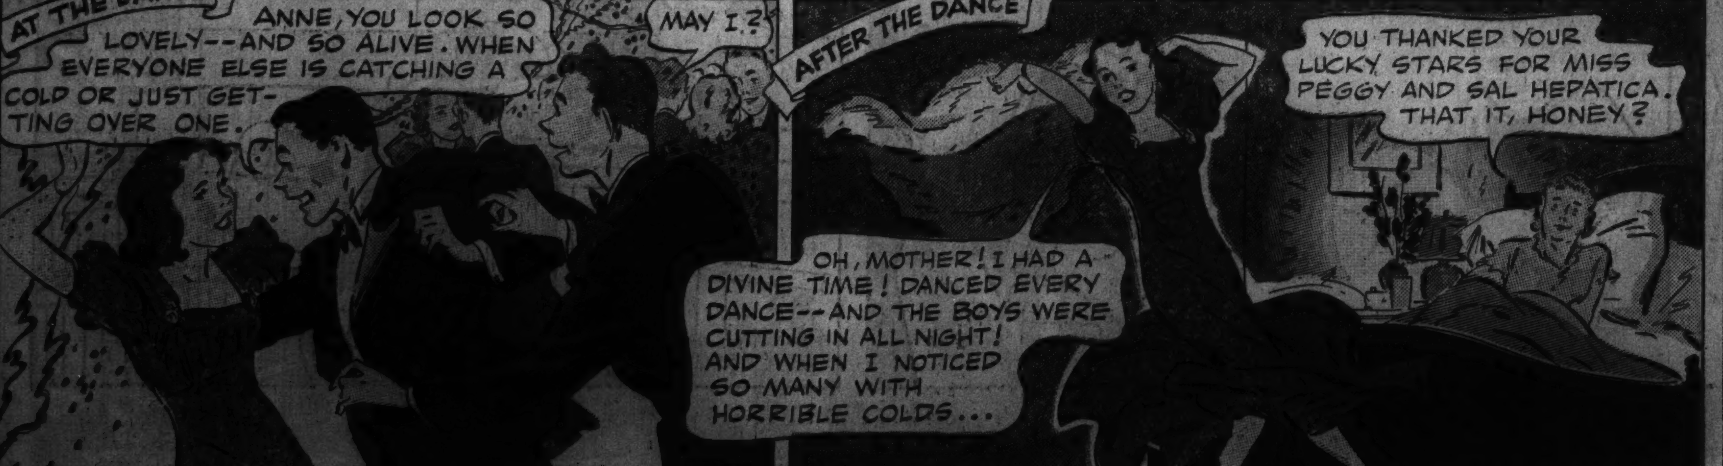
Anne misses her first party—almost!



DON'T TELL MY FAMILY, MISS PEGGY, ABOUT MY BEING WORSE. I WANT ANNE TO GO TO THE PARTY NO MATTER WHAT-- IT'S HER FIRST, YOU KNOW, AND I'VE DREAMED OF IT FOR YEARS. BUT... BUT IS THAT ANNE SNEEZING?
DON'T YOU GET UPSET, MRS. KING, I'LL GO SEE.
IT'S JUST A COLD I'M CATCHING, I GUESS, MISS PEGGY. I'VE BEEN SNEEZING MY HEAD OFF.
A COLD? THAT'LL NEVER DO.
YOU JUST TAKE THIS, MY DEAR. SEE IF IT DOESN'T HELP YOU.
IT'S NICE AND BUBBLY.
MY DAUGHTER MUSTN'T HAVE A RED NOSE FOR HER FIRST BIG PARTY, MUST SHE?
BEFORE THE DANCE
DARLING, YOU LOOK LOVELY. JUST THE WAY I'D ALWAYS DREAMED YOU WOULD. NOW REMEMBER EVERY SWEET THING THEY TELL YOU SO I CAN HEAR IT ALL AFTERWARDS.
YES, AND I'LL REMEMBER TO THANK MISS PEGGY FOR EVERY DANCE I DANCE, FOR IF SHE HADN'T KNOWN WHAT TO DO FOR MY COLD, I MIGHT NOT BE GOING. BUT WHAT WAS IT YOU GAVE ME, MISS PEGGY?
WHY, IT WAS SAL HEPATICA. YOU SEE I KNOW THAT DOCTORS FREQUENTLY RECOMMEND TWO FIRST STEPS IN TREATING A COLD.
TWO? WHAT ARE THEY?
FIRST, A LAXATIVE, TO CLEANSE THE INTESTINES. SECOND, SOMETHING TO HELP NATURE COUNTERACT ACIDITY. AND SAL HEPATICA DOES BOTH.
HITS A COLD TWO WAYS AT ONCE, IS THAT IT, MISS PEGGY?
THAT'S IT, ANNE. BUT NOW YOU RUN ALONG TO YOUR PARTY WHILE YOUR MOTHER GETS SOME REST. AND THEN MAYBE YOU CAN STOP IN FOR A MINUTE AFTER THE DANCE.
'BYE, MOTHER DEAR. WISH YOU WERE GOING TO BE THERE, TOO. BUT MAYBE NEXT TIME...



AT THE DANCE
ANNE, YOU LOOK SO LOVELY--AND SO ALIVE. WHEN EVERYONE ELSE IS CATCHING A COLD OR JUST GETTING OVER ONE.
MAY I?
AFTER THE DANCE
YOU THANKED YOUR LUCKY STARS FOR MISS PEGGY AND SAL HEPATICA. THAT IT, HONEY?
OH, MOTHER! I HAD A DIVINE TIME! DANCED EVERY DANCE--AND THE BOYS WERE CUTTING IN ALL NIGHT! AND WHEN I NOTICED SO MANY WITH HORRIBLE COLDS...

Sal Hepatica
Effervescent Saline Combination
LAXATIVE & CATHARTIC

MISS PEGGY SAYS:

A cold coming? The doctor often advocates two "first steps":

1 . . . Cleanse the intestinal tract.

2 . . . Help Nature counteract acidity.

So take a laxative that does BOTH—Sal Hepatica!

While Sal Hepatica is ridding the intestines of accumulated wastes, this pleasant, bubbling mineral salt laxative is also bringing about a definite alkaline (anti-acid) reaction to help Nature swing the system back toward the alkaline reserve so necessary to germ-resistant health. So whenever you get a cold, remember Sal Hepatica.

FOILING THE CATTLE RUSTLERS—
TED YOCHUM TELLS WHAT COW-PUNCHERS ARE UP AGAINST IN THE NEW WILD WEST!
THE COWBOY'S PRIDE— A GENUINE, SILVER-MOUNTED, TOOLED-LEATHER SADDLE WITH THE TYPICAL HIGH POMMEL USED IN ROPING STEERS
I'VE BEEN READING ABOUT THE OLD FRONTIER, TED. HOW I WISH I'D BEEN OUT HERE WHEN THE WEST WAS REALLY WILD!
WELL, IT AIN'T EXACTLY TAME NOW, MISS GENIE. CONTRARY TO WHAT YOU FOLKS BACK IN NEW YORK THINK, THERE'S STILL CATTLE RUSTLIN'—1938 STYLE...TAKE ONE NIGHT—THE BOYS IN THE BUNKHOUSE HEARD OUR BACK FENCE HAD BEEN CUT—THAT CAIN'T MEAN BUT ONE THING, BOYS—CATTLE RUSTLERS!
I BET IT'S SLICK BRODY'S GANG STEALIN' OUR COWS AGIN'—LET'S GIT GOIN'!
Meanwhile— on the range of the G BAR B RANCH
ROPE THAT ORNERY CRITTER OVER YONDAH, SLIM!
WORK FAST, YOU HOMBRES! WE GOTTA CLEAN THIS JOB UP FORE THEM VARMINTS AT THE G BAR B GIT WISE!
WISHT IT WA'N'T SUCH A STILL NIGHT. THEY'LL HEAR US UP TO THE RANCH HOUSE SURE!
WE GOT THE PICK OF THE G BAR B HERD!
TH' STOCK TRUCK'S CHOCK-A-BLOCK FULL, SLICK
LET'S PULL OUTA HERE AFORE—

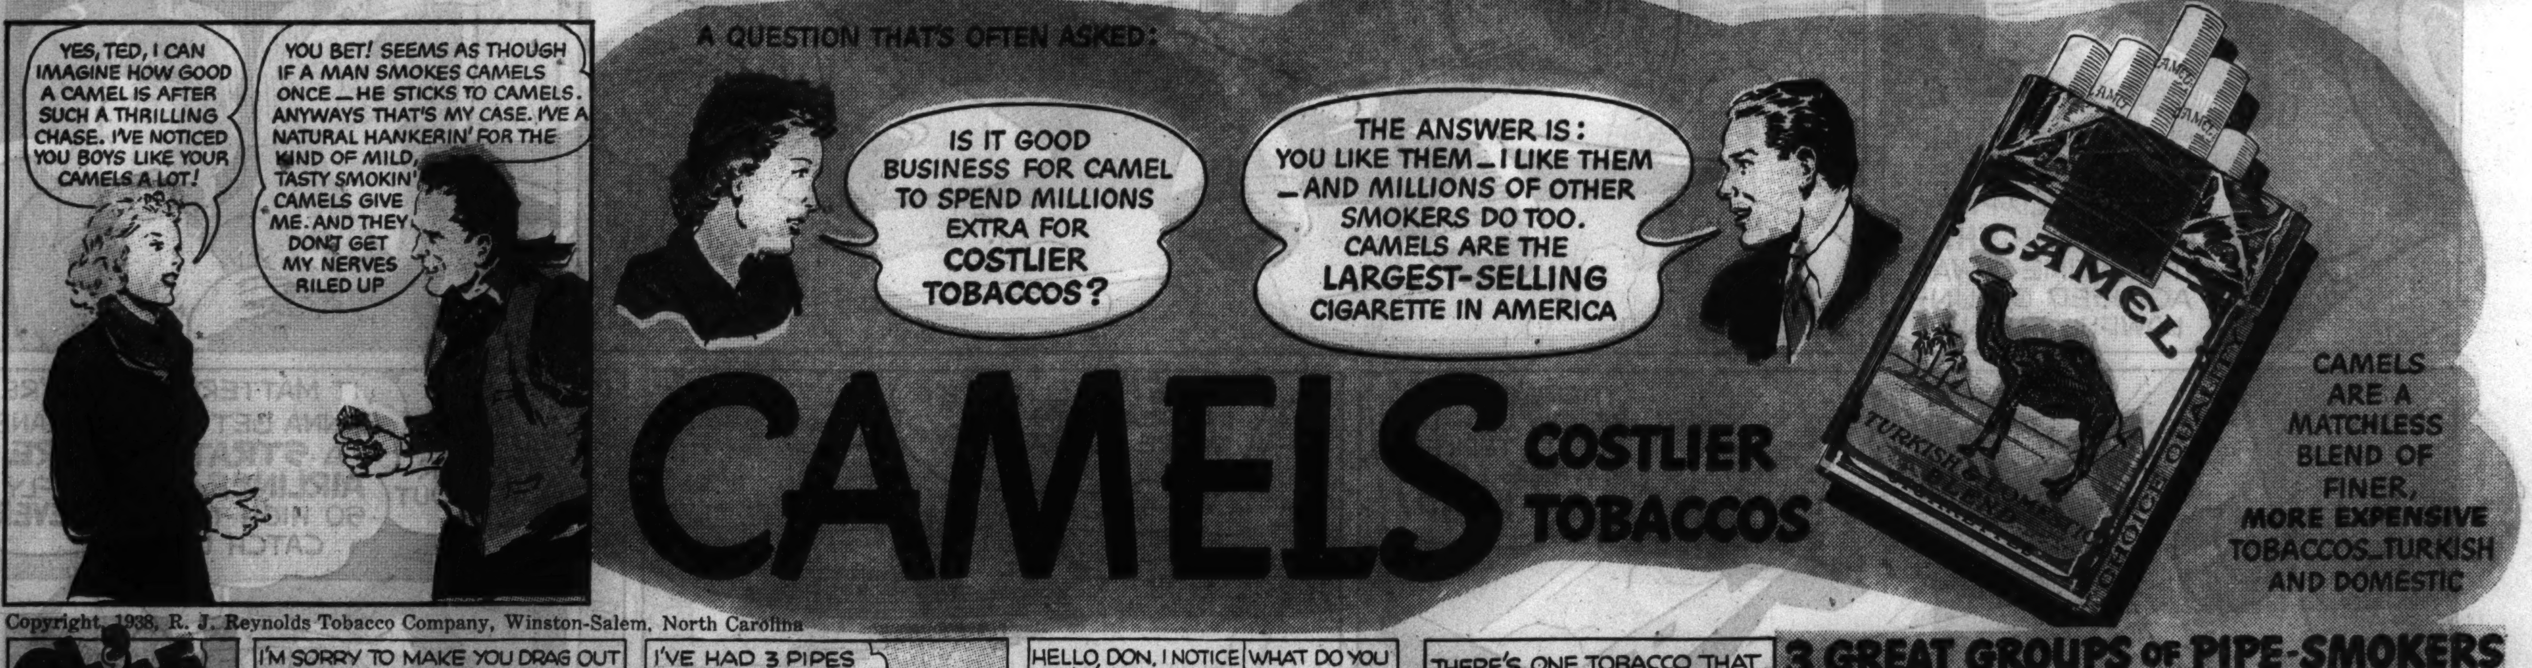
WAL, I CALC'LATE SLICK AN' HIS COYOTES IS IN FER A BIT OF A SURPRISE
WE'VE SHORE GOT THE DROP ON THEM MAVERICKS!
LOOK! HERE THEY COME NOW—DRIVIN' LIKE BLAZES! GIT SET, BOYS!
REACH FER THE SKY, SLICK BRODY! I RECKON THE SHERIFF'LL BE PLUMB TICKLED TO SEE YUH AGIN'
WAAL, YOU BOYS SHORE DID A LARGE EVENIN'S WORK! I RECKON A SMOKE'S IN ORDER—HAVE A CAMEL!
THAT'S MY CIGARETTE, SHERIFF!
YES, SUH, THIS WHOLE G BAR B OUTFIT IS A CAMEL SMOKIN' BUNCH



YES, TED, I CAN IMAGINE HOW GOOD A CAMEL IS AFTER SUCH A THRILLING CHASE. I'VE NOTICED YOU BOYS LIKE YOUR CAMELS A LOT!
YOU BET! SEEMS AS THOUGH IF A MAN SMOKES CAMELS ONCE—HE STICKS TO CAMELS. ANYWAYS THAT'S MY CASE. I'VE A NATURAL HANKERIN' FOR THE KIND OF MILD, TASTY SMOKIN' CAMELS GIVE ME. AND THEY DON'T GET MY NERVES RILED UP A QUESTION THAT'S OFTEN ASKED:
IS IT GOOD BUSINESS FOR CAMEL TO SPEND MILLIONS EXTRA FOR COSTLIER TOBACCOS?
THE ANSWER IS: YOU LIKE THEM—I LIKE THEM—AND MILLIONS OF OTHER SMOKERS DO TOO. CAMELS ARE THE LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA

YOU SLED IT, FOLKS!- HERE'S A SLICK IDEA THAT'LL SLEIGH YOU - SO DON'T LET IT SLIDE.
FIRST CUT OUT THE SNOW
NOW SPRINKLE IT ON THE HILL
SO CASH U. NUTT'S DAUGHTER "ANNIE NUTT" CAN COAST.
GET THE DRIFT?
SNOWMEN ARE COWARDS. IF YOU MAKE IT HOT FOR THEM THEY RUN.

SMILIN' JACK
WHEN JACK REACHED JILL'S SCHOOL, HE LEARNED SHE HAD ELOPED-- TRAILING HER TO CUPID CORNERS, HE ARRIVED JUST AS--
--AND I NOW PRONOUNCE YOU MAN AND WIFE!
WHY, COTTON --YOU SNEAKIN' RAT! YOU STOLE MY SISTER--I'M GONNA BEAT-- CALM YOURSELF, SON---IT'S TOO LATE NOW--YOU CAN'T BATTLE LOVE--
OH! DON'T, JACK---I LOVE COTTON!
PLEASE FORGIVE--- OH! WHAT'S HAPPENED TO YOUR LEFT CHEEK, JACK?
SMUGGLERS "BRANDED" ME--BUT THEY'LL PAY FOR IT--I'VE LANDED A JOB FLYING WITH TH' BORDER PATROL!
OH--DID YOU GET YOUR PILOT'S LICENSE BACK?
YES--I FOUND THE ONE WITNESS THAT COULD PROVE THAT I WAS FISHING AT TH' TIME I WAS ACCUSED OF UN-LAWFUL FLYING!
WELL, TEEKEELA, HERE WE ARE FLYING ANOTHER LOAD!
IT'S AMUSING, BARON, THE WAY WE GIVE THE BORDER PATROL THE RUN AROUND!
MEANTIME-
AMUSING, EH? LOOK BEHIND US! THAT'S NO SIGHT-SEEING PLANE, DEAR!!
OH! THE BORDER PATROL!
THERE'S FOG BELOW US---DIVE FOR IT, TEEKEELA, WHILE I FEED 'EM LEAD!
RAT-TAT-TAT
RAT-TAT-TAT
SAFE! WE'LL FLY BY INSTRUMENTS TILL WE'RE OUTTA THIS!
ZACK MOSLEY
BARON, JACK MUST HAVE TIPPED OFF THE BORDER PATROL ABOUT US---
IT MATTERS NOT--WE'RE GONNA GET A NEW PLANE --A STRATOSPHERE AIRLINER THAT'LL FLY SO HIGH THEY'LL NEVER CATCH US!

JEANIE ACCUSES STREAKY OF BEING IN LOVE WITH DORIS DAWSON. AN ARGUMENT ENSUES. WHEN HIS EXPLANATIONS FALL ON DEAF EARS, HE SETS OUT TO REALLY GIVE JEANIE SOMETHING TO BE JEALOUS ABOUT. MRS. STREAK REALIZES HOW SERIOUS IT CAN BE AND FRETS ABOUT THE SITUATION UNTIL IT BEGINS TO INTERFERE WITH HER RECOVERY
HUH, SHE ISN'T THE ONLY PEBBLE ON THE BEACH-ANYWAY, I LIKE GIRLS WITH RED HAIR BETTER THAN BLONDES
HELLO, DORIS, ER, SEE THE ER, HERE'S SOME FLOWERS I BROUGHT ALONG
OH, YOU SWEET, SWEET BOY!
WHAT DO YOU LIKE? I LIKE TO GO FOR STROLLS-DON'T YOU?
I LIKE ANYTHING YOU LIKE
LET'S GO DOWN THIS WAY- IT'S ER, PRETTY DOWN HERE-ISN'T THIS THE STREET JEANIE LIVES ON? WON'T SHE RAISE- WON'T SHE BE ANGRY, SEEING US TOGETHER?
WHO? OH, JEANIE -WE USED TO BE FRIENDS WHEN I ER, WAS A KID-BUT-HA-HA- I'VE FORGOTTEN ABOUT THAT- NOW
IT WAS SO SWEET AND THOUGHTFUL OF YOU TO BUY ME THESE FLOWERS, STREAKY DEAR-
LET'S GO FOR A WALK TONIGHT, TOO, DORIS, THERE'S GONNA BE A MOON

BUT, JOHN-
OUCH! HE KICKED ME!
I DON'T CARE- I HATE IT- I HATE IT- HATE THAT STUFF
GET MY STRAP READY, MARY
OH, JOHN, PLEASE DON'T
WHAT'S UP, JOHN? A REBELLION?
RIGHT, PROFESSOR. I'M TIRED OF PAMPERING THE CHILD TO TAKE HIS LAXATIVE. AND NOW I'M GOING TO FORCE IT DOWN HIM
DON'T DO THAT JOHN. A CHILD'S NERVOUS SYSTEM IS DELICATE- USING FORCE CAN UPSET IT AND DO MORE HARM THAN GOOD
BY GEORGE! I NEVER KNEW THAT. I'LL GIVE HIM THE LAXATIVE I TAKE. IT HAS A GOOD TASTE
I WOULDN'T DO THAT EITHER, JOHN, REMEMBER, HE'S ONLY A CHILD. HE NEEDS A LAXATIVE MADE ESPECIALLY FOR CHILDREN
DID YOU SAY A CHILD'S LAXATIVE?
INDEED YES - IT'S FLETCHER'S CASTORIA. MANY DOCTORS SUGGEST IT BECAUSE IT HAS NO HARSH DRUGS. IT'S SAFE - WON'T GRIPE. AND HAS A PLEASANT TASTE CHILDREN LOVE. WHY NOT TRY IT?
LATER
WELL, SON, SEEMS LIKE WE DON'T HAVE ANY MORE FIGHTS SINCE FLETCHER'S CASTORIA CAME ALONG GEE, DAD, IT SURE TASTES GOOD!

HOW I ENVY YOU, SHEILA... SPENDING THE WINTER IN PALM SPRINGS!
I'M SO THRILLED!!
BRING BACK A HUSBAND FROM CALIFORNIA!
GOLDEN
JUST A LEMON IN THE LAND OF ORANGE BLOSSOMS
..but there Sheila Learned "THE MIRACLE OF IRIUM"!
NEW YEAR'S EVE... PALM SPRINGS, CAL.
TOM, I WANT YOU TO MEET SHEILA BRYANT.. THE LITTLE GIRL FROM CHICAGO I WAS TELLING YOU ABOUT!
HOW DO YOU DO! MAY I HAVE THE PLEASURE OF THIS DANCE, MISS BRYANT!
I'D BE DELIGHTED!
HALF HOUR LATER—
SHEILA'S SO ATTRACTIVE, ALL THE BOYS WANT TO MEET HER RIGHT AWAY! BUT ONCE THEY DANCE WITH HER, AND SHE SMILES CLOSE-UP...
YES, I KNOW... ONE CLOSE-UP OF SHEILA'S DINGY-LOOKING TEETH, AND THEY NEVER ASK HER TO DANCE AGAIN... POOR KID, SOMEONE OUGHT TO TELL HER ABOUT IRIUM!
NEVER DREAMED WHAT A HANDICAP MY TEETH ARE! ..WONDER WHAT THIS IRIUM IS?
FOR BRIGHTER TEETH USE PEPSODENT containing IRIUM DRUGS
MAYBE THIS IRIUM IN PEPSODENT MIGHT HELP MY DINGY TEETH!
...AND I'VE TRIED DOZENS OF DENTIFRICES... HONESTLY NOW, DO YOU REALLY BELIEVE IRIUM MAKES PEPSODENT SO SUPERIOR?
ABSOLUTELY!.. NATURALLY, I COULD USE ANY DENTIFRICE IN THE STORE... BUT PERSONALLY, I ALWAYS USE PEPSODENT!
WINTER'S END...
DON'T FORGET, SHEILA... EASTER SUNDAY IN CHICAGO! REMEMBER, I'M ESCORTING YOU TO CHURCH!
BUT I'M WALKING SHEILA DOWN MICHIGAN AVENUE AFTERWARD!
WHERE DO I FIT IN? ...DOG-GONE IT, SHEILA, YOU'RE TOO POPULAR THESE DAYS!
THANKS TO PEPSODENT CONTAINING IRIUM!
FRIENDS, I FOUND OUT THAT TO "GO PLACES" NOWADAYS, YOU NEED MORE THAN AN ATTRACTIVE FACE AND FIGURE!
...TO REALLY "RATE" YOU SIMPLY MUST HAVE CLEAN SPARKLING TEETH TRY PEPSODENT YOURSELF ...AND LEARN "THE MIRACLE of IRIUM!"

WELL, TIM, NOW THAT MARGIE IS ONE OF THE FAMILY, YOUR MOTHER AND I WANT TO HAVE A TALK WITH YOU -
THE POOR LITTLE GIRL HAS HAD SO MUCH SADNESS - WE ALL MUST TRY AND MAKE HER AS HAPPY AS POSSIBLE -
YES, TIM - SHE'S YOUR LITTLE SISTER NOW -
REMEMBER - I'M COUNTING ON YOU TO DO YOUR PART - BE KIND TO HER - AND HELP HER AT ALL TIMES -
DON'T WORRY, DAD - I'LL LOOK AFTER HER -
GOSH - I ALMOST FORGOT - I'VE GOT TO GET AT MY HOME WORK -
"A MAN DROVE 1158 MILES IN HIS CAR IN EIGHT DAYS - HOW MANY MILES DID HE AVERAGE EACH DAY?" GEE - THIS ARITHMETIC IS TOUGH -
THAT ISN'T RIGHT -
WHAT ARE YOU DOING, TIM?
AW - THIS OLD ARITHMETIC! I CAN'T SEEM TO FIGURE IT OUT - NOW TAKE THIS PROBLEM FOR INSTANCE -
WHAT IS IT?
THERE - THAT WASN'T SO HARD -
OH, NOW I SEE - I SUBTRACTED WRONG -
AND HERE'S A WORD YOU MISSPELLED, TIM - THERE ARE TWO R'S IN THE WORD, ARRIVE -
GOSH - THAT'S RIGHT - NOW - ONCE AGAIN - WHAT IS AN ISTHMUS?

Mother—
LUCKY FOR YOU
Your Child Wants Ralston!

You see, Ralston does for your child what no ordinary cereal can do:

IT'S HOT! More satisfying. More sustaining. A better way to start the day!

IT'S WHOLE WHEAT! Provides minerals for strong bones and sound teeth—proteins for healthy flesh—carbohydrates for body heat and energy.

IT'S DOUBLE RICH in the important vitamin B—the vitamin that aids digestion, creates eager appetites, helps prevent nervousness, promotes all-around growth.

Order Ralston. Encourage your child to eat it regularly. Cooks in 5 minutes. Costs less than 1¢ a serving—a small investment for such a big return in health and happiness!

If You Can Really Sell

Here is an opportunity to connect with an old established rapidly growing organization whose customer list numbers more than 70,000 of the better class of people in Chicago and surrounding territory.

Our proposition consists of a service that is needed by every automobile and property owner, and the increase in business we have enjoyed during the past years has proved that only a small portion of our potential market has yet been reached.

Our plans for expansion and development for 1938 require several additional experienced salesmen—not replacements—who have cars and who know how to reach the prospect and how to sell him after he has been reached. Insurance or other similar director-to-user sales experience is most valuable in this type of work.

Our thorough training and liberal commission plan with nominal drawing account against commissions, will enable a man to commence at once to earn a substantial income, and his future possibilities are limited only by his ability to sell, his willingness to work, and his determination to make a real success of himself in an interesting, pleasant and dignified job involving no traveling, with an organization that recognizes the value of complete co-operation and assistance to its sales force.

In your reply please give full details concerning yourself and your past record, so that we may be able to judge your qualifications for this work.

Address P Y 355, Tribune.

SALESMAN.

Outstanding manufacturer has an opening for experienced salesman to call on variety, dept. store, gift shop, and stationery trade. Our expansion program presents an unusual opportunity made possible by consistent sales increases during the past year. We offer exclusive territory, substantial commissions, weekly drawing account. If you have a car and can furnish references you can join an organization which provides permanent, profitable employment with definite bonus arrangement for those who make good. Give age, complete business experience, other information on which a fair opinion of qualifications can be based, for confidential personal interview. Address D K 16 Tribune.

Start Your New Job Now!

Increasing business and even better prospects for 1938 make it necessary for us to employ additional people at once.

START 1938 MAKING BIG MONEY

A $5,000 year job is open. If you've been making that kind of money, and are accustomed to enjoying the finer things in life, you'll be VITALLY INTERESTED. If you've never made as high as $100 weekly—and more you owe it to yourself to investigate.

The position open is for men over 30 years old, able to travel in smaller towns. It is soliciting delinquent accounts for collection on a "NO COLLECTION NO CHARGE" plan. All you do is list names of slow pay debtors. You are paid immediately for names listed. Territories open in Middle West, Northern and Eastern States.

We have just closed our most successful year. Our business is growing by leaps and bounds. Our men are earning BIG MONEY.

Rapid promotion to District Manager on salary and over-writing. This is a PERMANENT LIFE-TIME job for the right man. If you are willing to WORK, you can start "hitting the ball" within a week making more money than you have ever made before. Write or wire immediately, telling us all about yourself. I'll make it TREMENDOUSLY interesting for you.
MITCHELL HEIM, Salesmanager,
1556 Plymouth Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.

WHAT KIND OF JOB ARE YOU LOOKING FOR?

Isn't a permanent position with good income and opportunity for advancement with a large company what you want? If you are a serious minded young man interested in your future and if you are 21 to 35 years of age and of neat appearance, Commonwealth Edison Company will consider you for a position in the Appliance Sales Department. If you meet with the above qualifications and you have the right attitude previous experience is unnecessary. The electrical business is a growing business and men in it receive good percentage plus bonus and in addition a drawing account is available for those who qualify. Apply Monday, Room 1280, 140 South Dearborn-street, 9 a. m. to 11 a. m. only.

To An Ambitious Salesman.

Chicago's thousands of smokestacks point out the almost limitless prospects you may contact.

If you drive your own car and are a real salesman, tell us about yourself today. Matured men are best suited to our industry.

A commission basis of 25% and a modest expense account are your assurance of substantial income, selling our scientific boiler water chemicals and allied products.

Experience in similar work helpful but not essential. Address P P 377. Tribune.

SUPERVISORS

Men who can sell appliances will find a real opportunity with Frigidaire. Several products have been added, gas ranges, washers, ironers, radio, to be sold along with Frigidaire. We need supervisors who can close qualified developed prospects and supervise untrained salesmen. Convince us of your ability and sincerity and we in turn will convince you that the men we employ will make money. We are a large master dealer with a real setup. Drawing account. Apply 4716 N. Lincoln-av., Monday a. m.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Winter Quiet

January 8, 1938.

WINTER quiet prevails on the experimental farm these days. The woods are silent except for the occasional chattering of fox squirrels or the whir of pheasant wings. The three farm ponds, which have so many bird visitors during the other seasons, are frozen solid, and the only activity to be seen is that of the geese, swans, and ducks waddling on the ice or nibbling at their grain.

A flock of sheep, allowed out of the barn to browse, walk to a low ravine where they are protected from the cold wind. Almost all of the trees except the oaks are bare of leaves, dormant until spring.

But in the farm homes the activity around the cooking ranges reminds one of former months before winter came. When we visited the kitchen in one of the homes we found the farm wives still using apples and wild crabs which grew on the farm during the past season. Apples picked last summer were stored in cool basements and are now being brought up to be made into delicious apple pie and applesauce. Wild crabs, which were so plentiful on the farm this fall, are still available. One of the farm women is planning a trip into the woods to pick up the crabs which dropped to the ground and are frozen. This frozen fruit makes delicious jelly.

Busy with Sewing.

There is plenty of activity in the farm homes these days, exclusive of the kitchen tasks. The women are sewing. In one of the homes we noticed that hooked rugs were being made, and also that the sewing machine was put to use making new dresses.

The flockmaster has been having a rather unusual job the last few days. He is trying to teach a flock of sheep correct table manners. The problem has come up since the sheep have been given molasses to get them in shape for the market. They like the thick sweet sirup. When we were in the sheep barn the other day we noticed how they pushed and shoved to get their noses into the molasses troughs. Those in the front rank sometimes had to submit to lusty kicks from other sheep in order to hold their place in the line. To prevent the sheep from sticking their noses deep into the sirup and wasting a lot of it, the flockmaster put a sort of regulator in the trough. It's a long wooden frame which floats and keeps the animals from getting too deep into the molasses.

Some rabbits on the farm have found a way of getting a feed whenever they want it. The men see signs that the cottontails are visiting a stack of soybeans near the sheep-barns. The rabbits don't come during the day when the men are around the barns, but at night they evidently have a good time eating their fill of the green pods and beans.

More Squill for Rats.

The rat population on the Tribune farms recently received another free meal doctored with red squill. Two barns on the Yorkville farm were baited with bread and meat containing the poison. There are a number of cats and fox terriers which discourage the rodents on the Yorkville place, so few baits were needed. But the two barns which showed signs of being occupied were baited. On the Wheaton farm additional baits were placed in the barns and cottages which show signs of rat occupancy.

The next place where the rats are going to get attention is at the swan house. This building stands alone in the center of the farm, and is on the shore of the big pond. It is banked with straw to keep out some of the cold. Each day a supply of grain is placed in the house for the swans. The rodents evidently have discovered that they can get an easy meal when the swans don't eat all of their grain.

REAL ESTATE LOANS, MORTGAGES.

WE NOT ONLY SERVE YOU IN MAKING your mortgage but also help you to make your mortgage payments if needed.

There may be sickness, a sudden layoff, or 50 other reasons why you may be delayed in your payments. Being personally close to our clients we have cheerfully and without cost advanced funds to keep up their payments on time.

Thus, last year, we pitched in with about 4,000 and saved our clients from worry and anxiety—truly a unique service of which we are proud.

We lend up to 80% of the value on homes—brick, stucco, frame—apartments, stores, factories, gas stations. We help you to build, buy, repair, or refinance. FHA 20 years or four other plans. 4½-5% interest. 24 hour replies. Construction loans.

REAL ESTATE BONDS

With rentals and occupancy at a high level, many real estate bonds now represent excellent values. Absence of new building activity indicates continued strength. Prices, however, have declined in sympathy with other types of securities. So that certain sound issues can now be obtained at substantially lower prices. STUDEBAKER'S TIME PAYMENTS
Are Astonishingly Easy,
AND HERE'S WHY:

Buying a car on time, from Studebaker, not only assures you of a more than fair deal but positively eliminates any embarrassments that might grow out of financing through an outside company. STUDEBAKER FINANCES THEIR OWN TIME PAYMENT DEALS. Thus allowing fairer rates and payments, fitting exactly with your budget. WARNING: Always check finance charges before buying. Don't be misled—investigate! In so doing you'll learn that Studebaker's, by far, is the fairest and easiest payment plan.

USED AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We are not quoting sale prices in this announcement because our reductions on used cars are so enormous that the new low prices might seem unbelievable—but

"Seeing Is Believing"
—so come in and see for yourself.

Our annual January Clearance Sale is now in progress, with unprecedented reductions on all makes and models.

A complete line of 1931 to 1937 Dodges, Plymouths, Fords, Chevrolets, and other makes. Also a few trucks.

The cars we are showing in this sale carry the same guarantee of honest dealing that has been our reputation for 18 years.

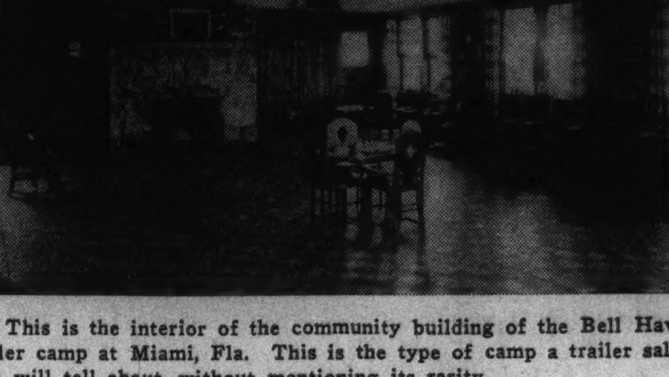
Tourist Trailer Camp to Talk About



This is the interior of the community building of the Bell Haven trailer camp at Miami, Fla. This is the type of camp a trailer salesman will tell about, without mentioning its rarity.

The chief attraction of the camp is a swimming pool with fresh water gushing from the mouth of a lion head fountain at a rate of more than 400 gallons a minute. Temperature of the water as it is pumped from the ground is 76 degrees.

MIAMI DIVIDED ON SYSTEM OF NICKEL PARKING

Housewives Object, but It Relieves Congestion.

BY HAL FOUST.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 4.—[By mail.]—The Tribune roadster, after leaving its trailer in an outlying camp, was able to drive into the crowded business district here and find a place to park on the street for 60 minutes by placing a nickel in a curb meter. Two years ago there wasn't this charge, but it was difficult to find space at the curb.

Since 1935 Miami has had this nickel street parking. There are 700 of the meters. A similar system has been proposed for installation in some of Chicago's neighbohrood business districts.

Housewives Object.

"You can find a large number of local residents opposed to the system and you can find probably as many who like it," Z. B. Owen, manager of the Miami Motor club, responded to inquiries. "In principle, it is wrong to place this additional tax against motorists paying 8 cents a gallon tax on their gasoline. Housewives object to paying an extra nickel to drive to town to shop.

"Many consider the nickel parking charge a racket, operated by the politicians for revenue. The system was inaugurated on the pretense that it was a safety measure. It is not a safety measure.

It Relieves Congestion.

"On the other hand, the nickel parking is a convenience. It has relieved congestion in that a driver doesn't have to cruise around and around the block to find a vacancy at the curb. And with stalls painted on the pavement, there is no jamming of bumpers nor denting of fenders in crowding into inadequate spaces."

Capt. Fred Manning, in command of the police trafic detail, said that the meters were of material benefit in maintaining a flow of automobiles, not only because it reduced cruising, but also because it eliminated delays to trafic from parkers having difficulties in maneuvering into or from cramped curb spaces.

"The meters increase appreciably the number of automobiles that will be parked in a block during the business day," he said. "With meters there is a much better obedience to the time limits than when we used to try to enforce the rules with a patrolman making the rounds each hour marking tires with chalk."

This reporter walked through the metered area reading each of the dials which record the number of minutes since a nickel was dropped into the slot. Of 400 parked automobiles, 16 were violating the regulations either by not having paid the 5 cent fee or by overstaying the time limit.

In Chicago there may be a few places where there is better enforcement of limited parking than in this Miami sample. However, in general, Chicago's "one hour parking" signs are ignored. All day or long time parkers usurp space that otherwise would be used for shorter intervals by more motorists.

Capt. Manning said there are 45,000 automobiles in Miami in the summer and 160,000 in the winter resort season.

SOUTHERN COW HAS NO REGARD FOR FAST TRAFIC

Farmer Usually Wins if There's Accident.

BY HAL FOUST.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 5.—[By mail.]—The public's growing demand for safety on the highways hasn't disturbed the cattle grazing on the roadsides in Florida and south Georgia. In the drive here from Chicago, there seemed to me even more of these jaywalkers on the pavements than in previous years.

With generous federal allotments for roads, these states have done a good job of growing grass on the rights of way to abate water and wind erosion. The incidental result has been to attract more cattle from the unfenced range.

The Bermuda grass planted by the highway departments is preferred by the animals to the sparce growth of wiry weeds found in the woods of scrub pine and palmetto. The departments do not have to do mowing.

Has No Regard for Trafic.

The typical south Georgia and Florida cow, skinny and with shrunken udder, munches the comparatively tender Bermuda with no regard for the fast automobile trafic. She will start languorously across the pavement and stop midway to turn benignant eyes toward an oncoming motor car with screaming brakes. The result is too often disastrous—to the motorists as well as to the cow.

In these disasters, the statutes favor the cow. The motorist, regardless of his own injuries or losses, is required to compensate the owner of the animal. In such instances, farmers are said to get their best prices. Otherwise, the stock does not rate so high on the market.

Advertise Western Beef.

The better restaurants advertise western beef. Another illustration of local stock values was an incident while this reporter was being escorted from the Okefenokee swamp near the Georgia-Florida line by Lem Griffis, a federal guide. By chance, we came upon a cow of his that he had been hunting for two or three months.

"Danged if she doesn't have a hefer calf," said Lem. "Now I'll have to milk two cows every day. Ought to get enough milk for a second cup of coffee. The cow at the house now is a Poland China—you have to tie her to a pole to hold her, and a China cup would hold a milking."

At each session, the legislature receives bills intended to halt this highway hazard that contributes to the death toll. At each session the bills are defeated by the rural majority.

"The live stock is worth more to us," said Lem, "than a lot of tourists speeding toward Miami or Palm Beach. This was an open range long before there were any automobiles and we don't want to have to pay for any fences."

NEWS AND VIEWS

A year of development work preceded the entrance last week of the Hudson Motor Car company into the competitive low priced field. Emphasis in the new car, the company says, is placed on roominess and economy in operation and maintenance.

The new Hudson is mounted on an 112 inch wheelbase chassis and has an over-all length of 187½ inches and has an 83 horse power motor.

The company has begun production on four models: sedan, 3 passenger coupe, 4 passenger coupe, and a convertible brougham. Prices of all except the last named model have been made public, the base price for the coupe being $694. The production schedule, officials report, will result in rehiring 6,000 workers and an addition of $1,250,000 to the monthly pay roll.

The Ford Motor company announced last week that brake testing equipment of the type used in Ford factories and assembly plants is being made available to Ford and Lincoln dealers. The tester used is the dynamometer type and permits adjustments more quickly than formerly, the company said.

"Use your tire chains," David Flynn, chief of the Chicago trafic policemen, recommends to winter drivers. Too many motorists, Chief Flynn says, keep the tire chains under the seat of their cars when they should be on the wheels of the car.

Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works, said last week that Chicago has no appropriation for removing snow from the city streets and will depend chiefly on the street car company to keep the streets clear this year. It is an added reason, he said, why motorists should use unusual caution.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

TRAFIC LIGHT VIOLATOR.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—At 12:20 p. m. today I observed a Yellow cab go through the red trafic stop light at North Michigan avenue and Delaware place. The cab bore license No. 301-136. J. K.

CARBON MONOXIDE.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Franklin Worth is mistaken in his belief that opening an automobile window removes all danger of carbon monoxide poisoning as this deadly gas is even dangerous when diluted with air and is the cause of the enormous increase in heart attacks throughout the country. Not only do motorists inhale the gas discharged from autos, trucks, and buses preceding them on road or street, but pedestrians crossing streets or walking in parks or boulevards carrying heavy trafic, also inhale enough gas to weaken hearts and shorten lives. No doubt many auto crashes, due to motorists losing control of cars, result from heart attacks suffered by drivers whose hearts have been weakened by continually inhaling the gas. A. R.

TWO GENTLEMEN.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—I hope this will be noticed by the two gentlemen who helped a young lady when her car stalled at Western and Lawrence avenues. This is the only way I have to thank them for their assistance.

In this big city, where every one is in such a hurry and so much selfishness seems to prevail, it is good to know that there are still people left who will take time to help a friend in need.

GRATEFUL.

BREACH OF DRIVING COURTESY.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Studying your illustrations in The Sunday Tribune on driving skill and good manners called to my mind another evil that deserves your comment.

With east and west trafic, say, stopped by the red light, it is a common sight to see the lead car of west bound trafic at the flash of the green light, with no regard to the rights of the east bound cars, deliberately make a left turn, cutting off the oncoming cars and frequently causing a serious accident.

Most motorists think that they have a right to such a dangerous habit, but in my opinion it is a breach of driving courtesy and—if I am not mistaken—a direct violation of the trafic law. F. S.

LEFT TURN.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—Article VI, section 30 [b] of the city uniform trafic code provides:

"Approach for a left turn shall be made in the lane for trafic to the right of and nearest to the center line of the roadway, and the left turn shall be made by passing to the right of such center line where it enters the intersection, and upon leaving the intersection by passing to the right of the center line of the roadway then entered, unless otherwise directed by official trafic signs."

The large number of accidents due to the flagrant violation of this section of the code would certainly warant its strict enforcement. I venture to say that it is impossible to drive from any of the outlying districts to the loop without witnessing dozens of foolhardy and discourteous drivers making sharp left turns in order to avoid the slight delay caused by cars traveling in the opposite direction.

I suggest a survey and your editorial comment for the alleviation of this prevalent practice. A. U.

Chicago's 1937 Real Estate Market Gets Off to Flying Start and Then Stumbles

MARKET IS HURT BY TRADE SLUMP DURING SUMMER

Values Are on a Firmer Basis, However.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Chicago real estate business, which got off to a flying start last January and maintained a good pace for several months, began to slow up during the summer as a result of the general slump in business. Building construction of all kinds quickly reacted to the recession in the stock market and land values.

Despite these discouraging factors, the real estate market as a whole is now on a firmer foundation of values than it was twelve months ago. More reorganized properties have been put on their feet, fewer distressed properties are for sale, and the inevitable housing shortage is drawing closer.

Home Occupancy Rises.

Occupancy of residential units throughout the year increased above the "normal" mark and is close to 100 per cent in many neighborhoods.

Rents have steadily advanced throughout the city, and according to all experts will receive another boost next May unless present recession in business brings about renewed doubling up of families.

Home building for individual families made a promising start last January and increased rapidly until April, when construction slackened and the long predicted residential boom faded. The year's total, however, was considerably ahead of that of the preceding twelve months.

Activity in Suburbs.

Most of the single family dwellings erected in the Chicago area during the year were in the suburbs. Home building in the city itself except in a few localities, such as Beverly Hills and Sauganash, was practically at a standstill.

Apartment construction, which lagged behind every other building classification, came to life during December with the announcement of a million dollar project on the north side. This is the first large privately owned apartment project in several years. It is understood to be the forerunner of several big projects to be built this year if financing can be arranged.

Because of the delay in getting the three federal housing projects to function, the real estate market has been little affected so far by these competitors in the apartment renting field.

Industry Building Fair.

Although there was little home building in Chicago, industrial and commercial construction made a fair showing. Probably the largest industrial plant started during 1937 was the $2,000,000 building of the Kraft-Phenix Cheese corporation on the near north side.

In the loop the completion of the $300,000 Benson & Rixon building at State and Quincy marked the first major building project on State street in a decade. Other store projects of the year included the announcement of a million dollar Sears-Roebuck department store for the northwest side, and the completion of the $2,000,000 Wieboldt store in the Oak Park-River Forest shopping center.

Big Outlying Project.

One of the largest building projects ever announced for an outlying Chicago business center, eventually to cost about two million dollars, got under way a few days ago on the north side. This was a group of store buildings planned for the southwest corner of Sheridan road and Devon avenue.

The largest cash realty deal of the year was the purchase by the Illinois Bell Telephone company of the twenty-three story Morton building at Washington and Wells for $1,500,000.

The most unusual real estate transaction of the year was the swapping of skyscrapers by the Marshall Field estate and the Central Life Insurance company. The nineteen story Times building at 211 Wacker drive was traded for the sixteen story insurance building at Michigan avenue and Superior street. Not a dollar was exchanged in the deal.

And How About 1938?

What will the real estate market do during 1938? Realty men, builders, mortgage men and architects all believe that the year will see a steadily increasing activity in both sales and building if the present uncertainty as to Washington's attitude toward business is removed.

When confidence replaces fear, the real estate market will come into its own, they assert.

At the Realty Boards

A business meeting of the active members of the Oak Park Real Estate board will be held tomorrow noon at the Oak Manor hotel to assist the new officers and directors in planning 1938 business activities.

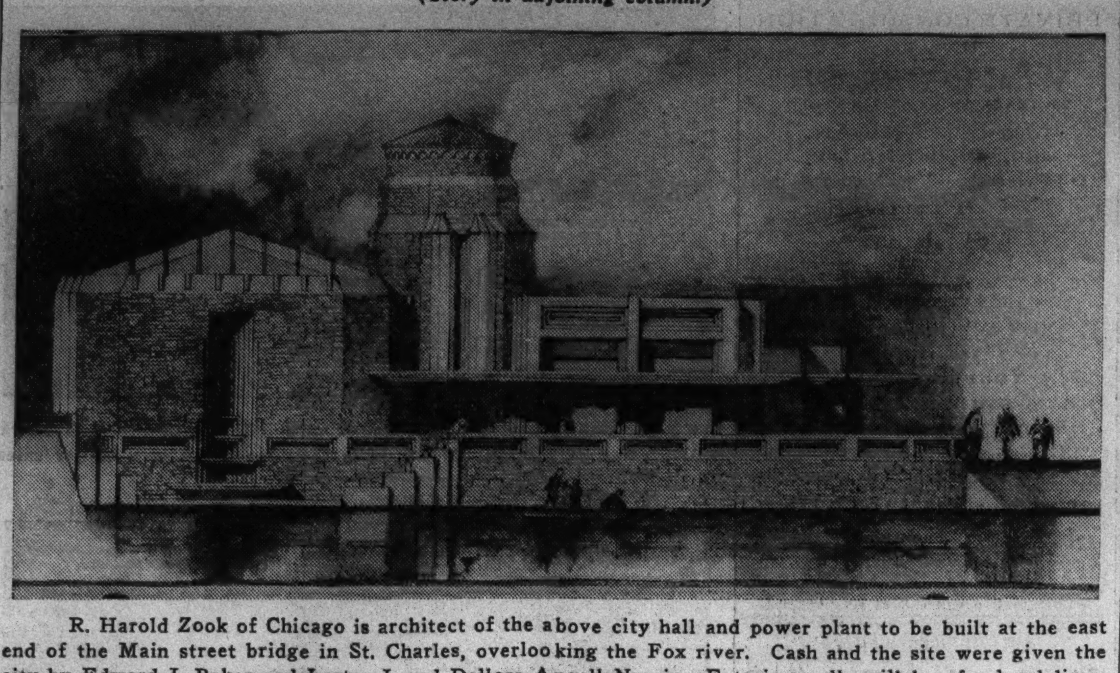
Joseph R. Dorfman, president of the West Side Real Estate board, announces that he has an important message for members in connection with policies and plans for 1938, to be outlined at this year's first meeting tomorrow noon at the Graemere hotel.

The North Side Real Estate board will discuss spring rental increases and the elimination of "for rent" signs at its meeting on Tuesday at noon in the New Lawrence hotel.

The fourth annual dinner-dance of the North Side Real Estate board will be held at the Sovereign hotel on Thursday evening, Jan. 20. There will be a floor show, according to Carl N. Wolf, chairman of the social committee.

Overlooking the Fox River

(Story in adjoining column.)



R. Harold Zook of Chicago is architect of the above city hall and power plant to be built at the east end of the Main street bridge in St. Charles, overlooking the Fox river. Cash and the site were given the city by Edward J. Baker and Lester J. and Dellora Angell Norris. Exterior walls will be of a local limestone, similar to Wisconsin lannon stone, with Indiana limestone trim.

Pay Millions to Owners of Realty Bonds

Bondholders of reorganized properties financed by the Greenebaum Investment company received $3,346,219 in cash during 1937, according to Edgar N. Greenebaum, president. This total included principal, interest and the proceeds of retirement by redemption, liquidation and sinking funds.

Since the first reorganization was completed in 1932 the total amount distributed to security holders in cash has been more than $10,000,000, of which $4,758,322 is interest and dividends, and the balance is principal, Greenebaum said. Most of this was disbursed during 1935, 1936 and 1937.

$2,146,865 Paid in 1937.

Last year the distribution of dividends and interest on reorganized Greenebaum properties amounted to $2,146,865, it was reported. This was an increase of 47 per cent over the 1936 distribution, which was $1,463,108. It also was larger than the combined payments of 1935 and all prior years, Greenebaum said.

During 1937 bonds with a par value of $1,769,300 were retired by redemption at par, by liquidation of the properties or by operation of sinking funds, the proceeds realized by the bondholders being $1,199,354, the Greenebaum report stated. This compares with $3,862,000 par value of bonds retired in the same way during 1936, with proceeds to the bondholders of $3,518,454.

Reorganize 37 Properties.

Reorganization of thirty-seven properties was completed during 1937, involving bonds outstanding at the time of refinancing with a par value of $35,977,300.

Twenty-seven of these properties are in Chicago and ten in other cities. The local ones include the 333 North Michigan building, the Bismarck hotel, Palace theater and Metropolitan building [together known as the Eitel buildings], the Knickerbocker hotel, the Standard club, the Surf hotel, 2130 Lincoln Park West, and the Monroe and Wells building.

The Evanston hotel was reorganized during the year, and also the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, the Warwick in Philadelphia, the Embassy and the Congress and the Senate in St. Louis, and the Wolverine in Detroit.

Calls Taxes a Handicap.

Steadily mounting taxes have worked a hardship on reorganized properties, exacting a disproportionate share of the earnings, Greenebaum said.

He predicted that distributions probably would continue in 1938 on approximately the same scale as 1937, with improvement assured if taxes are reduced and other costs remain about the same.

BARTLETT FIRM REPORTS RECORD SALES LAST YEAR

The Robert Bartlett Realty company reported yesterday sales of $1,550,000 in homes, homesites, business buildings and business frontage in its various developments during 1937. This is the largest volume of business transacted since the firm started operations in 1933.

A major part of this total was property in Beverly Shores, the firm's lake front development in Indiana, and in Palos Heights, at Harlem avenue and 123rd street, in the Palos hills area.

Contrary to the recent general real estate trend, which has been downward, December's business was the highest for any month in 1937, exceeding even January, second best month, by approximately $25,000. The December total, Bartlett said, was more than $175,000.

Business Miscellany

The theory of radiant or panel heating, used considerably in England and gradually becoming known in this country, will be discussed by T. Napier Adlam, chief engineer of the Sarco Co., Inc., at the January meeting of the Illinois chapter of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, at the Brevoort hotel, tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock.

Samuel B. Bosley, Chicago contractor, will speak at the January meeting of the Illinois Association of Certified Real Estate Appraisers at the Great Northern hotel next Tuesday evening. He will discuss the rehabilitation of distressed properties.

Completed at Northfield

Designed, financed, and built by the Nels Wagstad company for Charles C. Livingston, vice president of the Cruver Manufacturing company, this house contains eight rooms and three baths. It is at the northwest corner of Sunset Ridge and Winnetka roads, Northfield. Charles Henderson was architect. The house and lot cost a reported $30,000. This is the twentieth residence built by the Nels Wagstad company this year in Chicago and suburbs.

LEASE 3 MORE STORES IN THE HOTEL LA SALLE

With the signing of three new store leases for space on the ground floor of the Hotel La Salle, Howard L. Storch of Ross, Browne and Fleming said yesterday that only one shop unit remains to be rented. The store at 154 West Madison was leased to Leslie's Millinery Stores, which operates seventy units throughout the country, five of which are in Chicago. The store at 160 West Madison, adjoining the Madison street entrance to the hotel, was rented to the Massagic Shoe store. The third lease was the store at No. 162, to the Madison Stamp company.

MILLER WILL HEAD STATE STREET GROUP FOR FOURTH TIME

Henry G. Miller of the law firm of Whitman, Miller & Coon, heads the only ticket in the field of the South State Street Improvement association, to be voted on at the nineteenth annual meeting and election of officers next Wednesday. It will be Miller's fourth term as president.

A nominating committee consisting of William T. Weise, of Lang, Weise and Cella, I. Simon of I. Simon & Co., and Ernest H. Lyons, will submit a ticket on which Marvin B. Pool of Butler Brothers is named for reelection as vice president.

Fred J. Stebbins of the Stebbins Hardware company, will again be treasurer, and John P. Hooker of Hooker & Slosson, will remain secretary. Leo Heller continues as executive secretary.

The following have been nominated as directors: Edwin L. Brand Jr., of the Edwin L. Brand properties; Francis E. Manierre of Dibblee & Manierre; Hugh McLennan of the McLennan Construction company; Frank S. Pagin of Frank S. Pagin & Co., and W. W. Walker, secretary of the John R. Thompson company.

ALDIS & CO. WILL SPEND $150,000 ON LOOP UNITS

Continuation through 1938 of their half million dollar building modernization and improvement program was announced yesterday by Aldis & Co. According to Graham Aldis, at least $150,000 will be spent this year on buildings his firm is managing.

"The $300,000 spent during 1937 for modernization proved so sound an investment that the work will continue until all properties are rejuvenated," he said.

"Modernization of the Monadnock building will continue, with work starting immediately on those stores not already modernized. The entire first floor of the Champlain building will be modernized along lines of the work already done in the Champlain restaurant. A new granite façade will be installed and the entrances changed. The entire sixth floor has been divided into small modern shops."

News of the Architects

Andrew Sandegren, United States construction engineer at Nome, Alaska, will speak on "Federal Construction Near the Arctic Circle" before the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects next Tuesday evening at the Architects' Club of Chicago, 1801 Prairie avenue. President John Merrill will preside. Walter R. McCornack of Cleveland, O., a director representing the Great Lakes division of the A. I. A. and chairman of the housing committee of the A. I. A., will be a guest.

GATES' HEIRS GIVE ST. CHARLES NEW CITY HALL

Will Be Combined with Power Plant.

Edward J. Baker and Lester J. and Dellora Angell Norris, who have supplied St. Charles with various civic improvements, now have given a site and cash to build a combination city hall and power plant. The gifts have been formally accepted by Mayor I. G. Langum and the city council, and plans are being made by R. Harold Zook, Chicago architect, for the new structure.

Mrs. Lester J. Norris.

The new municipal building will be directly across the Fox river from the Baker hotel, erected a few years ago by Baker, at the east end of the Main street [North avenue] bridge and across the street from the Arcadia theater, built by Norris.

Baker Gives Cash.

Baker gave $100,000 cash and Mr. and Mrs. Norris donated the site for the new building. These contributions were made to St. Charles Charities, a corporation formed in 1924 to receive gifts for philanthropic purposes.

The project was first suggested in 1929, when the site was purchased from the city for $5,000 cash, and the present city water reservoir property up the river was deeded to the city. This has now been deeded to the charity organization, to be deeded back to the city. This proceedure was considered necessary to clear title and facilitate transfer and construction.

A decade ago Mayor Langum, an advocate of municipal light and power, operated a city power plant, supplying the citizens at the lowest rates in this part of the country.

Contract Expires Next Year.

For the last decade the city has had a contract with the Western United Gas and Electric company, which expires next year, at which time St. Charles again will supply its citizens with both light and power from the new plant.

The new city hall, which will cost about $100,000, will be of modern design with Spanish influence in harmony with the Baker hotel and the Arcadia theater. Preliminary drawings are now being made by Zook, who also is architect of the new Du Page county courthouse at Wheaton.

A novel feature of the new city building will be provision for the exhibition in show windows of products manufactured in St. Charles. The police and fire departments will continue in the present old city hall building a block away.

Norris Large Property Owner.

Lester J. Norris, who in 1923 married Dellora Angell, daughter of Robert Angell and niece of the late John W. [Bet a Million] Gates, multimillionaire manufacturer, is one of the largest property owners in the Fox river valley.

Baker, a brother-in-law of Gates, and an uncle of Mrs. Norris, has been active in Kane county affairs, both civic and political. He is owner of the Silver Glen stock farm near St. Charles. He and Mrs. Baker gave St. Charles the Henry Rockwell Baker Memorial community house in memory of a son killed in an accident. Both Baker and his niece, Mrs. Norris, are joint heirs to the many millions left by Gates.

Beg Your Pardon

In reporting the purchase by the Crane company of Kedzie avenue frontage from Florence H. Crane, widow of Richard T. Crane, and from Albert E. and Minnie Burton, trustees for the Crane estate, it was incorrectly stated in this department last Sunday that part of the land was at the northwest corner of 41st street. This should have read 'at the northeast corner of Kedzie and 41st street."

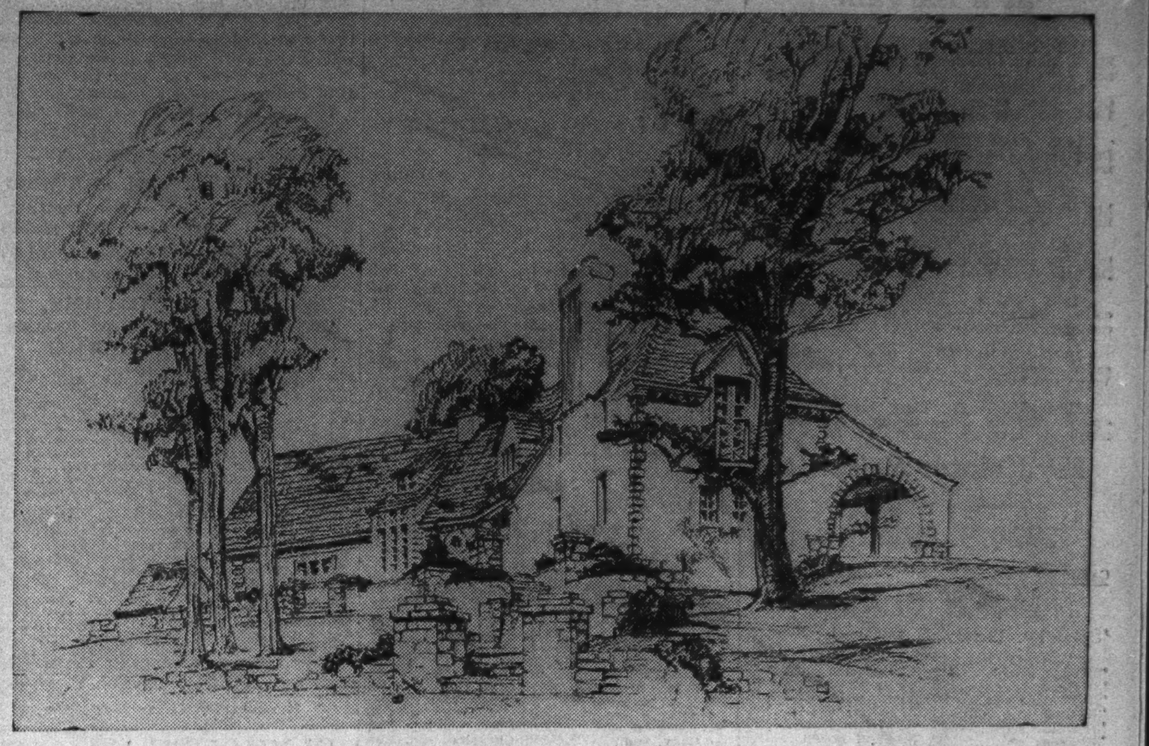
Perched on a Barrington Hilltop



Daniel Woodhead, president of the Daniel Woodhead company, railway supplies, is erecting the above nine room residence on the top of a hill near Ridge road, about a mile north and east of the Barrington Hills Country club. Frank Polito is architect. The house, with an exterior of brick and stone veneer, is on a seven acre tract. It is oriented to fit the site, the trees, and the views. Occupancy is scheduled for March 1.

Asserts Realty Little Hurt by Present Slump

Real estate has been less affected by the present recession than many other lines of business, according to Frank J. O'Brien, vice president of McKey & Poague. He supports his assertion with the statement that during the last four months of 1937 sales for his firm totaled $900,000, compared with $534,000 for the similar period in 1936.

The year's total in sales was $2,600,750, O'Brien said, against $1,196,361 during 1936. The year closed with a larger backlog of deals in escrow but not closed than any in the last six years, he said.

"This, of course, starts 1938 off at top speed as the earnings on this surplus will be reflected in our 1938 statements," said O'Brien.

"It is interesting to note that during 1935 and 1936 very few income properties were sold, and sales were quite generally confined to low cost single family dwellings.

"In 1937 this type of property accounted for $1,100,000 of our sales. Income property accounted for $1,500,000. Demand and inquiry for income property seem definitly on the increase. This evidently is caused by the desirability of real estate as an investment due to increased rents as distressed income properties become fewer in number."

'AD' FIRM BUYS KEDZIE AVENUE HURON CORNER

The James D. Ahern company, advertising agency, now at 1901 South Michigan avenue, bought the one story brick building, 75 by 126 feet, at the northwest corner of North Kedzie avenue and West Huron street, from Samuel H. Nerlove, trustee of the Security Life Insurance Company of America Trust, for a reported $22,000 cash. The new owner will occupy it. The George S. Lurie company was broker for both parties.

Brokers' Notes

Long-Kogen, Inc., report that although their sales force was doubled in 1937, additions have just been made to their sales and management departments. David Neuchiller has been made manager of the maintenance division of the building management department. William W. Haller, recently with Baird & Warner, is now on the sales staf.

Floyd M. Phillips & Co. have moved from 7504 Kingston avenue to larger quarters at 2408 East 75th street.

BEGIN INSPECTION OF TOP NOTCHERS IN SUBURBAN BASEMENTS

Personal inspection of the seventy-five ranking basements in Chicago suburbs was started during the week by the judges' committee in the $2,500 prize basement modernization contest of the Chicago Coal Merchants' association. The inspection tour is being made to reduce to minimum the number of basements to be visited by the judges for prize awards later. The seventy-five represent the finest of the 200 modernized basements entered in the contest.

The first prize for the best modernized basement in the Chicago area is $1,000. Twenty-six other awards range from $500 to $25. Every entry is in a home where coal or coke is used as fuel.

Joseph D. Biety, president of the Chicago Coal Merchants' association, heads the judges' committee. Those who will assist Biety in making the final awards are John O. Merrill, president of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects; J. Soule Warterfield, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board; Lydia Jane Roberts of the University of Chicago, and Anne Forester, former president of the Illinois chapter, American Institute of Decorators.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago during the week of Dec. 31 to Jan. 6, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 15, with a combined cost of $858,965. For the corresponding week last year there were 30 contracts totaling $528,200.

MART TENANCY HITS NEW HIGH MARK IN 1937

With the acquisition during 1937 of 147 new tenants, taking more than 407,000 square feet of floor space, the Merchandise Mart attained an all-time high mark in occupancy and closed its most successful year, according to the annual report of Percy Wilson, treasurer of Marshall Field & Co. This was a 25 per cent increase over 1936, exclusive of space used by Marshall Field & Co.

"During the year the daily trafic in the mart increased from 54,000 to 60,000 persons," Wilson said. "The working population advanced from 18,000 to 24,870, and the number of merchandise lines increased from 5,400 to 5,800.

"Professional buyer trafic reached a new high during the January markets, when 11,760 buyers registered from forty-seven states and five foreign countries. During the year 275,000 buying visits were made to the mart, with registrations on the furniture floors exceeding 40,000, an increase of 35 per cent over 1936."

The Gentleman Needs MORE ELECTRIC OUTLETS!

● Come, come, sir! You're wasting time and effort trying to get the best from your modern razor when there's no convenient outlet. And we'll bet that your radio is off in a bad corner—that you become a cord stringer when it's time to use other household appliances.

It's so much easier to have electric convenience outlets right where you want them. And so reasonable, too—only $4.75 each when three or more are installed in your home or apartment at one time. Call RANdolph 1200, Local 547, to have a man install new outlets. Terms are as low as $1.43 down—the balance in convenient monthly amounts with your Electric Service bill.

See the typical examples of effective outlet installations on first and tenth floors of the Edison Building.

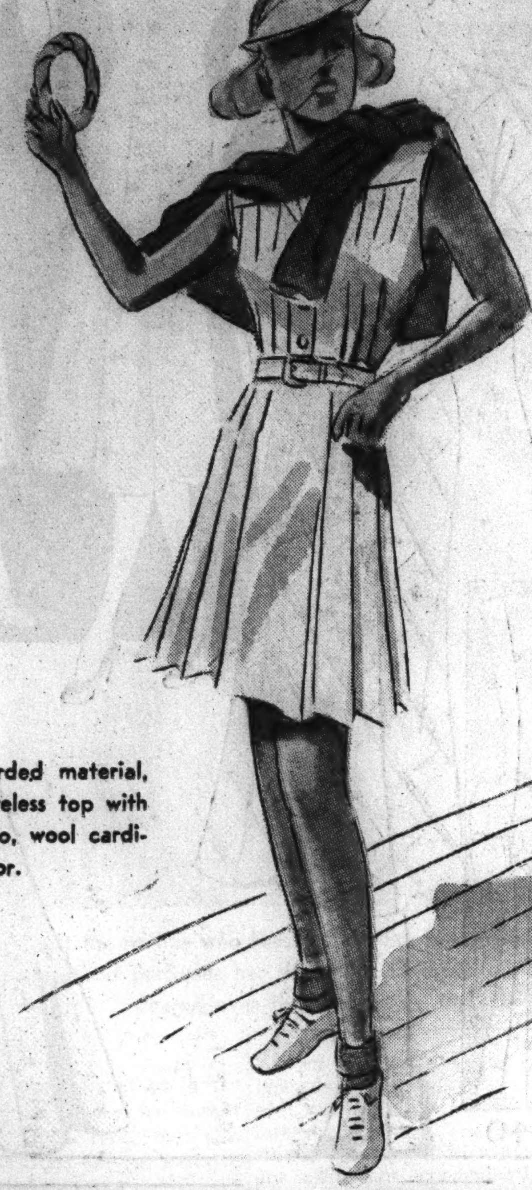
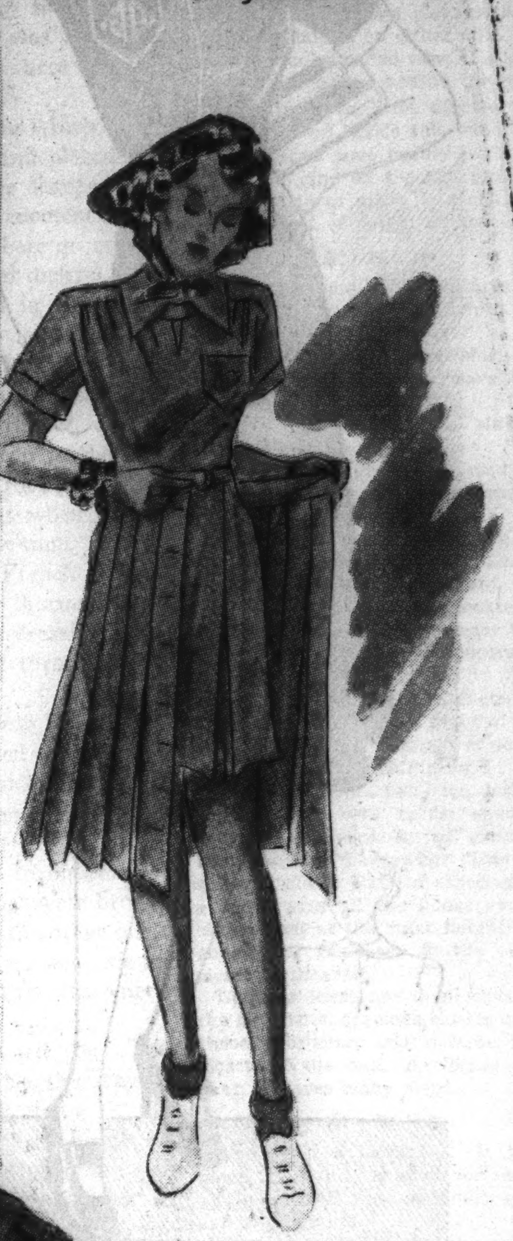
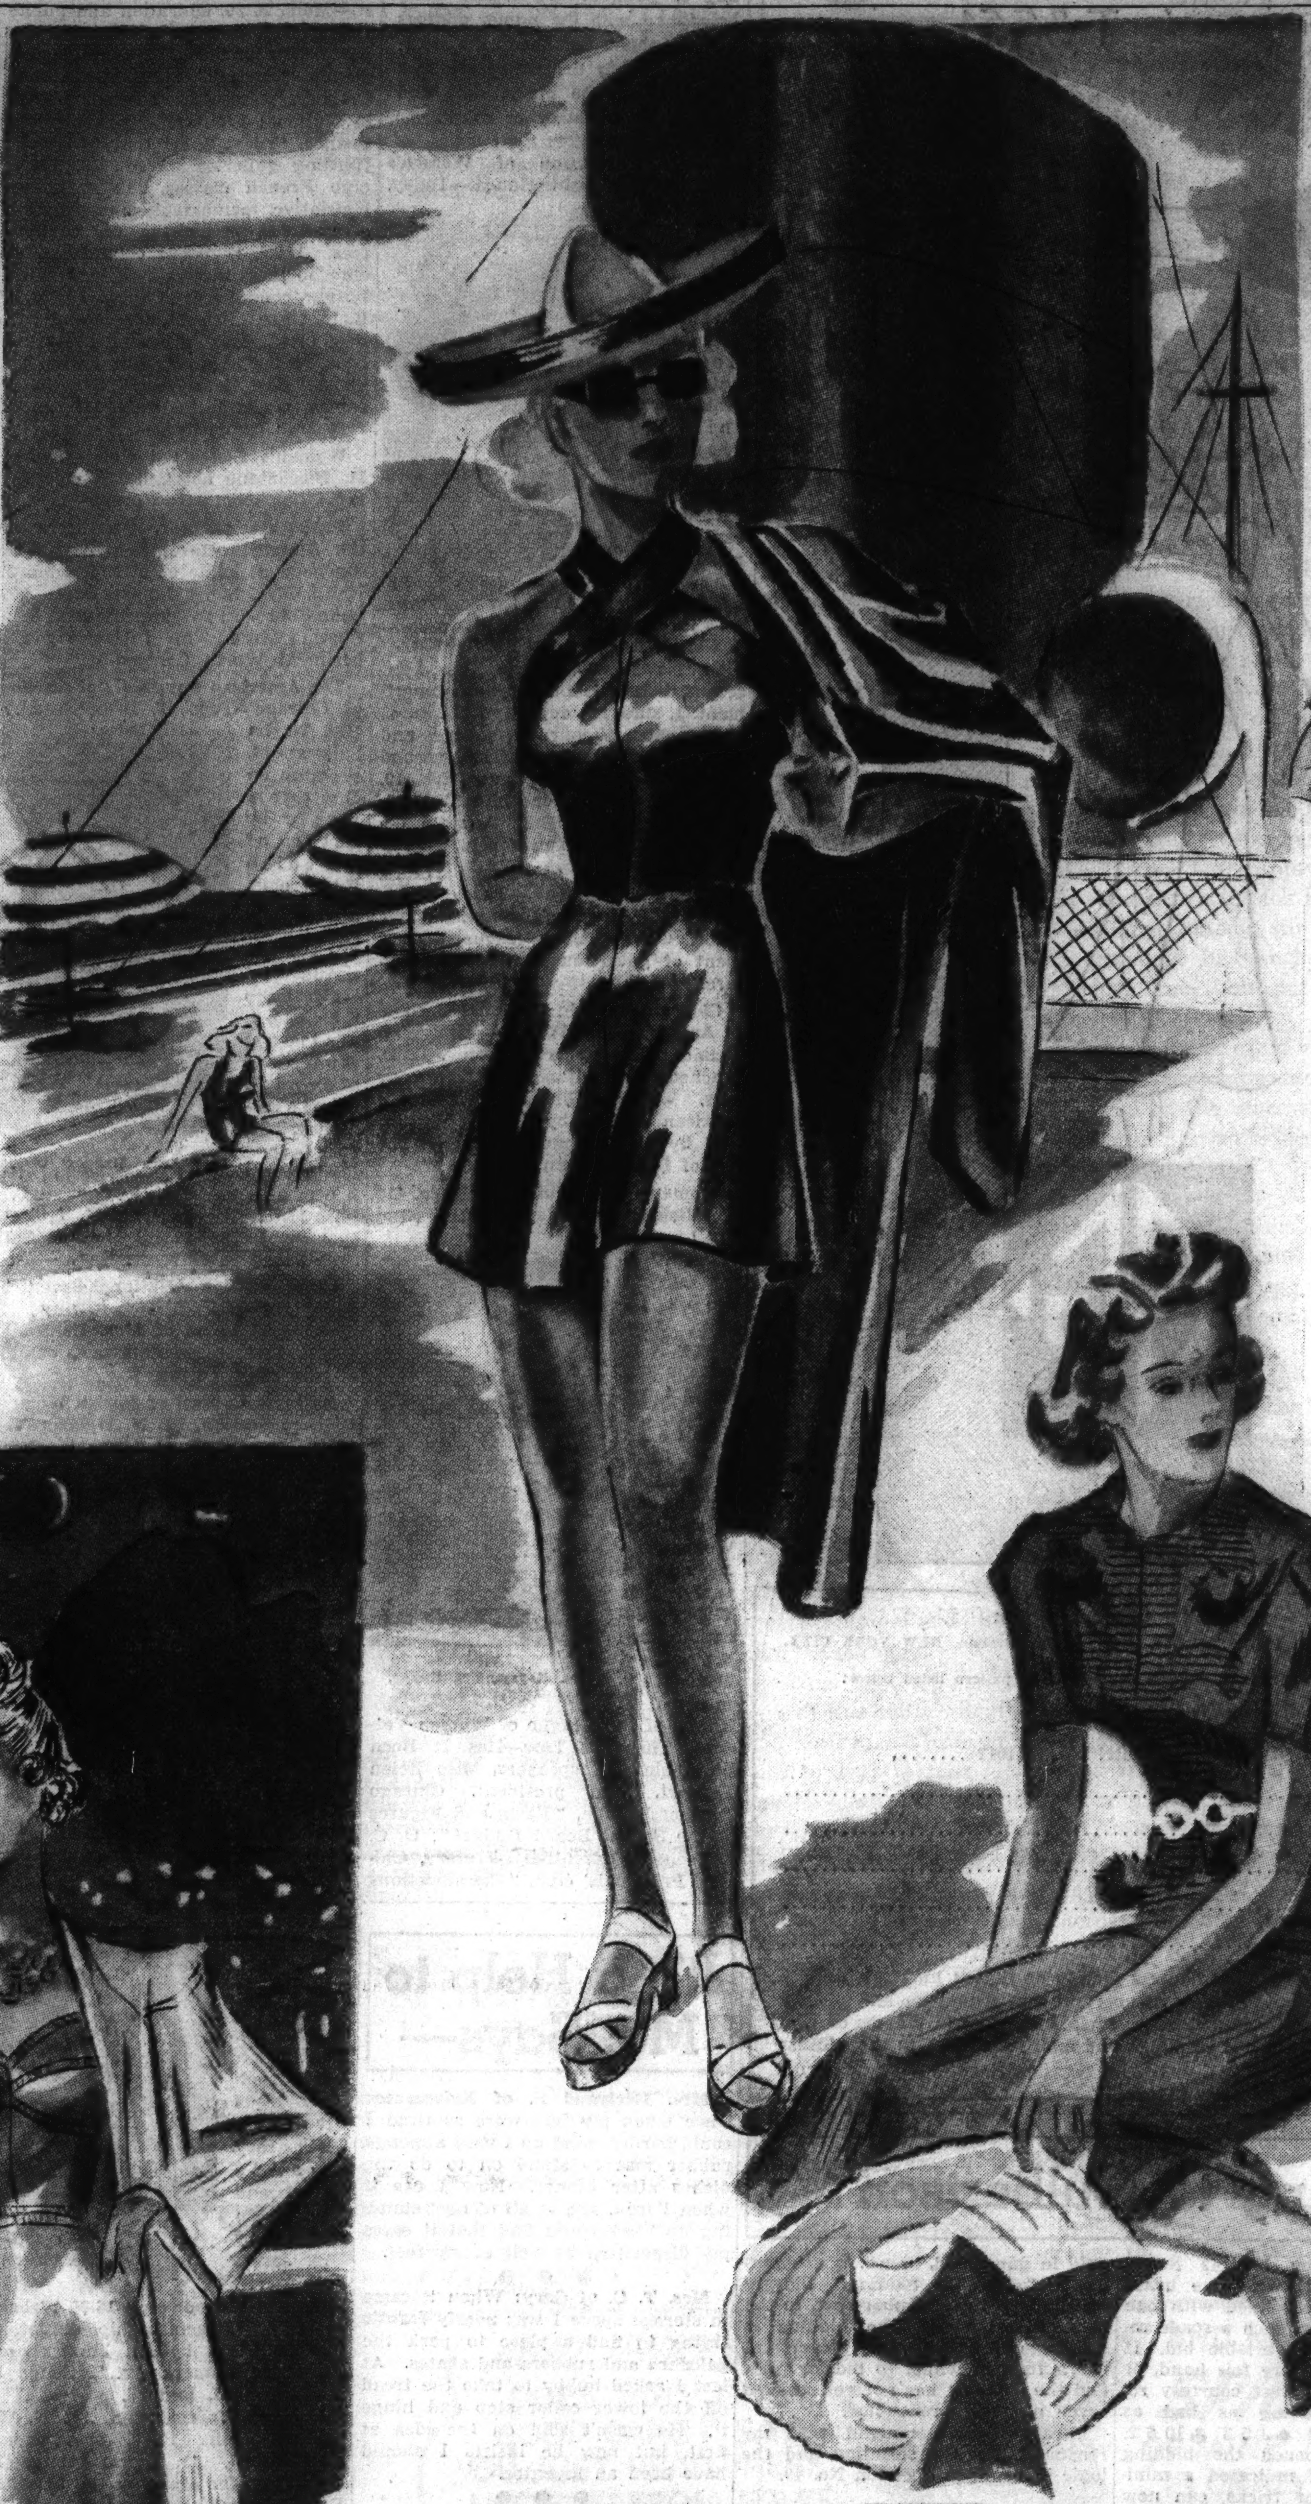
IRRESISTIBLE ATTIRE FOR SOUTHERN VACATION



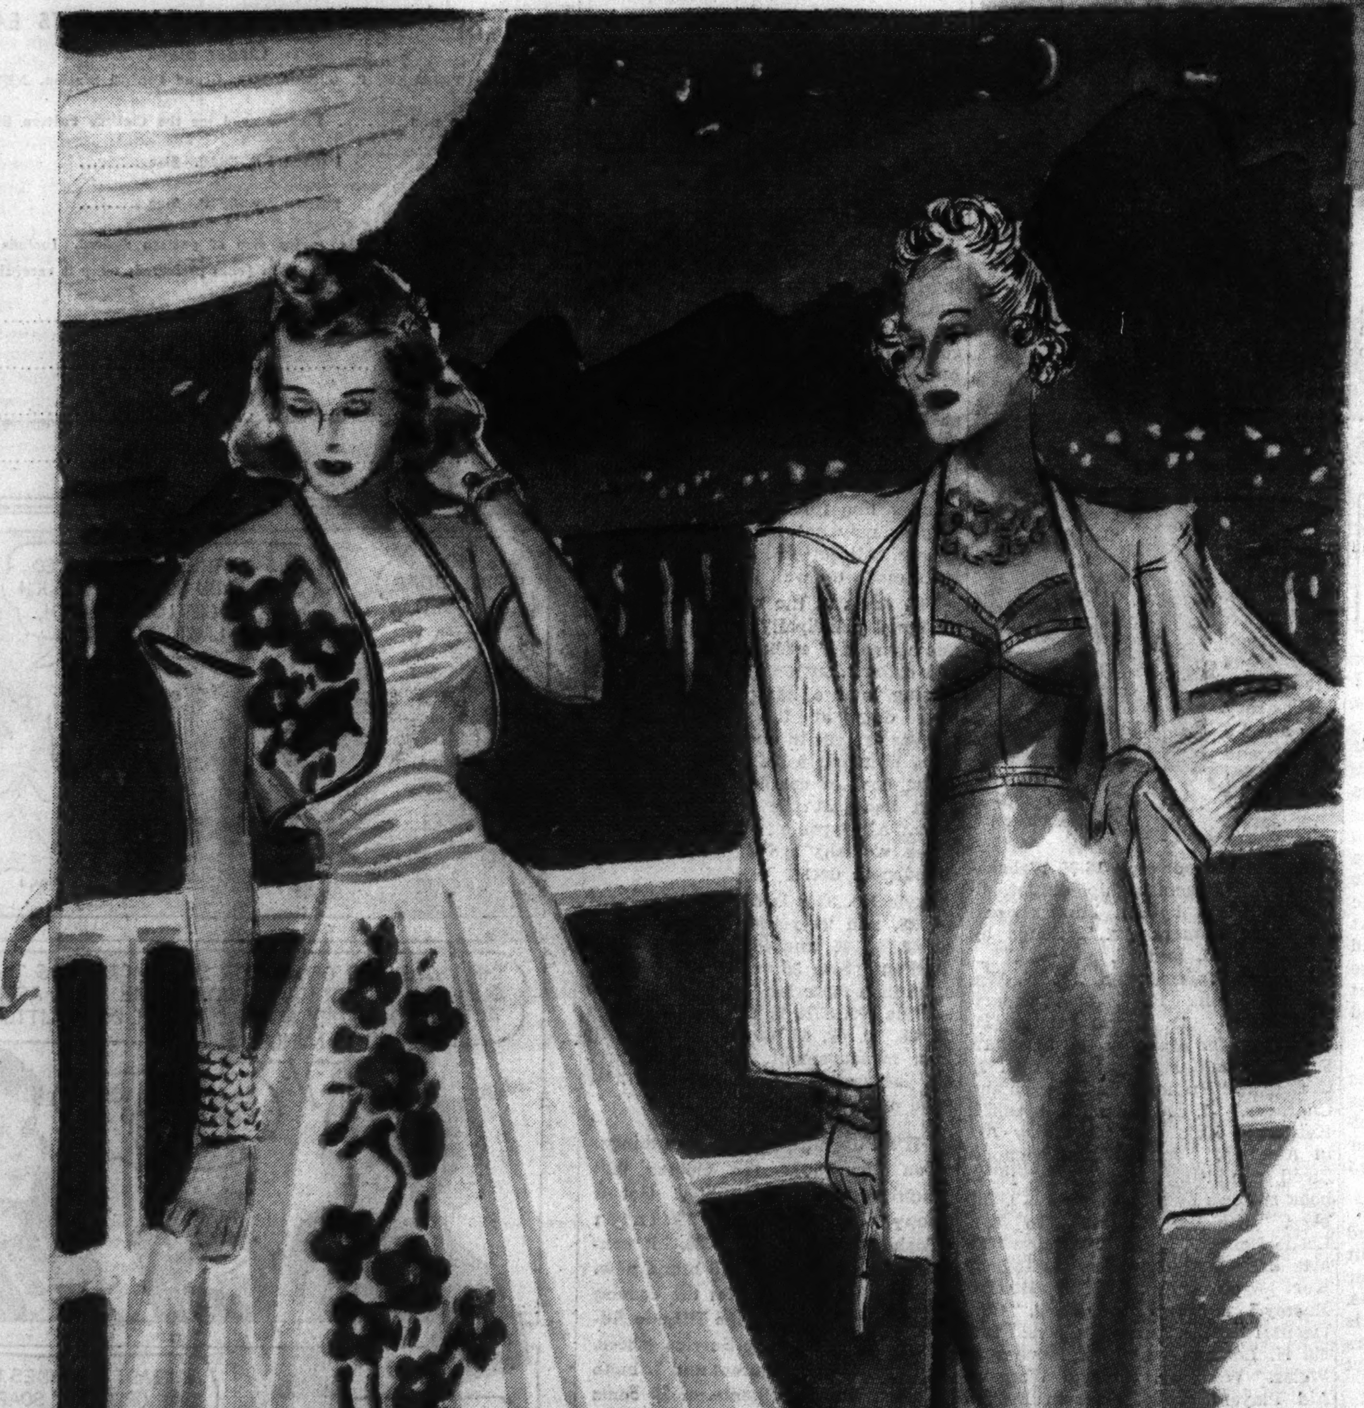
Right: Tennis dress of corded material, featuring sharp plaits, sleeveless top with tailored blouse effect. Also, wool cardigan and a visor.



Below: Play suits go on forever. This model comes in candy pastel, and has a detachable skirt plaited all the way around, full and graceful.



Above: Seaworthy swim suit of satin. Wind-around top and flare skirt. With it pajamas, short coat, or long robe. ● Right: Hand knitted daytime dress, with tufts of yarn and kidskin belt. Available in soft pastels and in chic and stunning pearl gray shade.



Above: First, marganza dress, matching bolero, for dancing. Hand painted geraniums adorn the skirt. Hem is piped with silk to match shoulder straps. The slip is taffeta. Second, form revealing satin gown with slit skirt. Bodice is outlined with rhinestones at seams.

Latest Clothes for Cruise Trunks Exhibit Exciting Tendencies

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SOME city dwellers pack up and disappear from the winter routine for a month or so, others are absent for as much time as they can wangle in January for a midwinter vacation, but all nomads usually can be found on the increasingly popular cruise trips.

So it is that the tempting cruise clothes are hung out early to jog a shopper into remembering that good things seldom return.

From beach togs to slim, crisp, daytime dresses and fluttery new thin evening gowns, these collections are spellbinders. You'll find gay prints in silk, cotton, linen or in combines; all kinds of springlike dresses made with a simple but youthful streamline; all kinds of short sleeves, wide skirts, tiny bodices, and all the newest drapery achieved with folds, shirring or tucks. You'll find luscious pastel thin wools in dresses, coats, and three piece costumes; all kinds of daring plaids and stripes and soft, blurred checks, startling contrasts of dark and light.

You'll find the newest hosiery shades, two potential summer successes being especially noteworthy—a pale beige tone nearer champagne tint than anything else and a golden amber tone almost sherry color.

No cruise wardrobe is complete without all the newest loot in swim suits and beach accessories. Sleek, streamlined suits of satin, moire silk, all kinds of sea-going jersey and bright printed cottons feature a new feminine outline with flared brief skirts.

Sharkskin, that superbly white material, is going better than ever. Designers never found anything that looks quite so white or crisp in popular plaited formations in skirt, sports dress or jacket. Swim suits, beach jackets, stunning tennis dresses and long coats are made of this smart fabric.

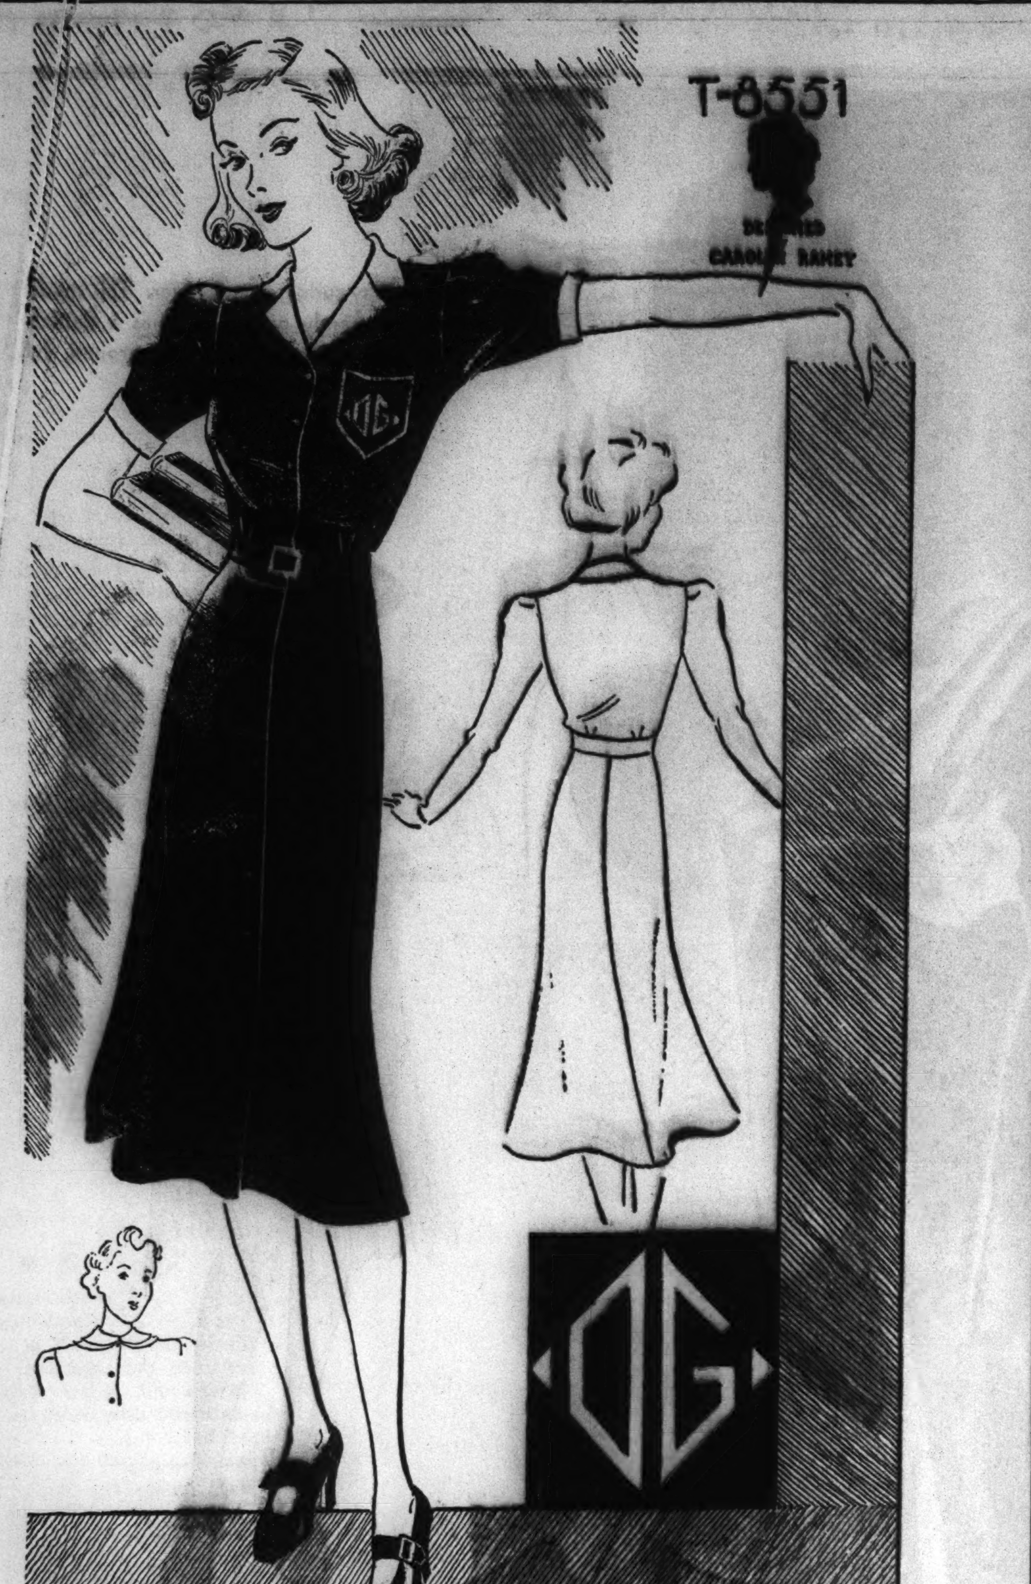
Simple daytime dresses are made of printed silks and cottons. Wild striped silks, cottons, and linens run even with knitted dresses in lovely pastel colors for popularity. Sleeves always are short, skirts flared with restraint, and bodices form-revealing to the small waistline. Stripes are used effectively both vertically and diagonally, but more often they simply go around and around.

Crush resistant linen really is wrinkleproof, the colors lavishly abundant, the textures ranging from thin handkerchief smoothness to the stunning, coarse, handwoven effects. Viennese prints and exceptionally lovely color contrasts are new and most interesting this season.

Dinner and dance dresses feature two silhouettes, the sophisticated willowy smoothness, or the picture book mode of wide, swirling skirt and scrap of bodice. Organdies, marganzas, marquisettes, thin muslins and laces with other transparencies are used for the full skirted dresses.

We've sketched the high spots of the newest cruise wardrobe finds, models from just one blinding new assortment. Others equally as tempting will be found in the current showings of new models.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed



Whether you're in college, high school, the business world, or simply leading a life of leisure, with your next destination some point south, you can give this frock plenty of wear. It's a simple tailored model that can go everywhere. It has a rever neckline, buttons down the front, short or long sleeves that puff a little at the shoulders, a tailored belt around the waist, and a skirt that is full to just the right degree.

Our own dress is navy blue challis, with the collar and cuffs of shell pink piqué. We put the cunning monogram on our frock, too, embroidered in the same shade of pink. The pattern for this is No. E-11012, and it's available for 15 cents extra.

Silks, woolens, cottons, and linens all make up well in this simple yet stylish dress. Style No. T-8551 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.)

THE national bridge examination had a two-fold purpose. The first was to provide interest and entertainment, for bridge players; the second was to bring the average game under the microscope in order that flaws of any nature might be revealed, and thereby corrected. As I have been delighted to announce on several previous occasions, the typical American contract player may justly feel that his skill is fully equal to the typical player of any other sport, or game. Yet I would be stupidly dishonest and lacking in sense of duty were I to profess complete satisfaction with the present standard of bidding and play.

There are certain basic defects in the average game which the examination brought into clear light. Question No. 49 [one of the most innocent on its face] revealed that Mr. and Mrs. Average Player have not learned to discriminate between two vitally important situations that are superficially alike but which require far different treatment.

Question 49. The bidding goes:

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass

Which is now the stronger bid for South to make:

[A] Three spades; [B] Four spades?

I will confess that I was disconcerted to find that, of the 1,200 readers who sent in their answers for grading, no fewer than seven out of ten went astray, stating that a raise to three spades would be stronger in the above sequence than a raise to four! Presumably the same 7-3 proportion existed among the tens of thousands of readers who chose to rate themselves.

This widespread misconception has no mysterious origin—I know only too well how and why so many players "missed the point." They applied the same reasoning to the above question as they would apply to such a question as:

"South deals and bids one spade. (Opponents do not enter the bidding). Which bid by North would be the stronger:

[A] Three spades, or [B] four spades?"

Here the situation is clear cut and the answer equally so. Three spades, a double raise, is the stronger bid because four spades, a triple raise, carries with it a strong shutout meaning. But where is the analogy between this situation and the one outlined in question No. 49? Actually, the two do not even resemble each other! In question No. 49 South opened the bidding with one heart and his partner responded with one spade. As we know, such a spade response is a highly variable bid. It might represent a very fair hand, or it might be the merest courtesy response on a holding as bad as ♠Q J 9 4 3 ♥3 2 ♦J 5 3 ♣10 6 2. South, having opened the bidding and, thus, having indicated a minimum of 2½ honor tricks, can now steer the partnership by choosing the spade raise that is precisely descriptive of his hand. If he feels that the partnership can make nine tricks in spades, even if the responder holds such a rag as the one just described, he should bid accordingly, that is, should raise to three spades. This, it should be noted, is not a force. North does not have to go to four on such garbage as shown; he is, conventionally, permitted to pass.

Now, since a three spade bid by South, after he has opened the bidding with one heart, is not a force, it follows, as the night the day, that a four spade bid must be stronger.

To prove that I am not trotting out any pet theory of my own, I quote from the text book published by the Four Aces. Example on page 194:

Opening bidder	Responder
1 heart	1 spade
3 spades

"After the opening bidder's qualified force, the responder should, etc."

Example from the same book, page 192:

Opening bidder	Responder
1 heart	1 spade
4 spades [slam invitation]

Obviously, a "qualified force" can hardly be reckoned as strong as a slam invitation. In my own Gold book, page 198, I list among "free rebids by the opening bidder" which require some added values, the following example:

Opener	Responder
1 diamond	1 heart
3 hearts

and state that the three heart rebid shows: Four trumps, a singleton and about one additional honor trick; that with no singleton the hand should contain at least four honor tricks. Under "very strong rebids by opening bidder," page 200, I give this example:

Opener	Responder
1 diamond	1 spade
4 spades

and state that the rebid shows: Powerful spade support, with about 4½ honor tricks.

I am afraid that the misconception in this situation arises from the ancient, motheaten idea that when a player who has opened the bidding, later jumps to game, he is interested only in game and, hence, is attempting to "close the bidding." Players will do well to remember that, in the most literal sense, the bidding is never closed as long as a player still has a turn in which to bid, or pass, and the contract has not yet reached seven no trump redoubled.

I earnestly recommend that my readers study the situation and the logic involved in question No. 49.

Contestants did much better with question No. 50, which involved defensive play.

Question 50: You are East and vulnerable. North-South are not vulnerable.

The bidding was:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	Pass	1 no trp.	3 diam.
Pass	3 no trp.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Dummy and your hand are as follows:

NORTH [dummy]
♠ 6
♥ 10 7
♦ A K J 10 8 6 4
♣ Q J 5

EAST
♠ A Q J 8
♥ K J 4
♦ 7 3 2
♣ A 9 7

West, your partner, opens the six of clubs. Dummy plays the jack and you win with the ace. What card do you return?

The answer was, of course, that East should return a heart, thus attempting to establish two heart tricks before losing control of the club and spade suits. Only 86 out of the 1,200 that answered went astray. Most of these, I imagine, were under the thrall of the "sacred rule" which says to return one's partner's lead. I was disappointed that even 86 went astray. They merely proved that defensive play is still carried on in some instances by rule of thumb, instead of by the far better method of counting the tricks for declarer and for defenders that are actually in sight. In this case East can count seven winners in diamonds in the dummy and he should know, as though he actually saw the card in declarer's hand, that declarer has the spade king. That being so, for East to establish a club trick in dummy by returning the suit, or a spade trick in declarer's hand by either releasing the ace or underplaying it, is the height of folly.

It's a Help to Me, Says—

Mrs. Bertrand S. of Kalamazoo: Once when my feet were so tired I could hardly stand up I used a sponge rubber mat to stand on to do the dishes after dinner. Now I use it when I iron, and at all of my "standing up" tasks and find that it eases my disposition as well as my feet.

● ● ●

Mrs. T. C. of Gary: When it came to storage space I was nearly frantic trying to find a place to park the galoshes and rubbers and skates. At last I asked hubby to take the tread off the lower cellar step and hinge it. He wasn't sold on the idea at first, but now he insists I should have been an inventor.

● ● ●

Madeline B of Chicago: As soon as the children get a new pair of shoes I give the soles several coats of colorless shellac. It keeps the water from seeping through so quickly, and saves on the shoes too.

● ● ●

Sarah K. P. of Madison: I've found out that I never have to worry about running out of kindling wood for our grate fire these winter nights. All I do when the supply is low is to fold old newspapers in quarters and crumple them hard. They'll start a log or coal fire.

● ● ●

Mrs. M. C. of Cicero: Plain salt is a big help to me in winter. Damp salt rubbed on our feet chases away chilblains. A handful of salt in my last wash water keeps my clothes from sticking on the line on a frosty morning, and I always boil my clothes pins in salt water solution in zero weather to keep them from freezing on the clothes.

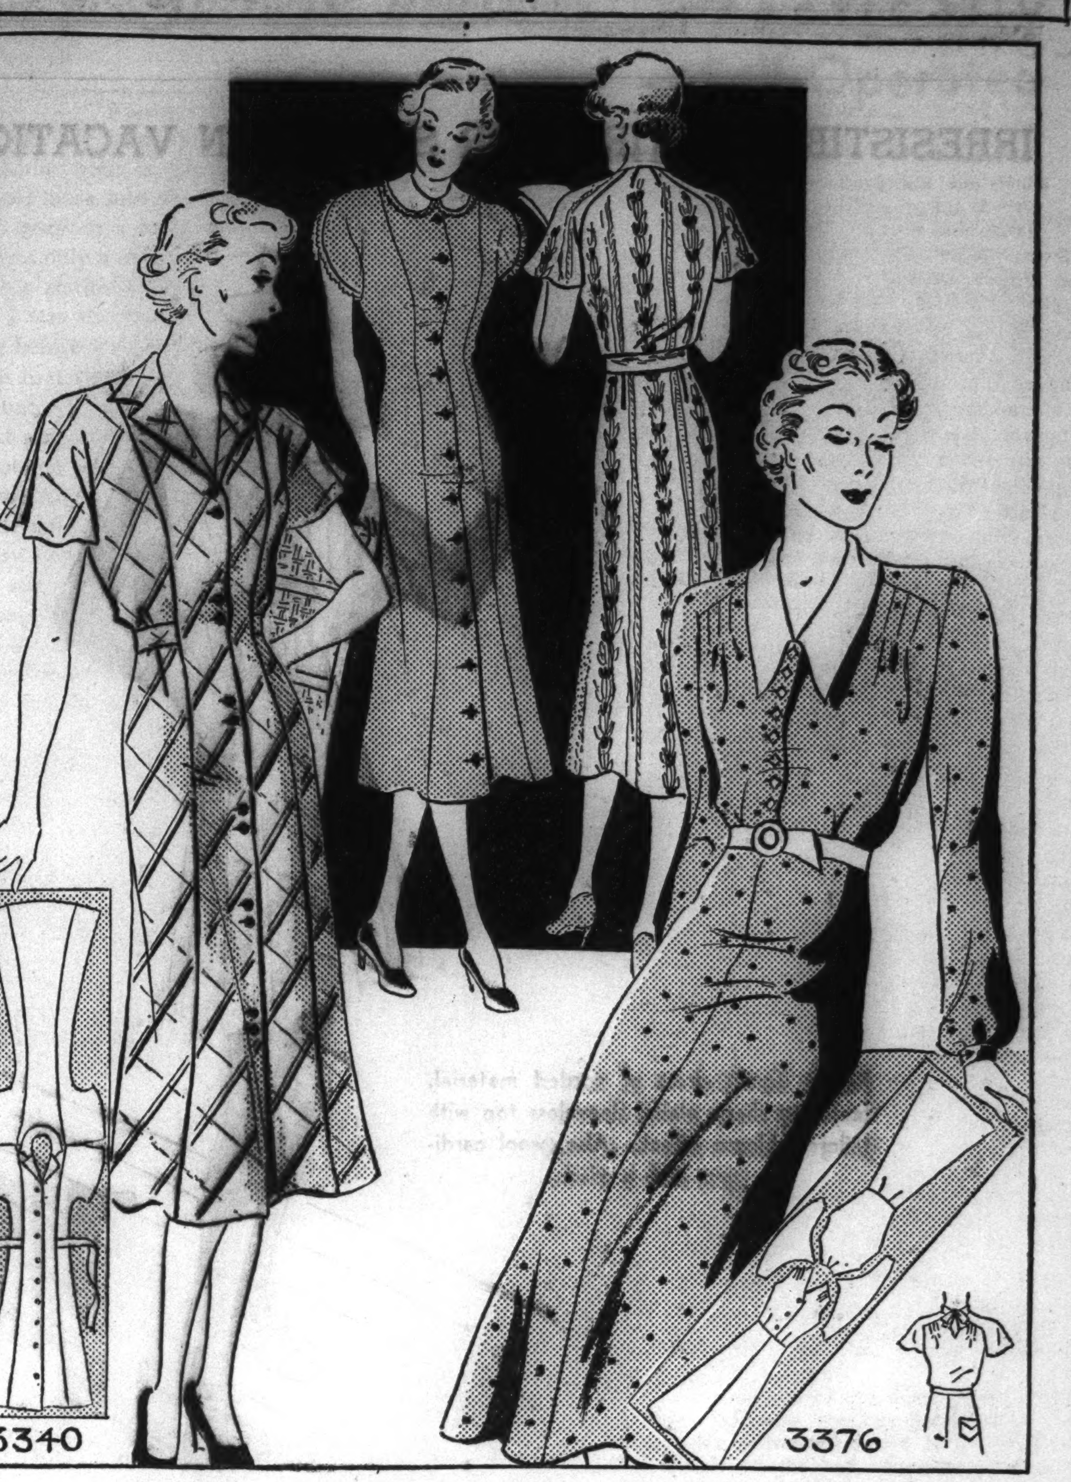
Patterns by Clotilde



By Clotilde.

Two extremely simple frocks are our offering for your budget wardrobe today. Every woman, whether single or married, needs frocks of these two types—one for the home and the other for informal and knockabout wear during the day.

The dress illustrated at the left, No. 3340, is a home model that buttons all the way down the front, making it easy to don and wear and very simple to launder and press. It may have a rever neckline or a high, round one with a pert collar. The buttons may go singly in a row or be combined in groups of two. The sleeves may be plaited and tailored, or cut up in a circular line and trimmed to match the collar. Paneling achieves a marvelous fit and slender line for this dress, and you may or may not have a belt, as you choose. All cottons, linens, and wash silks make up well in this model.

The dress at the right, No. 3376, is designed principally for matrons. It has a smart V neckline and contrasting collar. Buttons adorn the front closing, and a narrow tailored belt does duty at the waistline. The sleeves are cut in one with the shoulders, assuring a flattering fit and a great deal of comfort. The paneled skirt has just the right amount of flare. All types of crêpes and even sheer woolens are suitable for this all-purpose dress.

Style No. 3340 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20 years, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 35 inch material.

Style No. 3376 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

IT'S FUN making your own things. You can make the clothes that express your personality. Get a copy of Clotilde's new Winter Fashion Book for 1937-'38. THIS IS THE NEW IMPROVED RINSO. YOU DON'T NEED MUCH TO GET LOTS OF RICH, LASTING SUDS
Rinso
THE NEW RINSO GIVES OVER 25% MORE SUDS THAN THE OLD EVEN IN OUR HARD WATER. THE SUDS ARE FASTER-ACTING, TOO. THEY SOAK OUT DIRT IN AS LITTLE AS 10 MINUTES
NO WONDER YOU'RE NEVER TIRED ON WASHDAY
Rinso
LATER
IT'S A JOY TO SEE HOW SNOWY RINSO SOAKED YOUR CLOTHES
AT LEAST 5 SHADES WHITER THAN ORDINARY SOAPS WOULD GET THEM. AND SEE HOW BRIGHT COLORS COME, TOO
NOT ONLY DOES THE NEW IMPROVED RINSO SAVE WORK... BUT IT SAVES THE CLOTHES ...MAKES THEM LAST 2 OR 3 TIMES LONGER

THE wonderfully rich and long-lasting suds that the New improved Rinso gives is only half the story. The important thing is that these faster-acting suds wash clothes at least 5 shades whiter than ordinary soaps do—and get colors brighter. Rinso's active suds soak out dirt in as little as 10 minutes—yet they're perfectly safe for overnight soaking.

But you be the judge! Get a box of the New Rinso in time for next washday. You'll marvel at the richness of the suds—even in hardest water. Rinso is recommended by the makers of 33 famous washers. It's the ideal soap for dishes and all cleaning; never leaves a greasy film on dishes. The New Rinso is easy as ever on hands. It's economical; a little goes so far. Jackets Grow Longer for Spring Wear

By Bettina Bedwell.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Swing jackets, finger-tip length and longer, make the first spring jacket ensembles look new. They fasten only at the neck, if at all. They go with blouses that are almost as long as they are, and with plaited or slim skirts.

Longer jackets are everywhere in the new styles. The most dramatic are Molyneux' that are loose in front and fitted at the back. Vionnet enters swing coats in this race. Some folks who know a lot about styles are putting their money on Schiaparelli's short jackets, anywhere from bosom to hiplength worn with narrow dresses or slim skirts and dark blouses; they believe youth will win. But Chanel's three-quarters length fitted jackets are also youth styles and back the longer jacket movement.

Oriental dancer dress lines are first spring thrillers. You know what—lots of bosom movement, a stretch of skintight middle and the skirt beginning soft and easy anywhere from the hipbone down to the hipline.

Paris big guns like Paquin play this up by making the midsection of the dress in a strongly contrasting color, like giving a black dress a white middle from bosom to hips. This oriental stuff is for daytime more than for evening, remember that. Maggy Rouff dramatizes the center of the dress by outlining it below the bosom and around the hips with embroidery and applique.

• • •

Spring sports styles stay classic, practical, and simple but take out this restraint in a color let go. Solid color poster contrasts that you can see a mile away are in, like purple with brown, or green with burgundy red.

Hats are just plain lowdown, and draped silk turbans and toques that cover up most of your hair are rivalling padded toques and berets which are contending with bonnets and brimmed millinery having negligible crowns.

Southern beach clothes join the longer top movement of first spring town clothes, and hip length, or longer blouses and sweaters go over the top of flannel shorts and slacks. Alpaca sweater jackets from Maggy Rouff also long hip length keep this up in beach wraps.

Dazzling details and accessories for daytime are first water fashions. Purple handbags and shoes are in. Violent and husky jewelry, bringing into style some old fashioned stones such as coral and turquoises will be worn in big necklaces, bracelets, clips, and pins with simple daytime clothes.

• • •

Long gloves for daytime in sparkling white or colors and almost elbow deep are Mainbocher's idea for daintiness and freshness. Schiaparelli puts forth long antelope mitts. Everybody carries round handkerchiefs.

Wide, deep, and long scarfs of fox, taking almost as many skins as a jacket or cape, are the newest of early spring furs. Somber black fox, beige, blue, and gray are good, and silver fox keeps on as usual.

Startling differences between the front and back view of spring clothes are apparent in Alix models. An Alix dress has a pastel blue jacket front and a back that's undeviating black, as is the skirt. The jacket front is made of blue ottoman silk, buttoned on crystal. The close fitted dress is made of flat, absolutely dull finished silk crêpe. The flat bonnet is jersey trimmed with shirred silk jersey leaves.

• • •

A new fox scarf designed by Maggy Rouff has slits at the front so the arms may pass through and give an effect of a cape. The Maggy Rouff dress has the oriental dancer line in the bosom length bodice, finished with velvet applique, and the wide, skin fitted middle region ending in applique on the hips. The dress is black wool and the sash is violent pink satin.

Paquin presents a dress made of black silk jersey, with the oriental dancer effect strikingly emphasized by a white silk middle crossed by a black belt. Crossed draped bosom bands contribute and the front of the skirt is flared by a full panel.

Mainbocher's stunning dark blue long jacket ensemble has a plaited skirt and softened bosom line to the dress, which has a long printed silk blouse and wool skirt. The jacket is moulded at the back and loose in front, with long bands of the printed silk edging the closing.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

At last the woman who likes to take her bath standing gets a bath preparation that softens and perfumes her skin. It's a shower oil, an emulsified white liquid, to be poured over the skin before the shower water is released.

At last the powers that be in the beauty world are giving us shower fans a break! All the lovely bath oils, lotions, and crystals deserve to exist, but most of them are not really practical for the woman who takes her bath standing. She has to be ingenious to figure out ways and means of softening and perfuming her skin if she's one who prefers the shower.

There's a shower oil out at last. It's an emulsified white liquid, deliciously perfumed, that is poured over the body, or rubbed on it, before you turn on the sprays. It is instantly absorbed. The bottle is a slender white one, conveniently shaped for the hand and just about as slipproof as any glass bottle can be.

This is a marvelous find for winter, when the dryness of body skin is enough to send a lot of women stark, raving mad, or else make them so averse to bathing that the sight of a tub is a horror. This creamy liquid does a great deal to alleviate the dryness. Because it emulsifies it doesn't make the scrubbing complicated or messy, and after its use there is no stickiness to make you uncomfortable.

• • •

In fact, it's so lacking in stickiness that it can be used after the bath on those areas of skin that are particularly vulnerable to chapping. You can use it on your hands and be sure, if your legs chap, to massage it into the skin just above the top of the shoes. There is even every evidence that it should be used on the face and neck [particularly the neck that is chafed by woolen dresses] before going outdoors.

But, best of all, it brings a little of the comfort and luxury of bath preparations to the woman who prefers the brisk downpour of the shower to leisurely tubbing. Blessings on the head of whoever thought of it!

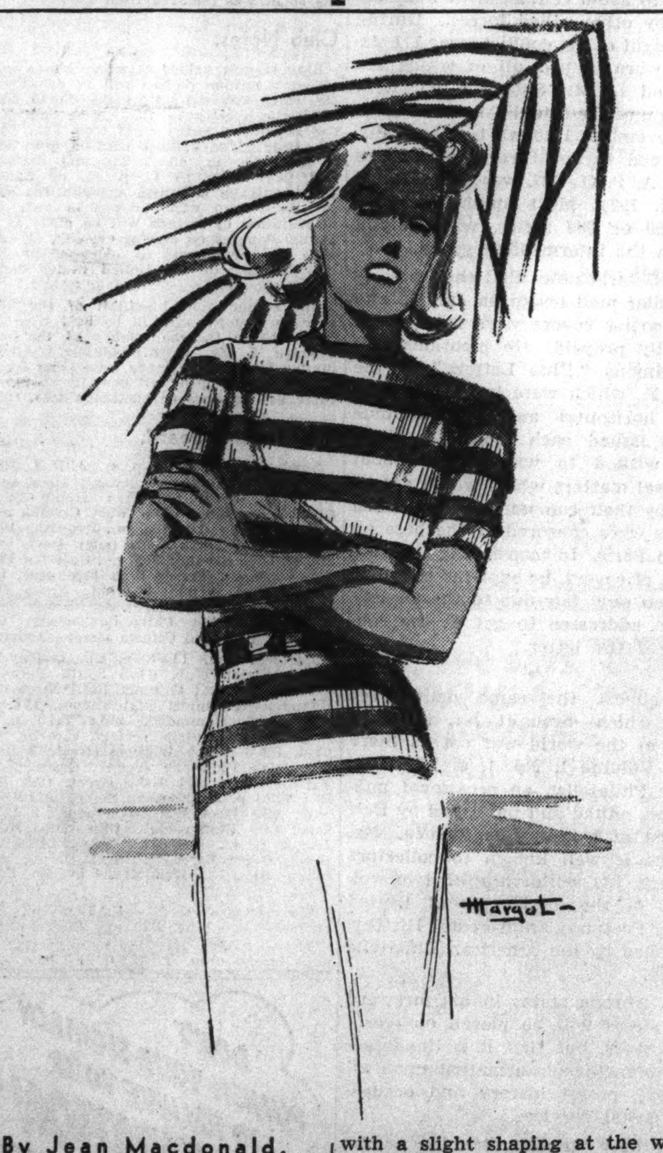
Circular Striped Sweater Latest in Sport Fashions



By Jean Macdonald.

Successful summer fashions on view now are never to be found when one starts to assemble a summer wardrobe. Therefore, the only solution to that problem is to start now and knit yourself a clever striped sweater to be worn with a skirt, shorts, or slacks. Fashion wise women are considering stripes in all colors and widths. The sweater illustrated today is knitted in stripes of white and oxford, and is done on a circular needle with a slight shaping at the waistline. All the stripes are not of the same width, but using a circular needle simplifies matters greatly. Extremely fine linen or cotton may be used, chiffon-zephyr, crêpe or sport angora are also extremely suitable for this blouse. The "tubability" of all these yarns is excellent and it is not necessary to block them on a frame when they are drying. Laid on a cloth covered board and pinned down to coincide with measurements taken before laundering, there is no necessity for pressing.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for knitting the striped blouse knitted on a circular needle illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

It is necessary that the following measurements be included:

Orange Juice Lends Tang to These Recipes

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

When you use a recipe which calls for orange juice, you naturally expect something delicately delicious, with a true orange flavor. Usually you get it, too. A true orange flavor is doubly insured when grated orange rind is one of the recipe ingredients.

Here is a group of recipes calling for both rind and juice of oranges—two cakes, a frosting, and a frozen dessert.

ORANGE SPONGE CAKE.

1¼ cups sifted cake flour
1¼ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 eggs plus 1 egg yolk
¼ cup orange juice
¼ cup water

Sift flour, measure, add baking powder and salt, and resift three or four times. Add ½ cup sugar and orange rind to eggs and beat with rotary beater until thick and lemon colored. Add remaining sugar gradually, beating well. Add orange juice and water. Beat in flour gradually, using egg beater. When the batter is smooth, pour into an ungreased tube pan and bake at 350 degrees, moderate, for 55 minutes. Remove from oven, and invert pan until the cake is cold.

This is not a true sponge cake, for it uses baking powder and fewer eggs than a standard sponge, but the texture of the baked cake is spongy. It may be served with or without frosting.

• • •

ORANGE NECTAR CAKE.
[3 8-inch layers.]

¾ cup vegetable shortening
1½ cups sugar
3 eggs
Grated rind of 1 orange
Juice of ½ lemon
½ cup orange juice
3 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup water

Cream shortening and sugar together, and beat in the eggs. Beat the mixture until it is very light. Add orange rind and lemon and orange juices. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with water and beat enough to mix well. Pour into greased layer pans and bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes. Cool and place layers together with any preferred filling or frosting. Ice top and sides.

ORANGE BUTTER FROSTING.
[Enough for 2 9-inch cake layers.]

3 teaspoons grated orange rind
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
¼ cup orange juice
2 teaspoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons butter
1 unbeaten egg yolk
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 cups sifted confectioner's sugar

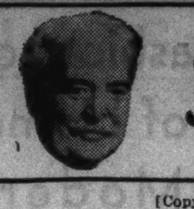
Add grated rind to fruit juices and let stand 10 minutes. Cream butter, add egg yolk and salt, and mix well. Add part of the sugar gradually, blending well. Add remaining sugar alternately with fruit juice, beating after each addition, until the mixture is smooth and of spreading consistency.

ORANGE MOUSSE.
[Serves six.]

½ cup sugar
1⅓ cups orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1½ teaspoons granulated gelatin
2 tablespoons water
1 cup whipping cream
¼ cup confectioner's sugar

Dissolve sugar in orange juice and add grated rind. Soften gelatin in water and dissolve over hot water. Mix well with the orange juice and sugar. Whip the cream to the thickness of soft custard and add the confectioner's sugar. Fold into the orange juice. Freeze in refrigerator tray at the lowest possible temperature, stirring once during the freezing period.

George Rector



[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

All my life, and that means a good many years, I have been interested in what is going on in the kitchen. I just can't resist poking my nose into the culinary department, no matter whether I am in a home or a restaurant.

It was only a short time ago while on a motor trip that we came to a filling station and adjoining the station was a restaurant. As I entered I was attracted by the extreme neatness of the place. It was not long before I was in the kitchen.

The first thing that caught my eye was a large bowl of eggs. That alone was a particular treat, because I am very fond of eggs. But that wasn't all I saw. Alongside of the eggs was a stack of sliced cooked ham—you know, the middle cut—and there you have that great American dish of ham and eggs.

That was my order. Now came the preparation which almost broke my heart. The cook reached for the skillet and placed it on the hot stove. Then from a crock under a table she scooped out a large spoonful of vicious looking drippings and the moment it went into the skillet I said, under my breath: "Ouch! There go my ham and eggs." The point is, why spoil a perfectly good dish?

Alfredo in Rome poaches eggs in olive oil

The last time I was in Italy I saw prepared in the famous Alfredo's restaurant in Rome poached eggs cooked in olive oil. They were delicious. It's so easy to do. Heat the olive oil, not too hot, in a medium depth saucepan. Give the oil a whirl with a spoon just before you drop in the eggs, one at a time. When they are cooked you will see they have taken on a brownish color instead of the usual white, as when done in water. Well! I certainly enjoyed them. Try it some time.

Last week I gave you that standard recipe for French dressing. If you want to enrich the flavor of the dressing stir thoroughly two egg yolks into a half cup of the dressing. In French dressing I have also used hard cooked yolks which have been put through a fine sieve.

Way back in the early 1900s a customer came into Rector's and ordered two fried eggs. He told the waiter he wanted one egg fried on one side and the other egg fried on the other side. The waiter went to the chef and the chef thought he was kidding him and they nearly came to blows.

Several of us, including the head waiter, tried to figure it out and we did, so this is what he got: Two chafing dishes were brought to his table, one was placed to the guest's right and the other one to his left. So we filled the order by cooking one egg on one side and the other egg on the other side. Get the idea?—and the customer is always right.

Now here's the part where Bercy comes in

If you do not know what Eggs Bercy are, I'll tell you. They are glorified shirred eggs. Here's the way we do it:

Butter small shirred egg dishes. Break two eggs into each dish and place in a moderate oven for about 20 minutes or until they become set. Now comes the Bercy part. When the eggs are cooked (and don't forget to season them while they are cooking) place beside each two small cooked sausages and also a chicken liver which has been cooked along with the sausages.

Now for the Sauce Bercy. Extract of beef is the secret and the base of this sauce. Begin:

Heat a small can of tomato sauce. Dissolve a tablespoon of extract of beef in four tablespoons of boiling water. Add this to the tomato sauce and mix well. Season with a few grains of cayenne pepper and a pinch of salt. Just before removing from the stove add one tablespoon of butter. Pour this sauce over the eggs, and then you have eggs a la Bercy without paying anything extra for the a la.

This recipe from Belgium uses eggs and shrimp

Over in Belgium I came across a splendid egg dish. It contains shrimp and I found it very tasty, so I am passing it on to you. It calls for six hard cooked eggs, chopped, but not too fine. Let's go about it in this way:

Melt two tablespoons of butter in a saucepan, add the chopped eggs, one tablespoon of finely chopped parsley, one-half teaspoon of dry mustard, one-half cup of cooked shrimp, one-half pint of cream, two tablespoons of dry sherry, a very light pinch of cayenne pepper, and one-half teaspoon of salt.

The above ingredients must be thoroughly heated and gently stirred. I would suggest serving the combination on triangles of toast.

Newest Homes Practically Self-Operated

By Claire Winslow.

New houses nowadays are built with so many labor saving devices that they practically run themselves. And kitchens are such pictures of perfection that it's a great temptation to spend all your time in them.

A brand new model home we visited in Edgebrook the other day had a kitchen with a landscape window in it. In the center of one wall was a large pane of plate glass with two smaller windows on either side. This gave an unobstructed view of a lovely bit of wooded land behind the house.

The attractive little dinette table was drawn up beside this window so that you can have beauty with your breakfast. And on the sill, protected with a strip of glass, is a charming arrangement of potted plants.

• • •

Here are some of the features that make this bright blue, white, and coral kitchen newsworthy:

Units [stove, ice box, sink, etc.] scientifically placed to save steps and increase efficiency.

A window above the sink for more light and a view.

A device high in the wall that expels cooking odors and draws in fresh air.

An excellent light above the stove as well as above the sink.

A 1938 electric refrigerator with special flexible ice cube containers of metal. The cubes are easy to remove. Hinges on the doors are concealed.

In one of the wall cabinets a little contrivance like a flight of steps for holding all your spices so that each may be quickly seen.

Since this house has been designed for living as well as for show it's equipped with plenty of closets, a boon to any housewife. There's a splendid closet planned especially for a child, with all the hooks and the clothes rod at the right height for a youngster. It's next to the clothes closet in the hall.

Upstairs there are linen closets in the bathroom, spacious closets off the three bedrooms, and a large cedar closet off the hall. A clothes chute near by saves many steps.

• • •

And what a basement! It has a perfectly grand big room for reading and games, all done in canary yellow and verbena red.

There's a card table grouping of attractive rattan chairs with red letherette seats and table. Comfortable armchairs and a rattan couch upholstered in blue to match the blue rug provide plenty of places for lounging. And there's a fireplace, too.

Next door [and walled off] is the utility room. Here are the most improved type of washing machine and ironing units. And there's a clever screened arrangement for hastening the drying process. You hang the wet clothes on rubber tipped rods, then turn on warm air.

Besides all these labor saving tricks this house is a gem because of its beautifully worked out color schemes and its tasteful furnishings. Living room and dining room are done in 18th century English mahogany. The master bedroom, all in cornflower blue and white, also has mahogany furniture, and the guest room is done in Queen Anne style.

Blond maple furniture is used in the child's room. The little bed has its own shallow steps so a youngster can climb in without help.

This interesting house is at 6429 North Navajo street in Edgebrook and is open to the public.

AUNT JENNY SAYS: DOES Spry GIVE GOOD CAKE? SAY, YOU JUST READ THESE LETTERS FROM FOLKS THAT USE IT!

AND NOW I'D LIKE YOU TO TRY THIS SPICE LAYER CAKE OF MINE. MY HUSBAND, CALVIN IS CRAZY ABOUT IT AN' I'LL BET YOURS WILL BE, TOO

—there's only room to print these three but I've HUNDREDS more like 'em . . .

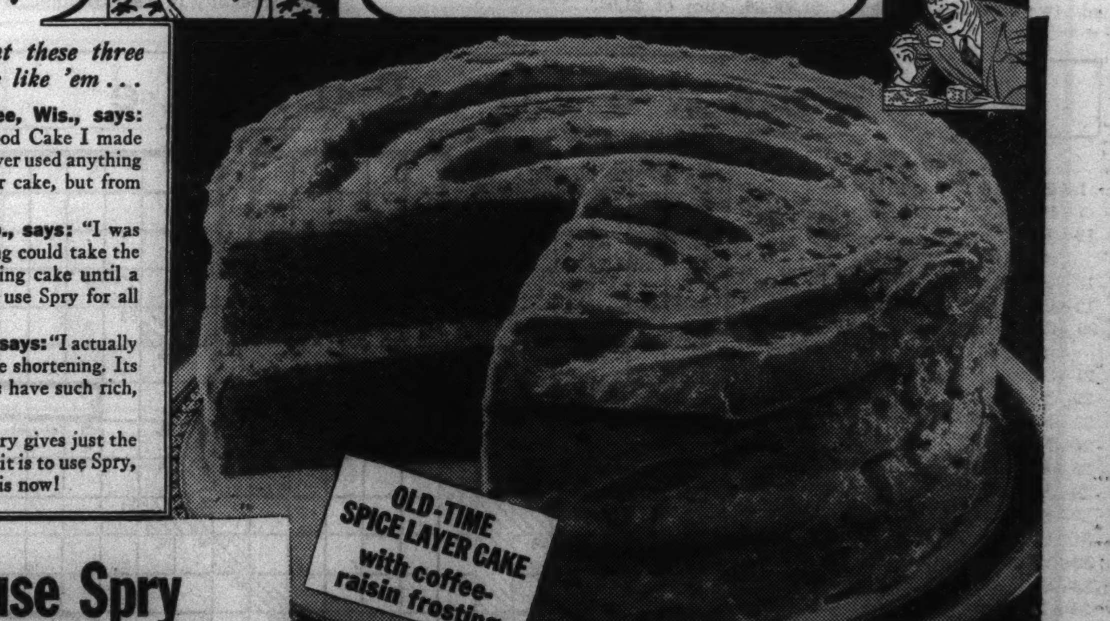
Mrs. Alice O. Kolbow, Milwaukee, Wis., says: "I wish you could see the Devil's Food Cake I made with Spry. It was wonderful. I have never used anything but the most expensive shortening for cake, but from now on—me for Spry!"

Mrs. W. W. Jackman, Mexico, Mo., says: "I was old-fashioned enough to believe nothing could take the place of expensive shortening in making cake until a friend introduced me to Spry. Now I use Spry for all my cakes."

Mrs. C. W. Elton, Jr., Baltimore, Md., says: "I actually prefer Spry to the most expensive cake shortening. Its creamy texture is a delight. And cakes have such rich, fine flavor."

* * *

There, isn't that proof positive that Spry gives just the best cakes ever! An' think of the savin' it is to use Spry, at the price expensive cake shortenin' is now!



Be SURE to use Spry for pastry and frying, too foods are doubly delicious — so digestible

PERHAPS your folks have had to "go easy" on pastry and fried foods. But the tender, flaky pastry Spry gives . . . the crispy, delicate-tasting fried foods so free from the slightest hint of greasiness . . . why, even a child can eat them!

Spry is a perfect joy to use. Cuts into your flour so easily when you make pastry. Mixes in half the time—you'll say it's the creamiest shortening ever. Fries without smoke. Get Spry today. Get the big 3-lb. can. You save money and Spry stays fresh indefinitely. Use for all baking and frying. And the very first thing you do, make this Spice Layer Cake. It's marvelous!

Spry The new, purer ALL-vegetable shortening TRIPLE-CREAMED!

TRY AUNT JENNY'S SPICE LAYER CAKE

½ cup Spry
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 eggs, unbeaten
2½ cups sifted flour (cake flour preferred)
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
1 cup sour milk

Combine Spry, salt and spices. Add brown sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. (Cake-mixing goes twice as fast with triple-creamed Spry, women say.) Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Sift flour, baking powder, and soda together 3 times. Add small amounts of flour to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, beating after each addition until smooth.

Pour batter into two 9-inch layer pans greased with Spry. Bake in moderately hot oven (375° F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Spread Coffee Raisin Frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake. The rich, fruity flavor of this frosting blends marvelously with the fragrant spicy layers. Notice the fine grain this Spry cake has—how long it stays fresh! But only Spry can give perfect results in this recipe!

COFFEE RAISIN FROSTING

2 tablespoons Spry
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt
3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
3 tablespoons strong hot coffee beverage
2 tablespoons cream, scalded
½ cup ground seeded raisins

Combine Spry, butter and salt and blend. Beat in ½ cup sugar. Add coffee, alternately with remaining sugar, beating well after each addition. Add hot cream and beat well. Add raisins and mix well. Makes enough to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers.

(All measurements in these recipes are level.) In 3-lb. and 1-lb. cans

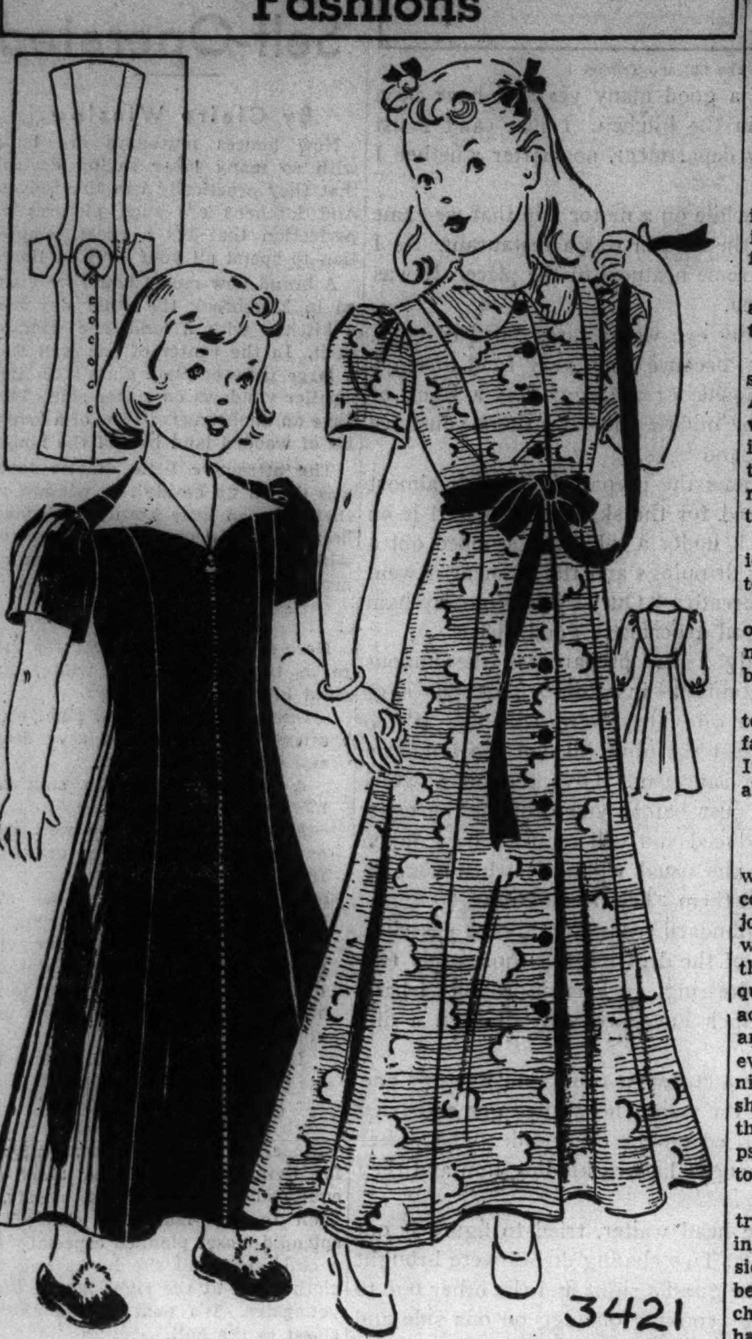
Clotilde Children's Fashions



One can't expect the youngest to stand by without envy when smart young mothers entertain and keep house while wearing the prettiest of house coats. The sub-debs are quite as chic as the older girls these days, and one of the indispensables in their wardrobes is the house coat. We've designed a pattern especially for misses aged eight to fourteen. It's not a sophisticated model, mothers will be glad to know. It is girlish, feminine, and pretty.

The neckline may be high, round, and adorned with a simple collar. Or a V neckline may be adopted and trimmed with a wide rever effect. The sleeves are short or long, depending upon preference, and in either case they are puffed at the shoulders. Paneling creates the streamlined fit that assures the success of any house coat, no matter what the age of its wearer. Buttons or a slide fastener may do duty down the front. The waistline may or may not have a sash. Let the young modern have her choice in the matter.

Flannel is a grand fabric for the model at this time of year, and it may be trimmed with satin. Made thus, the house coat is wonderful for breakfasting and studying after dinner. Gay cottons and silks are attractive and colorful. They have the added advantage of being washable, too.

Style No. 3421 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with 2½ yards of three inch ribbon.

Old-Fashioned Ideas of Home Grow Modern

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

It's new fashioned to be old-fashioned. It's modern to be old-fashioned. It's even smart to be old-fashioned.

Look at our clothes—feminine, alluring, following the figure, Victorian.

Look at our homes—gone is the severity and sparseness of very early American; modified is the stark weird utility of the first "modernistic" furniture. Instead they're rich, they're decorated and decorative, and many of them have gone early Victorian.

Yes, it's modern to be old-fashioned, not only in clothes and interiors, but about family life.

It's modern—it's smart even, to be old-fashioned about housekeeping, not only as a good executive, but to be able to do the work yourself.

It's smart to be a good mother and to make home life richer for all the family; to make it a very vital "hub." It's smart to know what it's all about, this raising of children.

• • •

It wasn't so long ago that schools were going to take over the child completely and improve 100% on the job the home had been doing. Home was sort of breaking up anyhow, the idea was what with cramped quarters and the movies and outside activities and mothers earning money and this and that, so it was inevitable and best that the community, the social worker, the educator, should take the child over. Besides, they knew so much more about psychology than parents, who were tossed verbally on the ash heap.

Well, all that's over. Society isn't trying any longer to push parents into the discard. Home life isn't considered futile and on the way out because of modern trends that pull children away from the family harth. The whole swing and pull and push of social forces is toward the vital importance of home and parents in the life of a child. It's new fashioned—it's modern to be old fashioned—to be a good wife, mother and homemaker.

Two judges in children's courts, handling serious delinquencies, only recently stated that 90% of the young offenders were in trouble because their homes had failed them. The trained social worker is striving all over the country to build up the home in every way.

• • •

But this swing back toward glorifying the home and making it important has not been left to the individual home or father and mother. It has gone wider and deeper than that. There has been a sharp increase since the depression, a tremendous drive in the movement to help parents. This movement is constantly widening and intensifying, and it goes under the name of parent education and family guidance or counseling.

The world of thought in regard to parents and home and children has gone old-fashioned in a big way. They're all the style now. We can cuddle our babies [but not too much!]. We needn't be chronically detached and impersonal with our children; we can be as motherly and housewifely as women of yore, and still be ultramodern.

Being a fine wife and mother is an important job—an old-fashioned one with some fascinating new angles and improvements. Among the improvements is greater knowledge and wisdom about children—what they are and what they need.

Summer Activities for Vassar Girls Prove Profitable

Replies from 419 Vassar students to a questionnaire on summer activities prepared by the college vocational bureau, show that 24 per cent had paid jobs and 11 per cent engaged in volunteer work. Ninety-eight girls earned $7,187.36, an average of $73.34.

Positions in department stores, specialty shops and bookshops yielded twenty-three students $1,506.36. Secretarial and clerical work enabled twenty-two students to earn $1,675. Camp jobs paid sixteen girls $938.50, plus maintenance in most cases.

Only three students reported financial returns from tutoring and governess positions, the total amount being $370.50. Two others accompanied families in travel in the United States and abroad, receiving their expenses. One student received $50 as a companion-navigator on a private yacht.

Playground and other social service work brought in $433 for five students. Waiting on table at summer resorts proved to be the most profitable job, as it yielded five girls $790. Library work paid eight others the sum of $1,043.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

It is difficult for the average active, healthy person to have any realization of the utter weariness of invalidism. Until one has spent weeks, months, or years in bed, the tedium of the days, uneventful except for pain, cannot be fully understood. Combined with the twin woe of poverty, pain or helplessness is doubly hard to bear.

Today we're making a special effort to provide small comforts for a number of needy individuals who have appealed to us for help. Every item requested is a comparatively simple one, articles which most of us accept as a matter of course and consider necessities, or those which we have on hand but seldom use.

Because of their physical disabilities, the majority of the following applicants is unable to call for offers, so we must depend on the goodness of the donors to mail or deliver any contributions.

Among the hundreds of bridge devotees in the city there must be many who have discarded packs of playing cards. These will be appreciated by the numerous men who are segregated from their families because of tuberculosis, and being treated in a sanitarium on the northwest side of the city. Any extra packs you may have will help to while away long and necessarily idle days.

Readers who do any amount of writing or reference work probably can help M. L., a victim of a disease which is progressively crippling. On relief, she makes an effort to while away her time by writing and entering contests, and although this rarely is a source of income, such work provides engrossing mental occupation. A thesaurus, a riming dictionary, book of synonyms and antonyms, or a book of quotations are aids which she never will be able to purchase.

A radio, crossword puzzle books, a warm dress, bathrobe and coat, size 18, would be gratefully received by Mrs. K., also on relief and suffering from neuritis, a cardiac disorder, and severe eye trouble. It is necessary for her to attend a local clinic for treatment and, because of her physical condition, it is imperative that she be warmly dressed.

• • •

Underwear, a sweater size 32, house slippers, and white stockings size 8½, are needed by Mrs. V. She is 85 years old, entirely deaf, and partly blind. Living alone, her only income is a small old age pension, which does not provide for more than food, rent, and medicine. She needs a comforter and light weight blanket to use as sheets, since she feels the cold intensely. Also afflicted with palsy, she frequently is unable to retain articles in her hands, and needs cups and saucers to replace the few she had. The address is on the west side, and an acquaintance has offered to call for offers.

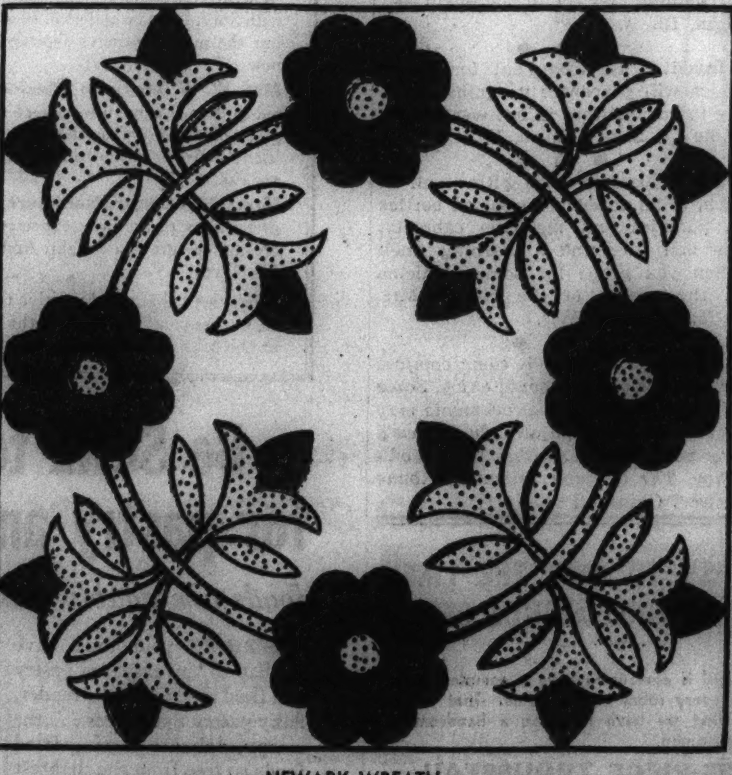
Elaborate Applique Quilt First Created in Newark



NEWARK WREATH.

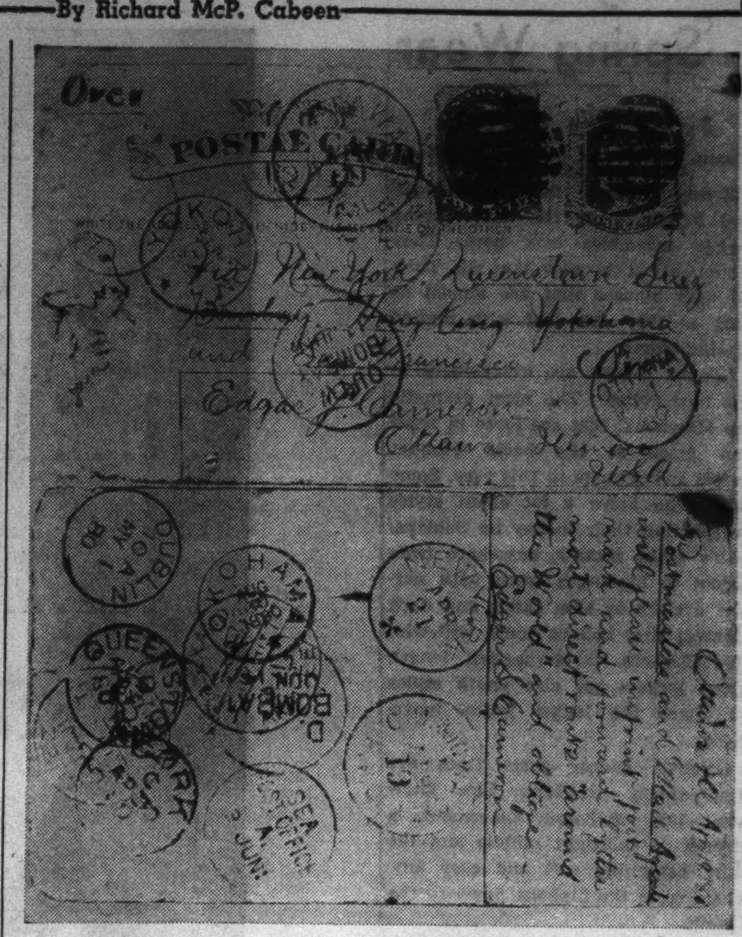
Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

By Nancy Cabot.

"Newark Wreath" is one of the popular and more elaborate of the various floral applique blocks. It is a simple matter to determine the origin of the block, which was designed in 1859. The prints used in the original block were a lovely red with white figures, while the green contained small orange figures. One of the old quilts made at that time still retains its colors. The finished applique square measures twelve inches and the entire quilt is composed of these blocks set together with four inch bands between and surrounded by a seven and one-half inch border and a one-half inch bias binding.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen



This illustration shows front and back views of a postcard which was carried around the world from Ottawa, Ill., between April 19, 1880, and September of the same year. Such a procedure now is illegal. The postmarks show that the card was sent from Dublin back across the Atlantic to Ottawa, Canada, and then went on its way. It is shown through the kindness of the original sender, Edgar J. Cameron, now of Chicago.

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Postage Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

While interest in world war covers has never been lacking, the development of the last few years indicates that these covers will occupy a prominent position in future historical collections, and they should be saved while they are easily obtainable.

While envelopes of the civil war period always have been in demand, they do not have the philatelic interest of those of the world war, for the former usually were mailed at regular United States postoffices, while the latter were carried by an independent postal express service operating under the direction of the adjutant general of the United States army.

These covers bear postmarks which generally are identical except for a station number, the use of which facilitated the handling of mail for some 16 million American soldiers and their friends and relatives without disclosing the location of any army unit unless so desired. In many cases the number indicated no permanent address, as, for example, A. P. O., 710, was the postal station of the 2d division regardless of its location.

Robert R. Safarid of Forest Hills [Long Island], N. Y., a disabled veteran, who has helped to pass away his time by collecting world war covers and information regarding their use, has written an interesting summary of the organization and conduct of this army postal service, with information upon the censoring of letters, the franking of soldier mail, the stationery used by the troops, types of postmarks found upon envelopes, and a general guide to the rarities which exist.

While engaged in this work Mr. Safarid has found other disabled service men of like interests and a club has been formed to keep them informed of each other's progress.

The original postal service for the A. E. F. was organized and operated by the civil authorities, with stations numbered 1, 2, 3, etc., but on May 9, 1918, this service was taken over by the adjutant general's office, and the numbers were reassigned in the 700 series to avoid conflict with numbers used by other allied forces. During the height of the conflict some 171 stations were in use, all of which are included in Mr. Safarid's list, with the date of the establishment of each. By November, 1919, all had been discontinued except three, and one of these, A. P. O., 927, was in use until Jan. 1, 1924. Most numbers are in the 700 or 900 series, with only a few in the intermediate group.

Mr. Safarid notes that the franking of soldier mail began on July 15 and that earlier covers were required to be fully prepaid. He mentions also the famous "Blue Letters" of the A. E. F., which were large envelopes with horizontal and vertical blue bands issued each month to those who wished to write home about personal matters which would not be read by their company officers. Such letters were censored at the base office in Paris. In mentioning the condition of covers, he explains that this is often only fair due to the anxiety of the addressee to get at the contents of the letter.

In almost the same delivery of mail which brought Mr. Safarid's story of the world war covers there came Volume 1, No. 1, of The War Cover Philatelist, an occasional publication, edited and published by Delf Norona of Moundsville, W. Va. Mr. Norona is well known to collectors through his editorship of two volumes of the Cyclopedia of United States Postmarks and Postal History, published by the American Philatelic society.

Mr. Norona states in his foreword that stress will be placed on world war covers, but that it is the intention to include information upon all military postal history and occupation postal services.

The first number lists the camps and forts in the United States in 1917-'18 and illustrates the postmarks used if there was a postal station assigned to the military establishment. The new publication is priced at $1 a year, or a specimen copy will be mailed by Mr. Norona upon receipt of 10 cents. Mr. Norona further announces that the World War History of the United States will be published during the coming year.

Stamp Notes.

A booklet describing the permanent series of postage stamps has been published by the Bureau of Posts, Panama canal, Canal Zone. This booklet, which gives a brief history of the canal as well as detailed histories of the subjects which appear upon the stamps, together with the philatelic facts of each value, will be mailed to any collector who sends his request to the postmaster, Balboa Heights, Canal Zone.

The KenMore Stamp company announces four new sets of British colonial stamps. St. Vincent will issue eleven values from ½d to £1, all of which will show the colonial seal except four values which are pictorial with views of local points of interest. Trinidad has announced nine values from 1 cent to 72 cents, all pictorial, with a portrait of King George VI. included in the border design. Turk's Island will issue twelve values from ¼d to 10 shillings. All values depict scenes incident to salt making. Southern Rhodesia issued a series of seventeen new values on Nov. 25, 1937.

The design consists of George VI. in the uniform of an admiral of the fleet. This is a collectors' series, since it contains a disproportionately large number of shilling values, there being nine values from 1 shilling to 1 pound and eight values from ½d to 9d.

The total sales of the 10 cent S. P. A. souvenir sheet issued in connection with the annual convention of the Society of Philatelic Americans at Asheville, N. C., from Aug. 26 to 28, 1937, amounted to 5,277,445 sheets. The sales at Asheville amounted to 687,400 sheets, and the balance, 4,590,045, were sold at the Philatelic agency in Washington between Aug. 26 and Oct. 11, when the sheet was removed from sale.

Club Notes.

Rare stamps valued at more than a quarter of a million dollars will be on view at the three day exhibit of the North Shore Philatelic society in the west lounge of the Edgewater Beach hotel from Jan. 14 to 16, 1938. The exhibit will be open from 3 to 11 p. m. on Friday and Saturday, and from noon to 11 p. m. on Sunday. There will be a bourse through the show for those who wish to buy or sell. The presentation of awards will be made at the annual banquet on Sunday evening, at which time the society will be addressed by Warren Canaday of the United States district attorney's office.

The second annual exhibit of the South Chicago Stamp club will be held from Jan. 10 to 13 in the main lobby of the South Chicago Y. M. C. A. building. All are invited to view the many interesting frames. This club is open for new members, and there are no dues or admission fees.

America Sets Pace in Opera Stars' Beauty

Graceful hands—and how to acquire them—are discussed in the booklet, "Handmade Hand Beauty," by Antoinette Donnelly, Tribune beauty editor. Get a copy. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. By postpaid mail, 7 cents.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

One of the great changes in the world of beautiful women in the last decade is demonstrated on operatic stages. The fact that a woman had a voice was sufficient a few years ago to excuse a figure cushioned in adipose. But today, in opera as elsewhere, the magnificent voice must be coupled with silhouette, face, grace and charm of compelling interest and beauty to create popular appeal.

We have reviewed this state of affairs from the audience point of view from time to time. Now we have an opportunity to see it from the other side of the footlights, and realize how important the American influence has become even on so firmly established an institution as the opera.

"Competition with American divas in arias from Verdi, Wagner, and Bizet may not be difficult for foreign opera singers, but competition for America's diamond horseshoe appraisal of charm, personal attractiveness, and individuality is something else again."

• • •

This is the opinion expressed by Gina Cigna, Italian newcomer to the opera, whom critics consider one of the season's most important additions.

The new soprano, whose voice and compelling appearance have commanded wide interest, observes that the charm of the American star, as she sings in and out of the wings, waves her provocative fan, clicks her castenets, or bedecks herself from her jewel box, is the charm which is natural to her in the drawing room, on the golf links, at her tea table. It is only heightened for dramatic purposes.

"The American prima donna retains her personality," Mme. Cigna points out, "which she increases for her operatic performances in the same proportion as her makeup and costuming are heightened in color for the spotlight. And the reason it has such appeal to audiences is that it has such spontaneity; is so fresh, vital, and unstudied.

"European singers," she explains, "have had to sacrifice their spontaneity for a tradition of studied manner and poise. The American girl is not restricted by such tradition. What she does on the stage is done no differently than she would ordinarily do it, except that it is done with more flair."

The Italian singer thinks that her freedom, independence, and the equality with men which the American woman is accorded in the arts, in the professions, in business, and even in athletics, give her an enviable self-assurance which the European woman lacks.

"Of course," the diva explains, "it is understandable that the American artist can be friendlier and more at ease with her audience in her own country, but she is just as much at home when she sings in the Teatro Reale in Rome, the Teatro Verdi in Trieste, La Scala in Milan, or L'Opera in Paris."

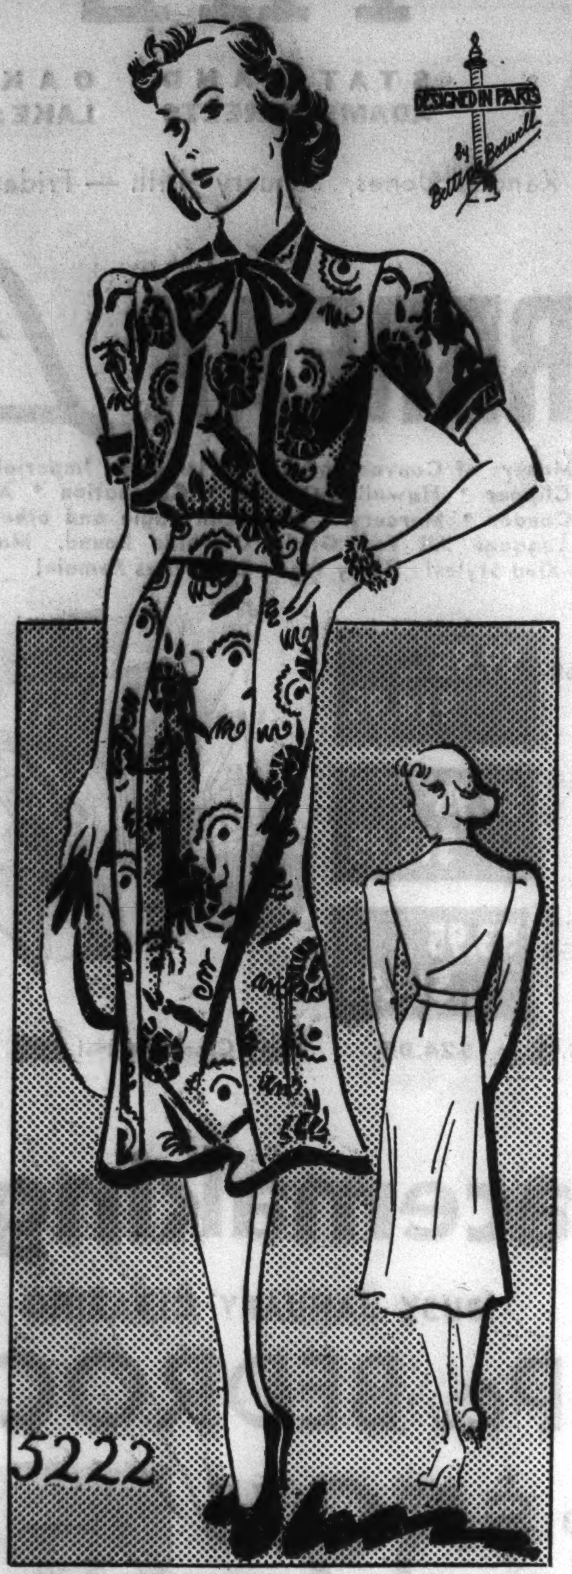
• • •

Mme. Cigna thinks that the American prima donna's slim, lithe, almost athletic figure has set an international standard of appearance for the woman opera singer. She explains that she herself has been prompted by such a standard to adopt a regimen of outdoor exercise, diet, and massage to achieve the slimness, the fresh vitality, and the healthy complexion of the American singer.

The tradition of elaborate gowns and headdresses, originating in Europe and still obtaining in the colorful peasant dress of many European countries, does not restrict the American as it does the foreign singer. The former simplifies her costume to suit her individual tastes, and sees to it that her figure is flattered and her charm is enhanced, according to this observer.

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune.

Paris Frock Adopts Both Bolero and Bright Print



No. 5222—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in size 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—If one were forced to cite only two important fashion trends in France right now, and only two, one could with assurance mention boleros and prints. The former are debonair factors in many of the smartest frocks, and the latter are becoming louder, gayer, and positively fascinating.

One of the greatest couturiers recently brought out the frock illustrated today. We've adapted the model for our pattern, No. 5222, and if you want to brighten your winter clothes collection and have a head start on spring, you simply can't do without this dress. Select a bright print, a splashy one, and bind the neckline, bow, bolero, sleeves, and hemline with a darker shade to harmonize. The bodice is gathered into a tight waistband. The skirt is paneled for sufficient width and grace. The sleeves may be either long or short. You may wear this colorful dress now under your winter coat and when balmy spring days arrive the ensemble will look smart with just your fur piece.

Soft Voice Is Important to Social Charm

What is the rule to follow when ordering monograms for linens and silverware for the bride? Answers to this question, and many others about the bride's trousseau, are given in the booklet, "Selecting the Trousseau," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

Several social pests have been pointed out to me lately. You will recognize them as soon as they are described to you and may be able to identify one or more of these characteristics with some of your acquaintances. Analyze yourself carefully and frankly, and be sure that you are not guilty of these unbecoming little habits that do so much to mar one's charm.

One of these annoyances is the extremely loud talker. While I do not have statistics to quote to verify my statement, it seems to be that the loud talker is more often than not the constant talker. That's two offenses. Perhaps it is just because the noisy voice seems so to eclipse any other attempts at conversation that I imagine the second offense. But to get on, the loud, shrill voice is not only unpleasant to the ears and objectionable on that argument alone, but it also is embarrassing to those to whom the conversation is directed. A private little tête-à-tête boomed out in tones so that all those present in the room can hear, shows extremely poor taste.

• • •

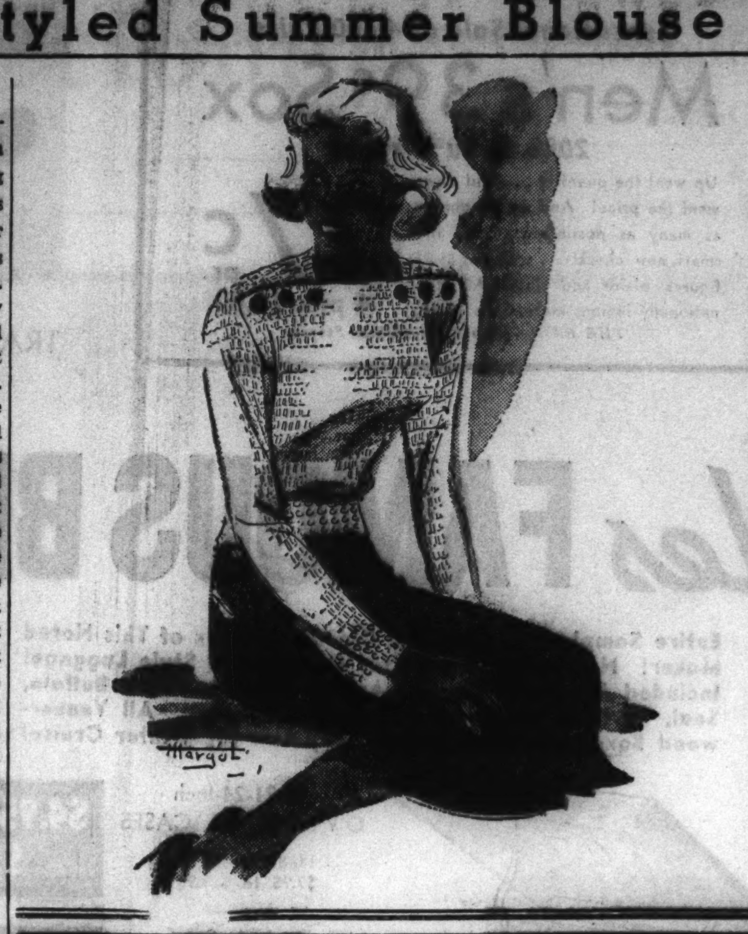
Those courteous people who are soft spoken [I don't mean inaudible when I say soft spoken] and who appreciate what a charming characteristic is a lovely clear voice, naturally shrink away from any source of embarrassment as they would from a plague. That means the losing of friends and of frightening people away before they learn to know and like the fine qualities in order to become friends. It is worth going to any lengths to avoid that.

Then there is that constant talker that we mentioned above. It is quite possible to be that without being unbecomingly loud. But while I advocate moderation [by the way, moderation is an excellent principle to follow in virtually everything] don't curb yourself to the extent that you fail to hold up your end of the conversation. There is no one more boring than the individual who never has an intelligent remark to make or who drops the ball of conversation every time it is tossed to her. When you have something to say, say it and express yourself well and interestingly, but without monopolizing.

• • •

Then, in this same group of violators of the art of conversation, are those who continually complain and who talk of nothing but themselves. It seems impossible to get them off the subject of the abuse they have to take at the office in the way of overwork, of their numerous and ever present ailments, of their love affairs. People as a rule are sympathetic listeners, but constant preying on one's sympathies soon becomes exhausting, and whether the complaints are legitimate or imaginary ones concocted to attract attention, they become tiresome and offensive, another sure way of losing friends.

Smartly Styled Summer Blouse



By Ellen Bruce.

Waistlines and necklines are important style points at any season of the year to the woman planning her wardrobe or making additions thereto. In her crocheted blouses for afternoon wear the waistline is smoothly molded, belted and slim. If the necklines are not draped they are high and square. The crocheted blouse illustrated today is a perfect example of smart summer styling. The clever body line joining the sleeves at the shoulders is a novel treatment of crochet blouses this season. The sleeves are long and slim in variation to the short puffed ones of a season ago. The stitches are simple and any type of yarn may be used. If this blouse is crocheted in a crepe or cotton it will rank with the foremost crochet fashions. Skirts of knit or crochet may be worn with this blouse to make an ensemble or separate tweed skirts are worn with suede jackets and a crocheted blouse to make it suitable for sports wear. Tans, bluegreens, off blues, pinks, vivid Mexican tones and pastels are the choices for summer.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the blouse with 6 button trimming illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

Pan of Water In Oven Aids Slow Baking of Cakes

In baking fruit or wedding cakes which require long, slow cooking, place a shallow pan filled with water in the oven. The water will help keep the cakes moist and give a glaze to their surfaces. Each cake should be allowed to cool in the pan in which it was baked.

To prevent taffy and other sticky candies from becoming soft, wrap each piece in waxed paper and store it in a covered tin or glass jar. A fruit jar with a firm lid is unusually satisfactory.

Chocolate used in cooked or uncooked frosting should be cooled after it is melted. Otherwise it may cause the frosting to become too thin.

Helen Keller's Aid Has Applied for Citizenship

Miss Polly Thomson, who has been the "eyes and ears" of Miss Helen Keller, internationally known deaf and blind writer and lecturer, since the death of Mrs. Anne Sullivan Macy, has applied for citizenship papers in the Supreme court of Long Island City. She was born in Scotland in 1885.

To Get the Best Cough Medicine, Mix It at Home

Saves Good Money, No Cooking.

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because there is no other way to obtain such a dependable, effective remedy for coughs that start from colds. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of cough remedy, far superior to anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving you double-quick relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

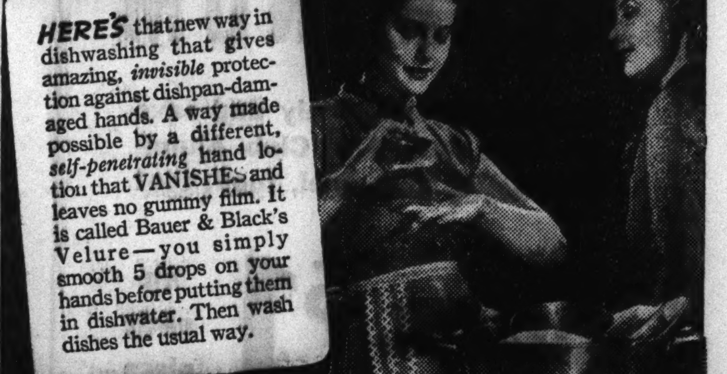
I WASH DISHES A FUNNY WAY

A New Hand-Saving Technique that Guards Amazingly Against Roughness, Redness and Chap



HERE'S that new way in dishwashing that gives amazing, invisible protection against dishpan-damaged hands. A way made possible by a different, self-penetrating hand lotion that VANISHES and leaves no gummy film. It is called Bauer & Black's Velure—you simply smooth 5 drops on your hands before putting them in dishwater. Then wash dishes the usual way.

AFTER dishes are done, shake on 5 more drops of vanishing Velure to further offset the effect of hot, soapy water—to guard against roughness, redness and chap. Do this for one week. You may be amazed at the difference it makes in your hands—how much softer, smoother and whiter they become each day.

NEW-FORMULA VANISHING LOTION FOR SMOOTHER, SOFTER HANDS

"NO MORE dishpan hands" . . . "Hands softer and smoother than they've been in years" . . . "Skin texture amazingly improved."

These are a few of the things women everywhere are saying of Velure, Bauer & Black's new hand-saving creation. A vanishing lotion that is different in conception—different in formula and consistency from any you've probably known before.

Because of its remarkable self-penetrating action, Velure sinks right in—goes to work at once. Non-sticky—quick-drying. No hard rubbing to "work it in" as with thick, old-style lotions. No thick, gummy film to float off in water—to dull nail polish or stain your gloves and clothes.

In addition, certain of the ingredients in Velure also help to conserve natural skin-softening oils. Thus lightening the excessive burden on skin glands that makes hands look prematurely coarse and "old."

Also—Velure goes 3 times as far as old-fashioned, thick-type lotions. You use only ⅓ as much. So it's a grand money-saver, too.

TRY VELURE FREE—For a free, generous trial bottle of this new vanishing lotion, send your name and address to: Bauer & Black, Dept. D, 2501 S. Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois. See for yourself how surprisingly different it is.

Helen Hayes to Play Portia, First Shakespearean Role

By Charles Collins.

THE playgoing week in Chicago contains two events of major interest—the arrival of "Stage Door," giving Joan Bennett of the films her dramatic debut, and Helen Hayes' special production next Friday afternoon of "The Merchant of Venice." The latter occasion, marking the first venture into Shakespeare of one of the most famous actresses of the American theater, must take precedence in this foreword. It has certain aspects that fall into the "unique and extraordinary" class.

Miss Hayes, having been occupied with the heavy duties of "Victoria Regina" for more than a year, came to feel that she and her company would need some form of relaxation other than mere amusements while they were on tour. She decided that rehersals of another play, pointed toward a special performance, would relieve the tedium of extended traveling and would also benefit the morale of the company so far as "Victoria Regina" was concerned. For years she has wanted to experiment with Shakespeare, the goal of most players with a serious attitude toward English dramatic literature, and a prominent member of her company was eminently qualified by experience and temperament for the rôle of Shylock. Therefore she decided upon "The Merchant of Venice" in which she could follow the high acting traditions associated with the character of Portia.

Rehersals began in Boston last October, ten days after the "Victoria Regina" tour opened. Every member of the cast was assigned a rôle except Werner Bateman, who appears as Prince Albert. He is a German actor, playing his first rôle in English, and he felt that he was unprepared for the difficulties of Shakespearean diction. Chicago was selected as the scene for the first performance. The only other repetitions will be in San Francisco and Los Angeles next June.

When Miss Hayes arrived in Chicago she found that her manager, Gilbert Miller, had

Dekker's 17th Century Whimsey Is Given a Revival

'Shoemaker's Holiday' Is Rough Comedy

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The laboratorians of the Mercury theater ushered in the new year with Dekker's "The Shoemaker's Holiday," an amusing whimsey of the seventeenth century. In fact, this old comedy was first performed, according to the records, before "The Queenes Most Excellent Majestie on New Year's Day at night last" in 1600, which gave the revivalists of the Mercury a bit of an historical peg on which to hang their performance before the first night queens and majesties of Broadway three hundred and thirty-seven years later.

The Dekker piece has not been played often. There was a revival at the Old Vic theater in London in 1926 and another in Norwich, England, last year. The only local performance of which I find mention was one in 1912 by the students of Columbia university.

It is a bawdy piece in its humor, sometimes vulgar in costuming, and a simple piece in story. The attraction of the Mercury revival is in the spirit of the playing. Orson Welles and John Houseman, whose production it is, have been at some pains to reproduce the Elizabethan atmosphere as well as the stage detail.

Stage Setting Is Conventional.

The setting is the conventional three-curtained stage, with towering skeletonized residences looking like modern corn cribs along a foreshortened street extending back of the middle curtain. Interior scenes are played at right and left and spread to the apron of the stage when necessary. Entrances and exits are frequently arbitrary and slightly involved, but there is sufficient consistency to stimulate a normal imagination.

There are the familiar two romances, one to represent the aristocrats paralleling another concerned with lowly folk. The comedy is mostly in the hands of a group of shoemaker apprentices who are the clowns of the show. In the end the king appears and sets all right by seeing the lovers properly paired.

The Dekker comedy runs little more than an hour, which probably will force the Messrs. Welles and Houseman to find a second short play to go with it. The chief actors are Whitford Kane, playing the shoemaker; Simon Eyre, who becomes Lord Mayor of London to the great joy of his workmen, and Edith Barrett, little Miss Moonshine, who has let down her hair and romps with great good will as a rowdy maid.

Vincent Price, the tall young man who played Albert to Helen Hayes' Victoria for two years, is here performing as one of the noble lovers. Marian Warring-Manley is a buxom wife to the master shoemaker. A comparative unknown, Hiram Sherman, is the happiest of the clowns.

The Mercury will alternate "The Shoemaker's Holiday" with their production of Shakespeare's "Julius Cæsar."

"A Doll's House" Revival Reaches N. Y.

The revival of "A Doll's House," which Jed Harris staged in Central City last summer and has since been touring with considerable success, has reached New York. Ruth Gordon is still the Nora. It is a good Nora to those to whom it is a convincing Nora. That really is the only fair test with any rôle. He is your best Hamlet who is nearest your idealization of Hamlet. She is your best Juliet with whom and for whom you suffer most.

The punditical critic of the drama who would tell you the exact type of woman Ibsen had in mind when he wrote "A Doll's House" would still be telling you no more than his personal conclusions, with no hope of ever proving them. I have always suspected that Nora's amazing development as a symbol of feminism was a good deal of a surprise to Ibsen himself.

Miss Gordon's Nora is a fluttery child-wife and mother. She apparently has no consciousness of the mental forces awakening in her sheltered and shallow mind. Up to the moment her husband tells her that he cannot think of retaining Krogstadt [from whom she has borrowed money on a forged note] in the bank because, once having committed a crime, he is and always will be a contaminating influence in any human contact, she is completely naive.

Then Nora, made conscious of her own guilt, immediately thinks of herself as poison to the very air her children breathe and, though she would fight down the thought or dismiss it with a characteristic shrug, it remains to fester in her disturbed mind until the end of the play.

Makes a Strong Point of Remorse.

This one point, I think, Miss Gordon makes stronger than any other Nora I recall. It is a perfect contrast with her butterfly interpretation of the part and a much better reason for this Nora's decision at the play's climax to leave her home and abandon her children than if she had based that decision, as the intellectual Noras do, on her sudden discovery of a deep responsibility to herself.

It never has been easy for audiences to accept Nora's quick realization that for eight years she has been living in the house of a stranger, that she has borne him three children, and that she must now leave them all for the salvation of her own soul's independence. Stressing the point she feels she is leaving them also for their ultimate good helps.

There may be more petulance than decision in the slam of the door after the Gordon Nora than there was after the Duse Nora, for example, or even the Nazimova Nora, but I am not sure that this is important. This was at least a consistent, honest Nora, conceived, I'm sure Miss Gordon believes, as a truly begotten copy of such an American doll wife as might reasonably represent Nora.

It must, in fairness to this splendid comedienne, be remembered that there have been many Noras played, and no two alike. Also that an early English translation in which Henry Arthur Jones had a hand, was called "Breaking a Butterfly," which title would be quite in accordance with the Gordon idea. Also that the first American performance of "A Doll's House" was given by Mme. Modjeska in Louisville, Ky., in 1883, that it was called "Thora" and that there was a happy ending based on a reconciliation of the Helmers.

Mr. Harris has wisely cast his revival even though his players do represent a surprising blend of nationalities. Paul Jones [Swedish] gives an impressively dignified performance as Dr. Rank; Sam Jaffe [Jewish] plays Krogstadt with as great sincerity as that part has ever been given. Dennis King [English] is an excellent Helmer, and Margaret Waller [Australian] gives much to Christina Linden.

"Western Waters" Given Production.

The late Harry Moses died while he was considering the production of a comedy written by a young actor named Richard Carlson. It was called "Tough t' Chaw" at that time, but has since been retitled "Western Waters." When Mr. Moses died his wife, Elsa Moses, took over the production and carried it through. It would have been just as well if she had left it where it was.

This is a wild western concerned with the trek of the early Yanks into Ohio. Josiah of Massachusetts has packed up his wife and two daughters, gathered in a smattering of kinfolk and started west to beat the French to a homestead or two of the better land. Stopped at Pittsburgh, Josiah hires a flat boat, loads it with live stock and victuals and starts floating down the Ohio river.

Shortly a raring, tearing, rip-snorting wild man, calling himself "Kaintuck," pops out of the mists and allows he will take command. Also it develops that the parson Josiah has offered a free ride is a parson in choker collar only. Otherwise he is a dartard bent on wrecking Josiah's boat and beating him to the land of promise.

Josiah's girls are lustful wenches and eager for mating. They stir in a sex interest, with "Kaintuck" taking the older and marrying her when forced. He also decides to stay with Josiah and helps him defend his family against the fake parson's schemes.

There is plenty of color and a lot of noise in "Western Waters." Neither is it badly written by young Mr. Carlson, who has been playing in "The Ghost of Yankee Doodle," but it stirs no more than a mild wonder and is not likely to sell in this market.

Van Heflin, tall blond boy from the coast, plays "Kaintuck," Thomas Chalmers is the Josiah, and the likely girls are Joan Webster and Maxine Stuart.

GOOD-LOOKER RETURNS TO THE RIALTO

Ada Leonard has brought her own song-and-dance troupe to the Rialto theater, reopened after several weeks of darkness. She has been in motion picture work during the last year.

Drama by Dreiser

Late in his long career as a writer Theodore Dreiser has decided on a hand-to-hand combat with the drama. He has written a few one-act plays but never a full length drama. Broadway, therefore, is surprised to learn that he has completed a dramatization of his novel, "The Genius."

The manuscript does not attempt to tell all of the story. Dreiser has selected for dramatic purposes only the central love story in the novel.

Helen Hayes Gives Special Matinee Bill

another play, "Tovarich," in local performance whose cast contained two actors who would fit well into "The Merchant of Venice." They are McKay Morris, who acts the prince, and Cecil Humphries, who acts the soviet commissar. They gladly volunteered and were assigned to the rôle of the duke of Venice and the prince of Morocco, respectively.

The cast for "The Merchant of Venice," with identification of the regular activities of each player, follows:

Portia [Queen Victoria]	Helen Hayes
Shylock [Lord Beaconsfield]	Abraham Sofaer
Antonio [Lord Melbourne]	Charles Francis
Bassanio [Prince Ernest]	Alexander Clark
Solanio [First Queen's Gentleman]	Guy Monypenny
Salerio [Footman]	Robert von Rigel
Gratiano [Stage director]	Peter Mather
Tubal [Lord Conyngham]	Wallace Widdecombe
Launcelot Gobbo [Footman]	Raymond Johnson
Old Gobbo [John Brown]	James Gibson
Jessica [Lady Jane]	Kate Warriner
Duke of Venice [Prince in "Tovarich"]	Morris McKay
Prince of Morocco [Commissar in "Tovarich"]	Cecil Humphries

New Shylock Was Born in Burma.

The costumes were designed by Guy Monypenny; the stage director was Abraham Sofaer. Thus this production might be called an entirely intramural affair. Miss Hayes has no present thought of giving her "Merchant of Venice" in New York at the conclusion of her tour, as has been rumored. She has fixed the price of tickets on the "popular" scale, in order to place the performance within the reach of college and high school students.

Abraham Sofaer, the Shylock of this production, deserves an introduction, since "Victoria Regina" marks his only appearance on the American stage since 1930, when he made a brief visit in "The Matriarch." He is a distinguished English actor, aged 41; he was born in Rangoon, Burma, where he was a schoolmaster for several years; he made his début in London in 1921 as a "walk-on" in "The Merchant of Venice." He spent four years in provincial Shakespearean companies, playing almost 100 rôles, including Othello, Shylock, Brutus, and Malvolio. He then toured the United Kingdom in the leading rôle [the Rajah of Rukh] in "The Green Goddess," a drama by William Archer, acted in this country by George Arliss. In 1925 he became a recognized London actor, and since then he has had important rôles in numerous plays, both modern and classic. He was the Bolingbroke in Maurice Evans' London production of Shakespeare's "Richard II."

Sofaer has also been active in British film productions, such as "The Flag Lieutenant," "Stamboul," "Long Live the King," and "Rembrandt."

"Stage Door" Brings Joan Bennett to Footlights.

"Stage Door," with which the Grand Opera house re-opens tomorrow night after three weeks of inactivity, is a drama by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber, whose last collaborative work was "Dinner at Eight," a success of five years ago. This piece deals with struggling, often half starving, young actresses in New York. The scene is an endowed boarding house for such Broadway adventurers, who occur in almost every well regulated family; the story deals with the disappointments, misfortunes and strokes of good luck which mark the careers of apprentices to the hazardous theatrical career.

"Stage Door" had a long run in New York last year. It has been converted into a motion picture which will not be released in Chicago until after the play's engagement here.

Joan Bennett, well known to cinema patrons, has found her first important stage rôle in this piece. She hardly needs to be identified as the daughter of Richard Bennett and the younger sister of Constance, for film propagandists have publicized the family extensively. In 1927, when she was 17 years old, she made her footlight début with her father in "Jarnegan." Since then she has been active in motion pictures. The following titles will recall some of her characterizations: "Private World," "Disraeli," "Little Women," "The Pursuit of Happiness," "Wild Girl," "Two for Tonight," "She Couldn't Take It," "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo," "Thirteen Hours by Air," "Big Brown Eyes," "Wedding Present," and "Two Is a Crowd."

"Stage Door" contains 32 characters, of which 18 are girls trying to secure a foothold in the theater. Among the players are Onslow Stevens, Richard Kendrick, Madeline Grey, Muriel Campbell, Walter Davis, Helen Ray, Homer Miles, June Gale, Sydna Scott, Barna Ostertag, Edith Tachna, Rosalind Roulston, Margaret Owens, Wilma Francis, Jean Carmen, Virginia Rousseau, Patricia Donohue, Viola Wydner, Helen Waren, Ruth Strome, Dora Sayers, Marian Edwards, Gilbert Fates, Edward Elliott, Arthur Tell, Lynn Whitney, Brant Gorman, William Atlee, Bert Wilcox, and William and Dorthea Andrews.

Historic Play

"Our American Cousin," the play associated with the assassination of President Lincoln, will be staged in the Goodman theater tomorrow night by the senior students of the school of acting. It will continue in performance until Jan. 18, omitting Sunday. This comedy, with Laura Keane as star, ran for 1,000 days in Washington during the civil war.

MAESTRO FOR EMPIRE ROOM

Shep Fields directs the dance orchestra for the Empire room's mid winter entertainment. He was formerly director of the Veloz and Yolanda orchestra.

Variety Bills

Lita Grey Chaplin, in a program of songs, and Jackie Green, who has been active in motion pictures, lead the current vaudeville program at the State-Lake theater. Among the other performers are Manno and Stratford, dancers; Harry Martin and company; Siegfried and company, jugglers; Verne Buck, and the State-Lake ballet.

Ted Weems' orchestra continues to give the stage entertainment at the Chicago theater. Among the specialty performers are Gloria Day, eccentric tap dancer; the Readinger twins, dancers, and Tommy Martin, magician.

The New Year's stage program at the Palace theater has been held over for a second and final week, ending next Thursday. It is a revue called "Streamline Jamboree," featuring "Red" Skelton, comedian, and a cast of forty.

Ella Logan to Join Program at Chez Paree

Harry Richman will continue his engagement at the Chez Paree until next Thursday night, when he and Miss Terry Lawlor, blues singer, will go to the Rivièra café at Miami. Ella Logan, recently active in films, and the California Variety Eight will replace Richman and Miss Lawlor as headliners. The other principals and features of the current bill will continue.

Benny Meroff, popular in Chicago for years, brought his orchestra into the Congress Casino last Thursday. An important member of the group is Wesley Summerfield, lyric tenor. The floor show includes Jack Marshall and Larry Powell, comedians; Dawn Roland, dancer; Peppino and Camille, ballroom dancers; Simpson's marionettes, and the Four Vespers, acrobats. . . . In the Glass Hat café at the Congress, the Four Californians will be replaced next Friday night by the Crusaders, singing instrumentalists.

● Shep Field and his dance orchestra continue in the Empire room of the Palmer house. Milton Douglas, baritone singing star, recently returned from London, heads the floor revue, which includes the Three Nonchalants, Tex Morrisey and "Hank the Mule," and Gertrude Simmons. The twelve Abbott dancers appear in production numbers. "Relief" music is played by Phil Dooley and his orchestra.

● The Royale Frolics started its new "Winter Gaiety" revue last Friday. The stars are Sid Tomack and the Reis brothers, comedians, and Ann Lester, singer. New performers are Kay, Katya, and Kay, dance trio; Floria Vestoff, soubrette, and Jackson and Nedra, tap dancing team. The show has new numbers and costumes for the ballet of 28 girls, and new songs for Jackie Hilliard, tenor. Mark Fisher's orchestra, the Tiny Parham's, and Al Turk's dance bands.

● Earl Hoffman's orchestra is now playing at the Ivanhoe, which also has the Four Night Hawks and Helen Erwin as entertainers.

● Mary Stone, singer and dancer, has joined the cabaret program at the Club Alabam. Other entertainers are Dorothy Lull, Ann Mack, Harriet Norris, Effie Burton, and the Paramount singing trio. Three dance bands.

● The show at Colosimo's café is headed by Cliff Winehill, comedian. Other performers are Grisha and Brona, dancers; the singing Keller Sisters; Cecile Blair, dancer; Barry, Breen, and Wyler, dance comedians; Don Enrico, tenor; the Costellos, singing team; Auburn and Dodge, roller skaters; Sally Osman, singer; a ballet of twelve girls, and Henri Gendron's band.

● Eleanore Christian, ballet dancer, leads the Bytonettes, dancing group, in the New Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel. "Cas" Franklin is singing master of ceremonies. Marek Weber, conductor and violinist, continues with his symphonic dance orchestra.

● Charles [Buddy] Rogers is musical director and master of ceremonies for the College Inn's current bill of entertainment, called "Hollywood Bandwagon." Among the performers are the "Boots" McKenna ballet; Shea and Raymond, eccentric dancers; Jack Douglas, singing and dancing comedian; Patricia Lee, Bob Hannon, and Bobby Baxter, singers, and "Patsy" Marr, tap dancer.

Reject Poor Music, Whoever Wrote It, Critic Urges

Listeners Too Prone to Bow to Mere Name

By Edward Barry.

Those who do our thinking for us and who subsist by pointing out our faults seldom include over-reverence for the past and for tradition among the charges which they fling so constantly at this modern world. Most of the accusations, in fact, are of quite the opposite variety, for the general tendency of contemporary Catos is to condemn the self-confidence which has led the bulk of the population to question those values which our ancestors, supposedly, were wont to accept without protest.

Now it is not the privilege of the music column to argue the pros and cons of a proposition such as this nor to attempt to adjudicate the claims of those who hold that the twentieth century has exalted its technological skill and its scientific toys in so resolute and unthinking a manner that a proper respect for the achievements of other eras in different fields has been all but destroyed in the process.

But it is the privilege of the music column, and one which will be vigorously exercised, to point out the fact that our general lack of reverence, granting for the moment that such a lack exists, does not yet extend to the generality of the musical public. Such an extension might have remarkably healthful results.

Listener Apt to Condemn Himself.

A man hears a piece of music by Bach—and does not like it. He hears it again and again—and still does not like it. Finally he decides that the trouble lies in his own lack of proper "appreciation."

But the fault may be Bach's and nobody else's. Quite possibly the unhappy listener is being deceived by that all-inclusive reverence with which most of the musical public and many musicians regard the works of a few of the standard composers.

The point is that there are two questions, not one, which we have the right to ask about any composition. The first is "Who wrote it?", the second, "Is it any good?" Confusion and discouragement have often resulted from failure to see that the first question [even though the answer to it may be Bach, Mozart, or Beethoven] does not do away with the importance of the second.

If a piece of music bears the name of Bach on its title page, it is half sold already. Often completely sold. The same is true in the case of Mozart, Beethoven, Wagner, and Brahms and, in lesser degree, of Handel, Haydn, Schubert, Schumann, and Chopin. The prestige of these people has succeeded in palming off on posterity a vast amount of second and third rate music which trades shamelessly on the reputation which their first rate products have honestly won.

Great Composers Sometimes Stumbled.

Those musicians who are lumped together as the great composers were human beings like ourselves. Their creative and critical faculties might be in fine shape one day, nearly inoperative the next. They were not above using a little padding occasionally, nor complete strangers to the temptation to publish something merely because of the needed money it would bring in. And in some cases works which a composer had decided not to release were posthumously exhumed from his effects by slavish admirers or calculating publishers and given to a world which was prepared to fold to its too uncritical bosom anything at all bearing so famous an imprint.

Because of all this, there is no more reason for liking something by Chopin [simply because it is by Chopin] than for admiring the latest opus of Joe Blow. In both cases the actual music, not the name on the title page, must be the decisive factor. It is quite conceivable that Blow's piece might be better than Chopin's.

In many instances it would be very wholesome for a listener to display a little of that self-confidence and contempt for tradition which are widely believed to be characteristics of our time and to jump to the conclusion that there is something the matter with the music, not with his own powers of appreciation. Of course, the listener will often be wrong, but no great harm can be done unless this self-confidence leads him to refuse to listen further to the work.

Another bad result of our excessive reverence for the standard composers and for every last thing they wrote is that sheer pretense often takes on an unhealthful importance in musical circles.

The well justified belief that a liking for Beethoven is a sign of sensitiveness to fine music has been corrupted into a superstitious fear that inability to like some particular piece by Beethoven betokens lack of such sensitiveness. Therefore many people are reluctant to admit that such and such an overture leaves them completely unmoved and are tempted instead to murmur some nonsense about the man's epic sweep and nobility of style.

PRODIGY GROWS UP

Guila Bustabo, 18 year old violinist, plays the Mendelssohn concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra next Thursday night and Friday afternoon. Born in Manitowoc, Wis., she did some of her early studying in Chicago, and has since appeared successfully in numerous European cities.

Claims Ideals of Democracy Are Ignored

By the Rev. John Evans.

Dr. Mowat G. Fraser, lecturer in education at the University of Michigan, considers that democratic ideals are not really taught in the American schools. While the word "democracy" is used in the publicity of educational associations, he asserts that the method of attaining its ideals finds no place in the curriculum.

"Not a single American textbook in the social studies," Mr. Fraser states, "gives any emphasis whatsoever to the need for considering controversial issues in the light of the ideal of equal, maximum opportunity for all."

Mr. Fraser explains this omission as caused by fear on the part of a majority of teachers of social studies that if the study of methods of attaining democracy in America be encouraged their jobs would be jeopardized. But because democracy is harder to maintain today than in the earlier days of the nation's existence, Dr. Fraser argues that more intelligence must be brought to play on the job, and the democratic ideal must be encouraged rather than the mere teaching of children to examine both sides of every issue. This, he points out, is not indoctrination in the disputed sense of that term; on the contrary, it is the only way of preventing narrow and selfish points of view.

"Most of us need to have a new conception of the educated person," Dr. Fraser concludes, "one who in civic affairs not only knows much but also is unselfish because his guiding ideal is our traditional one of equal, maximum opportunity for all."

To effect this, the lecturer maintains, our schools must build future citizens who believe in and desire democracy so that when they become adults they will be fitted to propose the legislation necessary to provide political, economic, educational, racial, and international opportunity for everybody.

Joint Recital

The last of Mrs. Gilbert Smith's successful "Eleven o'Clock Matinées" at the Palmer house tomorrow morning, will be a joint recital by Anne Mundy, pianist, and Francesco Zecchino, violinist. Miss Mundy, still in her early twenties, is a native of St. Paul, Minn., a graduate of Vassar college, and a promising artist with a record of successful appearances in Rome, Warsaw, New York, and St. Paul. Francesco Zecchino is only 15 and is pursuing a musical career at the behest of several members of the Boston Symphony orchestra who were impressed by his talent. He will have the invaluable aid of Carl Lamson, Fritz Kreisler's pianist.

Josephine Argentine, 18 year old Chicago coloratura soprano, will sing "Casta Diva" from "Norma" and the mad scene from "Lucia di Lammermoor" at Kimball hall this afternoon.

Gallo's Nine Offerings to Bring Opera to End

By Cecil Smith.

If you have not yet had your fill of opera-going you will do well to hurry over to the Auditorium theater this week, for there are only nine performances left before Fortune Gallo takes his San Carlo Opera company out toward the west coast.

This is the last week of standard opera to be given in Chicago this season, unless something unforeseen turns up. The Salzburg Opera guild will be along in February, but their répertoire is quite special and will not satisfy your craving for "Aïda," "Carmen," or "Madame Butterfly."

Here are the detailed casts for the week:

Tonight at 8:20—"Il Trovatore"; Norina Greco, Maru Castagna, Aroldo Lindi, Mostyn Thomas, Nino Carbone, Natale Cervi.

Monday at 8:20—"La Traviata"; Rosalinda Morini, Carlotta Bruno, Dimitri Onofrei, Thomas, Cervi, Francesco Curci; corps de ballet.

Tuesday at 8:20—"La Bohême"; Bianca Saroya, Leola Turner, Onofrei, Mario Valle, Stefan Kozakevich, Harold Kravitt, Cervi.

Wednesday at 2:30—"Lucia di Lammermoor": La Rae, Bruno, Enrico Cappellotti [debut], Valle, Kravitt, Cervi, Curci.

Wednesday at 8:20—"Tannhäuser"; Saroya, Bruno, Turner, Lindi, Thomas, Kravitt; corps de ballet.

Thursday—No performance.

Friday at 8:20—"Madame Butterfly"; Hizi Koyke, Stella De Mette, Bruno; Onofrei, Stephano Ballarini, Cervi, Curci.

Saturday at 2:30—"Carmen"; Castagna, Turner, Bruno; Cappellotti, Ballarini, Kravitt, Cervi, Curci; corps de ballet.

Saturday at 8:20—"Il Trovatore"; Saroya, De Mette; Lindi, Thomas, Kravitt; corps de ballet.

Next Sunday at 8:20—"Aïda"; Greco, Castagna, Cappellotti, Ballarini, Kravitt, Cervi, Curci; corps de ballet.

Carlo Peroni will conduct all performances.

The Kansas City Philharmonic orchestra, now in its fifth season, will play in Orchestra hall this afternoon. Karl Krueger, conductor of the orchestra since its formation in 1933, will direct the following program:

Overture to "Alceste"	Gluck
Symphony No. 1, C minor	Brahms
Orchestral Fragments, Second Series, from "Daphnis and Chloé"	Ravel
Suite from "The Fire Bird"	Stravinsky

Our own Chicago Symphony orchestra has a busy schedule this week, playing four concerts in Orchestra hall under Hans Lange—Tuesday afternoon, Thursday evening, Friday afternoon and Saturday evening. At the Thursday-Friday pair of subscription concerts Guila Bustabo, violinist, will be soloist.

Miss Bustabo, 18 years old, is from Manitowoc, Wis. She pursued much of her early study of her instrument here in Chicago. During the last three years she has spent most of her time in Europe, playing successful concerts in many of the musical centers of the continent.

The Thursday-Friday concerts make an additional bid for interest with the first performance anywhere of a symphonic rhapsody, "Puszta," by Zoltán Kurthey, first viola player of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra. The program:

Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"	Mozart
Symphony rhapsody, "Puszta" [First performance]	Zoltán Kurthy
Concerto for violin, E minor [Guila Bustabo]	Mendelssohn
Symphony No. 5, E minor	Tschaikowsky

The Tuesday afternoon program has no soloist:

Overture to "Oberon"	Weber
Pavane for a Dead Infanta [In memory of Maurice Ravel]	Ravel
Symphony, B-flat major, B. and H. No. 8	Haydn
Symphonic poem, "The Fountains of Rome"	Respighi
Overture-Fantasia, "Romeo and Juliet"	Tschaikowsky

The program for the Saturday evening popular concert is as follows:

Overture to "The Marriage of Figaro"	Mozart
Ballet music from "Rosamunde"	Schubert
Symphony No. 7, A major	Beethoven
Overture to "Tannhäuser"	Wagner
Forest Murmurs from "Siegfried"	Wagner
Siegfried's Rhine Journey from "Die Götterdämmerung"	Wagner
Prize Song and Prelude from "Die Meistersinger"	Wagner

Before departing for several months of operatic singing and study in central Europe, Janet Fairbank, Chicago soprano, will sing twice with the Illinois Symphony orchestra—today in the Great Northern theater and Tuesday evening in Mandel hall at the University of Chicago. Carl Bricken, chairman of the music department at the university, will be conductor on both occasions.

Today's program follows:

"We All Believe in One God" [Transcribed by Ellis Kohs]	Bach
Symphony No. 7, C major	Sibelius
"Late, O Miller"	Bricken
The Far-Farers	Bricken
"Peace, My Heart"	Bricken
"Rout" [Janet Fairbank]	Bliss
Prelude to "The Afternoon of a Faun"	Debussy
Choreographic Poem, "The Waltz"	Ravel

Tuesday's Mandel hall program is identical, except that Beethoven's Eighth symphony will be played in place of the Sibelius.

The Schumann concerto, never publicly played until two months ago, is the high spot of Yehudi Menuhin's violin recital in the Auditorium theater this afternoon. The program:

Sonata, G minor, for violin alone	Bach
Sonata No. 32, F major	Mozart
Hungarian Dance No. 11, D minor	Brahms-Joachim
"La Fille aux Chevaux de Lin"	Debussy-Hartmann
Caprice Basque	Sarasate

Hide and Seek Stirs Up the Miljan Tribe

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD.—[Special.] — John Miljan's 17 year old son, Bobby, took the younger son, 5 year old Johnny Jr., for a holiday hike in the hills back of Brentwood Heights, where the Miljans live. Playing hide and seek, son Bob hid so well and so long that he never did find brother Johnny, and so reported, much distressed, back home, to Papa Miljan.

The actor, Bob, their 150 pound fawn-colored Great Dane, Trojan, and police started out on a searching party for the missing youngster. On this quest son Bob again got lost. It took the dog an hour to find him. Meanwhile, little Johnny blithely called up from a neighbor's house across the canyon, where he had made his way safely.

"That picture is so punk," Richard Wallace, director, was telling another director about the handiwork of a third, "that the Chinese theater is afraid to book it for fear the cement footprints will walk out of the lobby."

One scene for "Jezebel," Bette Davis' picture at Warner's, was supposed to show the men of the cast, George Brent, Henry Fonda, Richard Cromwell, and John Litel, in a sociable libation in the rooms of the New Orleans "Original Absinthe Bar." But wires to New Orleans requesting photographs of the "Original Absinthe Bar" brought back three sets of photographs, for there are that many rival emporiums in the French quarter now styling themselves as the original. So the film scene is being shot in the "Original St. Louis Bar."

Grace Moore's Mate Remembers with Roses.

Part of Grace Moore's holiday pleasure was contributed by the thoughtfulness of her husband, Valentin Parera, who filled every room in the house with yellow roses, Grace's favorite flower.

Introducing a new star to the American public is an expensive operation, no matter how good she is or how successful she may have been abroad. Probably Sam Goldwyn set the highest mark with the sums he spent developing Anna Sten for the screen. Paramount recently calculated that launching Francisca Gaal has cost that studio $100,000.

Walter Catlett was talking about a recent experience that gave him a thrill.

"When I was called upon to mount the stage of the Main Street Follies and do a scene for Mae West's latest picture, 'Every Day's a Holiday,' it brought back memories," said the funny fellah. "Twenty-five years ago, when I was a punk kid comic, I played stock in that theater for six months." Now it houses a very burly burlesque show, in fact, the navy's delight, in the midst of Los Angeles' slum and factory district.

Jim Hogan, old-time director, now going great guns again over at Paramount, is a very informal but grand guy. Every one in his films is Jake or Charlie, perhaps "Kid" or "Pal." He just hasn't time to keep track of names. It was funny indeed to see the earl of Warwick, now working in pictures as Michael Brooke, hop quickly in response to the appellation "Kid," on the set of "Bulldog Drummond's Peril."

You've got to be careful of your perfume if you ever get a chance to meet Gary Cooper. Gary can't stand the scent of roses, as it sets him off into a hay fever paroxysm. They found this out on the set of "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" when the set crew, following orders to spray him with perfume for his scene, picked on rosewater, with an avalanche of resultant sneezes.

Three Stooges Carry Some Trick Luggage.

The Three Stooges left Columbia studio in high glee for their personal appearance tour; they'd acquired some trick luggage that collapses, just to make life hideous for the redcaps.

Mischa Auer spent $37.50 for a blind at a northern duck club and came home after his Christmas holiday with one duck.

The little red schoolhouse has been gone one better by the studios. Out at Universal, where a company of children is at work in Deanna Durbin's new film, there is a change in the location for shooting. To meet the situation, a portable schoolhouse that comes apart and can be loaded on trucks for conveyance about the vast stretches of the back lot, has been constructed by the carpentry department and in five minutes it can be erected wherever necessary.

Jon Hall, hero of "Hurricane," isn't as uncivilized as he appears. He was at one time ambitious for a diplomatic career and studied at the International university in Geneva.

Kenneth Harlan is among the bit players at Roach's in "Merrily We Live." In the same production the stand-in for Billie Burke is a youngster of sixteen, two years younger than the stand-in for Bonita Granville, the child star.

Miss Burke is a bit plumper than she was two years ago and it is nice to be able to tell you that it immensely improves her appearance. Across the set, she can pass for eighteen. She's a mighty marvelous woman, courageously earning her living again in a new medium at an age when most women have retired to comfort and security. An interviewer never gets any recital of past glories [and there are many to tell of] nor laments for what is past out of Billie Burke. Talk is of today, and tomorrow!

"Best Films" of December and the Year

By Mae Tinee.

It will be very interesting for me to hear from you regarding the pictures given below. Especially to know whether you agree with me as to which were the best films of 1937.

Usually ten is the number I stick to re the year's best photoplays, but as I went through my clippings there were more than ten that I thought unusual. So, mention they get. Here goes—and do write—will you?

Quotes from original reviews of last month's movies:—"A Garbo picture is usually a Garbo picture. 'Conquest' is a Garbo picture that comes mighty near being a Boyer picture . . . Certainly Charles Boyer's brilliant, intuitive interpretation of Napoleon rivals if it does not outshine the great Greta's sympathetic portrayal of Countess Walewska . . . picture a notable achievement."

"STAND-IN" — "Leslie Howard gives us some good comedy . . . satire . . . unreels amusingly . . ."

"THE GIRL SAID NO"—"To lovers of the old Gilbert and Sullivan light operas 'The Girl Said No' will come like a gift from the gods . . . features the old Aborn Light Opera company, gives generous bits from 'The Mikado' and other of the operettas . . ."

"I'LL TAKE ROMANCE"—"Grace Moore is a delight . . ."

"TRUE CONFESSION"—"Screwy but entertaining farce—with Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray."

"FIRST LADY"—". . . light, cleverly satirical play by George Kaufman with painless barbs aimed at backstage Washington; takes to movie hurdles neatly . . . shrewd, merry—and without malice. Features Kay Francis, Preston Foster, Walter Connolly, and Verree Teasdale."

"HITTING A NEW HIGH"—"Fascinating little Lily Pons of the lilting voice finds a most enhancing vehicle in 'Hitting a New High' . . ."

"DARK JOURNEY" — "One of those gratifyingly 'different' and suspenseful spy pictures that the British have a knack for making . . ." With Vivian Leigh and Conrad Veidt . . .

"LOVE AND HISSES"—"All to the merry . . . A neat little show." With Ben Bernie, Simone Simon, and Walter Winchell . . .

See you tomorrow.

One Woman Play

Cornelia Otis Skinner will begin a two weeks engagement at the Harris theater on Monday, Jan. 17, presenting her dramatization of Margaret Ayer Barnes' novel, "Edna His Wife."

"Edna His Wife" is a fully developed play, containing eleven scenes and a number of characters, all impersonated by Miss Skinner.

The play opens in 1900 when the heroine is the belle of Blue Island, a suburb of Chicago, and carries her to 1937 when she is a disappointed Park avenue matron. Besides Edna, Miss Skinner appears as Mrs. Losser, Pearl Losser, Dolly McElroy, Florrie, Susan Peebles, Jessica Jones, and Katherine Boyne—characters which readers of the novel may easily identify.

This is the first time Miss Skinner has made use of another author's work. Mrs. Barnes, a Chicagoan, is also author of the novel, "Years of Grace." She dramatized "Age of Innocence" for Katharine Cornell several years ago, and collaborated with Edward Sheldon on "Dishonored Lady," in which Miss Cornell starred.

French Plays

Three one act French plays—"Sophie Arnould," by Gabriel Nigond; "La Chance du Mari" ["The Chance of a Husband"], by Robert de Flers and Armand de Caillavet, and "Pension pour Dames Seules" ["Boarding House for Ladies Only"], by E. J. Sorson—will be presented by the International theater under the direction of Georges Cauuet next Friday night in the Goodman Studio theater. The program will be repeated the following Saturday morning at 11 o'clock and Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

This is the second of three dramatic programs in French which compose the International theater's season. Early in December "L'Amour Vielle," a four act comedy by de Flers and de Caillavet, was staged. The series will be concluded in March with Albert Arrault's "Eugénie Grandet," a dramatization of Balzac's novel.

The cast for this week's one act plays includes Elmina Blais, Elizabeth Mutrux, Suzanne Noble, Jeanne Stiennon, Adele Quiva, Zelie Claverie, Jeanne Sorson, Louise Champion, Louis Rousseau, Réné Melin, Jules Duc, Leon Despres, and Jean Clement.

The International theater dates back to 1900, originally called Matinées Theatrales Françaises, it assumed its present name in 1927. Georges Cauuet has been director of the theater since it was founded.

This week's program will be given under the patronage of Réné Weiller, consul general of France, and under the auspices of all Franco-American and French societies in Chicago.

Cabaret Notes

- The Yacht club opened a new bill last Wednesday. The headliner is Ada Leonard, stage and movie personality. Others are Ruth Dennan, soprano; Gladys Crane, singing and dancing soubrette; Bud and Buddies, with trained dogs, and Burnett and Walt, dancers. Hugo De Paul's band continues.
- George Bay leads the concert and dance music at the L'Aiglon restaurant, where Eusebio Concialdi, eminent opera baritone, is the singing star. Gloria Glenmore is also on the bill, in popular songs. Bay was formerly a boy violinist from Russia, who toured in this country under his full length name, Gregorieff Sergeiovich Baysaroff.
- Orrin Tucker's dance band remains at the Edgewater Beach hotel, with Bonnie Baker, the Bailey Sisters, the Edgewater Beach sextet, and Harriet Smith's ballet as floor entertainers. On Thursday and Saturday evenings Janice Porter, soprano of the Chicago City Opera company, sings arias from her repertory.
- Joe Sanders and his orchestra will be co-featured with Dick Jurgens' dance band at the Aragon ballroom today. Bill Carlsen's band continues at the Trianon, with another orchestra for relief at today's sessions.
- The Blue Fountain room of the La Salle hotel will start a series of weekly collegiate nights, called "Campus Capers," next Friday. The King's Jesters and Marjorie Whitney continue.

FLYING BLIND

By Alice Campbell

Into Tommy Rostetter's Lap Is Dumped a Mystery Involving a Very Beautiful Girl and a Lot of Her Relations

INSTALMENT I.

(Copyright: 1938: By Alice Ormond Campbell.)

TOO late Thomas Rostetter cursed himself for accepting his nephew's luncheon invitation. Rank Rostetter's approach had been disarming, the restaurant, bijou but modest, looked well within even his precarious means, and when all was said was it not fitting that some recognition be paid a visiting and generous relation? Tommy resigned himself to the mild boredom any well intentioned uncle must now and then expect. He accepted the apologies for past neglect, agreed that Rank was wise to abandon the flower business recently embarked on, and—since it left him free to pursue his own thoughts—let the lad maunder on at will.

"Crowded out's my story," Rank informed him. "All very easy to say every one buys flowers. The fact remains you can't heave a brick in Mayfair without damaging an arum lily or a gift pot of hibiscus. Bilfillian and I have worked our fingers to the bone. What with hotfooting it down to Covent Garden at the crack of dawn——"

"Have you done that?" demanded the uncle, roused.

"Every other morning," said Rank firmly. "We've taken it in turns. Choosing, pricing, window dressing—I'm rather good at that, you may have noticed; serving customers who don't know their minds, making up set pieces for funerals and what-not . . . sheer slavery, that's what it is. Now forced to sell at a loss. Shoved off to Madeira—and just when I've a most urgent reason for sticking in London."

Having heard the whole, stark tragedy from his brother, Tommy did not crave a rehash. It remained matter for wonderment that even a besotted parent could have parted with five hundred of the best to install Rankin Rostetter in any enterprise requiring acumen and concentration; yet glancing toward the speaker he did certainly observe a marked improvement over the Oxford days. Yes, much as Tommy might flout this story of early rising and constant grind, Peter's brat looked distinctly on the up and up.

"When do you start in on the wine business?" he asked carelessly.

Between set teeth Rank muttered, "Tuesday evening. Slow boat, no news reaching me till I land." He fell moodily silent, to add with a jerk, "It's why I had to get hold of you today. There's darned little time. It's like this. Something decidedly grim has been happening to a friend—I should say to two friends—of mine. Knowing your clever flair for mysteries and so on, I suggested calling on you for advice. No objection, I hope?"

"Every objection," snapped Tommy with the finality of a slammed door. "If you dimly imagine you're going to haul me into your friends' messes, just get this into your head: I'm a newspaper man, not a detective, and I know when I've had enough."

"Modesty," approved Rank, calmly chewing. "All the same, who plunked that French kidnaper a few years back? Who got the lowdown on Dodo Quarles' murder and saved a pure young girl's reason if not her life?"

"Incidentally getting socked on the bean and cold storaged in a rusted tank. Like to inspect the scar that marks my limit?"

• • •

TURTLE fashion Tommy thrust forward the sleek, black sheath of his head and tenderly stroked a crescent shaped scar. Rank surveyed the souvenir, but did not weaken.

"Stout fella," he admired. "So I was saying to Rosemary a moment ago. Wait, my girl, I said, till you see this uncle of mine. Unlined—practically speaking; not one gray hair——"

"And why in hell should my hair be gray?" retorted the hero, stung. His fresh colored face had hardened, his eyes, blue as flax flowers, were ominously bleak. "Will it close the issue if I tell you I'm pushing off home tomorrow?"

An untrue statement, and a wasted one, for Rank, with a broad tolerance wholly exasperating, merely remarked that the police here seemed a muddle headed lot, and that however the victims might joke about it the situation was frightening.

"When it comes to revolver shots being bunged in at windows, isn't it about time something drastic was done?"

Tommy flickered an eyelash in Rank's direction. Then his lips tightened, and he fixed a resolute gaze on the trio of smart shop fronts which faced the restaurant. One, a bright vision of tulips, forget-me-nots and azaleas, represented the ill starred venture of his nephew and a repulsive youngster named Bilfillian. Another, chastely displaying a bleached chair, a length of shimmering satin, and a dead white jar, marked the decorating establishment of young Lord Hollings, while that between bore the gilt caption of Anatol, Ltd., and contained a solitary hat.

"Spill it," he growled churlishly, "if you must; but I warn you, I'll have no truck with it. Who's Rosemary? A mannequin?"

"Rosemary," said Rank with dignity, "happens to be a Miss Bellamy-Pryce. Yes"—as Tommy glanced at him, "vicar's one and only daughter, from your own abandoned home town. Granddaughter of old stick-in-the-mud Bellamy-Pryce, who's dug himself in at Black Gables."

"The tea merchant? He's been dead for years."

"O no! Only dying; but that's beside the point. Rosemary scarcely knows the old skinflint. Neither do his own sons; and as for Boggie——"

"Who's Boggie?"

"Why, Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce—widow of James. The aunt Rosemary lives with in Kensington. She's the core of our problem—or so she believes. I'm not so sure."

"Why Boggie?" demanded Tommy, cantankerously.

"Why anything? She's the sort of woman who does get called Boggie. Affectionate nickname. When you see her——"

"I shall not."

Tommy saw in his mind's eye the Sussex village he so rarely visited and was even now nerving himself to pay a duty call. Broughton-Elmtrees, tucked away in a fold of green downland. So the vicar had a daughter.

"Works over there," Rank explained, indicating the hatshop. "This spring, when Boggie's husband pegged out on the way back from Ceylon, it seemed the obvious thing for the two of them to team up. They've a small furnished house in Victoria Grove and I can tell you this much: They're both of them scared stiff."

Tommy consulted his watch. Rank gathered speed.

"Wednesday evening," he said, "at exactly 10 o'clock, a shot was fired bang through the front window of Boggie's drawing room. It whizzed past Rosemary, playing the piano, not four feet away; and if Boggie, writing letters, hadn't moved her head at the correct moment it would definitly have transplanted her to kingdom come."

The narrator paused dramatically. The listener yawned.

"Rash though it sounds, they ran out almost at once. Garden empty, street empty. The constable they flagged came back and gave the place a thorough comb-over."

Tommy eyed him briefly.

"O? And the police opinion of all this?"

"On Thursday a Yard inspector called round with a fairly satisfactory yarn. This house, mark you, is number 96 Victoria Grove. Now then, just round the corner, at 96 Victoria Road, lives Mr. Justice Wainbridge. Last week he gave a thundering long sentence to a fraudulent bookie; and this chap's pals have been ringing him up from call boxes saying they were going to bump him off. Headquarters believed—O, blast!"

Breaking off with a mutter, Rank glued a gaze of dark hatred on the mirror at his uncle's back. Tommy, facing him, perceived the reason, in the person of an upstanding, broad shouldered man who had just sauntered casually—arrogantly, one might say—into the restaurant. The newcomer was in the midthirties, well dressed, though in a style more pronounced than that of the two Rostetters. Superabundant vigor struck one like a blow from his red bronzed skin and bold, hot brown eyes.

• • •

DISAPPOINTEDLY he glanced at the empty tables, and exchanged a word with the waitress. He stared hard and provocatively at Rank's unturned head and his eyes, encountering Tommy's, held an inquisitive challenge. Once it seemed as though he were going to approach for conversation; but he checked the impulse, roamed discontentedly away and, having bestowed an absent caress on the waitress' bare arm, lit a cigaret, stuck his bowler on at an angle, and departed into the June glare of Brackham Place.

"Bounder! Checkmated for once." Rank was giving vent to grim explosions under his breath. "Well, and where were we?"

"The police," Tommy wearily reminded him, "assume that the shot was intended for the judge, only an error was made in the street. On the face of it, I'd say they were right."

"O, yeah? Then listen: Next evening—Thursday—at the same time, precisely the same thing occurs. Another shot plunges in through the window. Again it's a near thing for both of them."

"Rubbish."

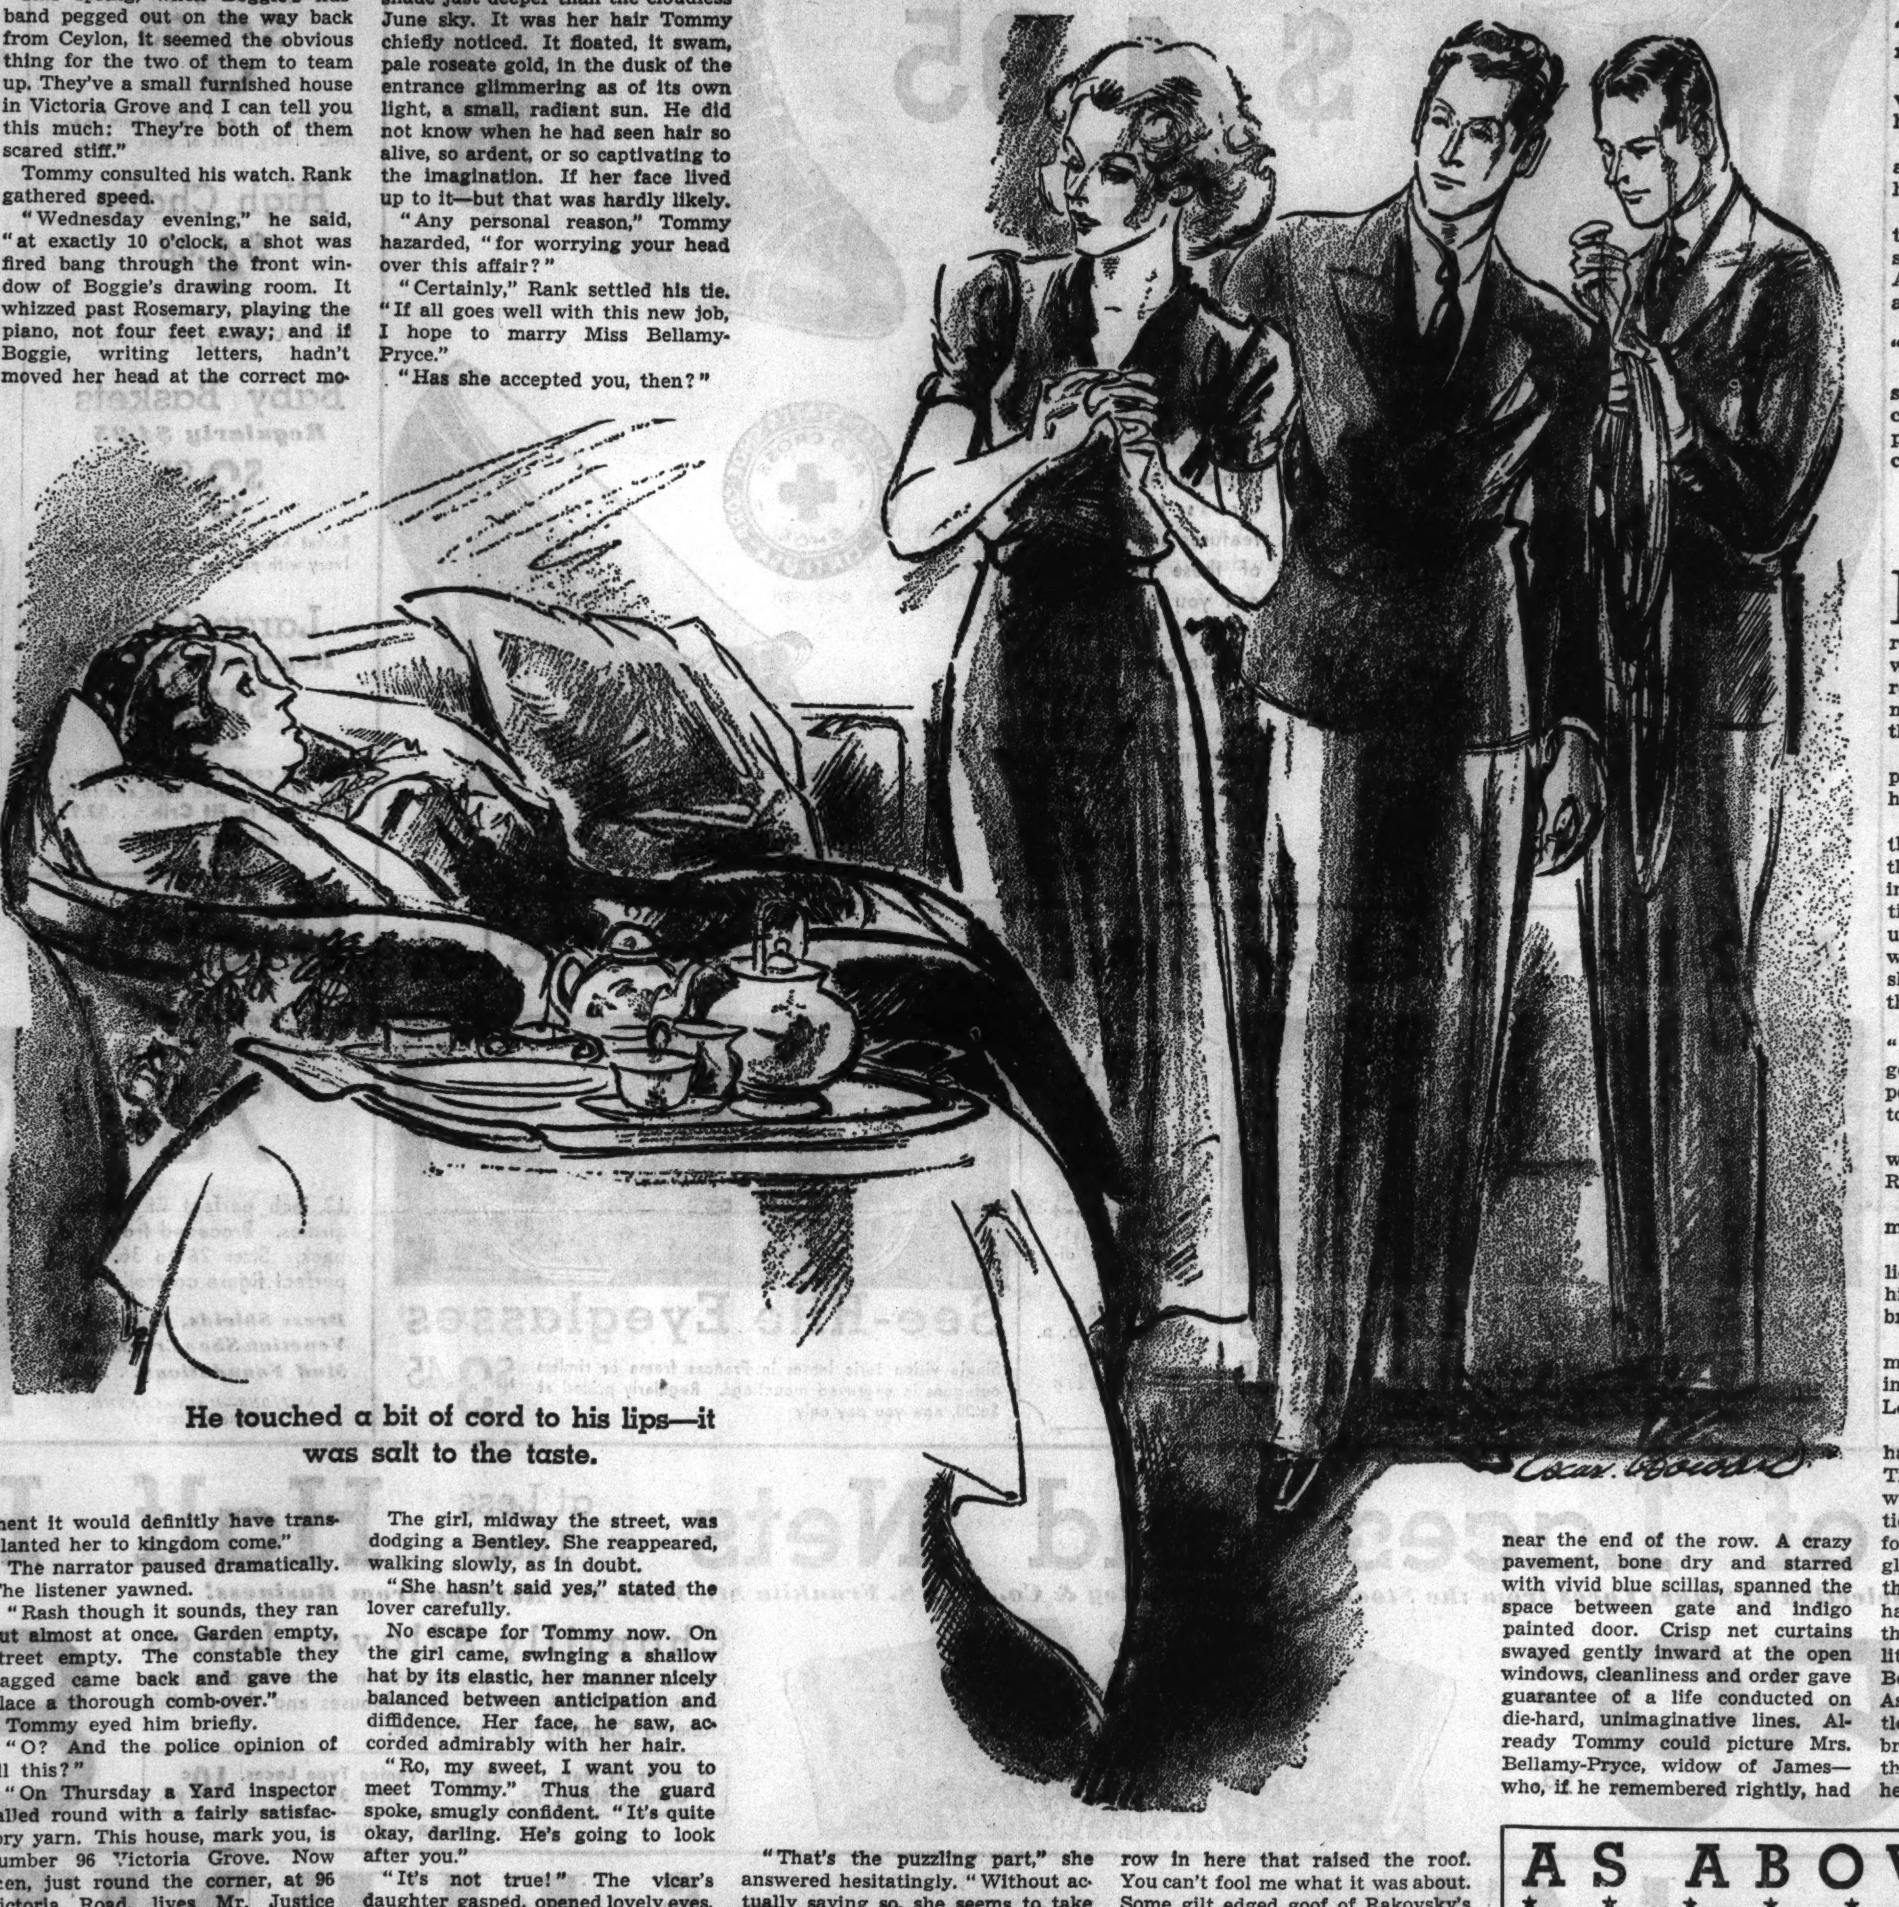
"It's true. Ro rang me up, laughing and gasping. Round I hiked, found the pair of them furnishing details to the inspector behind drawn blinds. The Yard man didn't laugh. He knew damned well his theory was out. Whoever it was saw jolly well who was in that room. Just a second spot of luck for one of them—which one, we don't know."

Directly opposite the door of Anatol's Ltd. had opened, and from its shelter a girl peered guardedly forth. She seemed fairly tall, with a slenderness healthily rounded, and her summer frock was blue, of a shade just deeper than the cloudless June sky. It was her hair Tommy chiefly noticed. It floated, it swam, pale roseate gold, in the dusk of the entrance glimmering as of its own light, a small, radiant sun. He did not know when he had seen hair so alive, so ardent, or so captivating to the imagination. If her face lived up to it—but that was hardly likely.

"Any personal reason," Tommy hazarded, "for worrying your head over this affair?"

"Certainly," Rank settled his tie. "If all goes well with this new job, I hope to marry Miss Bellamy-Pryce."

"Has she accepted you, then?"



He touched a bit of cord to his lips—it was salt to the taste.

The girl, midway the street, was dodging a Bentley. She reappeared, walking slowly, as in doubt.

"She hasn't said yes," stated the lover carefully.

No escape for Tommy now. On the girl came, swinging a shallow hat by its elastic, her manner nicely balanced between anticipation and diffidence. Her face, he saw, accorded admirably with her hair.

"Ro, my sweet, I want you to meet Tommy." Thus the guard spoke, smugly confident. "It's quite okay, darling. He's going to look after you."

"It's not true!" The vicar's daughter gasped, opened lovely eyes, and stared in a puzzled fashion. "Are you really Rank's uncle?" she demanded bluntly. "That is, I'd expected some one different. Older. O, do forgive me! I'm being stupid. How do you do?"

With a little laugh she held out her hand. It was long fingered, firm, cool to the touch. Her eyes, earnestly beseeching, were gray-blue, flawless, with long upturned lashes. Tommy felt himself slipping. He said:

"I'm not here for long, so we had better talk things over at once. Won't you sit down and tell me all about it?"

"I mustn't stop long," she declared. "I'm on my own today, and I've got to close up the shop."

"I'll go across with you," said Rank grimly. "I don't half like this hopping off for week-ends and leaving you by yourself."

"Darling, don't be an ass!" she retorted. "Clover's there now, cleaning up. She's my real reason for not dawdling. In fact, it's just come over me I've left the gin bottle out—and you know what Clover is."

"Gin bottle?" Tommy raised his brows. "I must say this sheds a happy light on the milliner's trade. Do you serve out drinks before hats are tried on, or after purchase, as a reward of merit?"

"Neither." She laughed lightheartedly. "Personally I loath gin, but the other girls seem to find it most cheering. So does the countess, if Saturn's in the ascendant, or she's got a tummy ache after lobstering at the Ritz."

"The countess?"

"Our aristocratic proprietress—Countess Rakovsky. She's by way of having a temperament."

"Go on, be honest about her," muttered Rank truculently. "Tell him that tight or sober she's a hell-cat and hates you like poison."

"Rakovsky," mused Tommy, ignoring the by-play. "I've run across her, I think, in Paris. Slim, exotic, raven black hair?"

"It's red this year. She's beautiful and utterly fascinating. Now, then, let's get on. Rank's told you, hasn't he?"

"I understand," said Tommy, "that the wrong address theory is virtually shelved."

"O, quite- or so we think."

"It's all-important then to know which of you is being attacked. Any notions on the subject?"

"Not the foggiest. I've no enemies; nor has Boggie."

Watching her closely, Tommy fancied some slight reservation.

"But your aunt? What does she think?"

"That's the puzzling part," she answered hesitatingly. "Without actually saying so, she seems to take it for granted she's the one. I keep wondering if she isn't hiding something from me."

"What about my having a talk with her?"

"O, would you?" Her eyes lit with gratitude. "I didn't dare suggest it! Somehow I feel you might succeed where we've failed."

"I'll have a try, anyhow. Shall we make it now?"

"Angel." She gave his arm a quick squeeze which, to his renewed chagrin, sent an alarming shock through him. "I'll ring her up this minute, to make sure she's in. Shall we go over to the shop?"

• • •

TOMMY at the cash desk heard Rank imparting a piece of information which Rosemary met with a shrug.

"O? Well, I'm not interested."

"He prowled in here hoping to find you. As usual—the swine!"

She did not answer. Head high, she led the way toward Anatol's, Rank at her heels like a moody puppy.

"Come in," she invited, holding the shop door wide. "Don't tread on the hats. If I don't catch Boggie at once she'll be off to her bridge club. . . . O, Clover!"

The last was a cry of reproach. In the small, s perluxurious interior a stringy charwoman, posed before a mirror, jumped like a rabbit and hastily removed from her head a mauve feathered toque.

As the inner door closed on the unabashed Mrs. Clover, Rosemary made a dive among the jumble of hats and catching up a quart bottle held it to the light.

"I knew it. No trusting her. Rank be a pet and stow these things away while I do my telephoning."

"I doubt if any of this is paid for," confided Rank.

"Hush, you!" Rosemary ordered as a rich, cheerful contralto hummed over the wire. "I've just got through." After a few minutes' eager explanation she hung up the receiver and announced that it was all right. "She's asked us to tea."

She dashed into the rear room. Taking advantage of her absence, Rank drew close to his uncle with the air of portentous conspiracy Tommy invariably found irritating.

"If she clears out," he hissed darkly, "this show will fall apart in a fortnight. She will clear, too. Getting fed up with the false customs declarations and the bad checks handed out. Rakovsky knows that, and she's got the wind up properly. Wednesday afternoon there was a row in here that raised the roof. You can't fool me what it was about. Some gilt edged goof of Rakovsky's been making passes at Ro. They all do, one after the other. Stick around and you'll see. Rakovsky's losing her grip—but she can still grip a revolver. Now are you getting it?"

Tommy lit a cigaret, and strove to piece together what he had heard in Paris of Anatalia Rakovsky. He could remember little save her vaguely Rumanian origin, her succession of marriages all terminated, and her reputed skill in ensnaring the rich of both sexes for the financing of her multifarious schemes.

Rosemary was back and had dumped on the carpet an armful of expensive oddments which she proceeded to pack into an attaché case. He saw a rainbow of delicate scarves, powder compacts, an assortment of glass and porcelain animals.

"Sideline from Paris," she explained. "Come over by plane. I have to hawk this lot round the big shops on Monday morning, so I'm carting it home to save time." She held up a minute, grotesque dog, wrought in glass, and gently stroked its ears. "Nice, isn't he? He's Cuthbert—because, you see, he's so exactly like my father. Notice his sweet, wool gathering look?"

Eyeing the dog, Tommy abruptly recalled the vicar of Broughton-Elmtrees. It was true, here was the same trusting vacancy of expression, the same tousled forelock.

"Then you're like your mother," he remarked candidly.

"So they say," she laughed gayly, "but I hardly remember her."

Rank had left for a few moments and he now blundered in, so cumbered with carnations, posies bedded in moss, and a potted hydrangea four feet high that he seemed at first glance to be a moving shop. Rosemary turned with a groan.

"Fool!" she scolded. "Take those back—all of them! That's stock, that is. You can't go on squandering it on me—and besides, it'll mean a taxi."

"Tommy's got a car of sorts," Rank placidly informed her. "They'll be gone by Monday, so why bother?"

"It's not business, you know. Easy to see why you've hashed things up. O, well, get them out of here. You're dropping petals wherever you go."

The car, lent Tommy for the duration of his visit, was indeed of sorts. Solely by painful compression could the front seat hold three, yet hold them it must, since the half-portion seat behind, designed presumably for a legless person, was entirely crammed with the floral offerings. They turned into the short, sequestered retreat of Victoria Grove. Every house was smugly conventional, none more so than No. 96, near the end of the row. A crazy pavement, bone dry and starred with vivid blue scillas, spanned the space between gate and indigo painted door. Crisp net curtains swayed gently inward at the open windows, cleanliness and order gave guarantee of a life conducted on die-hard, unimaginative lines. Already Tommy could picture Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce, widow of James—who, if he remembered rightly, had been a judge—Anglo-Indian pillar of empire, conservative to the core. She would play excellent bridge, hold unprogressive views, handle servants firmly.

The two and a half seater disgorged its load. Leaving Rank to extricate the flowers, Rosemary fitted her latchkey into the door, remarking as she did so that their one maid had been sacked a few days before.

"It's a furnished house," she explained, showing Tommy into the narrow hall. "My aunt's belongings haven't yet come over from Ceylon. Here's the drawing room." She lifted her voice and shouted a lusty "Boggie! We've come."

There was no answer. A second summons roused only echoes from what, all at once, seemed a remarkably empty house.

"That's funny," said Rosemary. "She must have run out for a moment. I'll look, though, to make sure."

Rosemary returned, more slowly, with Rank behind her, balancing his hydrangea.

"Tea's all waiting, I see," she said absently. "Now where can Boggie have got to? O! what was that?"

The three stood riveted, straining their ears for a repetition of the sound which had just reached them. An ominous, gurgling sound, close at hand—but coming from where?

"There!" whispered the girl. "Did you hear?"

Tommy had heard—and his hair stirred at the roots. Again it came, choking, agonized, the gasp of a person very near death. Rosemary clutched his arm and pointed.

"Look—O, look! Don't you see?"

• • •

HE SAW, at the further end of the room, a bare mahogany table, decorated by a bowl of roses. Half blocking the archway was a sofa. Then, looking down, he received his second shock. From beneath the sofa valance protruded the toe of a woman's shoe.

"It's Boggie!" wailed Rosemary, plunging toward it. "O, my God, how horrible! Quick, help me!"

Swiftly Tommy and Rank lifted the sofa, set it clear, and bent over the prostrate form of a woman clad in a black coat and skirt, her arms tightly bound to her body with row upon row of stout cord. Her mouth was gagged. Above it eyes bloodshot and semi-glazed stared up at them. The moaning had ceased.

On her knees Rosemary sobbed, "Boggie! Speak to me! See, I've got that beastly thing off. O, poor, poor Boggie, what have they done to you?"

In the dreadful pause a gruesome whisper came from the younger Rostetter.

"So it was Boggie, after all!" he muttered.

Tommy detected the distinct relief in his nephew's voice, and to his shame found its echo in his own breast.

"She can't be dead!" urged Rosemary frantically. "Quick, the carving knife. In the buffet drawer. Let's cut away these horrible cords."

In a moment the victim was hacked free and laid on the sofa. The purple bruise on her temple would account for her dazed condition. No other injury could be found, and almost at once she struggled to articulate. Tommy asked if there was any brandy. Rosemary had it ready, and together, raising the heavy head, they administered a little. Presently, groaning, Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce began stiffly to stir. As they watched anxiously her mottled color merged into an even, brickish hue. She was in better case than had been expected. Viewing her robust person, Tommy decided that it must have taken considerable force to overcome her. Since there was no sign of a tussle, the knockout must have taken her totally unawares. He examined the gag, loose on the floor. It was a man's white linen handkerchief, absolutely new and unlaundered, bearing neither initial nor mark. Then he touched a bit of the cord to his lips. It was salt to the taste.

"She's trying to speak," said Rosemary, hanging over her aunt. "Boggie, darling, can you manage it? Who did this horrible thing?"

Mrs. Bellamy-Pryce blinked, shook her head, and muttered indistinctly. "Don't know. Didn't see." As they stared at one another she groped toward her forehead, winced, and gave another slight groan. With a rueful twist to her mouth she murmured, "Hadn't I a hat?"

Tommy picked up the wide, unfashionable black straw he had seen lying near her. She eyed it with the ghost of a humorous smile.

"I was wearing it," she said thickly, her lips still stiff. "Saved me, didn't it?"

As she spoke her eyes rested on Tommy. Her expression changed, and with a commendable effort she essayed the amenities.

"Mr. Rostetter? Good of you to come. I didn't dream, though, you'd have such a reception."

"That'll do, dear, keep quiet," Rosemary begged. "We'll get a doctor . . . and . . ." in a swift whisper to Rank, "the inspector. Quick!"

"Inspector?" Boggie had understood. "Yes, by all means; but who wants a doctor? Stuff and nonsense, my girl! I don't seem to have any broken bones. When I've got my bearings, I'll be right as rain."

She hoisted her ample form into a sitting posture and began righting her tumbled dress. Over her broad chest the white silk blouse she wore had fallen open in a V. Observing a small strand of real pearls, Tommy remarked encouragingly that at any rate she had not been robbed.

"Robbed?" she echoed, obscurely startled.

She had not thought of this, evidently. She fingered the pearls, glanced down at the two rings she wore on the same finger with her gold wedding band.

"Well," she said with a short laugh, "I must be thankful for small mercies! There, I'm feeling much better." She made a confidential appeal. "We don't want to make a song about this, you know," she resumed in an undertone. "My niece, poor child, has had quite enough shocks! She'll begin to think she's taken up with a bird of ill omen. A good thing I've a thick skull and no nerve. Have you a cigaret?"

A true sport, Tommy reflected, as he hastened to supply her; but her manner puzzled him, and he fancied her intrepid self-command hid agitation of no common sort. He took the occasion to study her a little.

She was a sturdy, deep bosomed woman in the later forties—neither good looking nor exactly plain, merely ordinary. Her face was weather beaten and good humored, without vestige of makeup, her eyes light hazel gray, with wrinkles of fun round them. She struck him as eminently practical, and above all wholesome—the sort of woman who has few flights of fancy, but is a good sort, living by an excellent if dull code.

Through spirals of smoke she smiled at him, warding off the questions he was wanting to ask; but he had not long to wait. Further revived by the tea, she leaned back in the big armchair to which she had been helped and gave her story bluntly, with odd, abrupt pauses.

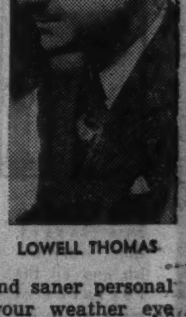
An Open Letter to Lowell Thomas



LOWELL THOMAS

Dear Lowell: There are times when currents and winds carry ships swiftly to their objective and others when clever manipulation is necessary in order to make headway. You have clear sailing the next few months, but beginning with the spring of 1938 and continuing for several years, be ready to change your financial course when necessary. The first two and a half years of this stretch tend toward a safer and saner personal outlook. Keep your weather eye alert. With best wishes, WYNN.

Arts Club Has Gala Day with Loan Exhibits

By Cousin Eve.

Electricité at the Arts club Tuesday afternoon, when a remarkable New Deal in art caught the members napping. It was a great gala day, with two outstanding collections and the young set in charge of the social end. Mrs. Robert Pirie was hostess and kept women of brains and fashion rotating at the long tea table, and Mrs. Harold Beacom had the mise en scene well in hand—flowers, lights, and two new cerise satin chairs with dachshund legs by the fireside.

I had coffee from the fair hand of Marion Claire in order to be strong and face the ordeal downstairs in the gallery of the pictures. But there was no need. They were marvelous. Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, president of the Arts club, had, it seems, come home from London awhile ago, a triumphant, victorious Bobsey with two famous collections in the bag.

Lunching one day in London with Philip Guedalla, eminent historian, she greatly admired the famous series of colored caricatures by Max Beerbohm covering the walls. Certainly she might have them for the Arts club of Chicago, said her host. The one stipulation was that the treasures should be shipped after he left for Hollywood and returned to their walls before he got back.

So we have something, in both collections which goes no further than the Arts club, and then returns to London. For Mrs. Goodspeed plucked up courage to borrow those masterpieces of Walter Richard Sickert, "a living old master," from their London owners, and they make a formidable showing.

How one would love to own "Horses of St. Mark" or "Interior of St. Mark," the somber Byzantine nave of the magnificent Venetian church! It is a very great painting by a man who was a pupil of Degas, and a friend of Renoir, Monet and Courbet, and all the rest. The catalogs are worthy of the exhibition—one with a preface by Guedalla, the other by Clive Bell.

The Arts club was not crowded, and a charming, clear light with something of spring poured in from the river side. Among the enthusiasts were Mrs. Oliver Grover, Mrs. Philo Otis, Mrs. Lewis Bernays, Mrs. Ambrose Cramer, Mrs. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Samuel T. Bledsoe, John T. McCutcheon, and the beautiful Marquise d'Ivanrey of Spain, formerly Italia Blair of Chicago. We chatted awhile of the changed life at Biarritz, where she lives part of each year, and of the terrible war which goes grinding on in Spain, and of Spaniards who are going back home now behind Franco's lines.

Queer far east stamps on nice letters and a New Year's card from Robert Lee Eskridge in Hawaii. This is a photographed portrait of a native chief done by him in gorgeous style, with the bold head of the bumptious looking savage against banyan trees. The artist has been painting for a year on one of the less known of the Hawaiian group.

A letter, too, from Peking with bad news. A somebody from New York, Mrs. Owen Roberts by name, has bought the lovely temples next door to Mrs. William Calhoun in the Tartar city that I had my eye on. They were the temples of the Goddess of the Sea and the God of War, gods which had formerly adorned Mrs. Calhoun's temples until they were purchased by a Chinese admiral.

Then the old priest moved himself and his gods next door and we used to hear strange sounds from over the high brick wall. The priest passed on one night and the entire plant, temples, court, and gardens, were offered for sale for the price of $1,200 in our money. With a little plumbing, my hat! what a delightful place to spend one's years!

The New Year's period was a series of giros in large circles. For one thing I saw the old year out at the opera, where an excellent audience heard "Martha." Every fair-minded person admits that Chicago opera, guided by Jason Whitney and staged by Paul Longone, has done its bit this year. New York's Metropolitan is crowing now over getting Masini and Bjoerling for their next year's setup, two artists who have sung gloriously throughout the Chicago season, with great enduring singers such as Martinelli, Tibbett, Lily Pons, Lotte Lehmann, and Liszt.

They say that when John Charles Thomas heard Masini at one of our opera matinées he wept. That ought to be enough for the new Italian. "Martha" was sung by Helen Jepson and Tito Schipa, and the latter sat by me afterward at supper.

More and more people are staying in their happy homes to meet up with Jan. 1, but Jack and Lolita Mitchell had a large and festive supper with dancing at the Racquet club, which has little by little gained ground with men of fashion as a permanent city club.

Another unusual party over the holidays was that given last week by Mrs. Emmons Blaine for her only grandchild, Nancy Blaine, daughter of Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence. Mrs. Blaine gave the dance in her house at Erie and Rush streets after the old sedate style which was in vogue years ago when she was Anita McCormick.

There was lemonade for the thirsty, a sit-down supper with four at a table and lovely, gay music. Nancy is a tall, poetical looking girl, blonde and somewhat like the Blaines in looks.

• • •

I saw Mrs. Emmons Blaine at Mrs. Robert Gregory's reception in Prairie avenue, looking handsome and happy in brown and gold and sables. She has all the charm of the McCormicks but figures very little in society any more, alas! Mrs. Gregory greatly enjoyed her own party and so did every one else. The hostess determined to make Chicago society stretch itself down to Prairie avenue again from all along the North Riviera, to meet her young granddaughter, Adelaide Vanderpoel Sweetser.

The old street, former haunt of fashion, struck me as being stark and gloomy in the winter twilight as we swung past empty spaces where the great houses had been. The Pullman corner is a void, where once were twinkling lights and Christmas wreaths. The Byron Smith castle is gone, the Armours, Mrs. H. O. Stone's, the Highs. But even worse are the bleak fronts that remain—the W. W. Kimball copy of a Renaissance château. In all of these houses there were cheerful lights and dancings and dinings not so long ago.

If it were hard to get in at Mrs. Gregory's crowded party, it was harder to get out. The line was three abreast that greeted the young deb, a blue eyed beauty, brought up in Geneva, Switzerland. The drawing room of mid-Victorian distinction had black walls with a light pattern of gold under lace-like white carved ceilings. The white marble fireplace was a real dream.

Young girls poured tea at a Christmas table about which the whole of Chicago surged madly—Nancy Blaine, Eleanor McClurg, Mary Adams, Kay Goodman, the Hibbards, Casselberrys, Otises, Smiths, Borlands, in fact tout Chicago was there in force. William Monroe thought it an "old settlers' picnic" rather than a debut. Fragments of talk were amusing.

• • •

Another debut where one saw the whole world was Mrs. Charles Spencer Williamson's tea-dance at the Fortnightly for her granddaughter, Josephine Zeiss. Mrs. Williamson, handsome and blooming and straight from California, wore orchids and proudly presented this tall, black-eyed young beauty. In white tulle with cloudlike skirts, Josephine carried pink camellias and looked as if she had stepped out of a picture into life.

The ballroom was divided into two equal parts by evergreens, beyond which dancing was going on. These tea-dances start very late, for young men are working these days and many of them regret all parties given at night, except Saturdays. Mrs. Williamson has been living in southern California for the last year. Her daughter, Mrs. Zeiss, also was in the reception line, and Henry Zeiss as well.

One sees at these afternoon dances old friends not seen in years.

New Year's day had the usual noon rendezvous chez Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bennett in Astor street, and for the last time. For the charming corner house has already been sold and the new owners, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner H. Stern, were there drinking eggnog. Guests went early this year, for husbands all had the Chicago club luncheon at the back of their minds.

• • •

At the Monroe New Year's party, the dining room was lighted by candles and old Chinese lanterns on tall painted and lackered standards, lovely works of art. Working overtime at the eggnog silver bowl, Mrs. Fletcher Durbin, then Theodora Shaw King, a young matron. At t'other end, that post-deb darling, Denyse Root of Paris.

George Carr had a tea hour one Sunday, when two or three handfuls of guests congratulated Peter Moon on winning the heart and hand of young Martha Carr. It was really a very gay party, for Babby Culbertson and Bobby Carr were there, too. Their wedding takes place Saturday next at St. Chrysostom's.

The Carrs are a big family and a merry one. One laughs and has a happy time with them. George Carr has for the season the Mark Willing apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive while the Willings still remain in the old Washington house on their Virginia plantation on the Potomac.

Leander McCormick-Goodhart of the British embassy was here over the New Year, staying with his aunt, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, and many small family parties were made up for him.

AIDS BENEFIT DANCE

The end of the Christmas holidays does not mean relaxation for Mrs. John P. Wilson Jr., because as a member of the Emerson House association she is busy working on the benefit dance which will be given in the Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel Friday.

Chicago Stars in Art Exhibit at Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

Chicago has stolen the show at the loan exhibit of modern art which the Society of Four Arts opened in its new building this week. Alfred G. Kay, president, and Mrs. Kay of Chester, N. J., together with members of the board, served as hosts.

More than one hundred extraordinary paintings are hung on the pale greenish-gray cypress walls, but few as intriguing as the eight or ten from the collection of Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick, this resort's most celebrated patron of modern art. Groups stand fascinated before these challenging canvases which, according to Dr. Daniel J. McCarthy of Philadelphia, appeal entirely to the subconscious. Another art connoisseur spoke of these pictures as "crystalized emotions."

Among the most controversial of the paintings lent by this Chicago matron are Chirico's horses, which date back to the horse design in both Chinese prints and tomb figures of the Han and Ming periods. Present day observers also note a marked resemblance to the steeds of a merry-go-round. Then there is Dali's "Day Dream," typical of surrealism, with its Freudian implications, while the superb audacity of the wood carving, "Crowing Rooster," by the individualist Brancusi, leaves the spectator simply breathless. Merely a slanting succession of angles in beautifully polished wood, this might well have been called "Streak of Lightning," yet strangely enough it was agreed that it is a perfect symbol of chanticleer's triumphant greeting to the dawn.

Mrs. Robert R. McCormick's collection is represented with a beautiful Matisse, Redon's "Venus," and "Rue de Montmartre," by Utrillo.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy arrived in Palm Beach in time to attend the preview and tea.

Entertaining during this last week has been informal, with Chicagoans active in many different groups. Mrs. William F. Bode attended a smart dinner given by Mrs. Frank Vernon Skiff of Milburn, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Blair were at the dinner party which Mr. and Mrs. Jay J. O'Brien gave at the Patio.

Mrs. Charles Meyer III. gave a dinner at the Everglades club.

Mrs. Jesse Spalding, formerly of Chicago, entertained at a dinner at the Everglades, having Mr. and Mrs. Parker Bryant among the guests.

Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard often is seen at the Sea Spray Beach club with her four year old adopted daughter, Edith, a lovely child.

Gilbert E. Porter of Lake Forest is in residence at Gulfstream, where his son and daughter-in-law also have a house.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lyon and daughter, Kay, who now are at the Brazilian Court, will occupy their home on the North Lake trail this season.

Mrs. John C. Milsted of Chicago is at the Seaglade.

Mrs. Paul Healy of Paris and Chicago entertained with a luncheon for twelve on Saturday, presiding at a table bedecked with pink roses and decorations in pink and white. Chicagoans there included Mrs. William F. Bode, Mrs. McKay Leroy and Mrs. F. O. Butler. Mrs. Healy and Mrs. Edward Morris also were among those attending a cocktail party Wednesday afternoon at Casa Rosada del Lago, Mrs. Peyton Van Rensselaer's villa on Lake Side.

Expected to arrive soon from Chicago are Mrs. William Yager, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, and Mrs. Jacob Baur.

Howard Clements, who has been the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Kenneth G. Smith, at Pino Torcido, has taken a suite at the Brazilian Court for the next two months.

Mrs. H. Stillson Hart is expected next week from Barrington.

ENGAGED TO MARRY

Miss Harriette Nudelman, daughter of Mrs. Rae V. Stern, Yates avenue, and of Nicholas Nudelman of the Sherry hotel, is engaged to Raymond Grawoig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Grawoig, Drexel square. Mr. Grawoig is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

Golf Moves Into Social Spotlight in Augusta, Ga.

AUGUSTA, GA.

Golf again will move into the social and sports spotlight of Augusta with the opening of the annual woman's titlist tournament at the Country club next Thursday.

The nation's feminine stars will find relaxation between rounds of the tourney at a series of parties which have been arranged in their honor. Tea will be served in the clubhouse at the Country club each day following the play, and the tournament dance will be held Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Warner and Mrs. H. W. Glessner of Chicago have arrived for the season at the Bon Air and are taking part in the social and sports activity. Perfect weather has resulted in large turnouts daily on the golf courses and bridle paths.

Dr. William Lyon Phelps of Yale university, who is spending the season at the Forest Hills, will lecture Tuesday night at the hotel on "Contemporary Books and Plays."

Art lovers will gather Sunday night at the Gertrude Herbert Institute of Art for the opening of an exhibition of old prints and etchings.

Miami Anglers Will Cast for $10,000 Prizes

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA. The Miami Beach Rod and Reel club includes on its exclusive roster those whose names are enrolled not because of their social standing, but rather because of their love of the sport of fishing.

Neither the music of the singing reel nor the thrill of the fisherman who breaks a world record is sweeter or keener to the most expert angler than is that thrill which is independent of size, record, or variety . . . the amateur fisherman's first catch.

The club was organized in 1929, when a woman, Mrs. Frederick C. Zu Solms, of New York and Detroit, was told that the record breaking blue marlin which she had just landed could not be entered in competition with smaller fish, these the proud boast of masculine members of the then proud Anglers' club of Miami, which refused even to weigh her fish in because it was a woman's catch. Her threat, "I'll start a club of my own," resulted in the organization of this present day aristocrat of American anglers' clubs.

Listed on the membership rolls are Bernard R. Brown, Detroit; Gar Wood Jr., Algonac; Mrs. Solms, Frank G. Mayer, Chicago; Frank M. Terry, Highland Park; Frederick Snite, Chicago, and Frank Williamson, Manistique, Mich.

The Metropolitan Open Fishing Tournament, with prizes totaling $10,000, is scheduled to begin Sunday, Jan. 16, and to continue through April 17. Its director is the angling authority, Tommy Aitken. Inaugurating this event will be a colorful water pageant and parade of seagoing craft.

• • •

Indicative of the exciting angling awaiting this season's fishermen in these tropical waters are the recent catches of the several midwestern personalities who have gone out into the Gulf stream recently. It was a first sailfish for Harry Ziemer of Milwaukee when he went out with two friends, C. A. Sylvester of Rio de Janeiro, and Warwick Mayo of Norfolk, Va. Besides the sailfish, a six foot and seven inch one, the party brought back bonita, dolphin, and kingfish.

During his ten day holiday vacation in Miami, John McCoy, Evanston, successfully boated several large sailfish in addition to amberjack, tuna, bonita, mackerel, and dolphin. When Dr. A. E. Soffel of Maywood fished with his friend, H. W. McPherson, Oak Park, the former set the day's pace with a 57½ pound sailfish.

Interspersing sport events, social activities, and the always brilliant and glamorous round of nightclubbing is a program of musical and literary events.

January 17 looms large on the calendar of devotees of the cultural arts, for that date signals the initial concert of the University of Miami Symphony orchestra under the baton of Dr. Arnold Volpe, and also the first day of the university's biennial Institute of Literature.

An undisputed leader in this sphere, responsible for the success of this and other Miami musical events, is Mrs. Charles Lyon Krum, heading the list of patrons for the symphony presentation. With her name on the patrons' list appear those of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Krum and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hughes.

• • •

Glancing backward for a moment, one finds in that brilliant New Year's ball at the Surf club, for which its members were joined by the Bath and the Indian Creek clubs, a refutation of any suspicion of a backward season. Attendance outnumbered that at any event ever staged at this oceanside play place, with 125 guests having to dine in club corridors. Among the many hosts and hostesses at this event were Mr. and Mrs. Sigurd Kraft and Miss Mary Loretta Snite. Also glimpsed among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. Russ Dashiell and Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Root.

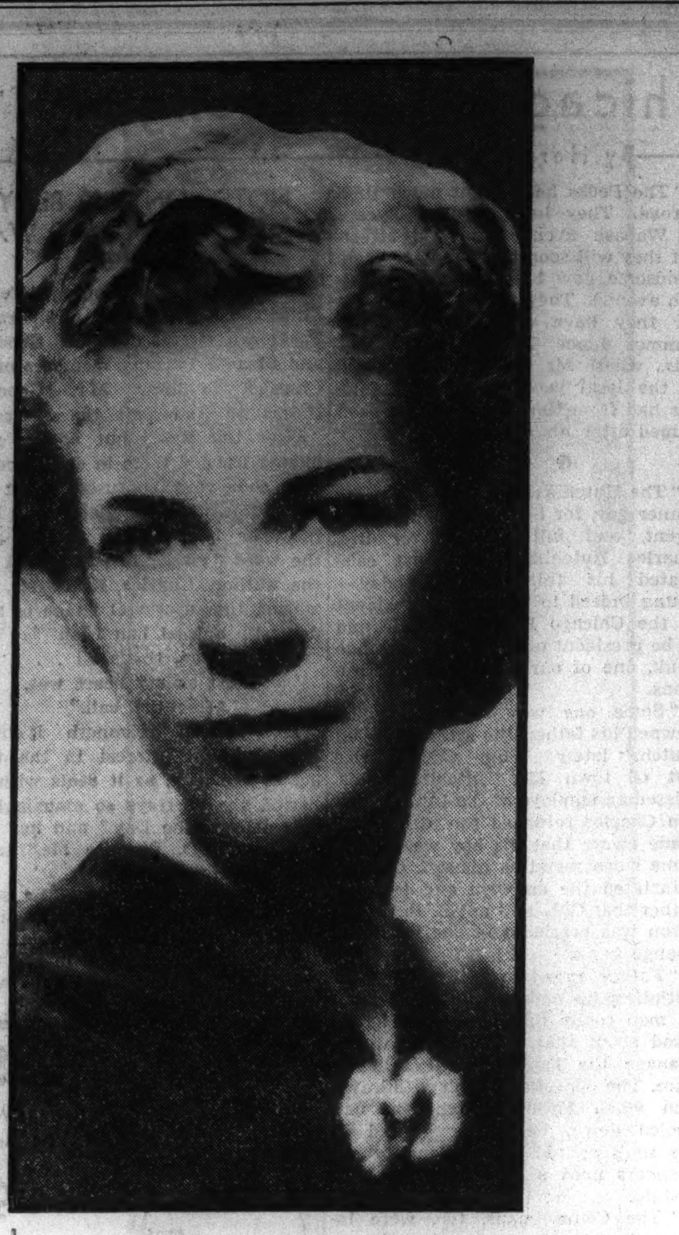
Guests at the smart housewarming buffet supper of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grainger Smith, when they opened their beach home this week, were Dr. and Mrs. Chester Trowbridge and Mrs. Leon Perkins.

• • •

Prominent also among those who have entertained the past week were Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hughes, Mrs. Laura W. Kart, George A. Winn, and Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Kelly of Rockford. The Hugheses have been hosts at a number of gay parties on their yacht, Far West. Mrs. Hart's affair was a birthday dinner for Mrs. Frank Martin. Mr. Winn was host to a group of friends at last Sunday's luncheon and sport events at the Surf club. A small dinner party at the Shoremede was the occasion for the Kellys' hospitality.

Melvin A. Traylor, now a student at George Washington university, where he is preparing for a career in the diplomatic service, has returned to his classes after spending the holidays as the house guest of Mrs. Bernice Fleming Holland.

Significant arrivals of the week included Mrs. Hal S. Ray, who will be a house guest at the Bay Road estate of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Poor; Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Graham, Mrs. Mary Thomas Duffield, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Newman, and Mrs. William Finney. The Newmans will spend the season at the Pancoast hotel.



WILL MARRY ON JAN. 15

Miss Virginia Lee Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis S. Graham, Sheridan road, Evanston, will be married to Charles Riggs Sprowl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Orr Sprowl of Lansing, Mich., on Jan. 15.

St. Augustine Host to Many Chicagoans

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA. This old city, whose narrow, winding streets have echoed to the tramp of Spanish conquistadores and English buccaneers, now is welcoming the sun loving visitors who flock to Florida each winter.

Chicagoans are wandering about in massive old Fort Marion and investigating the old world charm that lies behind the gates and doorways of the old coquina houses with their graceful wooden balconies and arched loggias.

• • •

Among recent Chicago visitors here were Mrs. F. G. Winter and F. B. Winter, Mrs. W. E. Albright and Miss Ruth M. Smart, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. East, Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Kirshbaum, the Misses Leatha A. and Elizabeth Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Lundberg and Miss Lorraine Lundberg, Mrs. J. C. Innes, and Mr. and Mrs. Archibald McLoy. Also Miss Gertrude Poole of Evanston and Miss Lois Nelson of Oak Park, Ill.

Early arrivals among the winter residents here for an indefinite stay are Mrs. M. J. Hill, George Verity, and Charles H. Spencer of Chicago, and Mrs. A. L. Cayzer of Evanston.

Of interest to these and to all other visitors is the restoration work being undertaken in St. Augustine by a group headed by Dr. Verne E. Chatelain of the Carnegie institution in Washington and supported by local civic groups and the townspeople. Dr. John C. Merriam, president of Carnegie institution, was in St. Augustine more than a week during the holidays, conferring with Dr. Chatelain.

• • •

A social event was the formal opening on Saturday, Jan. 8, of the Hotel Ponce de Leon, built during the Flagler era and notable for the picturesque and colorful beauty of its early Spanish Renaissance architecture. Here, during the season, will be a continuous program of dinner and supper dances, luncheons, tea parties on the loggias, and tennis on courts set in tropical gardens.

The first major golf tournament scheduled is the annual winter championship of Florida, to be held Jan. 24 to 28. This competition is for the Ponce de Leon cup.

Pasadena Agog Over Navy Ball

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL. January brings southern California's most brilliant social function, the annual Navy ball, and the date has been set for the 15th after a recent committee meeting at the California club and a conference with Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet.

Col. Ira Clifton Copley of Los Angeles and Aurora, Ill., is a member of the general committee which is headed by William May Garland. They have decided upon the blue ballroom of the Biltmore again this year for the dinner-dance.

The mid-January ball is the eighth annual planned to honor the commander-in-chief and his officers.

• • •

Samuel Insull Jr., who, with his wife and son, Samuel Insull III., left Pasadena recently for Chicago, is said to have indulged his hobby liberally and taken many feet of color pictures of the Rose tournament. They arrived at Hotel Huntington for their first visit to southern California a day or two before New Year's, and were taken immediately under the wing of the Arthur Farwells, former Pasadenans who are visiting from Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Bartlett, parents of Mrs. Farwell, with whom the latter is staying, entertained the Insulls at dinner.

The Farwells, fêted at a number of small and informal gatherings of Pasadena friends, may spend another week or so before returning to Chicago. They have with them their 7 year old son, Frederick.

Other recent comers from Chicago include the Frank F. Storys, who are at the Huntington, as also is Mrs. Rosa Burkhardt, Chicago, and Arthur D. Welton, Lake Forest. The Edwin Shermans are at the Vista, also the W. J. Cooks of Winnetka and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hawkins of Galesburg.

Spending the winter at the Livingston are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stanton Lawson of Evanston.

• • •

Santa Barbarans are expecting Mrs. William Butterworth of Moline, Ill., to resume her winter residence in the coast city by Jan. 14. Her cousins, the Charles Webers of New York, will come out via Panama. Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Goodkind of Chicago already have arrived there and are established for the next few months at El Encanto. The Donald Culross Peatties, who are residing in Santa Barbara, were among those entertaining Friday night at the Casino dance revue at Lobero theater. Wide interest also attends the return from abroad of Mrs. Constance Coolidge, who entertained the duke and duchess of Windsor recently in her Paris home. She expects to spend most of the winter in Santa Barbara.

In San Diego much fêted visitors are Mr. and Mrs. Lucius A. Andrews Jr. of Glencoe, who are house guests of Mrs. Andrews' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Rollins at Shadow Knoll. Dr. and Mrs. James A. James recently returned to Chicago after visiting the Maurice Jameses at Lemon Grove, near San Diego.

The Clark Cavenees of San Diego and Chicago opened their home in the southern city for the holidays, together with their daughter Evelyn.

Betty Dubbs Takes Bermuda Limelight at Holiday Party

BERMUDA Miss Betty Dubbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carbon P. Dubbs of Chicago, who is spending the winter in Bermuda with her parents, was in the limelight at the New Year's eve festivities at the Bermudian hotel. She wore a lovely white chiffon dress made on simple flowing lines, the only trimming of which was a row of applique red flowers at the hemline. She was in a party which her parents gave and which included Mr. and Mrs. Carbon P. Dubbs Jr., Mrs. Rowland Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. William H. McAdams of the American colony in Bermuda, and James Lang of London.

Mr. and Mrs. Dubbs recently purchased one of the most attractive of Bermuda's old manor houses, Chelston in Paget. The house, which was for many years in the family of the late Sir Joseph Uterbridge, has all the quaint characteristics of the old Bermuda style of architecture.

Silver Jubilee of Sisterhoods Draws Leaders

By Betty Browning.

Mrs. Abram Simon.

Leading Jewish women from all parts of the country will gather here Thursday to join in the 25th anniversary celebration of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods. A silver jubilee mass meeting and banquet will take place that afternoon and evening at the Palmer House. Mrs. Abram Simon, founder and honorary president of what now is the world's largest Jewish women's organization, is coming from Washington, D. C., for the celebration. She will address the afternoon session on "The Transformation of the Twentieth Century Woman."

From London, England, the Hon. Lily H. Montagu will speak at the same session in a trans-Atlantic broadcast that will be carried on a coast-to-coast network. Miss Montagu, daughter of the first Lord Swaythling, is secretary of the World Union for Progressive Judaism and is prominent in English social work. The World Union, whose guiding spirit she is, comprises liberal synagogues in every part of the world.

Mrs. Albert J. May, second vice president of the federation, and daughter of Isaac Mayer Wise, founder of American Reform Judaism, also will be heard on this broadcast in a speech, "The Spirit of Progressive Religion."

• • •

Ruth O. McCarn, counselor to women at Northwestern university, and Rabbi George Zepin, secretary of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, will be other speakers on the afternoon program. Mrs. McCarn's topic will be "The Family and the Social Crisis," and Rabbi Zepin will talk on "Dare Women Build a New World?"

The massmeeting at 2 o'clock will precede the banquet at 6:30 o'clock, when Estelle Sternberger, executive director of World Peaceways, and Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, rabbi of the Temple in Cleveland, O., will speak. "Woman's Stake in Democracy and Peace" will be Mrs. Sternberger's topic, and Dr. Silver will discuss "Facing the Crises of Our Day."

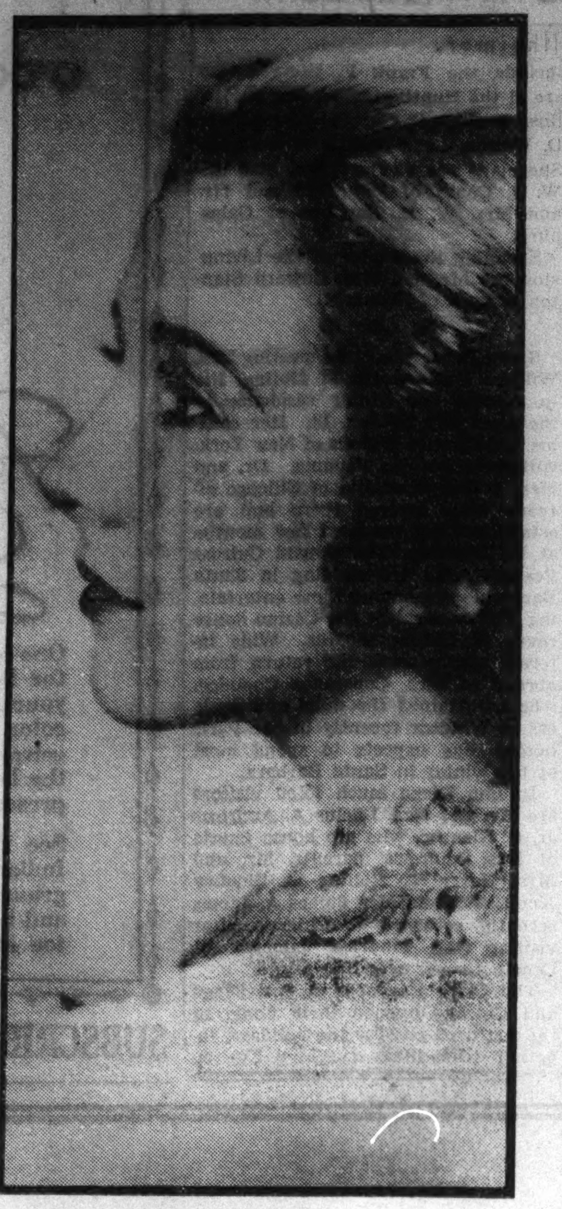
A feature of the banquet will be the presentation to Mrs. Simon of several large volumes of "Uniongrams," messages of greeting from Sisterhood members in all parts of the world. These messages, devised by the Sisterhoods, are modeled after telegraph blanks and are sold to raise funds for the federation's scholarship fund at the Hebrew Union college, America's oldest rabbinical seminary, in Cincinnati, O.

• • •

Tribute also will be paid to all former members of the national executive board of the federation, who will be seated at special tables at the dinner. Mrs. G. George Fox is general chairman of the Chicago committee arranging the massmeeting and banquet. Presidents of the thirteen sisterhoods in Chicago also are on this committee. Mrs. Nettie Steindler is receiving reservations, Mrs. Lester Stern is chairman of hospitality, and Mrs. Joseph Cohn is in charge of decorations.

When Mrs. Simon founded the federation in 1913 49 groups and 5,000 members became affiliated with the national organization. Today the federation numbers 363 sisterhoods with 55,000 members in America, Canada, England, Panama, South Africa, and Australia. Mrs. Leon L. Watters of New York is president of the national organization.

In addition to the Hebrew Union college the federation is interested in a number of social and religious projects. Active in behalf of peace education and social betterment, the organization also takes a leading part in the support of the Jewish Braille institute in New York.



OAK PARK GIRL TO WED

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Dungan of Oak Park announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy, to Herbert Joseph Roney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Joseph Roney of 7209 South Union avenue. Miss Dungan is a graduate of Ladywood in Indianapolis. Mr. Roney is a graduate of Spring Hill college in Alabama.

Jewish Women to Fete Leader on Birthday

Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon.

Several hundred women tomorrow noon will pay tribute to Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon at a breakfast at the Standard club in celebration of her 80th birthday. The founder of the National Council of Jewish Women herself will be present to hear old friends speak in praise of her civic leadership.

Mrs. Martin Barbe, one of the women who helped Mrs. Solomon to organize the council shortly after the World's Columbian exposition in 1893, will speak informally.

Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, former president of the Illinois League of Women Voters, and Mrs. Willett H. Cornwell, president of the Chicago Woman's club, also will speak briefly as friends rather than as representatives of their organizations.

Mrs. Harry L. Canmann, president of the Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations, also will speak, and Miss Helen Golden, contralto, will sing, accompanied by Cecilia Hyman.

There will be a general meeting at 2 o'clock, with Mrs. Marion Miller of New York, executive director of the National Council of Jewish Women, as the principal speaker. Mrs. Anita L. Lebeson will report on "The Recent Service for Foreign Born Institute."

Rich Woman's Gifts to Art Made Quietly

By Eleanor Jewett.

A magnificent gift which will have far-reaching consequences in the development of the Chicago Art institute is the legacy of two million dollars left to the museum by Miss Kate S. Buckingham, who died Dec. 14. During her long life Miss Buckingham had always been a staunch friend of the Art institute and Chicago is indebted to her for many of its cultural distinctions.

Miss Buckingham did not care for public approval of her gifts and they usually were made in the name of some member of her family. Her brother, Clarence Buckingham, died in 1913, and her sister, Lucy, died in 1920. It was in their names and as memorials to them that the gifts were made.

In 1922 Miss Buckingham gave the superb Gothic room to the museum as a memorial to her sister. It was the first and largest of the series of period rooms afterwards built into Hutchinson wing. To step into this magnificent hall, the only one of its size in this country, is to enter a new world. The high vaulted ceiling and the ogival windows through which the light sifts softly contribute to an air of serenity and spaciousness. The great fireplace, with its stone mantel, dates from the 15th century. The ceiling vault is of modern construction, but the corbels are of northern French Romanesque of the 12th century.

Adjoining the Gothic room is the Chinese gallery in which are outstanding examples of pottery, porcelain, and other objects from the Buckingham collections. Other collections such as rare jades, snuff bottles, glass, and flambé ware are installed in the oriental galleries. The priceless collection of Chinese prints, given as a memorial to her brother, Clarence Buckingham, and spoken of in that way, is hung in part in the print rooms of the museum.

A gift to the city of Chicago in memory of her brother is the Buckingham fountain in Grant park.

Dudley Crafts Watson is back of a new educational feature to be enjoyed during January in Fullerton hall, Art institute, on Saturday afternoons at 3 o'clock. The Whitney string quartet will present a musical program and Mr. Watson will interpret, by means of an illustrated lecture, some artist whose work he considers in key with the composer.

Yesterday, for instance, the music was by Schubert and Beethoven, and Mr. Watson discussed Raphael and Rembrandt. Next Saturday afternoon Boccherini and Botticelli will be grouped, and in the second half of the program Mozart will be associated with Scheel and Holbein.

These musico-art adventures should be very enjoyable.

The department of education of the Art institute resumed its winter series of courses on art last Monday. "Art and Travel in Europe" will be the subject of the 11 o'clock Monday morning series given by Miss Helen Parker. "Noon Hour Travel Talks" will be offered by Miss Helen Barsaloux on Mondays at 12:15 o'clock.

These are half-hour illustrated talks on interesting places abroad intended to entertain and perhaps instruct those busy people who like to drop into the institute for a little while at noon and hear something different, which yet will not make too great a demand upon their time.

For the many persons who like to follow a course with some degree of consecutiveness and trace the development of art in an orderly fashion, Miss Parker offers a "Survey of Art" on Monday evenings at 6:30. This survey is repeated on Friday mornings at 11 o'clock. During the winter months Romanesque and Gothic art will be discussed, to be followed by Italian painting.

To know the Art institute collections intimately is to have an inexhaustible source of pleasure; to drop in to the institute once a week for half an hour and learn about some one phase of the collections is one way to become familiar with them. Miss Parker offers such an opportunity on Wednesdays at 12:15 o'clock.

The new year is bringing several exhibitions with it. An exhibit of recent work by Raymond Jonson is on view in the Katharine Kuh gallery, Diana Court building. Mr. Jonson has long been known for his interesting approach to nonobjective painting and for his rich use of tantalizing and delicious color.

Paintings of Mexico by Ralph von Lehmden, a new name among exhibiting Chicago artists, are on exhibition in the Quest galleries, 810 North Michigan avenue. These are water colors. They are spirited, individual, decorative, picturesque, and reveal a definite personality in their creator. Here, we may say, is a pathfinder and not a follower.

The Arts club opened two exhibits last Tuesday, one, paintings by Walter Richard Sickert, and the other, caricatures by Max Beerbohm. England is well represented.

Water colors by artist members of the South Side Art association are on view to Jan. 20 in the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, 72 E. 11th street.

The Palette and Chisel Academy of Fine Arts awarded its gold medal recently to Arnold E. Turtle for the excellence of his painting. At practically the same time a brilliant canvas by Mr. Turtle was purchased from the Chicago Galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue, for a private collection.

An intriguing collection of 47 Caruso caricatures, all original and most of them dated, may be seen at 105 East Delaware, in charge of Dan Ricklle. Among them are the famous caricature of J. P. Morgan and others which are internationally known. The collection was made by Henry Norris and at one time was to be sold for $10,000 to Otto Kahn. The order was canceled at his death. The present owner values them at approximately $6,000. It would be a clever thing on some one's part to buy them and present them to the Civic Opera building.

Dr. Max Thorek, who is well known for his work in photography, and who has received nearly all the honors and honorary positions possible in that field, has recently written a book, "Creative Camera Art" [Fomo Publishing company]. The book is practical and should give much help to the amateur as well as the professional photographer.

It is full of excellent hints and suggestions about the making of pictures. At the back are several formulas and rules for the actual development of negatives.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, March 17, 1889.

"Dear Julia: Chicago is pluming itself on the Auditorium, now nearing completion, at a cost of about four million dollars. It's called the greatest private project ever undertaken in America.

"Last evening, Will and I gave a small dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand W. Peck at our Rush street house. We feel Mr. Peck well deserves honor for his efforts to bring to reality his dream of an auditorium to house our great musical attractions—opera and concerts. His name will long be remembered in Chicago for his success in promoting this gigantic enterprise.

"Sandy and Martha were at the dinner, of course, and beside them we invited Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Counselman.

"Mr. Peck was born in Chicago forty-one years ago, he told us, on the spot where the Grand Pacific hotel stands today. A dark eyed man, with a thoughtful face, really a rather dreamy looking person. He looks like a student rather than a business man. But he isn't a dreamer or, if he is, he has a way of making his dreams come true.

• • •

"The large Peck estate which he manages came originally from farsighted investments in Chicago real estate made by his father. The fortune has continued to grow until it has reached large proportions. Mr. Peck was educated in Chicago, in high school, the Chicago university [now, unhappily, only a memory], and law school. Although he has been admitted to the bar I think he has never practiced his profession.

"Beside being president of the Auditorium association, he is president of the Chicago Opera Festival association, a member of the board of education, a director of the Union League club, and a member of the Illinois Humane society, which he helped found. Of course the Auditorium is his hobby. He is a great lover of music, his aim being to provide the best for the masses.

"I saw Mr. Hutchinson look at him rather wistfully during the dinner and I knew he was hoping some of that music money might go into the Art institute, of which he is president, but one can't be interested in everything.

"The Pecks have spent much time abroad. They have lived for years at Wabash avenue and 23d street, but they will soon be moving to their handsome new house at 1826 Michigan avenue. They need a large house for they have six children. Their summer home is at Oconomowoc, Wis., where Mr. Peck is commodore of the local yacht club. Yachts he has had from time to time have been named after his daughters.

• • •

"The Hutchinsons helped make the dinner gay, for both are young, intelligent, and full of zest for life. Charles Hutchinson has just celebrated his thirty-fifth birthday—young indeed to have been president of the Chicago Board of Trade and to be president of the Corn Exchange bank, one of our substantial institutions.

"Some one was telling how he downed his father, the eccentric "Old Hutch," lately. While Charles was out of town Mr. Hutchinson dismissed an employé of the bank. When son Charles returned the father was made aware that his boy was of the same stern metal as himself. Charles reinstated the employé and told his father that C. L. and not B. P. Hutchinson was president of the Corn Exchange bank.

"Father raged and threatened to withdraw his deposits, but the younger man coolly told him to do as he liked about that, but that he would manage the bank without interference. The deposits weren't withdrawn and when Father Hutchinson had cooled down, he rather gloried in his son's spunk. These doughty old pioneers need a firm hand, once in awhile.

"The Counselmans, too, were interesting guests, but I must tell you of them another time.

"Much love,
"Your devoted
"MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND."

NOTES ON THE PLAY, "WHEN CHICAGO WAS YOUNG."

In a theater party, brought to the Studebaker by Dr. and Mrs. Francis P. Horan, were Carleton Goodrich and Eleanor Perkins, members of old Chicago families. Mr. Goodrich claims to know all the verses of "After the Ball," but admits that, having learned them in childhood, he was somewhat confused about the line, "Down fell the glass, pet." Mentally, he left out the comma after the word "glass," and imagined that the author, Charles K. Harris, was stating that a crystal image of some domestic animal had been "Broken, that's all . . .

Just as my heart was,
After the ball."

Mrs. Horan [Kenneth Horan] found special interest in the third act of the play, as it deals with the period she portrays so amusingly in "Remember the Day" and her newest book, "O, Promise Me," to be published in January.

We are looking to see the schottische revived, since old-fashioned dances are becoming popular, and the dance, as performed in the third act of "When Chicago Was Young," always elicits great applause.

Presbyterian Hospital Board Reviews Work

The woman's board of the Presbyterian hospital expended $26,793 in various services to the hospital and its poor patients during the year 1937, it was reported at the 54th annual meeting of the board Monday in the hospital chapel. Dr. C. Rufus Rorem of the American Hospital association spoke on "Hospital Care Insurance."

Total receipts of $27,563 were reported, including funds raised by the active membership, associate membership, pledge fund, contributors' fund and Thanksgiving offering committees. The pledge fund committee, headed by Mrs. R. Douglas Stuart, raised $3,177 in special gifts from interested Presbyterian women. The contributors' fund committee, headed by Mrs. Charles S. Reed, collected $2,234.

Another $746 was brought in through the Thanksgiving offering raised by means of teas and other gatherings and by special donations, and $983 was obtained through the associate memberships of $1 each. Mrs. W. B. McKeand of Hinsdale is head of the Thanksgiving offering committee, and Mrs. Lucibel Dunham of associate memberships.

• • •

The library supported by the board circulated 20,000 magazines and books last year, providing for the reading needs of 300 patients each month. The school of nursing was aided in various ways through the sum of $446 raised through a card party last May at the nurses' home. The delicacies committee reported donations of 6,479 glasses of jelly, besides scores of quarts of fruit and grapejuice, and $331 in cash for the purchase of fresh fruit.

Mrs. Ernest E. Irons was elected president to succeed Mrs. Clyde E. Shorey of Oak Park. Long an officer of the woman's board, Mrs. Irons is the wife of Dr. Irons, chairman of the department of medicine at Rush Medical college and former dean of the college.

In recognition of her work as chairman of the Central Council of Nursing Education, Mrs. Irons was made an honorary member of the Illinois State Nurses' association last October. She was the first person to receive this honor.

Mrs. John P. Mentzer was elected a vice president, and reëlected were Mrs. Lincoln M. Coy, Mrs. Charles S. Reed, and Mrs. William R. Tucker, vice presidents; Mrs. Lawrence Dunlap Smith, recording secretary; Mrs. Earle B. Fowler, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Edward L. Beatie, treasurer; Mrs. Gordon B. Wheeler, assistant treasurer; Miss Lucibel Dunham, corresponding secretary.

Concert to Aid Charity Work of Hospital

A benefit concert by Edith Mason at the Auditorium theater on Monday evening, Jan. 31, will mark the eighth anniversary of the opening of the Little Company of Mary hospital at 95th street and California avenue.

Proceeds of the concert will be used to forward the charitable work of the hospital conducted by the Sisters of the Little Company of Mary.

An English order, the sisters conduct hospitals and sanatoria in this country, in England, Ireland, France, Italy, Australia, and South America. Even before the erection of their $2,000,000 hospital at the beginning of the depression, they cared for sick persons here in their homes.

A city-wide committee is directing ticket sales for the concert. Mrs. John Olson, president of the service club of the hospital, and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody are among the members of the committee.

CardClubProgram to Swell Fund for Crippled Children

They began by meeting to play bridge, but now they raise $1,500 to $2,000 annually for crippled children. To help meet their self-imposed quota, members of the Soma Welfare will sponsor a benefit program at 2 o'clock tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Bessie Bragg Pierson, 655 Junior terrace. Mrs. Frank Dow will discuss current events and review recent books.

Never more than 25 in number, the group for a number of years has raised approximately $2,000 every year to supply braces and appliances to crippled children at the Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children, Billings clinic, and Spalding school.

Finance Forum Banquet to Be Held on Jan. 27

The Women's Finance forum has sent out 2,500 invitations to a midyear banquet Thursday, Jan. 27, in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman. Thaddeus Benson, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, and Edward B. Hall, retired president of the Investment Bankers' association, will speak on "Current Trends in Stocks and Bonds."

Since the forum was started two years ago by Mrs. Lorraine L. Blair most of the city's distinguished financial experts have been presented to its audiences of women. Last autumn a morning program expressly for homemakers was introduced preceding each evening session.

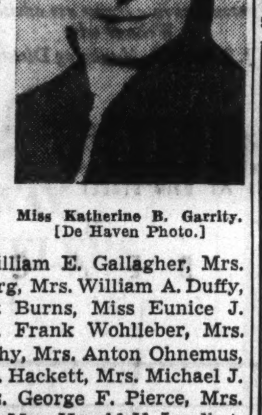
Clark, president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen.

Card Party to Aid Ephpheta School for Deaf Children

In order that the road to knowledge may be opened to deaf children, the auxiliary of the Ephpheta School for the Deaf will give its annual benefit card party at 2 o'clock Saturday at the Edgewater Beach hotel. The school, located at Belmont avenue and Pulaski road, is dependent for support largely on such ventures, since the institution has no endowment and receives no public funds.

The children live at the school from Sunday evening until Friday, receiving a grammar school and often a business education. The specially trained teachers work without remuneration.



Miss Katherine B. Garrity. [De Haven Photo.]

Assisting Miss Katherine B. Garrity, president of the auxiliary, with arrangements for the party are Mrs. William E. Gallagher, Mrs. J. T. Orenberg, Mrs. William A. THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

FOREIGN TRAVEL

DETOUR

By Frederic Babcock.

Nassau, chief city of the Bahamas, is coming to be known also as one of the chief attractions on the winter-time Caribbean cruises. . . . But what the average American tourist wants to know beforehand is: "What is there to see there and how do we get to all the different places?" . . . Here are a few answers:

Blackbeard's Well is under the western portion of the British Colonial hotel. . . . Nothing but a stump is left of the silk cotton tree, once the pride of Nassau. . . . Southwest bay is reached after a drive through some of the most beautiful scenery in the world. . . . The road gains much of its beauty from the color of the surrounding water. . . . The coast takes many curves and angles, so that view succeeds view in a delightful panoramic fashion.

- En route the visitor passes first the historic Fort Charlotte, a good view of which is obtained from the road. . . . Then follows the Lucayan pool, where swimming and diving can be had, and where boxing matches are held from time to time.

The Grove estate, a modern residential section, comes next and then a sweep of the coast carries one on toward the country club and golf course. . . . Having passed these the traveler reaches Emerald beach and, beyond, Cable beach, with its scattering beachside houses. . . . "The Caves," a small group which tradition links with the pirates of other days, are also passed.

- The visitor to Fox Hill will be able to study the rural life of the colored natives under pleasant conditions. . . . It is an area given to the emancipated slaves more than a hundred years ago, and it has been occupied by their descendants ever since. . . . It is alive with poinciana, oleander, and bougainvillea.

Paradise beach is a mile across the lagoon, or bay, from Nassau, and on the shore of Hog Island. . . . It is a crescent-shaped stretch of coral sand washed by the waters of the Atlantic. . . . It is excellent for both sea bathing and sun bathing the year round. . . . Most travelers agree that it lives up to its name.

Delvers into the past will revel in Fort Fincastle, which overlooks the city; the Queen's Staircase, with its 66 steps cut into the solid rock, and Fort Montagu, with its ancient guns.

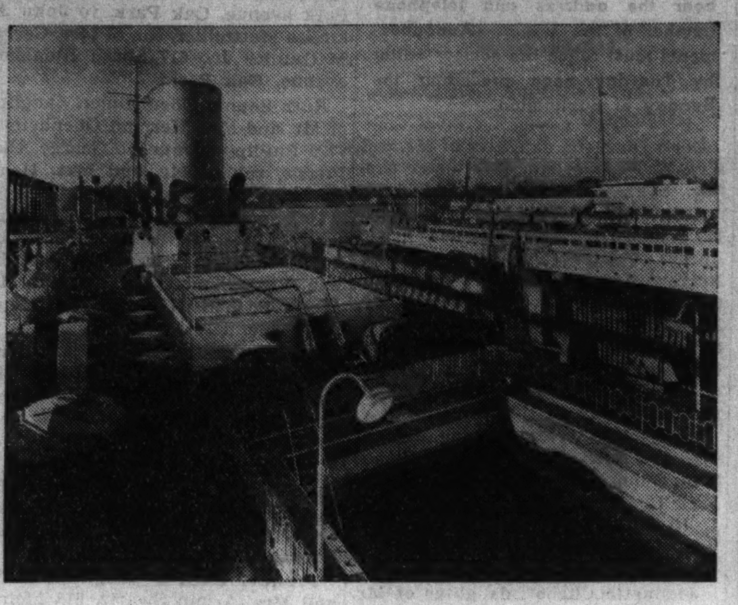
And after all this comes a trip to Dirty Dick's, without which no visit to Nassau is really complete.

Hialeah Park to Open Thursday

Miami, Fla., Jan. 8.—Two of the outstanding events of the winter season here are scheduled for the next few days. They are the opening of Hialeah Park on Thursday, Jan. 12, and the south's greatest angling tournament, in which 50,000 fishermen are expected to compete for prizes valued at $10,000.

On Jan. 16 a flotilla of several hundred fishing boats and private yachts, under escort of the United States coast guard, will move six abreast from Biscayne bay to the Gulf Stream to inaugurate the 1938 angling contest. Fish caught up to April 17 will be eligible for prizes.

MORE OR LESS PERSONAL



The swimming pool and dance floor on the new Beach Club deck of the S. S. Columbus.

Traveling by special train, a large group of Chicago travel agents left Wednesday for New York, where, on Thursday evening, the Beach club deck of the S. S. Columbus was thrown open to inspection. The party was arranged by Ludwig Plate, general western passenger manager of the Hamburg American Line-North German Lloyd. The deck is a new feature designed for the Columbus' cruises to the tropics and semi-tropics.

Travelogues of the week: At the Fair store at 11 a. m. Friday, Randall L. Jones will give a lecture, illustrated in natural color, on the national parks in Utah and Arizona. At the Old Heidelberg inn Thursday afternoon Dudley Crafts Watson is to talk on "Exciting Adventures in Mexico's Byways." "Caribbean Cousins" is the name of a film to be shown at the Medinah club at 4 p. m. today by George Field of the Canadian Pacific Steamship company. Vilhalmar Stefansson, Arctic explorer, will talk on "Trans-Polar Commerce, by Air," before the Rotary club at the Sherman hotel Tuesday noon.

The French Line last week announced that the annual Gladys Hight dance tour of Europe would sail May 27 on the motorliner Lafayette. Miss Hight, Chicago dance teacher, will take her group to London, Paris, Berlin, Dresden, Prague, Budapest, Vienna, Venice, Rome, Milan, the Italian lakes, Lucerne, Interlaken, Montreux, and Geneva.

Ed Moot of the Great Northern railway relates that many Chicagoans are taking to the Pacific northwest this season for their winter sports. Both Mount Rainier and Mount Baker are getting a heavy play from the ski addicts.

The Golden Gate International exposition, to be held next year on Treasure Island in San Francisco bay, is offering a $1,000 prize for the best name for its amusement zone. Something as catchy as the St. Louis exposition's "The Pike" and the Chicago World's Fair's "The Midway" is hoped for.

A dispatch from Washington gives this information: The American commercial attaché at Paris on Tuesday advised the United States department of commerce that more than 90,000 tourists—an increase of 112 per cent over 1936—visited France in 1937. The British Isles were given first rank, with at least 177,000 visitors, and North America second, with an estimated 92,800.

Poland Starts Ski Raids.

Poland has introduced the "ski raid" into winter sports. A hostel-train takes skiers on a ten day excursion up into the Carpathian mountains, traveling by night, the skiers stopping at scores of winter resorts each day.

TOURS—CRUISES

Joan of Arc's Town Same as 525 Years Ago

DOMREMY, Lorraine, Jan. 8.—[U. P.]—The 525th birthday of Joan of Arc, liberator and patron saint of France, was celebrated here Thursday with a solemn mass in the basilica erected in her memory and by celebrations in the village.

Domremy is much the same today as it was on Jan. 6, 1412, when the little girl, guarding sheep in the fields, heard the command to lead the French armies against the British invaders. There are only 300 inhabitants—perhaps fewer than during the period when Joan lived simply among its inhabitants.

• • •

But thousands of visitors from all parts of France came this week on a pilgrimage in memory of the gallant girl who succeeded in urging the French king to take up arms to drive the English from France. Apart from the religious devotion, they gave tribute to her courage in leading the French armies at the age of 17, only to die at the stake in Rouen at 19 on the eve of accomplishing in that brief period the final elimination of English troops from French soil and the definite consolidation of France as a nation.

There are few things changed in this quaint Lorraine village. The Chehu woods, where Joan "heard the voices" that started her on her mission, are still intact. The houses lining the few narrow streets are of the same design as 500 years ago.

• • •

The village church, slightly restored, but still having its holy water font and baptistry, and serving as the humble house of worship for the still devout Catholic Lorraine population, is much the same.

Only the immense new basilica where an eternal candle flame remains alight, a small plaque in the market place bearing the famous apology by Kipling, "The cruel, undying sin we shared in Rouen market square," and the crowds mark the change of the long years. And of course three new modern hotels to house the constant flow of pilgrims and tourists who visit this village, especially significant for Frenchmen.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

In coöperation with the American Express company, the Cunard-White Star Line last week arranged a series of twelve escorted tours to Europe for the coming summer. The trips will last from four weeks to two months, with sailings on June 8, June 22, July 6, and July 20. In each instance the Queen Mary is to be used for the voyage across the Atlantic. "The use of such a large ship," said Douglas Malcolm of the American Express Travel Service, "is an indication that the escorted tour is again coming into favor with the travelers."

A new winter resort for middle western fans will be opened today at a point 7½ miles north of Elkhorn, Wis. The Chicago Winter Sports club, of which Carl Peterson is chairman, is in charge, and transportation is over the Greyhound Lines. Martin Wingsness is the chief ski instructor. There are facilities for skiing, skating, and tobogganing.

Reductions in round trip tourist and third class steamship fares were announced last week by several of the trans-Atlantic companies, including the United States Lines and the Hamburg American Line-North German Lloyd. The cuts, effective during the "off" seasons, are designed to attract travelers wishing to visit Europe at a moderate cost.

West Palm Beach to Dedicate Park in Honor of Palm

West Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 8.—Sixty years ago Sunday, Jan. 9, the first big beautification movement was started on the Florida east coast when the Spanish barque Providencia was wrecked on the coast with a load of 20,000 coconuts.

So here in West Palm Beach, where the original stock has grown to tens of thousands of full sized trees, the residents and winter visitors will observe the anniversary with ceremonies dedicated to the glory of the "Providencia palm."

One of the original palms will be planted in a new strip of lake front park and the recreation ground in turn will be dedicated Providencia park.

The new nine mile Flagler drive which follows the shore of Lake Worth and passes the park will be formally dedicated.

ENTERTAINED IN CHINA.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—To the Travel Editor: The recent announcement in the American press of the tragic shooting of Joseph Lo Pa-hong, the public utilities magnate of Shanghai and occasionally referred to as the "Rockefeller of China," bring to my mind a vivid incident which took place in January, 1926, when I was special representative on the steamship Belgenland, then the largest steamer cruising around the world, with some 500 passengers.

As we were anchored in the Whangpoo river near Shanghai, I was approached by one of Mr. Lo Pa-hong's representatives, who, after introducing himself with the best of Chinese manners, intimated that Mr. Lo Pa-hong, being greatly interested in American customs and its people, wanted to extend a luncheon invitation to a group of about 100 American tourists on the Belgenland. The only requisite he made was that the group should be typically American, from as many states as possible, and from all walks of life.

Arrangements were made accordingly and on the following morning waiting at a fashionable hotel near the Bund were some twenty automobiles ready to transport our group, composed of doctors, lawyers, bankers, manufacturers, actors, engineers, clergymen, artists, etc., to Mr. Lo Pa-hong's suburban estate. There an eleven course Chinese luncheon, composed of the finest delicacies that could be found in China, was served. After the speeches of welcome were made, a Chinese musicale was given and it was followed by an inspection of his gardens. It was late in the afternoon when the automobiles drove us back to the last tug, just in time to board our steamer.

As promised in his speech, Mr. Lo Pa-hong came to Chicago that summer as one of the principal Chinese delegates to the International Eucharistic congress.

THIS IS THE PALM BEACH BILTMORE PLAN:

(A complete Palm Beach vacation within the moderate American Plan rates!)

1—Splendid accommodations, service and cuisine at this fine hotel, overlooking Palm Beach from its Infanta Gardens beside Lake Worth and the beautiful Lake Trail. A season's entertaining program of social events.

2—Guest membership privileges (upon committee approval) in two exclusive Palm Beach Clubs for golf and surf bathing . . . the Sun and Surf Club, with its beach, pool, and clubhouse on the ocean . . . the Palm Beach Country Club, with its sea-to-lake golf course, finest on the island, spacious clubhouse and facilities for docking yachts and sports fishing craft.

3—Transportation via the hotel's private fleet of aerocars, luxurious parlor cars of the highways, from the Palm Beach Biltmore's door to all the vacation interests of the Palm Beach area.

RESORTS AND TRAVEL.
FLORIDA.

For 1938, the Palm Beach Biltmore hotel offers this unique "complete vacation" plan. The moderate American plan tariffs include accommodations, meals, privileges of these two exclusive clubs, and local transportation via swift aerocars. We are confident everyone will agree that this plan adds a world of enjoyment to a sojourn at Palm Beach, with new convenience of vacation living and remarkable economy.

For further information about the Palm Beach Biltmore and the Palm Beach area, communicate directly with the hotel, with the New York office at 551 Fifth Avenue, telephone MUrray Hill 2-0521, or the Chicago office at 120 South La Salle Street, telephone FRAnklin 4645.

PALM BEACH
For Particular Guests
★ WHITEHALL ★

Sustaining the Palm Beach standards of good taste and fine living, Whitehall inaugurates this winter an unprecedented policy of guest entertainment, in addition to providing the same luxurious living accommodations that have made this hotel an outstanding favorite of a discriminating society.

This year Whitehall guests are accorded extraordinary facilities for a complete vacation, without extra charge. Upon recommendation of the membership committees, the exclusive Sun & Surf Club and Palm Beach Country Club will extend membership privileges to Whitehall guests, without payment of initiation fees or dues. A private transportation system of aerocars (auto lounge cars) carries Whitehall guests, without cost, to all the resort pleasures in the Palm Beach area.

And there are many other advantages of enjoying a Palm Beach winter as a Whitehall guest—a particularized policy of entertainment and service for particular guests.

Please address inquiries to the hotel or its northern offices: New York, 551 Fifth Avenue, Room 712 ('Phone, MUrray Hill 2-0521); Chicago, 120 S. La Salle Street, Room 1265 ('Phone, FRAnklin 4645).

STEAMERS & PLANES

Three Liners Sail on Cruises Around World

The winter cruise season got under way in earnest last week when the Empress of Britain and the Franconia started on their annual journeys around the world. The Reliance will leave at noon today. In each instance there is a large list of passengers from the middle west. The Empress of Britain and the Reliance are going by way of the Mediterranean; the Franconia by way of South Africa.

Among those on the Reliance will be Mr. and Mrs. Vallee O. Appel of Chicago, Mason B. Olmstead of Evanston, Mrs. K. E. Knutsson of Rockford, Miss Elizabeth Lentz of Milwaukee, Dr. Charles W. Hall of Mt. Vernon, Ill., and Mrs. Fannie B. Clark of Princeton, Ill.

More than forty residents of Chicago and vicinity started out Wednesday to spend five months aboard the Franconia. This was one of the largest midwestern groups ever to leave on a world cruise. Included were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Perry Boynton and Miss Ruth D. Card of Highland Park, J. Watt Reber of Glen Ellyn, and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Netcher, Mrs. Albert Thomas Evans, Mrs. Adelaide Harding Vincent, Mrs. Phyllis Shaw Stewart, Miss Muriel Walsh, Miss Elizabeth Mueller, Mrs. Ida K. Marks, Mrs. W. J. G. Townes, and W. W. Nugent, all of this city.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Kemp of Wilmette left Tuesday for Miami, whence they will sail next Saturday on a Caribbean cruise.

On the motorliner Kungsholm when it started out Friday on an eighteen day cruise to the West Indies and South America were Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Gowin, Mr. and Mrs. M. Miller, Miss Daysie Procter, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Bartlett, Mr. and Mrs. William Woll, Mr. and Mrs. Paul S. Russell, Henry C. Hodeck, William Wytrykus, M. C. Hilmer, Miss A. Aschenbach, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Reedy, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. Goddard, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wilkin, Thornton Bardach, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Rosenthal.

Sailing from New York Tuesday on the Empress of Australia for a cruise of the West Indies were Mr. and Mrs. John T. O'Connor, Miss Marguerita O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Ryan, Miss M. Lazarus, Mrs. Rose Isaacson, Mrs. Mary T. Garrett, Harry Goldman, Ben Lasker, and Sydney Levinson.

Another big group left yesterday on the Pennsylvania to cruise to Havana, Panama, Acapulco, Los Angeles, and San Francisco. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Wade Fetzer Jr., R. R. Anderson, Miss Ellen Larsen, Mrs. Marion S. Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Crown, Miss Mary V. Draper, A. R. Greene, Miss M. Kellinger, Miss M. Fernald, and Miss Garcia Monge, all of Chicago; Mrs. Arthur G. McPherson, Mrs. McPherson Hise, and her son, McPherson, all of Highland Park; the Misses Libby and Mary Rubin of Waukegan, Carl Jobst and Harry J. Klotz of Peoria, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hansen of St. Charles, Ill.; Mrs. Julian Stern and Edward G. Halberstadt of Milwaukee, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Broderick of Muncie, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Martin of Davenport, Ia.

• • •

Mrs. E. W. Pardridge and Miss Annet Frey embarked on the Georgic Friday for Nassau. Miss Theresa Greenfield left for Nassau and Havana Wednesday on the Rotterdam.

Mr. and Mrs. Shandor M. Zinner, Mr. and Mrs. William Simon, Mr. and Mrs. Lester J. Felsenthal, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Philipsborn, all of Glencoe, sailed yesterday on the Saturnia. The latter two couples will spend a week in and around Naples, while Mr. and Mrs. Zinner and Mr. and Mrs. Simon will have three weeks in Italy and then a month on the French Riviera. Others crossing on the Saturnia were Mrs. C. Travis, Mrs. Hugh Campbell, and the Misses Emma and Helen Tyler, who plan to visit Algiers, Tunis and Egypt and then make a tour of Europe; James Sutherland, and William Cassels. Bound for Italian ports on the Rex, which left Wednesday, were Mariano Lomonaro, Miss Doris Morley, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kunstadter, all of Chicago, and Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Evans and Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Seaman of Oshkosh, Wis.

• • •

When the Manhattan sailed for Europe Tuesday, among its passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Alt, who will visit England, Holland, Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria, Switzerland, Italy, France, and Algiers; Mrs. G. Belcher and Mrs. M. A. Fine, starting out for Capetown and Johannesburg; Mr. and Mrs. John Irving, on a honeymoon through Europe; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Olson, who will visit in Sweden; Miss Sigrid Schultz, bound for Berlin; Bert H. Mullins and L. L. Cazalet, all of Chicago; Paul M. Beick of Bloomington, Ill., and Dr. L. Forrest Swank of Elkhart, Ind.

Frank D. Gray, Harry T. Huff, S. C. Frazee, Capt. Guy Noonan, Mrs. Josephine Popper, George Cooper, and Miss E. M. Davidson sailed for Europe on the Berengaria. R. G. Wallace and J. R. Moffett embarked Wednesday night on the Bremen.

On the Exeter when it left Tuesday for Mediterranean ports were Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. McWilliams, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Krez, Mrs. T. H. Borland, and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Ulrich, all of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lotts of River Forest.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

I have traveled enough to know that we call various European cities by one name and the natives call them by another, but I am not certain as to just why this is so. Please explain. —C. J. R.

In most cases the names by which we know the cities are Anglicized versions of those by which they were christened. A few examples: Rome, Roma; Milan, Milano; Genoa, Genova; Florence, Firenze; Venice, Venezia; Leghorn, Livorno; Vienna, Wien; Antwerp, Anvers; Cologne, Köln.

What are the tonnages of the three biggest Cunard-White Star liners? V. H.

Queen Mary, 81,235; Berengaria, 52,100; Aquitania, 45,647.

When are the dominion ski championships to be held at Ottawa? —C. F.

Feb. 26 to 28.

Don't Talk About It.

Now that 95 per cent of the world's telephone subscribers can talk to each other, it has been suggested by one world traveler that every telephone booth should have the famous Chinese proverb over its door: "One look-see is worth a thousand tells!"

No Bite Means Some Fish.

Czechoslovakia is accounted a fisherman's paradise because it is customary there, if one does not get a "bite," to buy "big ones" from more fortunate anglers, thus enabling all disciples of Isaac Walton to return home heroically.

Query: What Is Lapland? Reply: It Isn't

By Mason Warner.

LIINAHAMARI, Finland.—Up here on the shores of the Arctic ocean, within ten hours of the North Pole by airplane, life moves along in summertime as easily and comfortably as it does in any small town in the United States.

The exact figures of the population of this village are not available. I could have counted its residents when the mail bus arrived, for they were all assembled on that occasion, but I regret to say that I overlooked the opportunity. A rough guess is that a census would give Liinahamari a total population of less than 200, including the Lapps and transient tourists.

Nevertheless, this far northern hamlet is an important trading center because it is an ice-free seaport, open all the year round. Warmed by the Gulf stream, the deep harbor never freezes and it serves as a coaling and fishing station for the Arctic coast. The hotel is operated by the Finnish Tourist association, and in addition to three general stores there are two automobile service stations, where gasoline and oil are retailed by American companies at about the same prices that prevail in Chicago.

The food presents little variety, owing to the lack of fruits and vegetables, but the menus are rich and substantial, with a choice of meats and fish. There is an abundance of milk, butter, and eggs. The bread, biscuits, and cakes made from northern grown wheat have a zestful taste and flavor that set them apart from the products of southern latitudes which do not have their simple yet strong appeal to the appetite.

• • •

The tourist expects to see reindeer in the Arctic regions. He is not disappointed in northern Finland. We saw so many on the way up from Rovaniemi that reindeer became a nuisance instead of a novelty.

Reindeer in Finnish Lapland are not herded in summer time, but are turned out to forage for themselves by their owners when spring comes. They roam through the scrub trees and wander across the highway, delaying motor trafic occasionally, much after the manner of a leisurely moving cow on an American country road. Bus drivers are accommodating. They stop whenever requested to do so by tourists who desire to use their cameras with reindeer subjects. But seldom does one get a picture of a herd, because the animals are scattered far and wide and seem to prefer to travel alone rather than in groups.

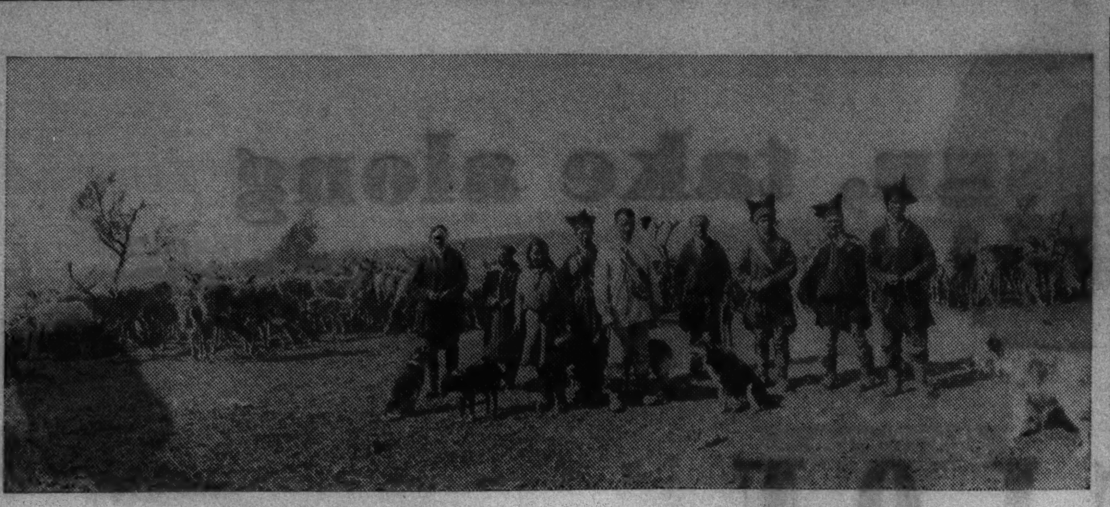
The reindeer running about fulfill the anticipations of the tourist, but he is unprepared for the sight of pigs, cows, horses, and chickens on the shores of the Arctic. Many of the farmsteads in this Petsamo district are replicas of those seen in northern Minnesota and Wisconsin. The Lapps rival the Finns in keeping up the appearance of their houses and barns.

• • •

Only since 1920 has the Petsamo district belonged to Finland. Its ownership or control has been the cause of lengthy strife and many localized wars. The area was under Russian influence at the end of the 15th century as a result of the founding of a Greek orthodox monastery which became the center of Russian rule. Throughout more than three centuries control was fought for by Swedes and Finns and Russians. The Lapps were merely pawns in the wars. After the Finns won the victory in their war for liberation, the district was awarded to Finland by Russia by the Dorpat peace treaty of 1920. It was first formed into a temporary province, but it is now a county of Finland. The treaty thus gave Finland a corridor or outlet to the Arctic ocean.

Petsamo has an area of 5,000 square miles and 2,300 inhabitants, the majority of whom are Greek orthodox.

• • •



The Lapps' fall roundup of reindeer in the Petsamo district of Finland.

At Liinahamari on May 22 the sun shakes off the upreaching hilltops and its lowest rim rides free and clear above the horizon. Then it circles the sky for sixty-two days, until the same hills snag the lower rim on July 23 and each day thereafter cut a little higher into the sun's disk until, along in November, the sun is completely obscured below the horizon.

The 1,488 hours of continuous daylight in summer are balanced by the same number of hours of darkness in winter.

During April and August dusk and dawn are so near collision that darkness is so brief as to make "night" a word of fancy, not of fact.

"The Land of the Midnight Sun" is no misnomer for North Finland, and neither is "Lapland."

Lapland is not a country, not a political unit, not even a clearly defined geographical division, for its southern boundary is not marked. The name is loosely applied to the northern parts of Norway, Sweden, Finland, and Karelia [U. S. S. R.]—to that part of the vast territory of Europe lying north of the Arctic circle and between the Atlantic ocean and the White sea.

There are 29,000 Lapps in the world—14,000 in Norway, 11,000 in Sweden, 2,000 in Finland, and 2,000 in Karelia. They are citizens of the country in which they live.

• • •

We saw many Lapps on the journey from Ivalo to Liinahamari—on one occasion, too many. That was between Salmijarvi and Ylaluostari, a distance of more than thirty miles. The mail bus had seats for eighteen passengers, but it carried thirty-three for that thirty miles.

There is an important Greek orthodox church near Ylaluostari, and a special service on the day we passed attracted the Lapps for many miles around. The bus was filled before the church-going Lapps clambered on, and it was not easy to close the door when all were packed in, but everybody took the incident good naturedly and not a harsh word was spoken. They were dressed in their best, the men wearing the "cap of the four winds," with its four outstanding points. Reds and blues predominated in the colorful costumes. The clean youngsters looked like dolls and were cheerfully taken on the laps of the passengers.

For a great part of the 145 miles from Ivalo to Liinahamari the highway ran alongside a river or skirted the shores of lakes. At one point we could look across the river and see the boundary line between Norway and Sweden. We were at a point where three countries met.

The most northern Greek orthodox monastery in the world is at Ylaluostari. It was founded in 1556 and now shelters thirty monks. Near this point the bus driver obligingly made a detour of about ten miles, taking us up on the fells to a desolate, bleak, barren, dreary view. The snow piles and packs twenty-five to thirty feet deep on these plateaus in winter. There was neither a human being nor a habitation in sight. Nor a tree nor a shrub. A few miles to the east was the frontier of Russia.

"This is the forlornest, Godforsakenest country I ever did see," was the evidently heartfelt comment of a fellow traveler from Georgia.

Seventy Days with No Night.

Travelers who want no night life when in Europe go annually by train and cruise to Norway, Sweden, and Finland to observe the midnight sun. At such places on the Arctic rim as Tromso, Abisko, and Petsamo, there is continuous daylight from the middle of May till the end of July. This compensates the inhabitants, who have continuous night from the end of November till the end of January.

Imperial Augustus' Ruthless Rise

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

THE BIMILLENARY of the birth of Augustus Cæsar, first emperor of Rome, is being observed in Italy with a vast exhibition, fêtes, and speechmaking. Every honor imaginable is being paid in this Augustan year to the celebrated Roman, who was born 2,000 years ago next Sept. 23.

● Back of this newest glorification of Augustus, founder of an empire that faded from the world scene nearly fifteen centuries ago, is the suggestion, fostered by Premier Mussolini, that the modern Italian empire is a revival of the empire of Augustus.

● Recalled thus from his grave obviously for present-day political purposes, Augustus again becomes a subject of general discussion. And therefore people may ask:

● Who was this first emperor of Rome, and what manner of man was he?

Limit of the Roman Empire at the death of Augustus (A.D. 14)

Typical of Imperial Rome

The two famous paintings by Jean Leon Gerome that are reproduced on this page present scenes typical of the Roman empire, of which Augustus Cæsar was the first emperor. The one at the top of the page shows a chariot race in one of the vast circuses. Largest of these was the Circus Maximus, built in 329 B. C., restored in 174 B. C., and enlarged and embellished with marble ornaments years later by order of Augustus. Ancient writers estimated the seating capacity of the Circus Maximus at between 250,000 and 485,000. The other picture shows the vestal virgins signaling with thumbs down to indicate that the gladiator with a foot on his opponent's throat should show no mercy. (These virgins were a group of girls who guarded the sacred fire and acted as judges at various ceremonies.) The victor is a secutor; his unfortunate opponent, armed only with net and trident, is a retiarius. Gladiatorial combats were fought in vast amphitheaters, the first of which was built in Rome in 59 B. C. The Colosseum, largest of the amphitheaters, was dedicated in A. D. 80. It seated between 40,000 and 50,000 spectators. The term amphitheatrum first was used by writers of the Augustan era.

Looking at Hollywood with Ed Sullivan

NEW colored photographs of Myrna Loy and Clark Gable, queen and king of the movies, will be found on page one of the picture section of this issue.

(Associated Press photo.)
It was this oriental appearance that gave Myrna Loy her start in pictures. Of late, however, she has been doing quite well, thank you, without impersonating Chinese princesses or slinky half-caste girls.

A reminder of the time when Myrna was specializing in Chinese roles.

As the exotic charmer in "The Mask of Fu Manchu."

Myrna Loy's Escape from China

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood, Cal.

IT MAY be ungrammatical, but it is accurate to say that the heathen Chinee almost done in Myrna Loy. In fact, today Myrna even grimaces when she reads of the Sino-Japanese war because it brings back a flood of memories; memories of a movie career that came to an abrupt end. Today the Helena, Mont., girl is the Queen of Movie Stars, the First Lady of Hollywood, but it was only a few years ago that she was called into the front office at Warner Brothers and told politely that she was all through, washed-up.

The Chinese influence started to work when she first came to Hollywood, as a dancer. Her first job, oddly enough, was with a Fanchon and Marco unit at Grauman's CHINESE theater. Here it was that Mrs. Rudolph Valentino, the exotic Natacha Rambova, saw a photograph of Myrna in the lobby and decided that she could use her in a picture she was producing with Nita Naldi. When Myrna kept the appointment she learned that Mrs. Valentino wanted her to play the part of a Chinese princess.

Warners saw her in that Nita Naldi picture and decided she was just the type they needed. She reported to Warners and they sent her to the wardrobe department for a Chinese costume.

"Not that I minded at the time," recalled Myrna. "I really got quite a reputation in Hollywood as a half-caste and oriental type. If all the turbans and veils I wore in silent pictures were laid end to end they'd stretch from here to Shanghai. But little did I realize what was going to happen to me. The talking pictures arrived, and then the trouble started. If I were to continue playing Chinese parts and half-caste ladies I had to invent a dialect or guttural accent to go with 'em. The attempt was pretty bad. The gibberish I invented had the studio tearing its hair. So one bright day I was called in and released from my contract. It was all very polite and regretful, but I was through.

"Then M.-G.-M. sent for me. They had a picture about to go in production and they wanted me to play the part of Fu Manchu's daughter. No matter how I tried to get away from it, it seemed that I was destined to go through life a Chinese. 'When Ladies Meet,' I'd say, was the turning point in my career. That gave me my first good straight part and I date everything from that picture with Robert Montgomery and Ann Harding. It took the two of them to get me out of China for good."

• • •

I asked her if anybody in her family had preceded her as an actress.

"Mother came closest to it, I guess," she said. "She studied piano at Dr. Ziegfeld's school in Chicago, and she was unusually talented, but marriage interrupted it before she'd become famous."

I asked her where she was born: "It's always struck me as curious that both Gary Cooper and I were born in Helena, Mont. Gary tells that he remembers me as a freckle-faced kid there, and remembers my family, but for the life of me, I can't recall him in town. Probably he looked a lot different then, whereas my freckles always have been constant."

Talking to her, you are freshly aware of the charm which she projects on the screen. Her nose undoubtedly is the keystone of her success. It is an unusual nose, just as her eyes, misty-gray, are striking to the nth degree. The breeding in her face probably accounts as mightily for her tremendous success as anything else. America accepted her as the charming, sophisticated type of wife because of all these facial assets, and because of the cool reserve of her voice.

She is very thankful for the things that have happened. The night that I presented the Chicago Tribune-New York News syndicate crown to her at El Capitan theater, she said: "You know, it doesn't seem possible, Ed, that this has happened to me. Just think of it—to be voted the most popular actress on the screen. Why it was right across the street, at Grauman's Chinese theater, that I danced in the chorus for $30 a week. If any one had told me then that a few years later, across the street, I'd be thanking the radio audience of the country for voting me the First Lady of the screen, I would have considered him insane."

"Thin Man" she rates her favorite picture. Yet this reporter would say that she turned in an equally grand performance, shaded differently, in "Prizefighter and the Lady." In that flicker she played the part of Max Baer's wife, and played it so brilliantly that the observant knew then that she was on her way to stardom. Her only poor performance was in "Parnell," in which both she and Clark Gable were badly cast. They did the best they could with their assignments, but it was a labored process.

One of her early roles. As Nubi in "The Squall."

• • •

On the set of "Test Pilot," which she's completing now with Spencer Tracy and Clark Gable, a lot of teasing goes on between the three M.-G.-M. stars. Tracy, of course, kidded the life out of Myrna and Clark when they won the Chicago Tribune crowns. The next morning, when they appeared on the set, Tracy had drilled all of the electricians and props and gaffers to greet them with "Good morning to the bee-yootiful queen and good morning to the Fairie King." He had the wardrobe department send up imitation ermine cloaks and at lunch time three buglers appeared suddenly and blew a resounding blast through silver trumpets.

"Good riddance," said Myrna and Clark, when Tracy, his scenes completed, was leaving the set that afternoon: "That's nice talk," cracked Tracy. "Just remember, my little chickadees, that when I, Spencer Tracy, walk off this set all you have left is 'Parnell'."

Myrna and Clark Gable in a passionate scene from "Manhattan Melodrama."

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

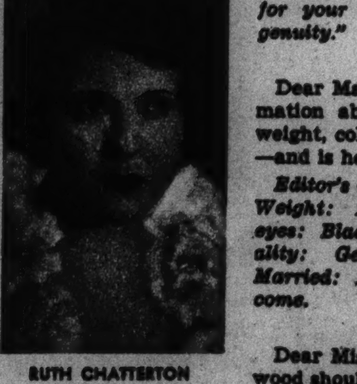
Dear Miss Tinée: Will you kindly print an accurate description of the actress Ruth Chatterton?

I have heard so many discussions about her being dark complected and light and what have you?

I shall watch hopefully for your description of her and of course your reply will be final with those in question.

Thanking you kindly, I remain, sincerely,

CLAIRE DURAND,
Springfield, Ill.



RUTH CHATTERTON
Light brown hair, blue eyes.

Editor's note: What have we? Well—let's see! Ruth Chatterton has light brown hair and blue eyes.

Dear Miss Tinée: If you are a Mrs. please pardon the "Miss" in address.

Inasmuch as you are read by a wide audience [I hope!] may I suggest that you use a great deal of care in writing your column. Otherwise you may lead astray grammatically and lexicographically [Wow! is there such a word?] the youth of the Mid-west. You misused on Sunday or Monday the word "ingenuousness." I am sure you meant "ingenuity." Look them both up and re-read your column, please.

MRS. L. L. PORTER.

Editor's note: I "hope" too! And thanks for your correction. I did mean "ingenuity."

Dear Mae Tinée: Please give me information about George Raft. His height, weight, color of hair and eyes, nationality—and is he married?

A FAN.

Editor's note: Height: 5 feet 10 inches. Weight: 155 pounds. Color of hair and eyes: Black hair and brown eyes. Nationality: German and Italian parentage. Married: Divorce is not final. You're welcome.

Dear Miss Tinée: This is in case Hollywood should see it in your Sunday column, Voice of the Movie Fan, should it be there:

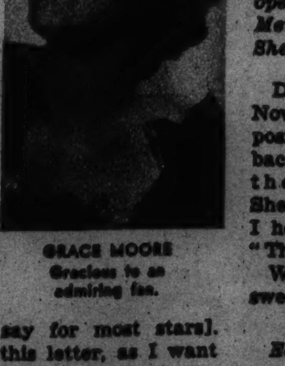
"Look Here, Hollywood"

Since "Heidi" made such a charming little movie, why not use other favorite stories from children's books for pictures? Sure, I know it's been done and successfully done, but not half enough. "Captains Courageous," "The Prince and the Pauper," "Anne of Green Gables," "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," "Tom Sawyer," "Huckleberry Finn" and others all fall in that category, but notice the last four aren't recent. There are so many more stories that can be used now instead of the B story material that is used over and over and over for films, especially since you have such a lot of real kid players. I mean Mary Pickford and Marion Nixon used to take children's parts in "The Five Little Peppers" series, "The Lost Prince," "Peggy," "Understood Betsy" and some I don't recall. These would all make interesting films. Many adults would enjoy these as much as the children.

Sincerely,
DORIS MAY.

Editor's note: Are you lookin', Hollywood?

My dear Miss Mae Tinée: I am a constant reader of your column and I enjoy it immensely. Could you give me a biography of Grace Moore's life. I have seen all of her pictures, and after the end of each picture the audience applauded, which very rarely happens after the completion of a picture. I have had the good fortune of meeting Miss Moore personally, and she was very kind and lovely, and gave me her autograph. [That's more than I can say for most stars]. I hope you'll print this letter, as I want everybody to know how graciously charming she is, and also the possessor of a magnetic personality. She is not only the greatest opera singer we've ever had, but also a superb dramatic star.



GRACE MOORE
Gracious to an admiring fan.

Will you also print a picture of her?

May I thank you for the many hours of enjoyment and happiness your most interesting column has brought me.

Very respectfully yours,
CARMEN CAPUTO.

Editor's note: A Real Moore Fan! Grace Moore's real name is Grace Moore Parera. She was born in Jellico, Tenn., Dec. 5, 1901. She's 5 feet 4½ inches tall, weighs 130 pounds and has blue eyes and golden hair. Educated in public schools in home town and Ward Belmont college in Nashville, Tenn. She made her first public appearance at National theater in Washington, sharing program with Martinelli. First important stage rôle was in "Up in the Clouds" a light operetta. In 1928 she made her debut at Metropolitan as Mimi in "La Boheme." She is married to Valentin Parera.

Dear Miss Tinée: After seeing Ramon Novarro in "The Sheik Steps Out" I am positive that he is making a swell comeback. He is a very good actor and one of the handsomest in Hollywood. "The Sheik Steps Out" was a good picture, but I hope to see him in more pictures like "The Cat and the Fiddle."

Wishing you very much success in your swell column. I remain yours,

MISS J. P. H.

Editor's note: I thank you. And I'm sure Mr. Novarro would like to.

Shiloh Heroes Honored by North and South

3,582 Buried at Scene of Battle

In a motor tour of the south, Hal Foust has visited famous Civil war battlefields and other sites of historical interest. The accompanying article by him on the Shiloh battlefield is the first of a series.

By HAL FOUST

Shiloh National Park, Tenn.

TOURISTS from the north and from the south meet on this wooded west bank of the Tennessee river in common respect for the armies of the two sections which met here in 1862 in deadly combat.

In the parking lot in front of the administration building license plates identify the residences of the visitors. There is one car, in addition to The Tribune roadster, from Illinois, one from Wisconsin, one from Mississippi, and two from Tennessee. In the last year there have been 320,240 visitors to these consecrated grounds, almost twice as many as in the previous year.

In a lecture hall inside William W. Luckett, junior historian of the department of interior, tells the story of the first great battle of the civil war, a battle that took a heavy toll of young volunteers from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Iowa. Large maps cover the wall beside him. Outside are the graves of 1,728 Confederates and 1,854 Federals, whose ages averaged 20 years.

Gen. U. S. Grant, as he appeared in 1862.

Fred J. Vahous, a park ranger, conducts the party on a tour of the 3,600 acres where, in addition to these killed, there were 8,012 Confederates and 8,408 Federals wounded, a total of 20,000 killed or wounded in two days of fighting. The visitors from the north and from the south together read the plaques that mark the stages in the battle.

In the spring of 1862 Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, advancing from Cairo, Ill., had broken the first line of rebel defense in the west by capturing Fort Henry on the Tennessee river and Fort Donelson on the Cumberland river. The Union army advanced up the Tennessee river with Corinth, Miss., a railroad junction, as its objective.

• • •

At Corinth, Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston had a strong army behind earth breastworks in this second line of Confederate defense. His intelligence service told him of the maneuvers of the Union divisions. At Pittsburg Landing, just a river dock then and the same today, 39,800 men under Sherman, McClernand, and Hurlbut were camped on small hills twenty-two miles from Corinth. Grant, in command, was at Savannah (the house still stands), nine miles farther north, waiting for Gen. D. C. Buell's army of 20,000 to reinforce him. Gen. Lew Wallace was encamped at Crump's Landing, about five miles north of Shiloh, with 6,000 Federals.

General Johnston didn't wait for this superior force to form and move against him. Over a muddy road, now a federal parkway with the pavement winding over the original alignment, he marched his 40,000 men. Monuments mark positions of each division. On the night of April 5, the southerners were in battle formation in the woods, ravines, and swamps that characterize the terrain. They slept on their arms that night less than two miles from the Union pickets.

At daybreak of April 6, a Sunday, troops in gray came yelling and shooting through the brush and trees. The Federals were at their breakfasts. Grant, nursing an ankle injured by a falling horse, was nine miles away. Lew Wallace was five miles away. Buell was on the other side of the river with his leading divisions nine miles from the scene.

Fresh recruits in their teens ran. Others retired shooting as they retreated from tree to tree. At a crossroads there are the remains today of a stone church which replaced the log Shiloh church, scene of heavy casualties, which gave the battle its name.

The tourist sees a grass grown natural meadow surrounded by sparse groves of trees marked by a tablet as "Bloody Pond." The spring freshets of 1862 had left water in this hollow and during the battle it was dyed red by the wounded men who crawled to it in that agony of thirst that accompanies loss of blood.

Where Grant Saved Day in 1862

There's an old sunken road on a low ridge of ground on the reservation. Retreating blue infantry reached this line and there held, repulsing twelve Confederate charges. The position is known in history as the "Hornets' Nest." Both Union flanks retired while this center held. Almost surrounded, weakened by heavy casualties, and under a shell fire unprecedented on this continent, the remains of three Federal divisions surrendered, 2,200 becoming prisoners.

Early in the afternoon, General Johnston was struck in the right leg by a minié ball. He bled to death from a severed artery under an oak that still stands.

General Grant, who had arrived by boat after hearing the first gun fire, was on the bluff near the landing through the day, directing the re-formation of panic stricken troops and the forwarding of ammunition. Gen. Lew Wallace was marching and counter marching, trying to get over muddy trails and into battle position.

• • •

Darkness recessed the fighting. The battered Federal line had been driven back two miles. The southerners slept that night in captured camps. Grant, in a spot now marked by a monument, sat with his back to a tree during the rainy night; a log cabin which he had used as a headquarters was converted into a field hospital.

The next morning, the Union forces were reinforced by fresh men. Gen. Lew Wallace had arrived with 6,000 men. About 18,000 of Buell's army had crossed the river and moved into line. Federal artillery was in place, whereas the Confederates had advanced without their cannon. Two federal gunboats were in an advantageous position to shell the enemy.

On the second day the Union army struck back, regaining in fierce fighting the positions it had occupied the previous morning. The Confederates retired toward Corinth, but were not pursued.

The tourists from the north and from the south stroll over these grounds maintained by the government in memory of that battle. They seem to have a mutual appreciation of the significance of this reservation. If there is any sectionalism lingering from enmities of grandfathers and great-grandfathers, it isn't apparent. Those from the north and those from the south honor these grounds as part of the history of America.

3 Positions of armies at sunset, April 6. During the night the Union army was reinforced by 18,000 men under Gen. D. C. Buell and 6,000 men under Gen. Lew Wallace. At 5 o'clock next morning Grant launched a counter offensive and during the day the Confederates retired fighting.

Augustus—Empire Builder 2000 Years Ago

Natural Leader, He Took Ruthless Road to Power

By virtually every measure of his times Augustus was a great man.

By modern standards he falls far short of greatness. This is because, despite his undisputed capacities as a leader of men, he literally splashed his way through blood to attain his position as the supreme power of Rome.

He killed. He plundered.

Back of this killing and plundering were two dominating objectives from which in his ascendancy he never allowed his aim to wander. The first was his purpose to avenge the murder of Julius Cæsar, his great-uncle and adoptive father, a purpose based upon an obsession that haunted him for years. The second was the prize that kept his ambitions spurred, the mastership of Rome. Doer, not dreamer, Augustus never let anything stand in his way. He knew when to act, and he also knew when to bide his time. He could be hard and cruel when hardness and cruelty were profitable politics. He was one of history's foremost politicians.

As examples of his pitiless politics: Witness how cleverly he used the loose-tongued Cicero until the time came when he could afford to let him perish. How he made deals with Marc Antony until he grew powerful enough to crush him. How, with the two other triumvirs, Antony and Lepidus, he drew up a list of proscribed citizens and caused the assassination of 300 senators and 2,000 knights. How he put an end to the danger of the presence of Sextus Pompeius' former followers, the runaway slaves, by crucifying 6,000 of them. How he summarily evicted landholders and gave their properties to his soldiers.

Augustus, as emperor, was a grand-scale builder. Fine public structures rose in Rome at his bidding. Excellent paved highways were constructed at his command through various parts of the empire. Aqueducts were laid by skilled engineers in his employ. He was responsible for the creation of huge harbors, tall lighthouses, fortresses, stadia, and at least one magnificent forum. It is said to have been his boast that he found a city of Rome built of bricks and converted it into a Rome of marble.

And on top of all this he bore the magic name of Cæsar.

Physically Augustus was only of average size, but it is written that he possessed a noble bearing and a personality that made him a man of distinction in any gathering. Virtually all of his life he was handicapped by indispositions. As a young man he possessed a nervous stomach. In his later years he was beset with one ailment after another.

• • •

Augustus was born in the Palatine quarter of the city of Rome, in a house at a corner called "At the Oxheads," just before sunrise on Sept. 23, 63 B. C. His father was a wealthy plebeian, Gaius Octavius, who originally had come from the town of Veletri and who had gained no little prominence, first as a prætor and then as the provincial governor of Macedonia. His mother was Atia, daughter of Julius Cæsar's younger sister, Julia. It was thus through his maternal line that he was connected with the great and powerful Julian clan, the clan of Julius Cæsar. The name given to Augustus at the time of his birth was Gaius Octavius, the same as that of his father.

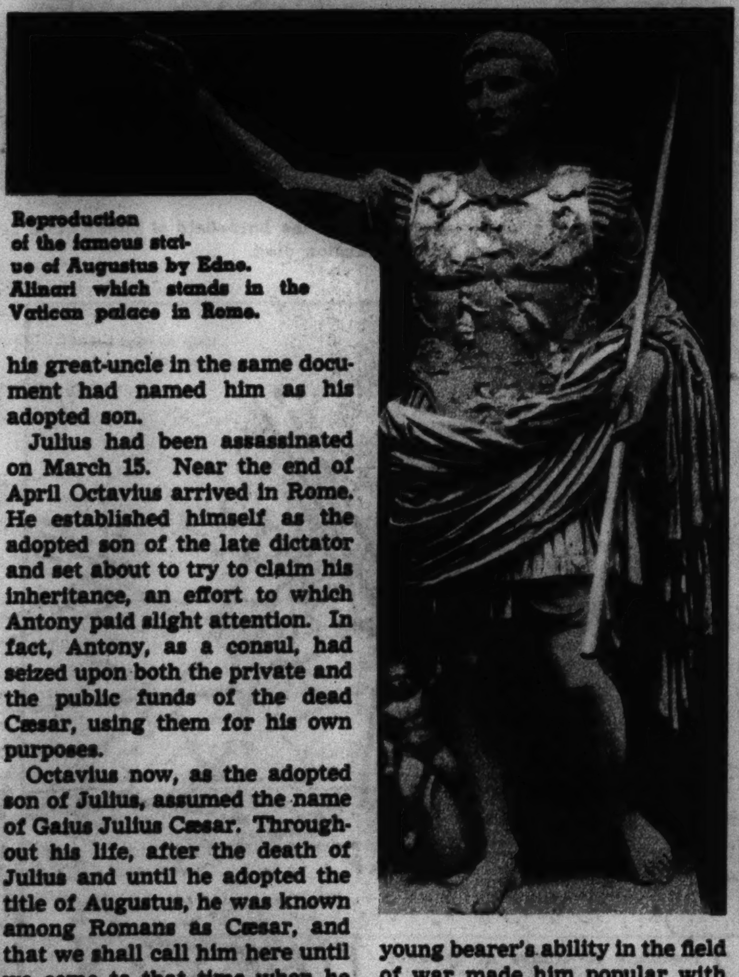
The boy Octavius was in his fifth year when his father died. A year or two later his mother became the wife of Lucius Marcius Philippus, who had been a prætor, governor of Syria, and finally a consul. Octavius dwelt with his grandmother, Julia, until the time of her death, which occurred when he was 12 years old. The boy delivered a stirring funeral oration over the bier of his grandmother, revealing that even at that early age he had the poise required to face a crowd. He went to live in the home of his stepfather thereafter. He was there in his fourteenth year in 49 B. C. when Julius Cæsar, his great-uncle, crossed the Rubicon and entered Rome at the head of his army, compelling his rival, Pompey, to flee.

The spring of 45 B. C. found Octavius in Spain on his way to join his great-uncle, who was waging a war on the two sons of Pompey. The youth, then in his eighteenth year, arrived too late at the scene of the struggle to witness the victory of Julius Cæsar and the death of the elder of his great-uncle's two rivals, but he made such a fine impression on the great soldier after he did arrive that the two for the time being became inseparable companions.

Julius planned an expedition to crush the Parthians, who not many years before had defeated the Roman general Crassus. He sent Octavius to Appolonia, on the western coast of Macedonia, across the Adriatic from Italy, to study under a Greek tutor and to make himself proficient in military matters. It was planned that Octavius was to accompany his great-uncle on the new campaign. But in the spring of 44 B. C. there came to Octavius at Appolonia a messenger bearing the news that Julius Cæsar had been murdered.

• • •

Back to Italy went Octavius. Landing at Brundisium, he learned that Julius Cæsar, who had been knifed to death in the senate house by Marcus Brutus, Cassius, and other conspirators, had bequeathed to him in his will three-quarters of his great estate. He learned further that his great-uncle in the same document had named him as his adopted son.



Reproduction of the famous statue of Augustus by Edne. Alinari which stands in the Vatican palace in Rome.

Julius had been assassinated on March 15. Near the end of April Octavius arrived in Rome. He established himself as the adopted son of the late dictator and set about to try to claim his inheritance, an effort to which Antony paid slight attention. In fact, Antony, as a consul, had seized upon both the private and the public funds of the dead Cæsar, using them for his own purposes.

Octavius now, as the adopted son of Julius, assumed the name of Gaius Julius Cæsar. Throughout his life, after the death of Julius and until he adopted the title of Augustus, he was known among Romans as Cæsar, and that we shall call him here until we come to that time when he officially became known as Augustus.

Cicero, then one of the biggest figures in Rome, once had been a friend of Julius Cæsar, but after the latter's death he publicly acclaimed Brutus, Cassius, and the other murderers as heroes and liberators. Cicero had little regard for the young Cæsar, and he was the bitter foe of Antony, who posed as having been greatly bereft by the death of Julius. The youthful Cæsar, on the other hand, disliked Cicero because of his allegiance to the murderers, but for policy's sake he courted the favor of the older man.

Antony in the meantime was gaining in power. Eventually arrived the time that he became a threat not only to Cæsar but to Rome itself. The senate empowered Cæsar as an army leader to join in the efforts to crush Antony. Decimus Brutus, the man who had lured Julius Cæsar to his death, thus for the moment became an ally of the young Cæsar. Decimus Brutus, with an army, was besieged by Antony's force in the city of Mutina. An army, including troops under Cæsar, was sent to the aid of the besieged general. It twice defeated Antony, relieved the pressure on Decimus Brutus, and permitted the latter to join forces with the relieving troops. After these victories Rome expected Cæsar to unite with Decimus Brutus in the pursuit of Antony, but this the young man refused to do.

Hirtius and Pansa, two consuls, had been slain in the campaign against Antony, and, since Antony by this time had been proclaimed a public enemy, their deaths left Rome without any consuls. There were stories later, based upon contemporary gossip, to the effect that Cæsar had engineered the deaths of Pansa and Hirtius, but modern historians do not place much credence in them.

The aforementioned magic of the name of Cæsar and its young bearer's ability in the field of war made him popular with the soldiers of Rome. They demanded his election to the consulship. This was brought about on Aug. 19, 43 B. C. Cæsar was not yet 20 years of age, the youngest man ever to be chosen a consul.

Antony and Lepidus now appeared in Mutina with an army of about 80,000 men. Lepidus, who at an earlier date had been named by Antony to the position of pontifex maximus (high priest of the pagan religion of Rome), was a man of little force. He was under the domination of Antony, who was as great an opportunist as the young Cæsar himself, but not nearly so clever.

We begin now to see the cunning of the youthful Cæsar cropping out again. Cæsar, who was assigned to the task of making war on Antony and Lepidus, first arranged to have rescinded the order that put the two in the public enemy class. In the back of his head was that obsession to avenge the death of Julius Cæsar. He needed Antony to help him in this. So, with an inferior force, he reached the neighborhood of Mutina, and instead of marching to attack Antony he met him and Lepidus in parley half way between the two camps.

The upshot of this meeting was that Cæsar, Antony, and Lepidus joined forces. In other words, Cæsar made a deal. The three men constituted themselves into a triumvirate. They divided all of the western provinces among themselves, Cæsar taking Sicily, Sardinia, and Africa, which, by the way, were under the control of the fleet of Sextus Pompeius; Antony taking all of Gaul except the southern provinces, and Lepidus taking the southern province of Gaul and all of Spain. Cæsar's object in making this three-cornered pact, as suggested before, was to strengthen himself against Marcus Brutus and Cassius, who were in control in the eastern provinces.

To cement the deal between the two main figures of the triumvirate Cæsar was formally betrothed to Antony's young stepdaughter, Claudia, the child of Fulvia by her former husband, Claudius. This marriage never was consummated.

Here now was Cæsar's first great opportunity for vengeance, his chance to act against the enemies of Julius. Brutus and Cassius were beyond his reach, but there were many in Rome with whom he had a score to settle. Antony, too, had many enemies. So the three triumvirs set in motion a terrible proscription which cost the lives of a number of Rome's most prominent citizens. Three hundred senators and 2,000 knights are said to have been put to death.

Among those killed was Cicero.

Territories of many cities in Italy were seized by the triumvirs and divided among their soldiers.

• • •

In the autumn of 42 B. C. Cæsar and Antony struck at Brutus and Cassius in Macedonia. The campaign culminated on Oct. 23 in the battle of Philippi, in which the armies of the assassins of Julius Cæsar were defeated. Brutus and Cassius ended their lives by throwing themselves on their swords. The cities in the east that had espoused the cause of the two conspirators, Brutus and Cassius, were forced to pay heavy indemnities to help meet the cost of the campaign. Back in Rome, Cæsar levied heavy taxes for the same purpose, confiscated lands, and forcibly evicted landholders in order to pay the wages of the soldiers.

These dispossessed landowners formed a sizable group that caused disturbances in Rome and other cities of Italy. Soon there appeared as their champion Lucius Antonius, brother of Antony. As a co-plotter with him was Fulvia, Antony's wife, who was deeply offended because the young Cæsar had not married her daughter Claudia, as originally arranged. Antony, who in the meantime had remained in the east to exact tribute for Rome, had sent out an order that the heads of all vassal states should meet him on an appointed day in Tarsus. It was there and under these circumstances that he met the seductive queen of the Egyptians, the Ptolemy ruler Cleopatra, who some years before had been the mistress of Julius Cæsar and who had borne the dictator a son, Cæsarion.

Lucius and Fulvia stirred all Italy up into a new civil war. While they were at this, Sextus Pompeius was harassing the western coast of Italy, playing havoc with Rome's food supply. An army under Lucius was defeated by Cæsar's general, Agrippa, and Lucius was forced to take refuge with the remnants of his army within the walled city of Perusia. Early in the year of 40 B. C., after a siege of many months, Lucius surrendered and joined forces with Cæsar. Fulvia was permitted to go free. Perusia, which now is called Perugia, was burned. Republican remnants of the garrison and senatorial refugees were put to death. This was Cæsar's last stage in avenging the death of Julius and the coup de grace of the moribund conservative cause, according to John Buchan (Lord Tweedsmuir) in his splendid biography of Augustus.

Wrote Suetonius of Cæsar's acts immediately following the fall of Perusia:

"After the capture of Perusia he took vengeance on many, meeting all attempts to beg pardon or to make excuses with the one reply, 'You must die!' Some write that 300 men of both orders were selected from the prisoners of war and sacrificed on the ides of March like so many victims at the altar raised to the deified Julius."

Fulvia, whose intrigues had been partly instrumental in turning Cæsar and Antony against each other, was taken from the turbulent scene finally by death, and the two men patched up their differences again—made a new deal—with Antony marrying Cæsar's sister, Octavia, widow of C. Claudius Marcellus. About that same time Cæsar made for himself a political marriage with Scrobina, who was related to Sextus Pompeius. This marriage was intended to placate the surviving son of Pompey, whose fleets continued to be a menace to Rome's corn supply.

He Crucified 6,000 Men Just for Political Expediency

Cæsar's next war was against this very Sextus Pompeius, whose relative he had wedded. It was launched in the spring of 38 B. C., shortly after he had divorced Scrobina and married Livia. The divorce of Scrobina was for political reasons. It was imperative that he get rid of her so that he could wed Livia. Scrobina was divorced upon the very day that she gave birth to Cæsar's only child, his daughter Julia. Livia had given birth to a son, Drusus, just three days before her marriage to Cæsar (some authorities say that the child was not born until three months after the marriage). Tiberius Claudius Nero, father of the baby Drusus, was the complaisant husband of Livia. He politely stepped out of the picture and agreed to a divorce when Cæsar wanted his wife. It is said that he even attended the wedding.

In the war referred to in the preceding paragraph the forces of Cæsar again were victorious. Sextus had a powerful fleet at sea, but Agrippa, Cæsar's trusted aid, built a fleet of more than equal strength in a small inland lake near Naples, then cut a channel through to the sea and sailed out to meet the son of Pompey, who had met with earlier successes in the war. At the battle of Naulochus, fought off Sicily in 36 B. C., Agrippa sent 300 war vessels against the 300 possessed by Sextus. Agrippa's ships were more skilfully manned and were of greater weight. Sextus was badly beaten and forced to flee with the few vessels of his fleet that escaped destruction. Sextus, in attempting to escape to Armenia, was captured by troops of Antony and put to death at Miletus.

After the defeat of Sextus the triumvir Lepidus demanded possession of Italy. He threatened war, but his troops were won over by Cæsar and he was taken prisoner, leaving Cæsar master of the west. According to René Francis in the book "Augustus—His Life and His Work," Cæsar found between 30,000 and 40,000 runaway slaves among the former followers of Sextus, 6,000 of whom he ordered crucified. This was a cruel political stroke, intended obviously to strike fear in the hearts of slaves who might in the future be inclined to menace Rome's safety.

Five years have passed. Antony has abandoned his wife, Octavia, sister of Cæsar, and married Cleopatra of Egypt, former mistress of Julius—posing before her subjects as a god. The two, with combined armies and combined navies, are established on the coast of Greece. Cæsar, with an army and a fleet, the latter under the command of Agrippa, moves against them. Antony decides against a battle on land in favor of a sea fight, despite the fact that he has a great superiority on land. After a long series of operations the naval battle of Actium is fought on Sept. 2, 31 B. C., outside the Gulf of Arta.

The combined fleets of Antony and Cleopatra were beaten. The two fled back to Egypt. Cæsar in the following months invaded the country of the queen. Alexandria, the Egyptian capital, surrendered to the Roman army Aug. 1, 30 B. C. Antony threw himself on his sword, was carried to the presence of Cleopatra, and died in her arms.

Cleopatra still had a card to play. She decided to make a final effort to save her country and her throne by employing her charm to melt the heart of Cæsar. But the scheme failed. Cæsar, not nearly so human as the vain Antony, refused to be tempted. Cleopatra still was a beautiful woman, but it should be borne in mind that she no longer was young. In fact, she was nearing 40 when she played her last card with Cæsar. A serpent, secreted at her command in a basket of fruit, accommodated the despairing queen by biting her. She died, and all Egypt belonged to Rome.

For political reasons Cæsar then put to death Antyllus, Fulvia's son by Antony, and Cæsarion, Cleopatra's son by Julius. But he permitted the twin children born to Antony by Cleopatra to live. All over the Roman world Cæsar's great victory was celebrated in triumphs. Cæsar was undisputed master.

• • •

In the year 29 B. C. Cæsar was proclaimed imperator for life, on the assumption that through his victories he had restored the republic. On Jan. 13, 27 B. C., he was awarded the civic crown to be placed above his door, and four days later he was allowed by the senate to assume the title of Augustus, the act which now is looked upon by historians as marking the beginning of the Roman empire.

Twenty years of civil wars had disorganized the Roman world. Augustus set about the business of restoring it and consolidating the empire. He married off his daughter Julia, widow of Marcellus, to his colleague Agrippa. He put into the hands of his stepsons, Tiberius and the aforementioned Drusus, the task of pacifying the Germans. He contrived to have himself elected pontifex maximus on the death of Lepidus in 12 B. C. In 9 B. C. his stepson Drusus, who was his favorite, died. Succumbed also in the succeeding years his two adopted sons, the children of Julia and Agrippa. Tiberius alone was left to carry on his work, so in A. D. 4 this surviving son of his wife Livia finally was formally adopted and made his heir.

The emperor was about 60 years old when there was born in Bethlehem, Palestine, within his own empire, one who was to make a more lasting impression on the world than all the Cæsars and kings combined. It is doubtful, however, whether Augustus ever heard of Jesus.

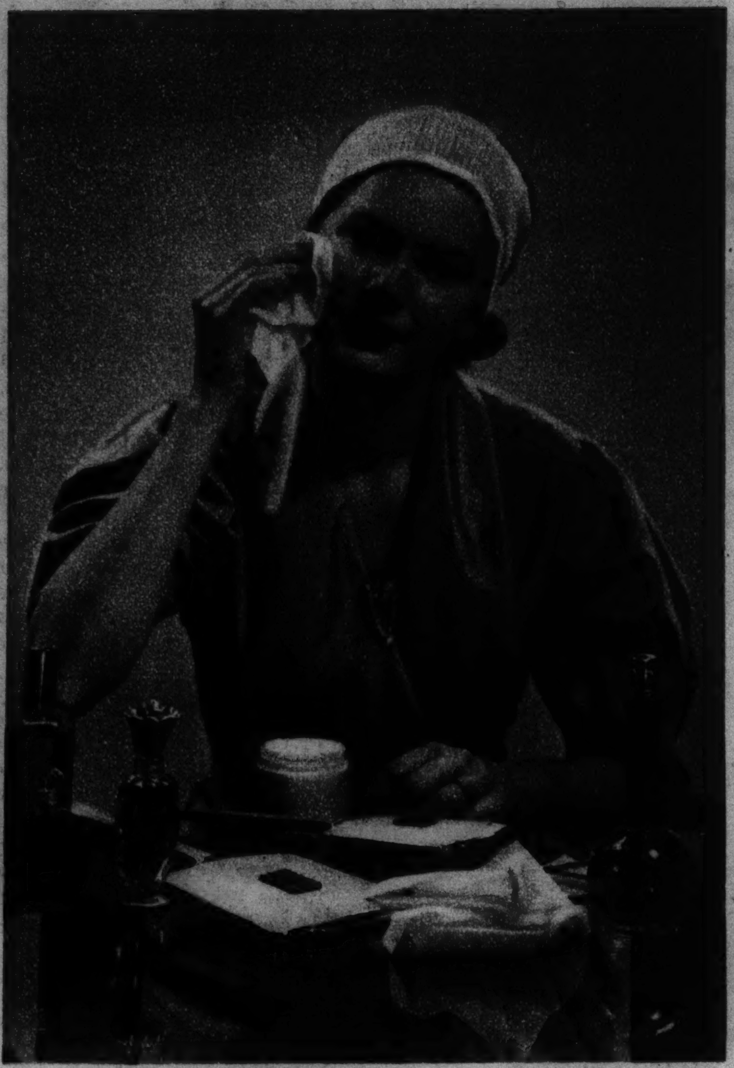
The defeat in the country beyond the Rhine of his incompetent general Varus, one of the few really incapable lieutenants that he ever had entrusted with a vital task, was the last event of great importance in Augustus' long career. His last five years of life were peaceful.

In his father's house in Nola, on Aug. 19, A. D. 14, Augustus died. His last words were to his faithful wife, bidding her to "live mindful of our wedded life."

For Beauty's Sake, Make Resolutions Stick

Six Rituals Worth the Effort

TRIBUNE STUDIO PHOTOS



1 Cleanse your face every night before retiring. Scratch the hit and miss system of cleansing right off your schedule. If you are lazy, you simply give the grime and stale makeup a chance to get in their dirty work.

2 Then apply in gentle manner a cream to soften and smooth the skin that has been cleansed. A pat in time may save nine wrinkles and what woman would not be interested in that? Don't forget the upward and outward strokes.

3 Don't hide the hairbrush. The first 100 strokes will be the hardest, but you won't mind this when you see your crowning glory take on a sheen not to be had in any other way. It will be worth it.

4 Pluck one, pluck two, and do it every day. This bit of tweezer work plays an important part in keeping eyebrows well shaped and trim. Add a little brushing and you'll be proud to lift them anywhere.

5 Hands massaged well will be massaged wisely. Work into each finger a good hand cream, gently pushing back the cuticle while doing so. Hands are an index to character and they'll reveal the fact that you have not shown them the proper respect if you neglect them.

6 Resolve to stretch every day! Reach for the ceiling, reach for the floor, or do a two-way stretch sideways. Stretching is one of the ways to keep that young and lovely figure, and to relieve the tension that ties nerves into knots.

Perseverance in the Daily Tasks All-important

By FLORENCE MURDOCH

MAYBE we're just creatures of habit, but when the New Year rolls in we invariably run for paper and pencil and jot down good resolutions by the dozen. If you feel the urge to make some promises to yourself don't overlook a few guaranteed to guard your good looks and contribute to perfect grooming. Be weak if you must and break all others you have made, but be firm in your resolve:

• • •

To thoroughly cleanse your face every night before going to bed. Don't think that a hit and miss system of tonight-I-will or tonight-I-won't will keep your skin in condition. Stale makeup does so much harm and just a few minutes spent with a jar of cleansing cream or soap and water will take the place of a much longer time needed to recondition the skin after neglect.

• • •

To keep your skin soft and smooth and to stave off the oncoming wrinkles by using a night cream or oil; and to use this softening agent in the right way, gently patting and massaging upward and outward.

• • •

To use your hairbrush for more than dresser decoration. Do a little hair raising stunt and add some sheen while removing some dirt and helping your scalp. A good hair brushing never did hurt a wave. Prove to it that you can count up to 100. The first 100 strokes probably will be the hardest, but you'll think nothing of it.

• • •

To, day by day, pluck an eyebrow away. Of course that doesn't mean a whole eyebrow. Far from it. When you are making up for the day bring the tweezers into play and you'll find that a stray hair plucked here and there will keep a trim, clean and well-shaped eyebrow that will frame your eyes beautifully. If you let them accumulate and get out of bounds, this particular bit of grooming develops into a long and sometimes painful task. Train them along the curved and not too narrow path.

• • •

To use a hand cream. Make its use a nightly rite. Pretend you are putting on a glove of cream, and massage it in finger by finger, pushing back the cuticle while doing this. Or, if you prefer a liquid, go through the same motions. Promise yourself that during the day, for every bit of oil removed by washing, you will replace some by lotion-ing.

• • •

To stretch daily for the good of your silhouette. Lie on your back and stretch. Sit in a chair and stretch. Stand on both feet and stretch. Reach for the ceiling; reach for your toes; do a two-way stretch sideways. It all helps to keep a young and lovely figure.

To follow this program religiously. The dividends will be like a kick in the shins to old Father Time.

LOOK, FELLERS! ALL THESE DOUGHNUTS JUST FOR US—MOM MADE 'EM WITH DIGESTIBLE CRISCO

Foods fried in Crisco are crisp, greaseless, wholesome through and through

Truce! The battle between a youngster's big appetite . . . and his sensitive digestion is won when Mother starts frying with Crisco! Crisco fried foods don't lie "heavy as a log" in the stomach. No! Foods fried in digestible Crisco are crisp and crunchy outside . . . tender and greaseless inside as if broiled! Naturally, foods like this are wholesome for children.

Marvelous for cakes! Crisco is the extra-creamy all-vegetable shortening. It blends with sugar and eggs in 30 seconds—no preliminary creaming. And Crisco cakes turn out fluffier!

Flaky pastry that melts in your mouth . . . that's the kind Crisco gives you. Your family will rave about it!

Buy thrifty 3-lb. Crisco—save money—save refrigerator space (Crisco doesn't need refrigeration)—save digestions by cooking only with digestible Crisco!

Army, Navy Turn to Multimotored Planes

Twin-Engine Ship Used Widely

By WAYNE THOMIS

THE military air services of the United States have definitely turned to large airplanes for all phases of flying, and the trend is toward multimotored planes for every type of service.

Here is a page full of photographs which depict the newest machines to be received by the army and navy air corps. Note that only two of the group are single-engined planes and that both the army and navy have begun to order four-motored, fast, long range machines for patrol, patrol bombing, and heavy bombardment work.

It will be noted also that the twin-engined plane has invaded every field, even that of the pursuit or strictly fighting plane. The Bell Airacuda, the twin-motored pusher fighter, indicates the sort of fighting plane which most of the countries of the world must come to sooner or later. It is heavily armed and extremely fast.

Also it will be seen that the new Curtiss A-18 attack plane is a twin-motored weapon. For the speedy, low-flying attack machines the development into the multiengined class was inevitable.

One of the army's 13 flying fortress bombers more formally designated the B-17. One of these ships once flew 2,300 miles at an average speed of 232 m. p. h. (Acme photo.)

First of the Curtiss A-18 attack planes. This also is the first twin engined attack plane to be placed in service by the air corps. (Acme photo.)

Let us consider these airplanes in order.

At the top of the page we have the Boeing 299—now called the B-17 or "flying fortress" bomber. Powered with four 1,230 h.p. Wright Cyclone engines it is capable of high speeds approximating 275 miles an hour. Its range is nearly 3,000 miles and it is capable of carrying a bomb load of two tons. Defensively it is virtually impregnable with five gun blisters covering every section of the sky about it.

The B-17 weighs 45,000 pounds, has a wing spread of 105 feet and a fuselage 90 feet long. The army has 13 of these ships in service and 26 more on order. Although it is not shown here the B-15, also built for the army by Boeing, is even larger. This machine has four 1,400 horse power twin-row Wasp engines, weighs 60,000 pounds, and has a wing spread of 150 feet. It is said to be capable of 250 miles an hour and is supposed to have a 6,000 mile range.

• • •

To the right of the B-17 is an even later army bomber—the Douglas B-18. This machine has a 95 foot wing spread, a top speed of 235 miles an hour, a range of 3,000 miles with a bomb load of 3,000 pounds. The engines—only two for this bomber—are 1,230 h.p. Wright Cyclones. The army has ordered 177 of these bombers, which are a wonderful improvement over the Martin B-10s and B-12s.

The big four-engined flying boat shown under the B-17 is the navy's newest acquisition, the Consolidated XPB-Y2. With the new Sikorsky four-motored "pocket battleship" it typifies the navy's trend toward larger, longer-range fighting ships. The Consolidated, which has a wing spread of over 110 feet and a top speed said to be 240 miles an hour, is undergoing flying trials.

The vast wing is entirely braced from within. The floats which balance the big ship when it is at rest on water retract in flight to form the wing tips. The motors are 1,230 h.p. Cyclones, and the range is over 4,500 miles with a bomb load described by the navy authorities as "huge." Wireless and radio equipment rivals that of a light cruiser, and there are complete living quarters for the crews. It also is said to be heavily armored.

• • •

The Curtiss-built P-37 is the army's newest single seat fighter now being given tests at Wright field. All metal, with retractile landing gear, it is powered with an Allison V-12 Prestone cooled motor rated at 1,000 h.p. This fighter, of which all other details are secret, is supposed to have a speed of nearly 400 miles an hour. The army admits it is faster than 350 m.p.h.

For experiments in stratosphere flying the army purchased during the year a Lockheed Electra with a special cabin which can be sealed and heated so that the crew will be perfectly comfortable without special flying clothing or oxygen when piloting the ship at heights up to 30,000 feet. The Wasp engines, 550 h.p. each, have turbo-superchargers that enable them to develop their power up to 25,000 feet. Recently this ship flew at a ground speed of 340 miles an hour. Tail winds helped of course.

The army's Seversky fighters—77 of which are on order—showed pretty well what they could do last summer in the national air races. These all-metal monoplanes fly at 300 m.p.h. at sea level and almost 400 m.p.h. at 15,000 feet. Frank Fuller set a new Bendix race record in a commercial version of this ship and Maj. Alex. Seversky, the designer and builder, has made a number of records in standard fighter versions. In this ship the motor is a twin Wasp engine of 1,100 h.p.

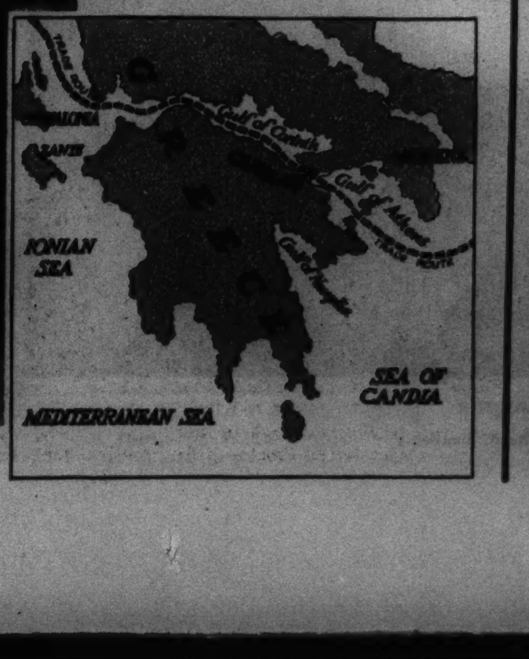
The Bell Airacuda is one of the most interesting military ships in the world. For one thing it is the first military pusher built in nearly 20 years. For another its performance is outstanding, top speed being 350 m.p.h. A second Bell now is being built which is supposed to do 375 m.p.h. The heavy guns which are shown in the photograph are 37 millimeter cannon. They are fixed guns which are aimed as the pilot aims his ship.

Last but far from least we come to the Curtiss A-18 which was partly described above. The motors are Cyclones, and the plane is supposed to fly at 290 m.p.h. when only 50 feet off the ground. It is armed with seven heavy machine guns, six of them being fired by the pilot and the remainder by a gunner who thus guards the tail. It carries bombs and poison gas. The range is almost 2,000 miles.

Corinth Canal—Strategic Short Cut to Mediterranean

(Ewing Galloway photo.)
A freight laden vessel is towed between the precipitous walls of the Corinth canal.

WHEN the ancient Greeks wanted to take a short cut from the Gulf of Corinth to the Gulf of Athens they dragged their ships across the Isthmus of Corinth. Not until 1893, after 12 years of construction, could ships take the historic short cut on water, through Greece's four mile Corinth canal—saving 202 miles on the trip between the Adriatic and Piersęus seas. The canal assumes new importance today as the supremacy of the Mediterranean fluctuates. In case of war involving nearby Turkey it might easily become a strategic plum.



Brain Trusts of Old Had Curious Names

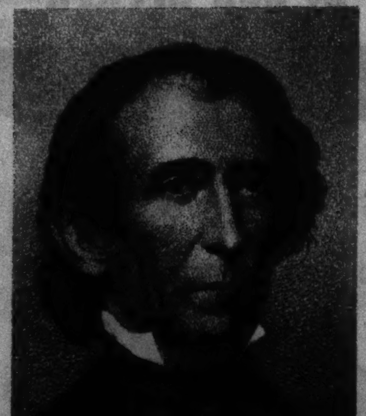
Tyler's Was "Corporal's Guard"

Jackson's a "Kitchen Cabinet"

By WALTER TROHAN

Washington, D. C.

ON THE bright, chill afternoon of Feb. 28, 1844, a gay party, headed by President John Tyler, made an excursion down the Potomac river aboard the naval marvel of the day—the U. S. S. Princeton. The party was aboard at the invitation of Capt. Robert Field Stockton, hero of the war of 1812 and the war with the Barbary pirates, who had been honored with the command of the newest and finest steam vessel in the young but glorious navy.



President Tyler, whose brain trust was dubbed "his corporal's guard of friends."

President Tyler's second wife, the former Julia Gardiner.

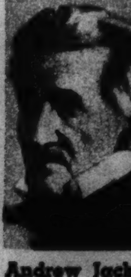
In small groups the captain piloted his distinguished guests on tours of the craft. Proudly he pointed to the screw propeller and the propelling machinery below the water line, both "firsts" for the navy. The aged Mrs. Madison, once "Queen Dolly" of the White House, rubbed her eyes and cackled, "What won't they invent next?" to the pleasure of John Ericsson, the young designer of the Princeton, of whom the country was to hear more two decades later.

But the greater share of the guests' attention went to two huge guns, christened after the fashion of that day Peacemaker and Oregon. Patting the breech of Peacemaker as affectionately as a country squire might thwack the hindquarters of a favorite hunter, Captain Stockton explained that the guns could throw shells of 225 pounds.

Sailors fussed about Peacemaker in the bow of the warship like grooms about a horse, for it was to be demonstrated to the company. Twice as the Princeton steamed leisurely down the cleared Potomac the huge gun roared and sent its charge hurtling far ahead to spray a geyser of icy water. The ladies stuck their fingers in their ears and squealed at the thunder claps and vibration of the vessel to Peacemaker's recoil.

After the second shot the vessel put about and started homeward. President Tyler went below to the wardroom for a snack and to enjoy feminine company—the company of Miss Julia Gardiner, a slip of a girl of 20 years, creating no small ripple in the capital social life during a brief visit with her father, known to history only as "Mr. Gardiner of Gardiner's Island, Long Island sound, a wealthy tourist."

Martin Van Buren, who for the benefit of Peggy Eaton supported President Jackson against the capital wives.



Andrew Jackson, whose group of personal advisers was known throughout the country as the "kitchen cabinet."

There doubtless was some disapproval. Probably several scandalized sniffs were audible and ignored. Undoubtedly some matron whispered, "My dears! And Mrs. Tyler hardly cold in her grave." Mrs. Tyler had died two years before, but that in the strict '40s hardly gave the widower time to wipe the tears of grief from his eyes.

No doubt by the standards of today the chatter of the graying gallant and the maiden was painfully precise, but it brought, in all likelihood, roses to her cheeks and made him forget a good many of his 54 years. No doubt both were annoyed when it was cut short by the announcement that Peacemaker was to be fired for the third and last time.

And would Mr. President come on deck. Making his excuses to Miss Julia and then to some of the other ladies, who had had quite enough, thank you, and would remain below, Tyler went on deck for the final test.

There was some delay. As the minutes dragged on as slow as oxen to Miss Julia in the wardroom, she was seized with a coy impulse. The piously grim would say she was seized by a presentment and, yet, remembering that the next day was the twenty-ninth of February, one is inclined to believe Miss Julia yielded to the witchery of the day when maidens can throw aside their reserve and do the proposing.

Peggy Eaton, wife of Secretary of War John H. Eaton, who was the cause of the reorganization of President Andrew Jackson's cabinet.

At any length Miss Julia gathered her skirts about her and minced in her beribboned slippers to the companionway. Mounting a few steps, she caught the eye of the President and playfully called him to her. He went below with the alacrity of a sorely smitten swain. (Everything was perfectly proper. Remember the aged but vigilant guardian of propriety, Mrs. Madison.)

"Mr. President, we are ready," came a shout from the gun deck.

Tyler hesitated for another look into Miss Julia's eyes. It was a long look.

"Mr. President, we are about to fire."

Tyler again hesitated and thereby saved his life, for the charge burst the cannon and the deck of the Princeton ran red with the blood of the dead and wounded. Five were killed and twenty-two wounded.

• • •

Among the dead were Abel Parker Upshur, secretary of state, and Thomas Walker Gilmer, secretary of the navy. They were close friends and advisers of Tyler, so near to him that he expressed his grief in a communication to congress.

To Henry Clay, the great Whig, they were two of "Tyler's corporal's guard of friends." So Clay caustically dubbed Tyler's advisers when outraged by the "accidental" President's reversion to Jeffersonian Democracy on stepping into the office President Harrison held but a month after his inauguration. Death made "and Tyler too" President.

In Jackson's day Upshur and Gilmer would have been known as members of the "kitchen cabinet." In the administration of Theodore Roosevelt they would have been known as members of the "tennis cabinet," and in the Hoover administration as members of the "medicine ball cabinet."

And today they would be "brain trusters."

For, from the earliest days of the republic, Presidents have had as their closest advisers men within and without the government service. Even the college professor is not unique to this administration; Tyler had one among his "corporal's guard of friends."

• • •

Lest there be any anxiety about the romance of President Tyler and Miss Julia, it is immediately put to rest. Mr. Gardiner was killed in the gun explosion. Mr. Tyler assuaged the daughter's grief so well that in three months they were married in New York City and the President brought his bride to the White House to replace a married daughter as its mistress.

Tyler's advisers before the accident were, in addition to Upshur and Gilmer, John Cook Rives, editor; Nathaniel Beverley Tucker, professor of law at William and Mary, and Henry A. Wise, soldier and statesman. All five were Virginians. Upshur had been promoted to the cabinet from a Virginia court as his reward for service to Tyler. Gilmer, who came from the house of representatives, where he had earned the sobriquet of Retrenchment Gilmer, got the navy post.

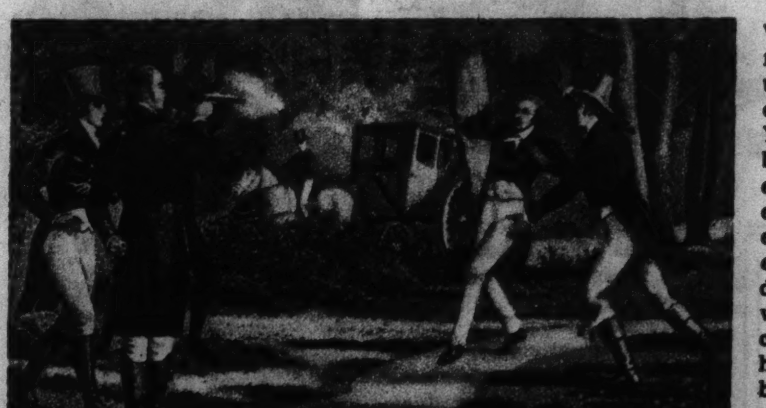
Wise turned down the navy post before it was given to Gilmer. He was later made minister to Brazil and in 1856 elected governor of Virginia, and at the outbreak of the Civil war became a brigadier general in the Confederate army, winning a major generalship at the hands of Robert E. Lee in the closing days of the conflict. Rives, who had been trained by an earlier presidential adviser, Francis P. Blair, editor of the Globe, who was a member of Jackson's "kitchen cabinet," and Tucker, who was of a distinguished Virginia family, did not enter public life, being satisfied with their careers.

• • •

The first presidential adviser was Alexander Hamilton, the founder of the Federalist party, from which springs the Republican party of today. As secretary of the treasury Hamilton had the ear of George Washington and played a major part in the launching of the nation on the constitution he had helped to formulate.

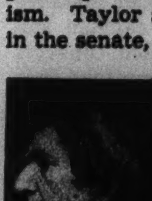
The first President asked written opinions of his cabinet officers on perplexing problems. History tells us that he took those of Hamilton every time over combined opposition of the other members of the cabinet, including Thomas Jefferson, Hamilton's archfoe and founder of the Democratic party. At times Washington submitted the opinions of the other cabinet members to Hamilton before the latter had submitted his so that the treasury chief could answer their objections to a given course of action in his. He was the author of Washington's greatest state paper, the "Farewell Address."

Hamilton was cut down untimely by Aaron Burr's pistol in the gray dawn of a sultry summer day in July, 1804. Had he been spared he would undoubtedly have continued his active part in national affairs and would have risen to various high offices.



The killing of Alexander Hamilton by Aaron Burr, from an old print.

As President, Jefferson had his chief advisers in James Madison and John Taylor of Carolina, one of the greatest disciples and philosophers of agrarian liberalism. Taylor served three times in the senate, and Madison went on to the White House from Jefferson's cabinet.



William H. Seward, whose literary genius was of assistance to his chief, Abraham Lincoln.

James Monroe, a Madison adviser, succeeded him as President. His chief adviser, John Quincy Adams, the author of the doctrin that bears Monroe's name, succeeded the last of the great Virginians and when he was denied reëlection returned to the capital to serve his country for many able years in the house.

They were giants in those days.

One of the best known groups of advisers was ushered in shortly after John Quincy Adams left Washington by one muddy road as President Jackson came in triumphantly by another on the raw March 4 of 1829. They were the members of the "kitchen cabinet," so named because its members had to go through the back door to meet with Jackson in a private room of the White House.

Chief among them were Editor Blair, whom Jackson brought from the west to found an administration newspaper, the Globe; William B. Lewis, who managed Jackson's first campaign and was a master politician, and Amos Kendall of Kentucky. Lewis was rewarded for his counsels with the post of auditor, and Blair found his paper profitable. His home, which has witnessed many a historic scene in the country's history, including Lee's declination of the command of the Union army, still stands in Washington, and his descendants are among the capital's first families.

Kendall, the chief of the group, was a strange character. Throughout a large part of his period of influence he was nothing more than fourth assistant postmaster general, but later he received the office of postmaster general. A silent, wiry, seedy, and slovenly man, he is credited with being the one who contributed most to the success of Jackson's administration.

The social furor created by Jackson's determined effort to establish Peggy Eaton, one-time barmaid, brought another man to the fore of the close advisers. Martin Van Buren, who could well support Jackson against capital wives because he was wifeless, was accepted by Jackson as something more than a political appointee and was rewarded for his part in the administrations with the presidency when Jackson relinquished the office.

• • •

And down through the administrations intimate advisers were taken into the official family or stepped off into successful political careers except in instances where the adviser was already a national figure. Such an adviser was William H. Seward, Lincoln's and Johnson's secretary of state. It is said that Seward, after falling under the spell of the great humanitarian President, dictated Johnson's policy of clemency to the south. Seward drank of magnanimity of soul from his great chieftain. Before he became an adviser Seward was governor of New York and a candidate for the Republican nomination Lincoln won in the Wigwam at Chicago in 1860.

Lincoln, unquestionably the most literarily gifted of the White House occupants, was not one to spurn a good suggestion. In fact, his state papers offer that rarity—the suggestion of the ghost writer and the finished product.

When Lincoln came east to be inaugurated in 1861 he submitted the draft of his inaugural address to members of his cabinet. Seward, his defeated rival for the Republican nomination and soon to be his secretary of state, held little esteem for the literary ability of the lank, raw-boned Illinoisan; in fact, he held little esteem for him in any way. He submitted a concluding paragraph which he thought would redeem the entire address. It was:

"I close. We are not, we must not be, aliens or enemies, but fellow countrymen and brethren. Although passion has strained our bonds of affection too hardly, they must not, I am sure they will not, be broken. The mystic chords which, proceeding from so many battlefields and so many patriotic graves, pass through all the hearts and all the harths in this broad continent of ours, will yet again harmonize in their ancient music when breathed upon by the guardian angel of the nation."

A splendid thought, and well expressed. Lincoln, never given to false pride of authorship, recognized its merit. Here was something he could use, something he had missed. He seized upon it and transmuted it into pure literary gold. Here is the concluding paragraph of his first inaugural address:

"I am loath to close. We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break, our bonds of affection. The mystic chords of memory, stretching from every battlefield and every patriot grave to every living heart and harthstone all over this broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union when again touched, as surely they will be, by the better angels of our nature."

• • •

In more recent times President William McKinley had the benefit, in preparing copy for public utterances, of the literary style of a close adviser, James Russell Young, who at the age of 25 had been Horace Greeley's managing editor. McKinley was a chief executive who relied to no small extent upon the words of advisers. Especially was this true during the Spanish-American war, when the President's war cabinet (distinct and apart from his regular cabinet) was headed by Admiral Alfred T. Mahan, naval historian and strategist of international fame. Mahan had been retired, but on the outbreak of hostilities he returned to service to act on the naval war board.

Theodore Roosevelt placed most of his tennis-playing advisers in his cabinet at one time or another. During his years in office he established a record for cabinet changes, putting twenty-three men at his counsel table. He firmly believed advisers should be in the cabinet, although he had some on the outside. Among the latter was Maj. Callan O'Laughlin, former Washington correspondent of The Tribune, who was rewarded with the berth of assistant secretary of state.

Admiral Alfred T. Mahan, who headed President William McKinley's group of war advisers.

Woodrow Wilson had a one-man brain trust and confidant in Col. E. M. House, who achieved national and even international prominence. He and Wilson fell out, and House slid back into the anonymity from which he sprang to power.

Out of the Hoover "medicine ball cabinet" Harlan Fiske Stone stepped to the Supreme court. Among its other members were several cabinet officers.

An unusual white lobster from the North sea. Lobster shells now have industrial value.

Putting Luster in Textiles by Using Lobster Shells

GOURMETS who have been troubled about what to do with empty lobster shells will be pleased to know that the chemical industry is finding uses for the material. The horny armor of lobsters and other crustaceans has been found to be a starting material for the manufacture of chemicals which give a soft, lustrous finish to textiles.

The material which makes up the protective coatings of crustaceans and insects is known as chitin. It differs profoundly from the hard materials used in the skeletons or armor of other forms of animal life. The supporting matter of sponges is calcium silicate. The shells of oysters, clams, and snails are built of calcium carbonate, or limestone. The bones of vertebrates consist of calcium phosphate. Each of these three compounds is mineral in nature. The chitin found in crustaceans, on the other hand, is an organic substance and one that bears little chemical resemblance to any other component of living matter.

Perhaps its nearest chemical relation is the cellulose of plants. Cellulose is a complex combination of a great number of sugar molecules. When subjected to the prolonged destructive action of dilute acids it is eventually broken down into sugar. Chitin is an analogous complex, not of sugar, but of a substance called acetyl glucosamine.

This last substance is as complicated as its name. It is a compound of acetic acid and glucosamine. The latter, the essential building stone of the chitin molecule, is in turn a compound of sugar and ammonia. Glucosamine possesses most of the properties of the sugars. In addition it has the alkaline action of ammonia.

To convert the chitin into industrially useful products it is first subjected to a chemical treatment which removes the acetic acid, leaving a polymerized glucosamine in the form of a gelatinous solid. This is made water soluble by treatment with acids. The sirupy solutions thus formed are used to modify the textures of fabrics, to thicken solutions, and to stabilize emulsions.

Found: A New Particle

Dr. Carl D. Anderson

MATTER is made up of molecules, which are made up of atoms, which in turn are made up of subatomic particles. The latter possess weight, measured in units equal to the weight of the hydrogen atom (about 17 septillion to the ounce) and usually have electric charges, measured in ionic charge units (about 6 quintillion to the coulomb).

Before 1937 the following subatomic particles had been discovered: The electron, .00054 unit in weight and having one negative charge; the proton, weighing one unit and having one positive charge; the alpha particle, four units in weight, with two positive charges; the deuton, two weight units and one positive charge; the neutron, weighing one unit and having no charge at all; and the positron, weighing .00054 of a unit and having a positive charge.

Since only one of these six is negatively charged, it would seem that a shrewd prophet might well have dug up theoretical reasons for predicting the existence of another negative particle. Such a prophecy would have been well verified this year. Last winter Dr. Carl D. Anderson of California Institute of Technology discovered a fast-moving particle produced by cosmic radiation of matter, whose penetrating power could not be explained if it were an electron.

Recently Dr. J. C. Street of Harvard succeeded in photographing the curved path of this particle as it passed through a magnetic field. The direction of the curve showed it to be negatively charged, while the amount of curvature and the penetrating power gave a rough measure of the weight and charge. The charge was one negative unit, while the weight lay between .055 and .085 of a unit. The particle has yet to be named.

ONE of the purest forms of cellulose is that obtained from wood by the sulphite process. In this process wood chips are cooked under pressure with a solution of calcium sulphite. This treatment converts the lignin, the gummy solid that glues the cottony cellulose fibers into a hard mass of wood, into a water-soluble product known as lignin sulphonic acid. The undissolved pulp of cellulose may then be separated mechanically from the solution.

The solution remaining after the separation of the cellulose, containing lignin sulphonic acid, sugars from the decomposition of cellulose, and mineral matter, is a source of extreme annoyance to many pulp manufacturers. It has a horrible smell, and huge quantities of it are produced. Although not particularly poisonous, only limited amounts of this waste liquor can be discharged into small streams. Because of its high sugar content, it combines with the dissolved oxygen that the fish must breathe, thereby literally drowning the fish.

Chemists have found that by acid treatment the lignon sulphonic acid can be broken down and removed from solution as a dark resinous solid. The remaining liquid, which contains sugar, can be used as a source of alcohol, or as a culture medium for yeast when suitably purified. Of possible future importance is the fact that the insoluble lignin residue can be made into cheap tanning agents.

The most interesting application of this solid residue, in view of the frightful odor of the sulphite waste from which it is obtained, is its conversion into vanillin, the active ingredient of vanilla flavor. The lignin molecule is a large one built up of units resembling the vanillin molecule. By cooking the recovered lignin residue under pressure it can be broken down into these units. The product is then converted in part to vanillin by carefully controled oxidation with air.

The process offers no hope for the complete utilization of sulphite waste liquors, for the reason that all the vanilla the country uses does not come near to equaling the sulphite waste it produces. The lowly origin of this synthetic vanillin is not to its discredit, however. Synthetic vanillin produced by this or other methods is identical with that present in the vanilla bean. The only fault of the synthetic product is that it is too pure. Its flavor lacks the modifying influence of minor impurities unavoidably present in the natural product.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Alert, keeping her eyes on the flock, and ready to dash after any sheep that breaks away, Heather Jean, a field trial winning border collie, unconsciously strikes a very businesslike pose. This variety of collie, usually weighing between 30 and 40 pounds, is not recognized by the American Kennel club. It is widely used in Scotland and gradually is becoming better known in America. (Tribune photo.)

Small Collie Popular as Herder

WITHOUT doubt one of the earliest uses of a dog was to help herd the stock of his master. Early references to dogs confirm this. When you examine the works of Roman writers you find that they divided dogs into three classifications, watchdogs, sheep dogs, and hunting dogs. It is quite likely that the conquering Romans brought these dogs into England. The Bible also gives us a sidelight on the early use of dogs for herding, as in the book of Job we read Job's reference to "those whose fathers I would have disdained to have set with dogs of my flocks."

Since dogs have helped for many centuries to tend the flocks of their masters—a practice that prevailed in many countries—it isn't surprising that today we still have a rather large number of working breeds with herding instincts and a real working background. The Belgian sheep dog, Bouvier des Flandres, collie, Old English sheep dog, and others are in this group.

Of these the collie seems most often to have inspired the muse of the poet. Wordsworth in his "Evening Walk" gives a stirring picture of a working sheep dog:

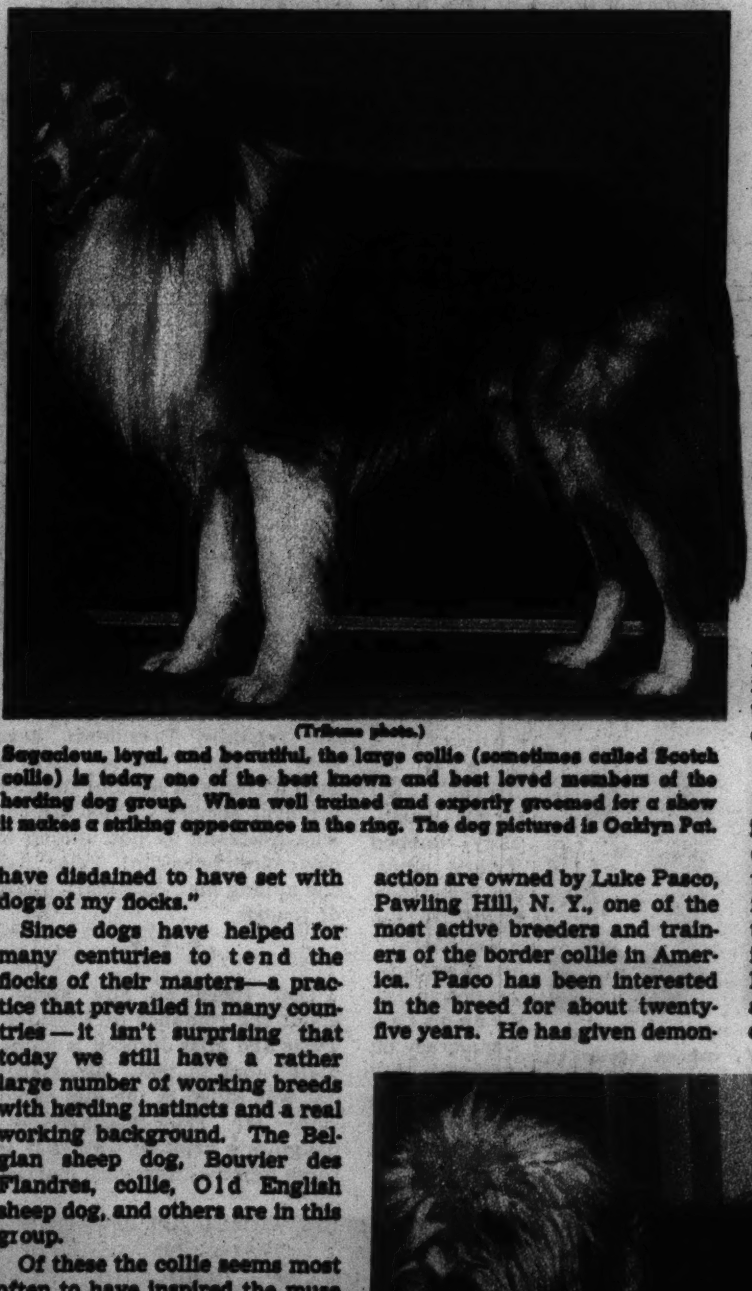
Waving his hat, the shepherd in the vale
Directs his winding dog the cliffs to scale—
That barking, busy 'mid the glittering rocks,
Hunts, where he points, the intercepted flocks.

Handsome, intelligent, possessing an abundance of life and energy, and with his homing sense unusually well developed, the collie has much appeal to dog fanciers. Recently a small variety of collie has been winning considerable attention because of its excellent work as a herding dog. This is the border collie or English shepherd, a breed not recognized by the American Kennel club and never seen in shows. Nor do you see many of these rather small sheep dogs in cities. It is primarily a working dog for the farm and ranch. Breeders are at the present time more interested in the attributes of the breed that make for a smart dog in the field than uniformity in color, coat, and size.

At least once a year we watch these border collies herd sheep. Always we marvel at their tractability, common sense, speed, and understanding of their work. The dogs that we have seen in action are owned by Luke Pasco, Pawling Hill, N. Y., one of the most active breeders and trainers of the border collie in America. Pasco has been interested in the breed for about twenty-five years. He has given demonstrations of how his dogs herd sheep in many parts of the country. The dogs are taught voice commands, whistle commands, and hand signals. Heather Jean, the fast little female collie which Pasco uses in exhibitions, understands about twenty-six whistle commands, according to her owner.

The border collie as found herding sheep on the moors of Scotland and elsewhere in the British Isles varies considerably in type. For example, there are long-haired, short-haired, and bearded border collies. The long-haired is the most popular. The breed, said to have been used and developed for more than 300 years, weighs between 30 and 40 pounds, as compared to the larger and better known rough-coated collie, which may weigh between 50 and 60 pounds.

Here in America the biggest advancement in making the breed better has been during the last ten or twelve years. The source of most of the promotion for the breed has come from New England, where there are quite a few of the dogs being used on sheep farms. It was in New England that the first American sheep dog trials for the breed were held.



(Tribune photo.)
Sagacious, loyal, and beautiful, the large collie (sometimes called Scotch collie) is today one of the best known and best loved members of the herding dog group. When well trained and expertly groomed for a show it makes a striking appearance in the ring. The dog pictured is Oaklyn Pat.

DOG NOTES

The famous Cruft's dog show, held each February in London, is named after the show superintendent, Charles Cruft. Mr. Cruft is now 87 years old.

The sport of exhibiting dogs in shows ranks No. 1 in the world of dogs from the standpoint of the number of competitors taking part in each event. More than 1,000 dog owners took part in the Morris and Essex show at Madison, N. J., last May, setting an all-time record for an American show.

(Tribune photo.)
A strong, even-tempered dog that is intelligent and affectionate, the Old English sheep dog is one of the most distinctive herding dogs known. Its tremendous coat and bob tail are two marked features of the breed. The dog is Blue Duster of Greywood.

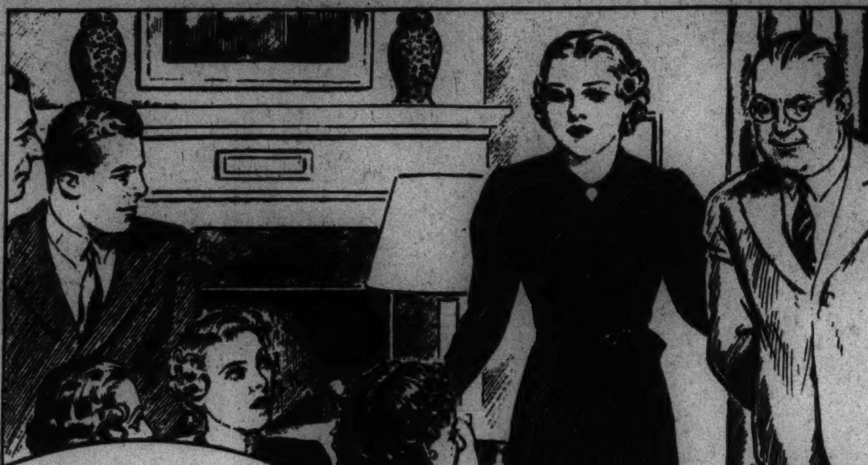
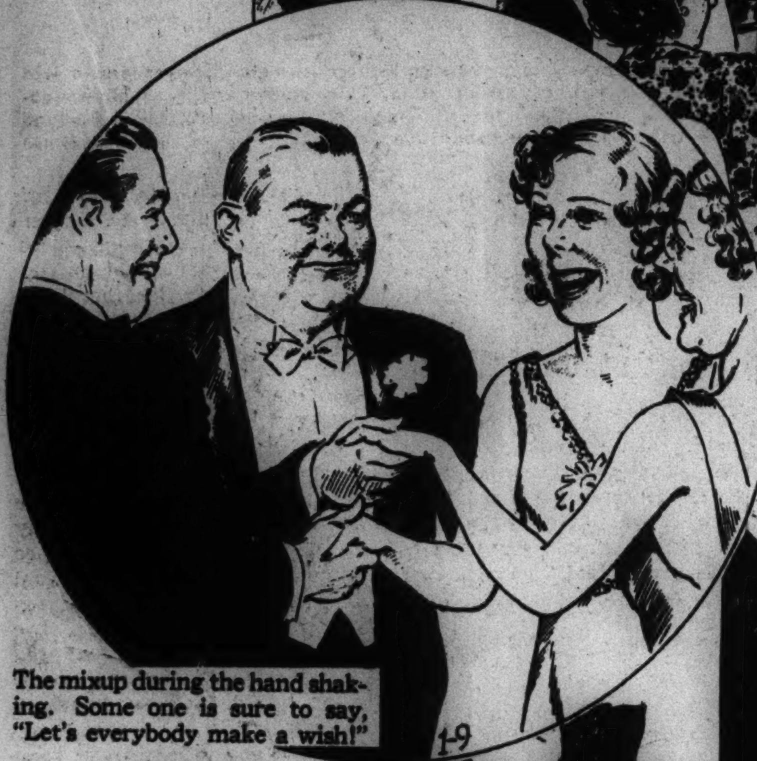
"PLEASED TO MEET YOU"

By W. E. Hill

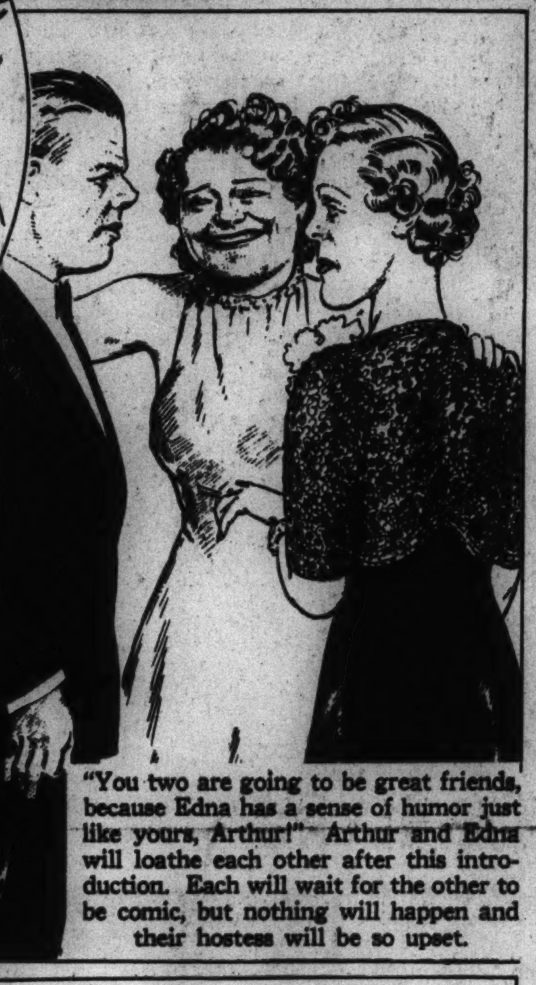
Copyright, 1938, by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

"Florence, this is Dr. Nutsey, our dentist, and you must tell him all about the bridge work you had done in Milwaukee. He'll be so interested." (A hostess knows that congenial people should be brought together.)

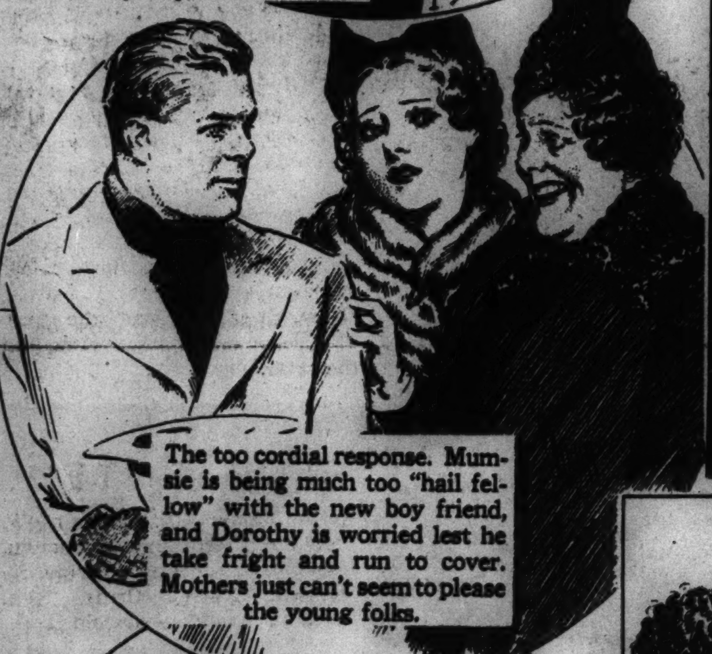




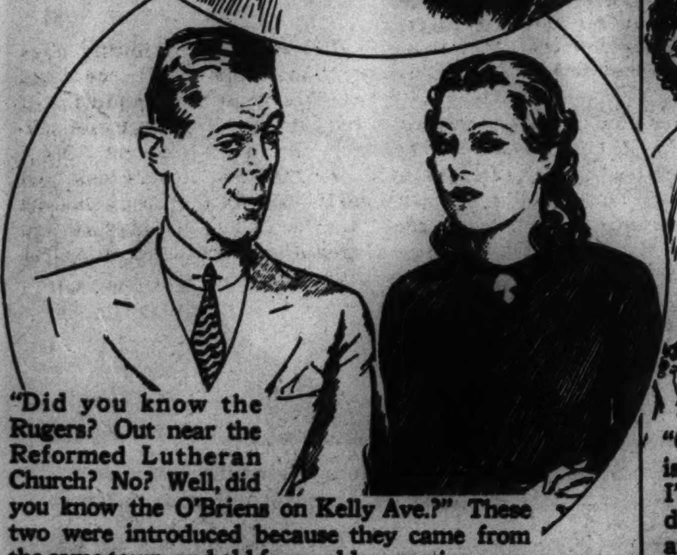
The mixup during the hand shaking. Some one is sure to say, "Let's everybody make a wish!"



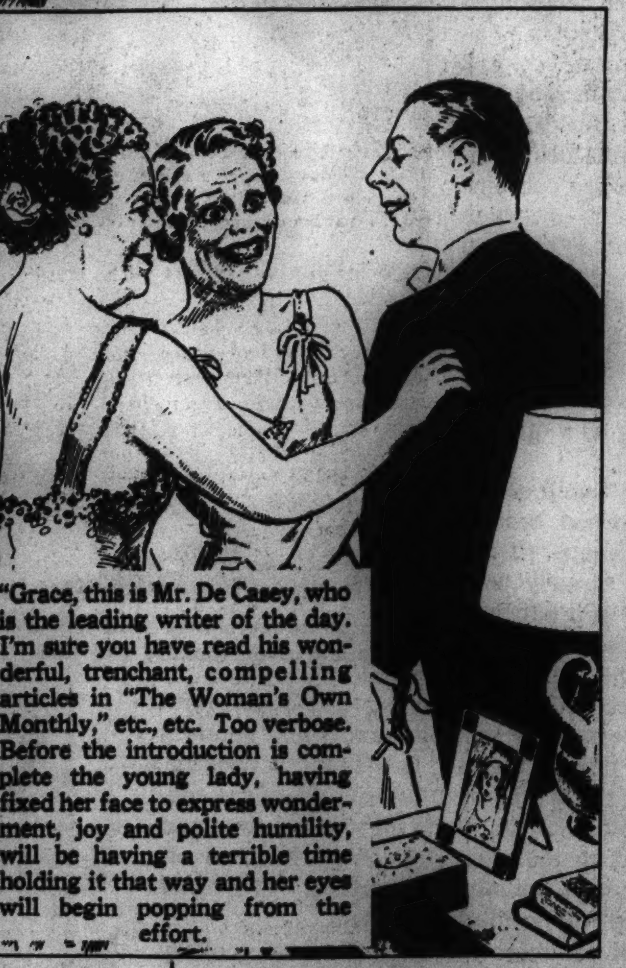
"You two are going to be great friends, because Edna has a sense of humor just like yours, Arthur!" Arthur and Edna will loathe each other after this introduction. Each will wait for the other to be comic, but nothing will happen and their hostess will be so upset.



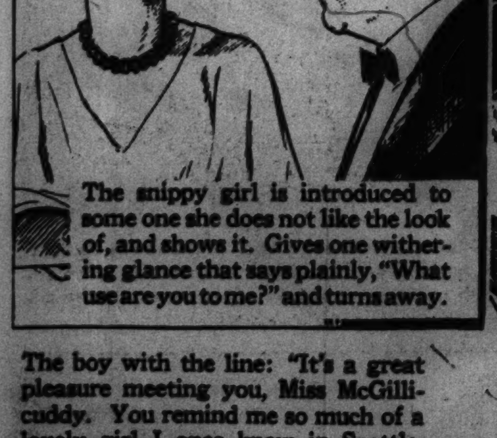
The too cordial response. Mumsie is being much too "hail fellow" with the new boy friend, and Dorothy is worried lest he take fright and run to cover. Mothers just can't seem to please the young folks.



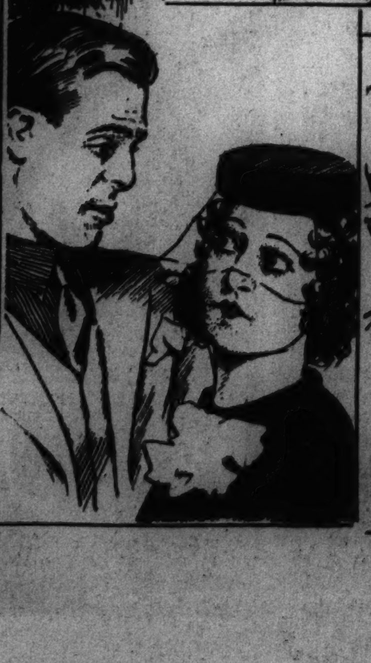
"Did you know the Rugers? Out near the Reformed Lutheran Church? No? Well, did you know the O'Briens on Kelly Ave.?" These two were introduced because they came from the same town, and old faces, old memories, were to bring them together. But they aren't doing so well.



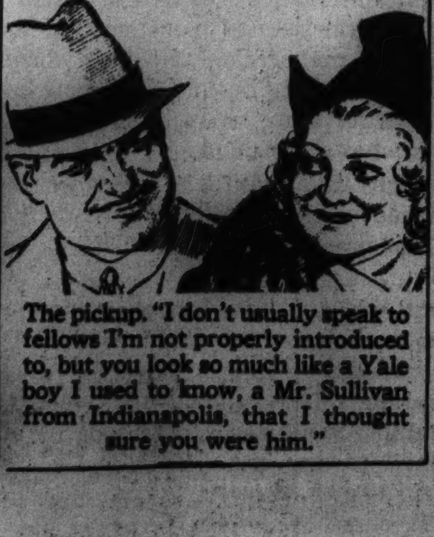
"Grace, this is Mr. De Casey, who is the leading writer of the day. I'm sure you have read his wonderful, trenchant, compelling articles in "The Woman's Own Monthly," etc., etc. Too verbose. Before the introduction is complete the young lady, having fixed her face to express wonderment, joy and polite humility, will be having a terrible time holding it that way and her eyes will begin popping from the effort.



The snippy girl is introduced to some one she does not like the look of, and shows it. Gives one withering glance that says plainly, "What use are you to me?" and turns away.



The boy with the line: "It's a great pleasure meeting you, Miss McGillicuddy. You remind me so much of a lovely girl I once knew in Seattle. She died last year of clam poisoning," etc., etc.



The pickup. "I don't usually speak to fellows I'm not properly introduced to, but you look so much like a Yale boy I used to know, a Mr. Sullivan from Indianapolis, that I thought sure you were him."

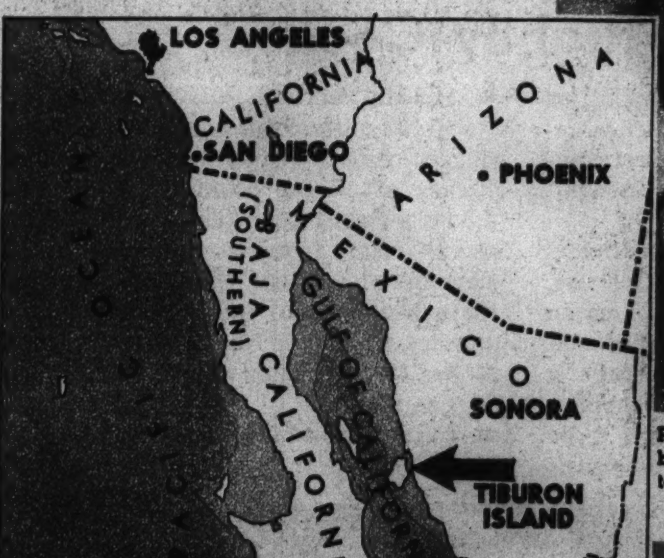
Mysterious Seris

Home life among the Seri Indians is as private as that of the proverbial goldfish. Each family group has its "jacale," which may be a rough shelter of sticks or merely a circle of rocks. This group is ready for dinner, which usually consists of sea food, eggs, and occasionally venison.

MYSTERIES of the western world, Indians of the Seri tribe live today on their Tiburon island in the Gulf of California, off the west coast of Sonora, Mexico, and only a few hundred miles from American cities such as Los Angeles, San Diego, and Phoenix.

Whence they came, what their racial origin, where they got their guttural "clucking" language, no one is certain. They are aloof and warlike. They live in almost unbelievably primitive conditions. Alone among all their Indian neighbors, they are non-agricultural.

The pictures on this page were obtained after repeated friendly visits to one family. The photographer is W. Charles Swett, assistant director of Hancock Pacific Expeditions of Los Angeles. Swett induced the natives to pose while he was on the island as a member of an expedition headed by Capt. G. Allen Hancock. Tiburon island is indicated on the map below.



Prettiest girl of her tribe, this young lady became the chief's bride. The facial markings are of dye, almost as permanent as tattooing. The scarf and finger ring are evidence of rare tourist visitations.

The chief and his bride. Upsetting a legend that the Seris are ruled by a matriarchy, this young buck is the unchallenged chief of a large family clan. There are indications, however, that descent and inheritance are matrilinear—or decided through the line of mother, rather than the father.

Fit for a King—Corned Beef and Cabbage

(Tribune Color Studio photo.)

This "New England boiled dinner" of corned beef and cabbage, potatoes, and carrots isn't too plebeian to serve for an informal company meal. Success in cooking corned beef depends upon keeping the temperature just below the boiling point.

Boiled Dinner Is Delicious When Rightly Cooked

By MARY MEADE

SLURRING insinuations long have been cast in the direction of corned beef and cabbage. An unjust whispering campaign has given it the reputation of being a dish too proletarian for the well bred dinner table. It's time some one came to the defense of this perfect combination of meat and vegetables, which, when treated right, isn't too plebeian for company dinner service.

● The trouble is, corned beef and cabbage have been cooked wrongly for many years. The beef has been boiled for hours, the cabbage likewise. The resulting stew has been long on odor and shy on delicate flavor. Corned beef never should be boiled except for the few minutes that the cabbage is cooked with it. A temperature just below the boiling point, at simmering, is recommended for meats which are to be cooked in water. One of the invariable cookery rules is this: Proteins are toughened by high temperatures and long cooking. Meat is a protein food and should not be thus abused.

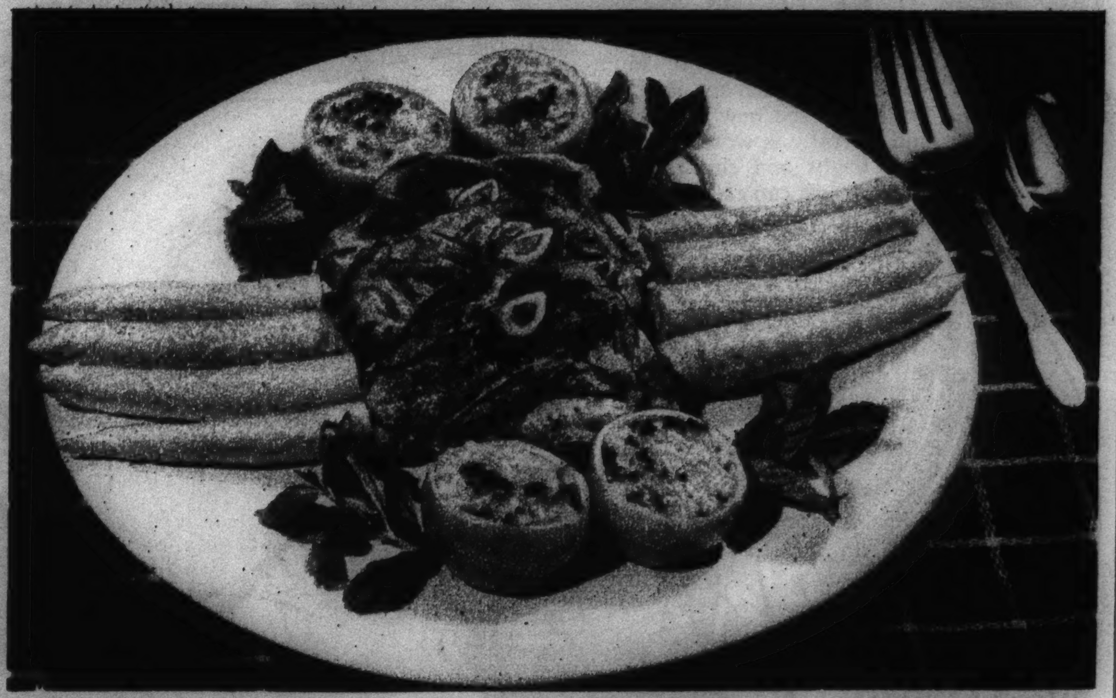
● And the cabbage—ah, the wrongs which this poor vegetable has suffered in and out of stews! Cabbage contains sulphur compounds which assert themselves in no uncertain manner when the cooking period is prolonged. Strong flavor, a strong odor (and maybe strong digestive disturbances) result from overcooking cabbage. From five to eight minutes is long enough. This means, of course, that the cabbage is put into the corned beef stew only a few minutes before serving time. It should never, never be cooked for as long as an hour, or even as long as a quarter of that time.

● To prepare a "New England boiled dinner" such as the one shown in the color photograph, the corned beef is wiped, tied in shape (if the butcher hasn't already done it), and placed in a kettle of hot water. A cover is placed on the kettle and the meat is allowed to simmer (not boil) for several hours, until it is tender. Vegetables such as carrots and potatoes may be added during the last half hour of cooking, cabbage during the last eight minutes. When the cabbage is put into the kettle the lid may be removed and the heat turned up somewhat. Cabbage is better off cooked coverless, at boiling temperature. This brief period of boiling will not harm the meat.

● Many a cook has more trouble with meat cookery than with cakes, pies, or any other branch of culinary performance. Many difficulties will be eliminated if she understands the principles of meat cookery and knows the methods of preparation suited to various cuts of meat. The illustrations on this page show how simply the main dish for dinner may be prepared by a cook who knows what she's about.

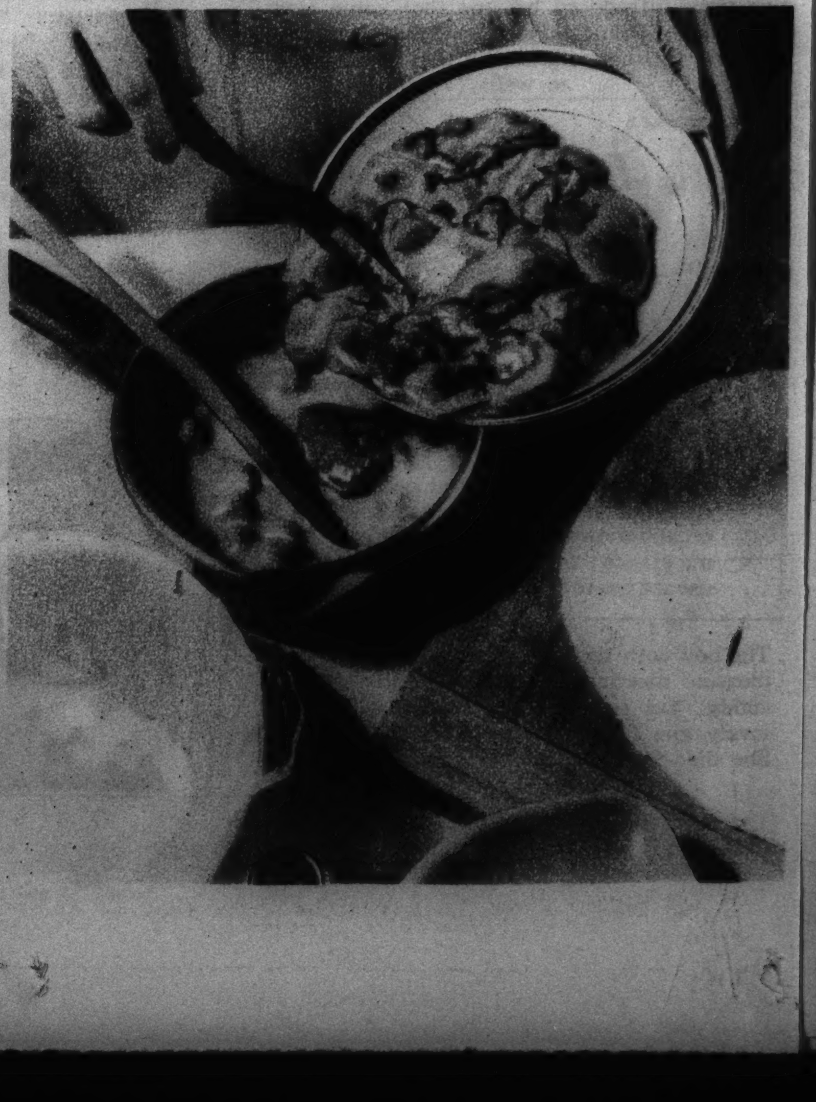
● Since meat (or fish) usually is the center of interest in any meal, it behooves us all to learn to cook it in the ways which best preserve the natural flavor and the food value.

● My department has a booklet on meat cookery which explains the hows and whys of methods and includes recipes for meat preparation. Twenty-three cents (in stamps) will bring it through the mail to any one requesting it. Address Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.



Lamb shoulder steaks with buttered carrots and tomato halves au gratin come from the broiling oven looking like this. Broiler meals are easy to prepare and easy to serve.

Sweet potatoes and cherry-filled pineapple slices blend flavors with broiled ham in this grilled dinner. The pre-cooked potatoes were buttered and sprinkled with brown sugar before broiling.



Bluepoint oysters, creamy mushroom sauce, and baking powder biscuit dough make a simple but good oyster pie.

2-Way Relief For Discomforts of COLDS

① Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

② If throat is sore from the cold, crush and stir 3 BAYER ASPIRIN tablets in ⅓ glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness almost instantly.

RELIEVES THROAT PAIN RAWNESS

ENTERS BODY THROUGH STOMACH AND INTESTINES TO EASE PAIN

For Rapid Results Make Sure to Get Genuine BAYER Aspirin

All it usually costs to relieve the discomforts of a cold today — is 3¢ to 5¢ — relief for the period of your cold 15¢ to 25¢. Hence no family need neglect even minor head colds.

Here is what to do: Take two BAYER tablets when you feel a cold coming on — with a full glass of water. Then repeat, if necessary, according to directions in each package. This will act to fight fever, and pains which usually accompany colds. Relief comes rapidly.

The Bayer method of relieving cold symptoms is the way many doctors now approve. You take Bayer Aspirin for relief — then if you are not improved promptly, you call the family doctor.

Genuine Bayer Aspirin is probably the best known and most widely-used medicine in the world. It is also one of the simplest and least expensive.

To get the genuine BAYER ASPIRIN ask for it by its full name; not by the name "aspirin" alone.

The Reason Bayer Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a tumbler of water.

By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.

This speed of disintegration enables genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets to start "taking hold" of headache and similar pain a few minutes after taking.
